Checked and re-checked against your individual measurements, we promise you a snug-fitting and good-looking a suit as you've seen at this price.
There is, this Spring, a very definite trend to a more generous use of colour in men's clothes. We went to England and to the great woollen mills in Canada. We chose the colouring that seemed most authentic to us. Alternate stripes are definitely in the lead. We have them in blue, gomet, light grey, fawn; on grey, blue, brown, background. All the checks and plaids, too, reflect this new freedom in colour. Still, there's no flight from standards of good taste. You'll find them deepened and enriched by a fine use of colour.
See our new fabrics. Go through our style book. Make your choice and leave us your measurements. We will do the rest, quickly, efficiently and to your taste. The men with luxury tastes and the men of moderate means will find it true economy to let EATON'S make his clothes, cutting them by hand, to his measurements.

EARHART PLANE DAMAGED IN SKID, FLIERS SAFE

Wet Runway is Blamed As Under-gear Wrecked Plane Tips on Left Wing

'Flying Laboratory' Crashes on Runway in Take-off

TIRE BLOWS OUT

Miss Earhart Climbs Out of Wrecked Craft

Honolulu, Mar. 20 (AP)—Amelia Earhart's around-the-world flight skidded and crashed today while she was attempting to take off for Howland Island on her world flight but she and her two men companions escaped injury.

There was a burst of flame from the engine and ambulances raced to the scene.

Aviatrix Climbs Out.

"Something must have gone wrong," she exclaimed.

The ship grilling plane, which had carried the aviatrix safely from Oakland, Calif., tipped over on its left wing.

All Escape Injury.

The flier's companion, Fred J. Noon, and Captain Harry Manning, also escaped injury.

The attempted take off was made shortly after dawn for the second stage of the world flight, a hop of 1,531 miles to tiny Howland Island, southward of here.

Miss Earhart entered the plane at 11.10 a.m. E.S.T. after Manning and Noonan had taken their places in the craft.

The motors were given a final warming up and then Miss Earhart "gunned" them as she headed down the concrete runway at Lake Field at high speed.

Out Switches, Prevents Fire.

The plane was about half way down the runway when the accident occurred.

Officials said the tire on the left wheel blew out.

A scattered crowd of about seventy five watchmen, mostly United States army men, saw a burst of flame from the motors when the start of the plane crashed, and then the fire died out.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Tabuteau, Science Service Meteorologist

Equinoctial weather! The sun crosses the equator at 7.45 p.m. eastern standard time. It is the spring equinox and daytime and night time are equal in length. If a storm happens today, there will be many who will say, "That was the equinoctial storm". It is, if one simply refers to storms that occur at this time of the year. But it is well to bear in mind that there is no physical relation of the phenomenon of the equinox and the storm. Before there were, there would be thunderstorms on either earth at the same time, which is never so. The equinox is the beginning of spring for astronomers.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, March 20 (CP)—Pressure is high over the eastern provinces and the western provinces northward to the Arctic while a low pressure trough is moving eastward across Illinois. A moderate to fresh easterly wind is blowing over the Great Lakes and precipitation has occurred locally in many other parts of the country. Temperatures are moderate throughout Canada.

Lake Superior—Mostly fair and moderately cold tonight and Sunday.

Northern Georgian Bay—Mostly cloudy and moderately cold today and Sunday with some snow, chiefly in the southern districts.

Driver Blows Horn For Fun as He Approaches Fox

HALF MILE RECORD

How fast can a red fox travel when he really steps out? Arnold Woodhouse, Peterborough, visitor to the city yesterday at the closing session of the Quinte Seed Fair, admits he has yet to find out.

En route from Peterborough to Belleville early yesterday morning Mr. Woodhouse, driving near Hastings, encountered Reynard trotting slowly along the road. He carried a young rabbit or some other small animal in its mouth.

The fox didn't hurt for fun. The fox stopped for a second and looked back. Then it started off at a fairly brisk clip. The car followed on the fox, running right ahead of the car. The faster I went, the more speed he picked up. The best I could do was 40 but was about forty. But he was able to keep well ahead of me.

He kept this up about half a mile. Then he took a sudden jump off to the side of the road into the brush. He still had that rabbit, or whatever it was, in his mouth.

MISSING LINK REPORTED FOUND IN SOUTH AFRICA

Two Legged Animal Part Way Between Man and Ape

250,000 YEARS OLD

Teeth Almost Entirely Human, Says Robert Broom

Philadelphia, Mar. 20 (AP)—A report the true "missing link", a two-legged animal part way between man and ape, has been discovered in South Africa, was made to the International Symposium early today by Robert Broom, of the Transvaal Museum, Pretoria, South Africa.

Broom discovered the head, except the lower jaw, in a cave at Sterkfontein last year. It was, he said, about 250,000 years old. The head pieced with it, he explained, about the size and proportions of a chimpanzee.

Teeth Almost Human.

But its teeth, Broom said, "were almost entirely human". No ape has ever been found with teeth like this animal. Its brain capacity was only that of a good sized modern gorilla.

The belief that this animal was a descendant of the first human stock, a cousin of the branch of the family which developed into human beings is based, Mr. Broom said, not alone on this new discovery.

A similar animal with virtually human teeth was discovered in southern Africa 200 miles away twelve years ago. It was a five-year-old "baby".

Two-Legged Creature.

Professor Raymond A. Dart of Johannesburg immediately identified it as a new type of two-legged creature, probably sub-human. But Mr. Broom said the possibility of Professor Dart's discovery could only be a young chimpanzee. He said they did not look at it as the fossil remains remained unsettled.

Since the new discovery, he said, there is no longer any doubt both creatures are different than chimpanzees. The first one lived 750,000 years ago, or about 500,000 years before Java man. Professor Dart thought there were intermediate links in the chain which Mr. Broom said that it had learned to take.

Used Sticks to Kill Game.

Dart also believed the parents of the "baby" had learned to use sticks as clubs to kill game and stones to kill their foes. This belief was based on the discovery of skeletons of extinct animals in the baby's cave.

The four-year-human creatures have been named australopithecus africanus.

Tiled Walls of School House Full of Gas, Chemist Thinks

Dr. Schoch Refers to 'Lack of Proper Flues' in Radiators in Walls—Another Opinion Mention Nitro-Glycerine Possibility—Toll in London, Texas, Disaster Reaches 455

New London, Tex., Mar. 20 (AP)—Toll of the London Consumers' School mine explosion reached 455 by latest checks today as a military court of inquiry convened to hear conflicting theories of the disaster, one, accumulated gas as a result of inadequate radiator vents, another, a nitro-glycerin explosion.

The casualty list, showed 94 injured and 361 dead. The 361, exhaustively as relief workers checked it, still was subject to revision.

The military court was convened while this stricken community and the surrounding oil country prepared to bury its dead.

The Cause of Disaster.

Dr. E. P. Schoch, University of Texas chemist, held out a belief the explosion Thursday was caused by gas forced into cells of the hollow tile school room walls by lack of proper vents for gas-fired individual radiators.

The Tyler Morning Telegraph quoted Captain Z. E. Coombes, member of the military court, as saying he could not say. The 34 exhaustively as relief workers checked it, still was subject to revision.

The military court was convened while this stricken community and the surrounding oil country prepared to bury its dead.

The Cause of Disaster.

Dr. E. P. Schoch, University of Texas chemist, held out a belief the explosion Thursday was caused by gas forced into cells of the hollow tile school room walls by lack of proper vents for gas-fired individual radiators.

The Tyler Morning Telegraph quoted Captain Z. E. Coombes, member of the military court, as saying he could not say. The 34 exhaustively as relief workers checked it, still was subject to revision.

"I don't think there was any defect in connection with the gas radiators which would allow such an explosion."

Search for the all-important cause of the explosion shared interest with plans for both mass and individual funerals of the victims.

Saddles Fred With Gas.

The radiators, one to a room, were individually fired with gas, heat radiation being by means of a contrivance similar to the radiator of a central steam heating plant but not supplied with steam from outside.

Dr. Schoch said, after a preliminary investigation last night, there was no double gas load been in the building, and that the blast came either from the basement or from the walls. He called the cells of tile "excellent gas chambers".

Thinks Walls Filled With Gas.

"It's simple," he went on. "The walls were filled with gas that had no other exit."

The condition of the bodies of those children bears that out. They were blown to death—not burned to death.

Superintendent W. C. Shaw, who led his son in the tragedy, was assured by Superintendent C. O. Pollard of Henderson, 18 miles distant, all New London pupils between the fifth and eleventh grades "would be welcome to attend the Henderson school without charge."

8 HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Hamilton, Ont., March 20 (CP)—Flames which broke out in an apartment building on Barton Street West early endangered the lives of six persons and caused scores of thousand dollars damage.

Steve Kurylow and his wife and four children had narrow escape. The flames drove them to the window ledge of the second-storey apartment. Kurylie, director of the Ukrainian National choir, tossed his wife and four children into a mattress held by two youths and then leaped to safety as the flames licked the air.

BAR CANADIANS FROM ENLISTMENT IN FOREIGN WARS

Providing Countries Involved on Friendly Terms With Canada

1870 ACT REPEALED

Ottawa, Mar. 20 (CP)—War-like aspirations of Canadians desiring to fight in foreign lands against countries on friendly relations with Canada, side-by-side to take part in civil wars would be sharply curbed by legislation adopted in the House of Commons yesterday and sent to the Senate.

The Foreign Enlistments Act of 1870, an imperial statute applicable to Canada, is being re-enacted with the statutes of Canada with some alterations to meet present day conditions. Debate on the measure occupied the House throughout yesterday afternoon, but there was no controversy on the principle.

Law Lords of the Privy Council should be made aware of the fact Canada has resigned from the colonial status and certain Canadians should rid themselves of a colonial spirit of inferiority, the opinion of Hon. C. H. Cahan, Conservative member for St. Lawrence-St. Georges, Montreal.

He said it was time all the imperial statutes in effect in Canada were outlawed and either abolished or replaced with the Canadian enactments.

The list of such laws runs to at least 150, Justice Minister Lapointe told the House after Mr. Cahan had conservatively estimated it at 115 statutes. Minister Lapointe said Mr. Cahan's suggestion on these measures be reviewed by competent legal experts with a view to repeal and replacement was a good one.

The new Foreign Enlistment Act replaces a British statute passed at Westminster in 1870 and which had so far been in force in Canada. It makes it a punishable offence for Canadians to enlist in the armies of foreign countries at war with countries friendly to Canada. By order-in-council it may be applied to civil wars.

HEIRESS TO WED GHILLIE LOVER

Glasgow, Scotland, Mar. 20 (CP)—Monica Ashley-Cooper, heiress to her father's steamship fortune, who can't imagine "anything more boring than a cocktail party" is going to marry an unemployed gamekeeper on Saturday, Glasgow society sought refuge from the world a few months ago.

Her Ghillie lover, Bert Sutherland of Caithness, is 49. When she announced she intended occupying the habited island of the Hebrides group, which her father purchased in 1919, no one can wear breeches most of the time in the mid-year months, she cannot do that in skirts. The noles of city life paver held any attraction for her.

Chiefs are Tight-Lipped After 3 Days of Study Over Walkout Question

Statement May or May Not Be Issued Today

FULL MEETING

Body to Decide Whether Rail Transport is to be Tied up

Montreal, Mar. 20 (CP)—A barrier of silence today walled the progress of railway labor leaders meeting to decide whether or not Canada's rail transport is to be tied up by a general wage strike.

No word of their attitude came from the representatives of an estimated 117,000 employees as they entered the third day of discussion on the question of a walkout for higher wages. The men on the 50 coast-to-coast labor chiefs stayed tight-lipped.

Decision Impends.

Possibility was that a declaration of their stand might emerge from their meeting today. The assembly of the conference's spokesman last night there would be "no statement until tomorrow" indicated that, though the spokesman would not say it meant definitely a statement would come out today.

During the day, a full meeting of the delegates was expected. Yesterday, only the vice-presidents of the eighteen railway unions were present, the plenary session postponed because of delay in the arrival of the strike ballots from some of their membership.

The new Foreign Enlistment Act replaces a British statute passed at Westminster in 1870 and which had so far been in force in Canada. It makes it a punishable offence for Canadians to enlist in the armies of foreign countries at war with countries friendly to Canada. By order-in-council it may be applied to civil wars.

MINERAL DATA BEING COLLECTED

Members From This District sit on Hon T. A. Crerar

Attention of the Ontario Department of Mines regarding the probable value of mineral prospects in Hastings and Peterborough counties is expected to be focused on this area in the near future as the result of a visit of a deputation composed of Mr. O. A. Cameron, K.C., of the city, M.P., for South Hastings; Mrs. Ferguson, M.P., for Hastings-Peterborough and J. J. Doyle, K.C., of Peterborough, ward to the office of the Hon. T. A. Heaps, Minister of Mines, this week.

The deputation of members was informed that the work and faith in the area's resources department attention and that work of collecting mineral data on the section of the province which would be submitted to the Hon. Mr. Crerar was well under way. A full report is to be taken.

Reports of progress and investment in properties in Hastings and Peterborough counties are being attentively followed by members of these constituencies.

Winter Ends at 7.45 Tonight

The winter of 1936-37 will come to an end for residents of this district, as well as the rest of the North American continent at 7.45 p.m. E.S.T. this evening. At this moment the earth will have reached the point in its orbit where the axis is at right angles to a line from the sun. The sun will then be directly over the Equator. This is the vernal equinox which marks the beginning of the first quarter of summer. Today the length of night will officially reach that of daylight.

The arrival of Spring this evening, however, will be unheralded; its advent will be unannounced. Though temperatures during the day may indicate a taste of balmy weather that is to come, lowering gray clouds that blanketed the district during the day dispelled the illusion of twittering birds and bursting buds.

STOCK IN FURNACE ROOM IS DAMAGED

Fire thought to have originated from wood piled on top of overheated hot water pipes broke out on the ground floor of the Baker Service Station at 2 Dundas Street shortly after seven o'clock last night, causing damage estimated by Fire Chief William Lynch to be in the vicinity of one hundred dollars.

Firemen answering the alarm fought the blaze and succeeded in reducing it before any great headway was made. The damage was done to stock in the furnace room where the fire started.

ROADS IN NORTH NOW QUITE HEAVY

Roads through the northern part of the county are not in too good shape for week and touring, it was reported in the city today by truckers and transport drivers. Heavy wind on many of the roads has resulted from the recent thaw and chains are held necessary for safe travel.

FISH DECLARED TO BE SMALL IN SIZE

Through-the-ice fishermen using the Bay of Quinte have been breaking world's records the past week or so as continued erosion softens the weakening ice surface. Dangerous blow holes and weak spots have developed, but care is needed on the part of those crossing at various points.

Fair catches of perch have been reported in the past few days by fishermen, but the fish are declared small in size. An entire absence of large fish is also noted among the bay. The reason has not been given.

RIGHT HAND THUMB TAKEN OFF BY SAW

Minard Stevens a resident of Prince Edward County was rushed to Picton Hospital on Thursday, when his hand became wounded in a buzz-saw he was operating at his home. It is believed to have made their way into the section from western or northern points, numbers have been on a definite increase during the past few days. One of the "jacks" shot last week in the northern part of the county weighed seven pounds.

ROAD ADDED TO HIGHWAYS

Under an order-in-council" approved in Toronto this week, the road connecting Pembroke and Madoc, via Barry's Bay, Combermere and Bancroft, 127 miles in length, has been added to the King's highway system. INQUEST CLOSES CROSSING CRASH

Deaths Attributed to Collision Between Car And Train

The deaths of Bernard Herity and Henry Eastman on March 6th at a railway crossing near Corbyville were caused by a collision between a car driven by Bernard Herity and a Canadian National freight train a Coroner's jury found, when they met to enquire into the fatality at the Police Court rooms on Friday evening. Dr. R. W. Tennent, Coroner for the district, presided and Crimond Butler acted for Crown Attorney R. C. Denman, K.C., in the interrogation of the several witnesses. The jury was composed of W. R. McCreary, foreman, Charmee Clapp, Glencoe Thompson, William McIntosh, Charles L. Walters, Reg. Moneriaff, J. W. Davison and Lee Ketchenson. The inquest was of short duration, there being but five witnesses called.

Interview With Survivor

Gordon Vanderwater, who was a survivor in the accident and who has been confined to his home in Moira was unable to attend the hearing but an interview between Dr. Tennent and Harry Vanderwater, son of the Provincial Police, was allowed as evidence. Sergeant Thompson, who visited Vanderwater told him, that he did not remember anything after getting out of the car and realizing that a train would be became conscious in the hospital some time afterwards. He stated, that approaching the crossing he had glanced to the north and everything was clear and taking a look to the south he just got a vision of the train and then everything became a blank. He then said, that the only clear vision was through the wiper in front of the car and he did not recollect whether the heater in the car was on or off. At the time of the accident, he told the jury, he was discussing machinery with Mr. Eastman.

Not Sure About Windows

The injured man was not sure whether all the windows of the car were up or not but was positive the windows on the side of the car in which he was riding were up. Sam Stevens Traffic Officer, who investigated the accident with Sergeant Thompson, corroborated the evidence of the officer, stating there were no marks around the car indication of the speed of the car but that the train was travelling heavy. Sergeant Thompson stated in giving evidence in the main, that the train was first seen about 300 feet from the railway crossing and, at which point the approach to the crossing were visible for a distance of 1,000 feet to the left and right. The tracks were at the extreme north end of the crossing for the train. A point over the point of impact was near the left cowl. Bernard Herity, he stated, was behind the wheel of the car, while Eastman was found in the back rear of the car. There were no skid marks and the car was demolished.

Arthur Betts, 17 Bond Street, Lindsay, and engineer of the freight train stated, that switching had been completed at the station and that the train was moving only five miles an hour at the time of the accident.

"Did you see the car?" asked Mr. Butler.

"I got a flash of the vehicle" said the witness.

"When did you first see the car?"

"As it was coming across in front of the engine."

"What was it doing?"

"I applied the brakes and threw the sand. I shut off the steam and I stopped the train in five car lengths."

"Could you judge the rate of speed of the car?"

"It could have been travelling quite lively."

Whistle Sounded

"Did you blow the whistle and ring the bell approaching the crossing?"

"I do Sir."

James O'Leary also of Lindsay and conductor on the train stated the first indication he had of an accident was when the brakes were applied and looking out of the caboose window saw a car on the left hand side of the engine. He was doing my work and did not hear the whistle but the bell was ringing. He stated, that the train arrived at the front of the train," and that it was stopped within a weather the witness stated that it had been raining and that the ground to a soft snow but he believed the visibility to be good.

John Clemett, fireman on the train and residing in Lindsay stated he was watching the left side and hearing a crash thought something had struck the engine. He "I told the engineer but he had already applied the brakes," said Mr. Clemett. He gave the speed of the train at 15 miles per hour and that they stopped in five car lengths.

GIRL DARTS IN FRONT OF VEHICLE

Merle Wanamaker Sustains Minor Injuries in Accident

After breaking away from her parents' custody and darting from behind a parked automobile on Coleman St. last evening, little Merle Wanamaker, five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wanamaker of this city, was knocked down and sustained minor injuries when struck by a passing automobile driven by Norman Freeman, of Tweed. Little Merle was immediately rushed to the emergency of Dr. O. G. Cronk where her injuries received medical attention. Fortunately no serious injuries resulted.

Mr. Leman was proceeding south on Coleman St. at a moderate rate of speed, he informed Dr. G. Bruce, who investigated. Just prior to his approach to the Catherine St. intersection, Mr. Leman saw the little girl suddenly dart out from behind a parked car and run directly into the path of his car. The driver applied the brakes of his car, swerved it to the right, thus averting a much more serious accident, police found. The location of the vehicle only brushed the little girl sufficiently to knock her to the pavement.

A cut over the right eye, facial lacerations and a bruised right leg were the injuries sustained by the little girl and following examination by Dr. Cronk, she was permitted to return home with her parents. No blame for the accident was attached to any of the parties, the finding of the vehicle only brushed the little girl sufficiently to knock her to the pavement.

Management Committee of Education Board May Consist Of All Members of Board

Motion Presented to Strike Out All Business But Compromise Made

TEACHER NAMED

Board to Take Membership In Urban Trustees' Association

The matter of membership on the School Management Committee which threatened at times at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education, last evening to resolve into a lengthy, involved and acrimonious debate, according to reports will probably be settled at the next meeting by the adoption of a motion that all members of the Board be named to comprise this important committee.

Knotted by legal tangles over the matter of procedure, the inability to learn ofhand if amendments to existing rules of order have been made in recent years and the fact that membership on the School Management Committee has always been presented a problem to nominating committees, the matter was held in abeyance in order in an attempt to find their way out of the mess.

Motion Advanced

Adding to the disturbed condition last evening, a motion had been advanced by Trustee Hefferon to confirm the minutes of the meeting, by Trustee H. R. Peaverly, seconded by Trustee Chas. Hyde which, if passed, would nullify and void the work of the committee of the whole at a meeting held on February 19th, last.

The motion which was later withdrawn by its mover, Trustee Hefferon, at the meeting of the Board of Education held on February 19th, a motion to adjourn was moved by the chairman of the committee of the whole, and under Rule 21 of the Rules of Order for the governing of the work of Education the distinctly states in part that no motion can be received, and when so received shall be in addition the committee and the Board of Education (which automatically adjourned for lack of quorum) removed immediately to a meeting on February 23rd, without the notice required to be given of meetings, and to meet their act legal.

"Therefore, the Board of Education hereby declares all business transacted from the time the Board went into committee of the whole until the close of the meeting on February 23rd to be null and void, and orders that the records pertaining to the same be expunged from the minutes.

"The minutes of the meeting of February 19th, to be read from the beginning of the committee of the whole are approved."

"You mean you want all business of the Board swept out from the time of the meeting of the 19th of February?" questioned Ld. Colborne.

"Will you withdraw this motion, Mr. Peaverly?" requested Chairman of the Board R. J. Allin, following some debate on the matter of rules in the order books. Several times an attempt to withdraw the motion was made by the secretary. He was hailed by Trustee Peaverly, who finally moved that it be taken by the Board.

"I will not," stated Mr. Peaverly maintaining his point or legality.

Legal Opinion Given

"You can't consider this motion at all," stated Trustee Jas. Peen. "You just can't write off this past business of the Board. You have the accounts that have been paid and other business transacted. Why are we going to undo all this?"

"We can't strike it all out.... there might be certain matters of it," agreed Chairman Allin, definitely seeking compromise.

Further discussion regarding Rules 32 and 21 which would allow members to contradict themselves was held.

Trustee Rev. Beauchamp Payne—"Doesn't Rule 32 mean that an adjournment can be moved?"

"That is the opinion of our solicitor on the matter," replied the chairman.

"We never nor no two persons could ever interpret these bylaws in the same light," offered Dr. J. W. Kinnear, pleading for "common sense in the matter of dealing with official business."

Upon the motion of Trustee W. J. Harrison, all articles of the minutes were confirmed except that part pertaining to school management.

"That suits me," agreed Trustee Peaverly, withdrawing his motion.

Estimates of the Board this year will contain provision for repairing at an estimated cost of $1,000 in the Collegiate and Vocational School it was revealed in an unfinished report submitted by the committee of Miss. Harrower and Repairs. Other work that will be recommended in this school is the painting and refinishing the tops of desks at a new cost of $270; radiator repairs at $250 and new lockers at $947. Other repairs of lesser cost are included in the report. Up to the present date a total of $673.84 has been spent this year in maintenance at the Collegiate.

New Roofs For Two Schools

In public schools recommended work includes a new roof for Queen Mary School at $1,000 and a new roof for Queen Victoria School, also estimated at the same cost. Painting in King George School at $300; relighting one room in each school at a like cost and various other repairs. Maintenance costs of public schools so far this year total $119.00.

It was announced that should that the above amounts be included in the estimates for the current year to cover repairs, additions and improvements, that Trustee Lewis through another recommendation will be asked to test the fire hose in each school.

Recommendations of the Supply Committee passed upon by the Board call for the purchase of an Encyclopaedia Britannica at a cost of $129.00, the lowest tender price, authority has also been given for the cleaning of 30 blue wool band uniforms at a price of $21.00. Successful tenderer was W. J. Bevers of this city. One hundred and twenty-five chairs have been ordered and a price of 25 cents each for Miss Burke.

The action of the Advisory and Vocational Committee in recommending Mr. Homer Thomas to fill the position of temporary teacher of the Vocational Classes in Carpentry, vacated by the death of Jas. Hall, at the wage paid Mr. Hall, Thomas will be engaged for the balance of the school year at a salary of $126.00 per month.

Committee Appointed

Following the adoption of a delegation of teachers, who approached the committee requesting the reinstatement of a portion of deductions made in salaries during the past five or six years, a committee of the Advisory and Vocational Committee has been appointed to make further investigation and report.

For the first time in several years the Board of Trade will take out membership in the Urban Trustee's Association, it was decided.

A letter from Inspector Orchard, received from H. J. Clarke, B.A., Inspector of public schools for Hastings county, advised that through application to the Board of Education there is sufficient number of Royal Oak scores have been received by him to establish each school into one of the each. It was suggested that school children on the city might make convention day a free holiday day in which the services could be planned with proper observance. A plea, that school children also assist in the observance of the day of Quinte Beaches Association in bloom was also received by the meetings that are expected to be held in this city in connection with the civic bathing beach location was made by Trustee Rae, Mooricrft. It was thought the proper place for the civic bathing beach location was made by Trustee Rae, Mooricrft.

It was finally decided that a committee of Trustee Mooricrft, seconded by Trustee Peaverly, that the Board assist in the formation of a committee of citizens to take charge of teachers and pupils, to plant 100 Royal Oak seedlings on the beach, and make a grant of $5.00 for the purpose of buying the small trees.

Notice of Motion

Under notice of motions, Trustee Sherry Hollins gave notice that he would at the next regular meeting of the Board of Education, the Board of Education, following a resolution passed by the Board on January 21st, Report No 3 to mean that the committee on Finance, School Management, Supply Buildings and Repairs and Printing and Advertising, be empowered to consist of at least one public school trustee, one separate school trustee, and the chairman of Finance be ex-officio member of the committee on School Management. The notice was seconded by Trustee Peaverly.

An interim during which time Mr. W. J. Fenton, former dean of trustees of the Board may be asked to act as chairman of the board of orders of the Board, and amendments to the Rules of Order by Trustee Frank Cushing, "If any one knows, Col. Fenton should", it was unanimously agreed by Trustees.

In his monthly report, Mr. F. C. Middlemiss, principal of the Collegiate and Vocational Institute will consider provision for repairing at an estimated cost of $1,000 in the Collegiate and Vocational School it was revealed in an unfinished report submitted by the committee of Miss. Harrower and Repairs. Other work that will be recommended in this school is the painting and refinishing the tops of desks at a new cost of $270; radiator repairs at $250 and new lockers at $947. Other repairs of lesser cost are included in the report. Up to the present date a total of of $673.84 has been spent this year in maintenance at the Collegiate.

New Roofs For Two Schools

In public schools recommended work includes a new roof for Queen Mary School at $1,000 and a new roof for Queen Victoria School, also estimated at the same cost. Painting in King George School at $300; relighting one room in each school at a like cost and various other repairs. Maintenance costs of public schools so far this year total $119.00.

It was announced that should that the above amounts be included in the estimates for the current year to cover repairs, additions and improvements, that Trustee Lewis through another recommendation will be asked to test the fire hose in each school.

Recommendations of the Supply Committee passed upon by the Board call for the purchase of an Encyclopaedia Britannica at a cost of $129.00, the lowest tender price, authority has also been given for the cleaning of 30 blue wool band uniforms at a price of $21.00. Successful tenderer was W. J. Bevers of this city. One hundred and twenty-five chairs have been ordered and a price of 25 cents each for Miss Burke.

The action of the Advisory and Vocational Committee in recommending Mr. Homer Thomas to fill the position of temporary teacher of the Vocational Classes in Carpentry, vacated by the death of Jas. Hall, at the wage paid Mr. Hall, Thomas will be engaged for the balance of the school year at a salary of $126.00 per month.

Committee Appointed

Following the adoption of a delegation of teachers, who approached the committee requesting the reinstatement of a portion of deductions made in salaries during the past five or six years, a committee of the Advisory and Vocational Committee has been appointed to make further investigation and report.

For the first time in several years the Board of Trade will take out membership in the Urban Trustee's Association, it was decided.

A letter from Inspector Orchard, received from H. J. Clarke, B.A., Inspector of public schools for Hastings county, advised that through application to the Board of Education there is sufficient number of Royal Oak scores have been received by him to establish each school into one of the each. It was suggested that school children on the city might make convention day a free holiday day in which the services could be planned with proper observance. A plea, that school children also assist in the observance of the day of Quinte Beaches Association in bloom was also received by the meetings that are expected to be held in this city in connection with the civic bathing beach location was made by Trustee Rae, Mooricrft. It was thought the proper place for the civic bathing beach location was made by Trustee Rae, Mooricrft.

It was finally decided that a committee of Trustee Mooricrft, seconded by Trustee Peaverly, that the Board assist in the formation of a committee of citizens to take charge of teachers and pupils, to plant 100 Royal Oak seedlings on the beach, and make a grant of $5.00 for the purpose of buying the small trees.

Notice of Motion

Under notice of motions, Trustee Sherry Hollins gave notice that he would at the next regular meeting of the Board of Education, the Board of Education, following a resolution passed by the Board on January 21st, Report No 3 to mean that the committee on Finance, School Management, Supply Buildings and Repairs and Printing and Advertising, be empowered to consist of at least one public school trustee, one separate school trustee, and the chairman of Finance be ex-officio member of the committee on School Management. The notice was seconded by Trustee Peaverly.

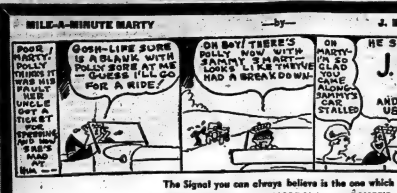
An interim during which time Mr. W. J. Fenton, former dean of trustees of the Board may be asked to act as chairman of the board of orders of the Board, and amendments to the Rules of Order by Trustee Frank Cushing, "If any one knows, Col. Fenton should", it was unanimously agreed by Trustees.

In his monthly report, Mr. F. C. Middlemiss, principal of the Collegiate and Vocational Institute will consider provision for repairing at an estimated cost of $1,000 in the Collegiate and Vocational School it was revealed in an unfinished report submitted by the committee of Miss. Harrower and Repairs. Other work that will be recommended in this school is the

Sickness in Staff



"We have had more sickness among teachers of the staff this year than I can ever remember", stated the principal.

Inspectors of the department are expected to visit the school next week it was stated.

The report of the school attendance officers for the month of February showed a total of 72 visits to homes and 53 visits to schools to trace strays or absentees. One home and two employment permits were issued during the month.

City Engineer, Chas. Mott will undertake a survey of local schools next week in an effort to determine some method of removing dust nuisances from school playgrounds, according to a request by the Board to this effect.

MENTAL DISEASES and MODERN EDUCATION

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:—

A short time ago every 32 persons in Ontario Department of Health announced that more than a quarter of a million dollars was to be used to build another hospital in the Province of Ontario will be even greater than in New York. Is this not a real cause for alarm? These diseases then are not a serious menace. They are more dangerous than T. B., Cancer, heart and Kidney diseases? Are they not cholera. They are to be feared (1) because they increase the number of criminals and (2) chiefly because they profoundly weaken the dominant white races.

Up to the present time physicians have not been able to discover anything definite regarding the causes of mental diseases. One thing they do know — that is secure a cure in whole or part it is necessary (1) to remove as far as possible the tension and excitement on the nervous system (2) to build up the patient with the proper kind of nourishment and (3) to place her in a restful environment.

Is there a possibility that our present Educational System which these competitive Methods and Examinations may be at least partly responsible for developing these mentally unbalanced conditions?

Before a normal child enters school she has a life of freedom, of natural exercise in the fresh air and sunshine, and associates with other children as well as her parents and other adults. As a result she develops in a natural way. In a natural, unrestrained way, much more than she will learn in any succeeding period of equal length in her life. Then she will also have developed physically, morally and we trust spiritually.

At six she enters school and at once all is changed and she comes under restricting discipline. She must sit quietly in a specified seat, must not talk or make any noise, must learn what she is taught in the way her teacher tells her. There is a distinct sense with the part in all her activities. Is this necessary by the old "penitentiary" idea were the teachers of those early days?

Then she teacher presents material from an authorized text book in which the pupil is not interested and which she cannot assimilate. Her interest is stimulated by urging her to study so that she can get ahead of her classmate and at the end of the month a report is sent home telling — not what she has accomplished — but her standing as compared with the other pupils. If she is near the top of her class the fond parents are naturally delighted but if she is not, then punishment is put on at home. The nervous strain begins to be intensified often by the force of home work which drains her physical endurance and takes the joy out of life. Is it any wonder that both pupils and teachers long for the holidays when they are sorry when they come to an end?

As the pupil passes on to the higher classes she soon comes up against Examinations in which the teacher announces on Friday that "next Friday we will be in examination in Geography" and then every extra moment in the meantime is spent in cramming to her brain the answers to the questions that are likely to be asked on the Exam paper. This is continued week after week with several examinations held two or three times during the year. The cramming process is intensified when pupils are exhausted and in many cases they are nervous wrecks sometimes leading to suicide.

In order to further limit the pace, lists "in order of merit" are published, prizes and scholarships are given and the whole object of education and Christianity are lost sight of in the mad rush to get to the top and beat out the "other fellow."

Surely when we seriously consider the whole situation we cannot come to any other conclusion than that our Modern Educational Methods are responsible for the vicious system of many pupils to delicatessen. In some cases this happens to such an extent that they become patients in mental hospitals for longer or shorter periods — some of them permanently.

Is it not time for those who are actively engaged in Educational work to consider this whole problem with the object of devising methods that will build up human personality. In an article by a famous Medical Authority on the subject of mental diseases he concludes "Despite the marvels of scientific civilization, our most specific functions develop incompletely and human personality tends to decay. Perhaps the most important of all Educationists by scrapping much of our present technique and starting off on an entirely new course based on real Christian ideals may be able to supply the help we proffered to.

Asks Teachers to Counteract Agencies That Are Responsible For Slovenly Speech

RETARDED PUPILS

Inspector States Unusually Large Number in Local Schools

School children of this city have become noticeably careless of late years in their handling of the English language, and it is the duty of those in charge of the education of the rising generation to do all that is possible to counteract the agencies, that are making for slovenly speech, in the opinion of Mr. H. J. Clarke, B.A., public school inspector of this city.

This opinion was revealed in an informative half-yearly report of city schools submitted to members of the Board of Education at their regular monthly meeting last evening.

Of the four eight teachers employed in schools of this city, twenty-two of hold first class certificates, and while this number compares favorably with some other places, the percentage is not good enough, outlined Mr. Clarke. A request has been made by members of the Board that in future no new teachers without first class certificates be hired except in cases of extreme necessity.

Many Retarded Pupils

Belleville schools have also an unusually large number of retarded pupils, it was stated by the inspector.

"Just what is to be done with the class of scholar is a problem worthy of serious thought. It should be possible to devise some plan to meet the needs," impressed Mr. Clarke.

"On the other hand, we also have a number of exceedingly bright children, and it is only fair to give them the proper attention it is impossible to do now what the result might be," he added.

One of the great needs of local schools is a reference library. At the present time not one school in the city possesses such a reference book it was declared.

"During my tour of the schools I have impressed upon teachers the need for giving special attention to pronunciation and articulation," stated Mr. Clarke in his report to the Board.

Attendance Reduced Says School Nurse

Attendance in classrooms of local school was reduced during the past month of February due to illness, it was revealed by the monthly report of the school nurse, Miss Hamilton, submitted to members of the local Board of Education last evening.

During the month 26 cases of mumps and three cases of chicken pox were reported.

Eight school dental clinics were held in the Queen Alexandra School, with thirty-two children having work completed.

Physical examinations were given sixty-seven children, and 52 underwent test to see if wearing brace knuckles on hot rites, but just a same 15 were found to have knock knees and 12 for loose hair.

Miss Hamilton, member of the staff of Tweed Consolidated School, has been unable to carry on her duties for the past couple of weeks, illness.

Mr. J. G. Frost presided at the organ of Tweed United Church on Sunday in the absence of Mrs. R. Richardson, organist, who was ill.

For the first time during the present winter the Tweed Curling Club has been blocked by the heavy snowfall of Wednesday. Motorists using township roads found the going more than good over which they were pulled from the drifts by nearby farmers. Some of the rans of the Tweed Consolidated School were delayed considerably on Thursday morning.

The annual St. Patrick's meat-pie supper held by Mrs. Ed. Ha's group of Women's Association of Tweed United Church on Wednesday night was well attended in spite of the inclement weather. The church parlors were tastefully decorated with green and white streamers, shamrocks, and other suitable decorations, which made an attractive setting for the affair.

The Philatelic Club of St. Catharine's Church presented "Shamrock and Rose" a delightful drama of Irish life at the Opera House on Wednesday night. A good crowd was in attendance as the annual event has become very popular and the audience is assured of a high-class entertainment. The production this year was no exception to the rule. Mrs. Ida McFarlane directed the play. He himself has taken part in numerous amateur theatricals and is well qualified as a director. The scenic effects were splendid and added greatly to the attractiveness of the settings.

The story of the play is woven around an Irish rebellion which broke out in Winklow where Squire Fitzgerald (Simon Merav) resided. To this part of the country John Desmond (Shannon LaPointaine) an colonial patriot, in love with the Squires daughter, Rose, (Colleen LaPointaine) fled for refuge. The King's soldiers, under Capt. Beck, (Michael Collins) searched the house, and Squire Fitzgerald was arrested, until Shaugue as Barney O'Grady played a particularly exciting role in excellent style, while James Lajoie as the spy (Shaun Carey) succeeds in having Desmond driven into jail. He is rescued just before the day of execution and in the end the Capt. Beck is a dead. The play ends happily for the hero, the heroine and the rebels.

The complete cast was as follows:

Bert Shaugue, Simon Merav, Colleen La Pointaine, Patricia Lamb, Shannon LaPointe, Michael Collins, Shannon La Pointaine, James Lajoie, Lawrence Carey, Terrance Rashotte, Donald Courneyea and Joseph Mahoney.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop started to sit down in his private chair, saying, "Ouch!" and grabbing the seat of my old lumbago. This world is still safe for germs and microbes and I'll bet a dollar to a dime that all of the alfabet, I've had A for alimentary canal, B for bellyache, C for cancer, D for diabetes, E for ear ake and F for fever.

Well, O, pop, think of all the different things you've had—probbly cramps in your fingers from playing a harp in the orkestra, and cramps in your brain from trying to figger out algebra, and that's one pale ray of consolation, but I'll bet you've had it all for again when I remember that I had the measles and chicken pox all for high temperature and I for the itch.

But I bet you 10 to one you'll never brake your jaw by slapping your face with a mirror, and you pop said, Well maybe not, if I remember right, but I do get sweating brass knuckles on hot rites, but just a same I've had 2 fingers broke, 3 knock knees and 12 for loose hair.

I never had a dislocated Adam's apple from tying your necktie in front of the mirror, said he said, No, but I've had M for narrowing of the arteries and O for obstruction of the digestion and P for partly extracted teeth, not to mention O for queer pronounciation and S for ramblings inside.

But you wont very likely get chapped hands from rubbing, rasberry cream on your wrists on a cold day, and I can think of lots more you wont, too, I said, and pop said, Sonny brother I'm cured I think the luck is all on my side.

And he lit a cigar and started to blow smoke like somebody feeling better instead of worse.

BE KIND TO CHILDREN

It is cruel to force children to take medicine that are too strong for them. Mothers can and other preparations that may have can be agonizingly painful.

What a difference there is when you give them MOTHER'S FRIEND. It starts to relieve promptly which carries away all the waste matter from the intestinal tract and the bile from the blood. Within a short time after Mother's Friend has cleansed the system the child is like a different being—happy, contented and full of pep. Many mothers give their youngsters a dose of MOTHER'S FRIEND before or after school, and find it helps to keep them well and happy. Mother's Friend is good for all druggists. W. H. MORTON, PUBLISHER

THE GOOD HOME

A good home is the hope of democracy, said Rev. Dr. Robert Russell Wicks, dean of Chapel, Princeton University. He expressed concern about the problem of making a good home where Christian qualities can penetrate youth before the young people begin to think for themselves. He made it clear that "you cannot live on a cynical criticism of the past; a positive element is necessary. The kind of home life of this generation will have more influence than any work the individuals will do in the world."

He says that the guide for the home life will not be found in the movies, where love begins at first glance, runs its course in two hours and end where real love problems begin. Novels are likewise disappointing. They are false works as to where the young people live happily ever after or not to have any happiness at all.

"No matter how fashions in morals change there has always been the example of the homes of good, happy people. For the steadiness of youth and the future of the state the best knowledge of family life is at home. The characteristics of this kind of home are: ....'its people grow through differences. There would be no growth if we simply copied one another. The real business of a family is to develop between people a difference that will be productive.

"There is the power of the family centre. Pull from that direction has a decisive effect on all experiments to live one's own life. We can't remember one word of advice from our homes but we did get a feel of what was right to do.

"We receive training largely by contagion. We all live by our borrowing capacity. All original thinking is based on borrowed thoughts. We are all tired of drab morality of Main Street and the dirtiness of modern minds, but we all know people from good homes who have cherished something more precious than life itself."

Dr. Wicks stressed the children's hour between daylight and dark should be sacred to the communal life of the family.

MUSIC IN THE COMMUNITY

Music has a true friend in Edward Johnson, manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who also knows how to extend its influence. This dual capacity he is filling admirably in the popularization of music which also supports the grand opera as exemplified at the "Met."

It needed the remarks of Johnson the other day to stir up interest in community music, especially music among the young in school. Long after many another subject has been forgotten in detail, music will remain with the songs sung or played in childhood and in early life, a culture which passes into the soul and moulds the well-rounded life.

That is a happy country where are heard the songs of children and youth and adults, and the music is sung or hummed or played, where music will absorb so much of the energy which is now divested into less worthwhile directions.

Music in schools is to be desired. Nothing gives bigger dividends in culture and in lives happier as the years pass.

LENT NEARS END

Lent is near at hand. The last week, rich in experience for men and women with its tragic story of sacrifice on Good Friday and that last day before the dawn of Easter, makes an indelible impression on the minds of men and women, boys and girls. The last week sums up the message of the Gospel and to the Christian is the key to the Gospel.

How deeply this season affects the life of a community and a nation can of course not be closely defined. But it brings an influence to bear which is undoubtedly moulding the life of every individual and of the whole of society. Lent is observed by a large portion of the people with deep sincerity and their lives are enriched. Its observance adds to the technique the Christian develops and requires for the successful life. These people do not blare their influence before the world, but that quiet influence which does not fade.

I know it is more agreeable to walk on carpets than to lie upon dungeon floors; I know it is pleasant to have all the comforts and luxuries of civilization; but he who cares only for these things is worth no more than a butterfly contented and thoughtless upon a morning flower; and who ever thought of rearing a tombstone to lost-summer's butterfly? —H. W. Beecher.

MARY MAGDALENE TO MARY AND MARTHA

They've taken him ,our Lord. Tell Lazarus
We do not know yet what they mean to do.
But oh, we fear they mean to crucify,
And if they do, I place some blame on you.

I don't know why He does not strike them dead,
The High Priest, yes, strike him and his to earth,
And all the Roman soldiers, Pilate, too,
I know He has the power, and they the worth.

You anointed Him for burial, He said,
Why not that He should live, our King to be,
I have faith He will come down from the cross,
And mean to stand before the cross to see.

Have you the courage? Will you show yourself
Where are His friends? All vanished at a breath?
If He comes not down they may slay me, too,
For I am His disciple to the death.

HOPE SPRINGS ETERNAL IN THE HUMAN BREAST, and that's what keeps the Irish Sweepstakes and other lotteries going, despite laws prohibiting participating. Without vision, the nation perisheth, some one has said, and without hope, the outlook is the reverse of cheerful. Life is brighter and more cheerful because hope brightens the pathway ahead, even if it bases is brilliance upon such insecure foundation as a sweepstakes win. Just now the winners are joyful and the losers are trying to pump up enough courage to fill the vacuum left by hope's betrayal. Something else will take its place and life will flow on again like the river, going somewhere—where? What's the odds as long as we're moving. The only thing to fear is stagnation, for that means oblivion.

HOLLYWOOD HAS A WEATHER GUESSER, and he seems to be making good. It is highly important that movie moguls should be advised of weather which would interfere with outdoor shots and thus lose considerable money. Hence a young man named Irving Parkhurst Krick, of California Institute of Technology, has been retained to advise upon probable weather disturbances. Airmindedly, developed in New York, was brought to the United States by Dr. Krick, and has been used successfully for the Western Air Express, officials of which declared that Krick forecasts saved the line $35,000 one year. Movie moguls are the best customers of Dr. Krick, realizing the importance of knowing what the weather is going to be a day or two in advance of proposed "shooting."

Dr. Krick's forecasts are 96.1 per cent. and has been able to tell when rain will begin to fall within an hour or so.

Energetic, progressive, possessed with business ability and vision, the Retail Merchants Association of Ontario should make distinct progress under President Lewis. LIFE GROWS EASIER

One of the new gadgets is a man's hairbrush with a compartment in the back for holding razor, toothbrush, comb, soap and so forth. This will be a godsend to men who are always forgetting to pack their toilet articles. Now, instead of having to forget each article separately, they have only to forget their hairbrush and the job's done.

Trains of the Future

"They've built a British airliner, which can average 200 miles per hour," said the young commercial pilot whom I had met in the London-pistol room. "Take you to Manchester in an hour. It means the end of the railways, except for goods traffic. They can't compete . . . ."

In reply I showed him five newspaper cuttings. One announced the dedication by our railways of 1,000 of an entirely new type of signalling device which enables the fastest trains to steer at full speed through the thickest fog. Another was an interview with an American railway engineer who revealed plans for a steam train which could "cruise" at 150 m.p.h. The third described tests in Germany of an new electro-magnetic braking system which can stop a train travelling at 150 m.p.h. quicker than present-day brakes can stop a 60 m.p.h. express. The fourth was a technical article describing how in time, a few years ahead, when driverless trains will be guided in absolute safety for hundreds of miles by control men sitting in city offices. The fifth announced the railway guarantee of £2,500,000 for British railways' research.

"The end of the railways?" I said; it's only just the beginning!"

That is the faith inspired by tremendous competition, the railway experts have proved, and by the new sources of science to aid them. The next few years will see a series of spectacular developments which will revolutionize all our ideas of surface travel.

The first dramatic announcement will probably concern what is now L.M.S. headquarters are maintaining their pre-slump attitude, but I can tell you something about wonders which the engineers of America, Germany and Great Britain—are performing in their search of the fastest, safest and most economical train.

Meanwhile, on a lonely stretch of line outside Berlin, I watched the latest robot-control at work. I saw a train, which had been a stationary locomotive, and he pointed out a tiny light set low downNat. Rivers Magazine.

A Lawyer for Everyone

In his report, published recently, Dean Smith, of the Columbia School of Law, recurs to a familiar theme. Into the overcrowded bar new crowds are pouring every year. Average earnings are low. Nearly 10 percent. of the New York County bar has attained the status of prosperity. "There is one lawyer for every 783 persons in the whole population of the United States, 'infants included.'"

These statistics can't check the inrush of new victims. In the six law schools of this town there are more than 6,000 students. Columbia, more conservative in its requirements, has 526, "less than 9 per cent."

Who and what can stay this flood of Blackstonians? The law schools are the chief sources of supply. Theirs is largely the responsibility, wrote Dean Smith, for the overpopulation of the bar. Many of these schools' methods are not fit to practice. A college degree is no more evidence of future qualification. In 1929 the Columbia law faculty began to restrict "admission to a limited number of students who, on the basis of their fitness to pursue successfully an extensive course of legislative course of study." Yale, Cornell and Pennsylvania followed suit. Harvard will join in next Fall.

Under the process of selection the number of law students at Columbia was cut from 1,927 to 1,526 in 1936. Examination of the records of graduates in the last three years shows that there were about 90 students in each class "who, because of temperament or other reasons, lack ability or defects in personality, are not likely to find in the profession the opportunities to which they aspire." A faculty committee is now studying the cases and this can get in somewhere else, the committee says, "but it will scarcely be relieved. There will be many law schools and hard law schools. The hard ones will not get good students." Legal Education, representing the bar association and law schools in it, "is slowly bringing about a co-operative effort that is needed." Meanwhile, the numerical problem of the bar increases rapidly.—New York Times.

Parliament Hill Hears

Current rumor on the Hill ... that private members in the Conservative party are just as curious about Mr. Bennett's plans as they are much in the dark as the general public ... that there was a good deal in the Coronation ceremony on May 12th are in for a strenuous session with business and politics hot and lasting until 4 p.m. that afternoon .... that it will be necessary to take up their position in the Abbey long before the ceremony starts and they'll be there for many hours ... that members of the National Employment Committee are much annoyed over this and that they were threatening to resign in a body .... and that goes for the Youth Employment Committee, too, who were planning what they had hoped to their elaborate program for youth ... that Mr. Bennett is not as a seven million dollar scheme and got cut by a million dollars ... worst of it all is, from the viewpoint of the Employment Committee, that it has destroyed their critics ... being an advisory body, they have failed to all intents and purposes to do anything down .... that the original distinguishing characteristic of the low-cost housing scheme on dual grounds of lack of funds and constitutional authority has been lost sight of in the Purvis Commission (perhaps they will get it back) ... that it is said they are being scored for failing to do much and saying just why they do not explain what they have proposed .... that Minister of Labour Norman Rogers is not just passing through a tough phase .... never had to say "No" so often and so firmly in his life ... everybody wants a big handout from the government and millions for this and other millions for that —and the treasury looks empty ... that Rogers thinks it has been pretty generous as it is ....

O—O—O

Eric Newton, after an internship in an inanimate electric box. Alongside it was a vertical line of little grey buttons.

"Photo-electric control," he explained. "Those buttons are aluminum cells which, as you know, give out an electric current when light falls upon them. And the set-buttons is connected through a relay to some control on the engine. This one, now, goes to the electric brake. If a light shines on it with my torch—so—it will switch on. You hear the clicking of the relay.

"This one opens the throttle by a certain number of degrees when it's close it altogether; this one stops the engine; this one reverses it."

He took me over to the nearest signal post. There, protected from the weather by a tiny metal hood, was a small mirror, pivoted so as to follow up and down.

"As the engine passes, its light shines for a tiny moment on the mirror. The mirror reflects it back so that it shines on one of these cells," he said to me. "Which one is determined by the angle of the little mirror. And that we can control from the signal cabin far away, if necessary. Now, I'll show you how connecting up all the little cells with different controls, we can make a much better train than the man on the footplate."

Later, I saw the complete manoeuvred, without a driver, by means of the "robot" control. The train started, stopped, slowed, accelerated, and reversed.

It may be this invention which is going to revolutionize railway control. At any rate, I had an argument with the big illuminated wall maps of the London signal house which I showed at a demonstration of the system. All of a sudden the position of all the trains on a miles-long length of line was shown on the maps. A bright-sleeved expert sitting at his desk, touching no eyes, for instance, will travel through for as easily as through a bicycle. They will be automatically slowed at dangerous corners, and speeded to the safest maximum. Even if, then, the driver in the cab will have nothing to do but watch the control gear working, if he is necessary.—Can. Magazine.

Property Owners' Association Affiliated With Ontario Body Formed at Open Forum Meet

Norman W. Long, Toronto, Pleads For New System of Taxation

REPORTS READ

Annual Meeting of Chamber of Commerce Held at Queen's Hotel

The need for a modern system of property taxation to take the place of the present one which is destroying the larger part of the equities of the property owner; the uselessness of small bodies protesting to their municipal organization for readjustment of taxation; and the urgent need of the formation of local Property Owners organizations to work in conjunction with the Provincial Federation of such bodies in appealing to the Government for a remedy of the present situation was forcibly brought home to the members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce last night by Mr. Norman W. Long, President of the Toronto Branch of the Ontario Property Owners Association, and the organizer of the latter body, in an outstanding address given at a public meeting and open forum banquet held in the New Queen's Hotel.

Executive Formed

That the meeting brought out by Mr. Long in his address struck a responsive chord in the minds of his listeners was evidenced by the fact, that immediately following the address an executive was formed consisting of His Worship Mayor Arnott, and Messrs. C. Ross, F. Houston, J. A. McIlmoil, J. D. O'Flynn, Leo Riggs, H. R. Fairfield, W. B. Deacon, Stuart Corbett, Wm. Pascoe, J. G. McCarthy, J. Doyle and H. W. Ackerman was chosen to form with the Belleville Property Owner's Association which will be affiliated with the Ontario Association.

"I believe in Ontario if we are perpetuating a terrible mistake", said Mr. Long in his opening remarks "and that it is continuing to put up with the present system of property taxation, one which is destroying the larger part of the equities of the property owner. During the past five years, a new sinister factor has entered our public life and that is the repudiation of public debts, and the inability of municipalities to collect taxes."

"In one of his adresses to our Association," continued Mr. Long, "Mayor G. Frost of Lindsay, who is an ardent supporter of our aims, pointed out that the present land system is just the same as that adopted in 1846. At that time however, there were no social services, no relief, indigent hospitalization and such things. Down through the years they have grown and as they have done so as have they been unloaded on the ratepayers in the municipalities.

The Baldwin Act as it was known in the early days, and set up then, operated under conditions entirely different to those of the present day. Nowadays the cost of those social services are borne by the Municipal Local Associations as it is true met, and talked of conditions in their municipality. They've said, we can't afford this unnecessary expenditure and will protest to the legislature. But their appeal to the local municipal council was useless, as it was the appeal of local bodies to their own municipal bodies of the country over."

Association Assisted

Illustrating the success of a Provincial Association in obtaining redress from their taxation ills, Mr. Long stated that in Quebec small groups of local bodies, tiring of the futility of their efforts in getting anywhere, formed a provincial organization. "Though I do not want to bring Quebec politics into the question", said the speaker, "the Quebec Property Owner's Association claims the credit for the political upheaval in Quebec last year, and they were successful in bringing relief to the property owners of that province, who were in a worse condition than we are".

"At one time in the history of the Ontario and Quebec Associations we mooted with a view to obtaining a Royal Commission to investigate the tax conditions of the country. This however, did not materialize, but it proves beyond a doubt that there is possibility of obtaining Federal results through co-operation."

Referring to industry, the speaker pointed out, that the third largest industry in the world, construction, will lead us out of this depression and to a finer system of housing if the present taxation system is reformed. Look at the revival of building in Great Britain. Why, because over there if there is no revenue coming in, the taxpayer does not have to pay out. Look at Montreal and her boom. She has the same system as we have, but the only difference is that before the housing plans were put in effect, the taxation system was reformed. Look at Florida. There are no taxes imposed on house costing not over $1,800 and the result is a building boom."

Quoting a humorous statement made in reference to the Ontario taxpayers, Mr. Long replied, "the Ontario property owner has been a well plucked goose. In spite of many squawks the plucker is still in the hands of the plockers. It is no be to tell them to go and look elsewhere for their feathers."

"When the next election comes around," propounded the speaker, "we should organize and be ready to be politically-minded. We will vote for only the party which will do something for us. Don't wait till it's too late. Don't wait till you see what is happening to you when one can enjoy the fruits of his labor. Speaking of the government it is disgusting to see them come out with a Home Improvement Plan when they know that homeowning is not a good nor a feasible investment under present taxation reformed."

Appeals for Formation

Appealing for the formation of a local association, Mr. Long stated, "I suppose the lack of success of small bodies of property owners lies in the fact that real estate is so widely held in different organizations. If we don't organize, we must wait a long time for the equities are being destroyed, I urge you here tonight to form an organization, and demand that property owners get a new modern system of taxation, and the real estate be taxed on the same basis as other forms of wealth. I have tried to show you the uselessness of appeals to municipal bodies. We should go to the Provincial Government with a united front and no government will ignore you if you are properly organized."

In his note of thanks to the speaker, Mr. Fred Deacon strongly endorsed the formation of a local Property Owners organization.

"The time is ripe", he said, "to have our social services and form of taxation reformed. It is a government matter and should be taken up. I feel, that Belleville places in support of this movement. We, here, feel that the burden of taxation is falling on the shoulders of the property owners. I urge the formation of this association and move that a slate of officers be drawn up".

Unanimously Endorsed

The motion seconded by President Leo Riggs met with the unanimous endorsation of those present. President Riggs and Mr. Fred Houston then withdrew to draw up the slate of the executive officials.

Invitations for expressions of opinion on the subject resulted in several members rising to their feet and endorsing the formation of the Association, in brief speeches.

The first part of the meeting which consisted of the annual business of the local Chamber, consisting mainly of the reading of the manager's and auditor's reports which appear elsewhere in this edition.

Mr. J. O. Herrity read the manager's report expressing his satisfaction with the business done during the year. Mr. Herity also read the auditor's report in the absence of that official who was detained.

Mr. Fred Deacon, warmly complimented the Secretary and Board of Directors "on their fine state of efficiency. He advocated the support of small industries in Belleville. "It could be done here as well as anywhere," he said. "In England and the U.S.A. there are thousands of small concerns employing less than 30 men. It is this type of industry which gives steady employment. If these industries could be started here we should give them the "hindenburd support," we appealed for an increase of membership.

President Endorses Idea

President Riggs endorsed the idea, and told members of the birth of Ford, which started one of the largest industries in the U.S.A. on the way to its present huge dimensions.

Mr. Jamieson Bone read letters from Dr. W. W. Peterson endorsing the idea of the formation of a Property Owners' Association, and from Mr. J. D. O'Flynn, chairman of the Open Forum Committee, explaining that he would be unable to be present. Later in the meeting Mr. Bone heartily endorsed the proposed formation of the association. "We in Canada have the idea that we are far too small to do this", he said, "we are the last word in everything. I have come to the conclusion that we are not."

When Sir Wm. Otter, 90% of municipalities are in default, I say it is an outrage. It has got to be changed and it will be." Mayor Arnott felt that the heavy industries are not getting enough. "My own opinion of the thing is that the dwindling of industries is due to the heavy taxes placed upon the property. I have, like thousands of other men, a small property. We cannot spend money on improvements and we won't because with present rate of taxation, it is a losing game."

"What legislation is necessary to accomplish the objects of the Association?" Mr. Mac Haig asked the guest speaker.

"That is a hard question to answer," Mr. Long replied. "However, I would recommend that the question be thoroughly discussed and threshed out in the local association so the Government is made. If not it might open a new field of taxation, and the government does love to spend money."

The message of the president, Mr. Leo B. Riggs, and the report for the year 1936 of the manager, Mr. J. O. Herrity which were presented to the meeting, were as follows:

The President's Message.

President Riggs said: "Unless all signs fail entirely, the year 1937 is bringing with it larger opportunities than ever to build a greater and more prosperous Belleville and to make it a better place in which to dwell.

"Those of us who have lived about and have returned know that the little old Home Town by the Bay stands second to none as a place where one can enjoy life to the full.

"As President of the Chamber of Commerce I would urge all members and citizens generally to give their support to the Board of Directors in their sincere efforts to make Belleville a larger industrial community in which to live."

Manager's Report.

Mr. Herity reported:

"The Stewart-Warner Corporation, only Canadian factory of the great Chicago Electrical and Automotive industry, also had by far the best year since coming to Canada.

The Shepherd-Munson Corporation have had the greatest difficulty in keeping up with their orders.

Their near neighbor, Mead Johnson and Co., manufacturing chemical branch industry, placed factory production in new high ground in 1936 and will probably double their orders in 1937.

The Canada Cement Company's mammoth new plant at Point Anne is the finest factory of its kind in Canada. Production by the new "wet" process began in 1936 with satisfactory results. The favorable production has been stepped up to 1,000 casks per day finished.

The Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company has profitably marketed its vast stores of matured goods and must once again undertake manufacture on a greatly increased scale.

Space does not permit detailed references to a number of other thriving industries brought here during the past few years, but sufficient has been indicated to illustrate the fact that Belleville is now in an unusually strong position for industrial world and no longer merely a residential centre supported by country trade.

Increased Population.

Coincident with industrial expansion has come augmented population. Population follows industry just as effect follows cause. By the Dominion census of 1911 the population of Belleville was shown to be 8,978. By the same census taken by the assessor in 1936, the population was given as 14,278, an increase of nearly 50 per cent.

Housing and Home Improvement.

The Chamber of Commerce has undertaken to give leadership in the community to the promotion and adoption here of the admirable and advantageous Home Improvement Plan made possible by the action of the Dominion Government. Local committees have been organized and many loans have already been made to home-owners desirous of making this means of bringing about modernization and improvement of the place of dwelling.

The Dominion Housing Act was a new instrument. It should have been largely because of the fact that the banking media refused to make monetary advances on properties valued at less than $4,000. The Act itself set no such limit, and had loans been procurable, on homes valued, say $2500, there might have been scores of workmen's cottages erected here. As it was the higher limit shut out all but a few of the wealthier applicants.

Greater Citizenship Lecture Course.

Through the kindly co-operation of the staff of Queen's University a series of addresses given by the professors of that institution permitted our citizens to hear lectures on important public questions by several of the ablest leaders in thought from this great educational centre. It is regrettable that this lecture course was not more widely patronized since it was open not only to members of the Chamber of Commerce but to the general public.

Open Forum Meetings.

An important feature of Chamber of Commerce work in Belleville has been the meeting in open forum from time to time of the general membership. Usually these meetings have been preceded by a dinner following which some subject of special interest has been discussed or some prominent speaker has been heard.

During the past year the Open Forum Committee has arranged meetings to consider plans for the development of a Belleville and bay-shore parkway and drive; taxreform, with an address by Fred Chamberlain, on "Taxation"; Home Improvement Plan, with address by Harry Mack on same subject; complimentary dinner to Gordon Johnson, Canadian Press representative to Scotland; complimentary dinner to Mr. Clinton Henderson, Past President of the Belleville Board of Trade; Fourteenth Annual Get-together Banquet with the County Council.

Midlifestone Activities.

In the brief space at our disposal in this report it is of course impossible to give adequate consideration to a multitude of activities which constituted a great program of work and involve interests of the highest importance to the city. We mention accordingly a few matters calling to give consideration to the parking problem and recommended the utilization of vacant land on the river bank to relieve the congestion on Front street; took part in the amalgamating a farewell banquet to C. A. C. Wely; met in conference with the City Council recommending that a vote be taken on the question of adopting the city manager plan; recommended the City Council to have a thorough investigation made of the relief situation and a chairman appointed especially to look after that department; secured the consent of the Ontario Department of Highways to have a survey made with a view to having an alternative route to the foot of the hill at the Dev'l's Elbow and a grade accent not exceeding three per cent. to join Highway No. 2; took up the question with the Parks Board of having a more careful trimming of shade trees and of having young trees planted to replace those which had recently been removed; secured a reduction, at no cost to the C. of C., to attend the annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at Toronto; sent another delegation to join similar delegations from Madoc and other points in the north to interview the Department of Highways at Toronto the advisability of asking over the road Postmaster to Bancroft as a provincial highway; sent a delegation to Picton to assist in the reorganization of the Prince Edward Board of Trade; helped to organize and gave continuous support to the Bay of Quinte Tourist Service Council and answered countless letters of letters and inquiries from prospective tourists, campers and vacationists.

In conclusion, it is gratifying to note that the Chamber of Commerce has been able to function energetically and satisfactorily throughout the years of the most prostrating depression the world has ever known without borrowing or loans, without over-drafts or deficits, without incurring one dollar of indebtedness. Only the continuous loyal support of a great group of patriotic citizens and the faithful co-operation of a board of directors composed of Belleville's most professional and business men has enabled the manager to present as favorable a report.

Yours for a Greater Belleville,
J. OWEN HERITY,
Manager.

"I have gained in weight and have more color in my face!"

NORMAL WEIGHT and a good complexion are very closely related to health. Loss of health usually leads to loss of weight and a poor complexion. All health specialists agree on this point and many women have learned by experience how important health is to beauty and weight. Miss May W——e of Toronto, for instance, writes:

"Four months ago I was pale and underweight. I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they have done me a world of good. Now I have gained in weight and have more color in my face. Friends tell me how much healthier I am looking."

One of the chief causes of a pale face and thin body is improper nourishment. The blood, glands and vital organs of your body must be nourished with mineral iron and cannot function properly without it.

If you are underweight, pale or sallow and nearly tired, or really well, strike at the root of your trouble. Build up your health and vitality with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They will supply the iron you need and thereby help you back to normal weight, better health and improved complexion. Price 50c.

Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills regularly for a while; and if you don't feel better, stronger and healthier, your money will be returned to you.

Paris Presents "Coronation" Style Trends

By RACHEL GAYMAN

(Copyright, 1937, By The Hearst News Agency)

Paris, March 20 (CP-Havas)—Worth's spring showing of Coronation and Paris Exposition styles is featuring by the profusion of rich or magnificent materials and the rich and varied use of embroidered and other adornments used in original and arresting designs and in contrasting colors.

The dominant color note is yellow in all the collections, ranging from a touch of gaiety akin to spring sunshine. For evening wear, however, white predominates with linens, black and pink being reserved for the chic afternoon ensembles often set off with a selective touch of rose or pale blue.

Sport or morning combinations feature half-length jackets with skirts a trifle shorter and more flaring than the long ones they were last season. The waist-lines are generally unchanged with a slight lowering being noted.

Sleeves are as full as ever but the shoulders are quite as squared and are less padded, in suits and coats alike.

Bright afternoon gowns are plentiful, made of printed silks in lively colors, many of them using a single cloth theme throughout, of smart and stylish cut. Bows and necks which have successfully replaced the high or covered neck in vogue last year. Evening dresses flare at the bottom with a line that lends sweeping grace and majesty to the walk.

HOLLOWAY ST. W. A.

The regular meeting of the W. A. of Holloway St. United Church was held on March 18th, in the Lecture room of the church. Meeting opened by singing a hymn, followed with prayer by the president. After the business had been taken care of, Mrs. (Rev.) Hamilton took charge of the meeting. Mrs. Cordes read the Scripture lesson, a solo by Mrs. Denton, "Where He Leads Me" was enjoyed. Mrs. Hamilton gave a reading with the thought of Good Friday and Easter Sabbath in mind. "The Wounds of Christ and the Resurrection." Mrs. Newman gave a reading and the meeting closed with a hymn, followed by the Mizpah Benediction.

AIKEN'S W. A.

Aiken's W.A. was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. B. Westover with a good attendance. After the dinner hour, the President, Mrs. Earl Bush took charge of the meeting.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton, and Bible Study by Mrs. Stanley Spafford.

Response to Roll Call was given with the name of an Irish Song. A copper collection was taken to add to the fund to buy cards or flowers for the sick. At the close of the business session, an interesting contest was staged by Mrs. Lawrence and Mrs. Bunnett.

In the absence of the President, Vice President, Mrs. Wilson Hamilton, took over charge of the meeting, saying she was pleased that the girls was improving and hoped she would soon be able to be with them again.

After the first hymn Mrs. Hamilton read the Scripture prayer, that was used at the recent Presbyterial in Trenton.

Verses of Scripture containing the word sacrifice were used as response to Roll Call.

Readings were given by Mrs. Byron Hoyle and Mrs. Pearl Monroe. Mrs. Everett Hubbs, the delegate to the Presbyterial gave a report of Convention.

The two day's session in Trenton. Mrs. Spafford, Mrs. Will Bush, Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Bunnett, also a vote of thanks was extended to those who had given the reports.

A beautiful solo by Mrs. Gerald Brickman was enjoyed by all, and Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Bunnett, also brought helpful thoughts from the

FOR GREATER FREEDOM FROM COLDS

Just do these 2 things:

To help PREVENT many colds
At the first sneeze or sniffle or irritation in the nose—place a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. This specialized medication is expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds get started. In time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds. And to throw off head colds in their early stages.
VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

To RELIEVE a cold sooner
Massage Vicks VapoRub briskly on the back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer over the chest. VapoRub's famous poultice-and-vapor action continues hour after hour. It loosens phlegm, eases your cough, relieves the tightness, helps to break up local congestion.
VICKS VAPORUB

Sickness from Colds Cut In Half!

The two simple steps outlined above, together with a few sensible health rules, are the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds, the biggest colds clinic ever held—with 17,353 people as subjects—Vicks Plan resulted in fewer colds and shorter colds. Is not almost cut in half?

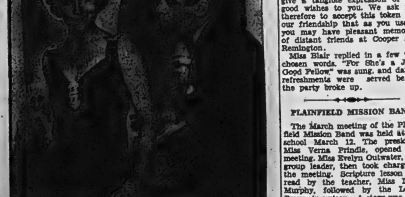
Recreation Rooms Make Pleasant and Profitable Additions to the Home

Space May be Found in Attic or Basement—One of the Most Popular Parts of The Home, Especially For Young Folk—Financed by Home Improvement Plan

A recreation room is rapidly becoming an accepted part of many homes. Basement, attic or the main part of the house provides space that may be converted to this use. Plans of new homes frequently provide for such a room.

Many people believe that this is one place where their imagination may run riot and gay and amusing rooms result. However, some rooms of this type maintain an air of dignity, and permanence, and offer merely comfortable settings for games and hobbies, instead of theatrical backgrounds.



In modernizing your home through funds obtained from the bank under the Home Improvement Plan, bear in mind that creating recreation rooms is permissible under this Plan. One home-owner combined the old and the new as a restful setting for the family's leisure hours.

Paneled walls always add charm to a room and are particularly adaptable to a game room. In many cases, however, this paneling is not convenient to install, but the effect may be obtained successfully through the use of wallpaper. Various companies are placing papers on the market with designs depicting the natural grain of the wood. Walnut, white pine, mahogany and other woods are represented.

This was the means taken by a home-owner who wanted a room for recreation that would be in keeping with the rest of his house. Wallpaper in a pine panelling pattern was used. The outside wall of the room had originally had one small window. To add light and air, three windows were built together, giving the effect of a bay and adding to the appearance of the apartment.

The home-owner used her own funds to purchase comfortable, ultra-modern furniture. A beige carpet was used for covering the floor and bright shades of chartreuse and orange were stressed in the decorating. Glass-top tables removed the worry of rings or burns and the hostess didn't have to divert her attention from the bridge game to keep a wary eye on careless guests who placed their glasses at random.

The radiator was concealed under the window. Air-conditioning ventilators were placed inconspicuously, so as not to interfere with the "paneling."

As different and thrilling as his new and unusual star is "Wings of the Morning", produced in the all new perfected Technicolor, featuring Annabella, Henry Fonda, and John McCormick world famous tenor, now on the Rialto screen after eight weeks at His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal.

Presentation and Address

On Wednesday evening, March 17th, a number of neighbor people of Cooper and Remington gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jarevell to his niece, Miss Miss Hilda Wise, leaving for her home at Red Deer, Alta.

After a pleasant evening spent with the honored guest, Miss Jean Rollins read the following address and Miss Ruth Parks presented Miss Blair with a black pack away wardrobe case. Following is the address:

Dear Miss:

It is with a deep feeling of regret that we learned that you were leaving us but we are proud that Cooper and Remington felt that we could count on you for always having one more social evening together.

During your stay here you have endeared yourself to us in many ways. You have always been a willing helper in all community activities and we wish to show our appreciation of your appreciation of your services.

In saying good-bye we desire to give a tangible expression of our good wishes for you. We ask you therefore to accept this token of our friendship and hope in the future you may have pleasant memories of distant friends at Cooper and Remington.

Miss Blair replied in a few well chosen words. "Auld Lang Syne" a jolly Good Fellow" was sung, and dainty refreshments was served before the party broke up.

TRINITY WOMEN'S GUILD

A very delightful evening was spent with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clark on March 17, Mrs. Mark Ashley is Vice-President of the Women's Guild of Trinity Church, Shannonville, graciously granted the use of her home for a social evening for the Guild members.

We were sorry that due to a previous engagement our minister and his wife were unable to attend, but due to bad weather and roads our president and several of the regular members were unable to be present.

There were twenty-two present which was a large number considering the bad weather.

Each member wore a green band on her hair and Mr. Mark allowed a member to adorn his head with a band, and a large shamrock; this he wore all evening and was the envy of other male guests present.

Euchre was played and at the close of the game each player received a wrapped prize and this be exchanged as he moved from table to table. This caused a great deal of amusement as some were loath to lose theirs, while Mr. Sid Prindeville changed with all who chanced to be near. The prizes were then opened until the end of the euchre and then each player opened his prize. These were gifts and were candies in every prize. It caused a fun for everyone and was the unique way of handling the giving of prizes.

During the evening, Mrs. Jack Ash also Misses Lena and Leah Bell played some appropriate selections on the piano. This part of the evening was enjoyed by all.

At about eleven o'clock, little Miss Verna Ashley helped to pass the plates and ably assisted in the serving of a delicious supper. The older members feel sure that little Verna will be a prominent member when she is old enough to have the children with us on these occasions.

After supper more piano selections were rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark also Maggie, who so capably assists her sister in these social functions, were heartily thanked for the pleasant evening spent at their home. It is a well known rendezvous for the Guild members.

Each member left feeling that the Guild members were not mere members of a church organization, but rather that they were real friends of each other which helps a lot in making their work the success it is.

WALLBRIDGE W. M. S.

The March meeting of W.M.S. Wallbridge was held on March 11th at the home of Mrs. Lorne Badgley with an attendance of twenty-five.

The W.M.S. service was conducted by the President, Mrs. S. Nicolson. After the opening hymn and the theme song of prayer was sung, followed with prayer by Mrs. H. Hinchcliffe. Mrs. T. Wetmore read the scripture lesson. The President gave a reading. Collection was $2.35. Mrs. S. Nicolson and Mrs. R. Hinchliffe were appointed to go to Trenton on March 10, and 11th, and Mrs. W. Sine and Mrs. Mary Phillips to go as delegates from the Mission Band.

Mrs. W. Sine asked to resign as Superintendent of Mission Band and Mrs. R. Hinchcliffe was appointed to take her place. Mrs. E. Wetmore gave a talk on the last chapter of the study Book. A solo was sung by Mrs. A. Wetmore. Temperance readings were given by Mrs. Wetmore and Mrs. Nicolson. It was decided to hold an Easter Service and invite a special speaker. Meeting closed in unison by the society to Mrs. F. Grills.

A reading was given by Mrs. H. Sherry. Hymn 568 was sung and meeting was closed with prayer by president.

The W.A. meeting was conducted by the President, Mrs. H. Sherry. Minutes were reported. Also a collection from dinner. It was decided to hold a St. Patrick's supper with Mrs. J. Sine, Mrs. Lana and Mrs. C. Hickey as committee for program. It was also decided to buy new hymnals for Sunday School and to continue putting in each month on collection plate.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Badgley for her hospitality, also to Group 1 as assistants. A hymn and prayer by president closed the meeting.

"Give me the first six years of a child's life and you can have the rest," is the quotation which opens the vivid autobiography of Rudyard Kipling and the story of his life, which, from the first pages, reveals the spirit of childhood is proof of this statement. As the son of seventy, Kipling began to record his story, but in his book, "Something of Myself" completed only a short time before his death, the gallant spirit of youth predominates. Born in India of English parents, India remained to the end his first love and "Kim" remained always his favorite story. His early years as a reporter in India where "he never worked less than ten hours and seldom more than fifteen" inspired his "Plain Tales From the Hills" and "Departmental Ditties". As a correspondent at the front in the South African War, Kipling displayed his outstanding affection for Tommy Atkins and his admiration for officialdom. The names of Stalky, M'Turk and Beetle—that irresistible alliance—and Mowgli, Terrence Mulvaney and Kim will continue to be a distinguished company that will live as more than mere characters in a book. "Something of Myself" is the story of an individual born under Queen Victoria's rule, who, "entering through Edwardian and neo Georgian times does not, at least, presume (nor he appreciated and criticized all three periods from Disraeli to the New York Times says of "Something of Myself", "it is a book that we cannot, in the future of things, ever come again.

The account of a firm whose name is internationally associated with fortune and the sea, describes the process of evolution, probably unique in character. Some insurance can be placed for anything, except life. The first burglary, hurricane and earthquake insurance was written with Lloyds. In the days of the clipper ships Lloyds took a chance on the fury of the sea and pirates. Today after the World War and Europe, Lloyds still takes a chance. "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" Perfected Technicolor

Continuing our policy of showing only the great pictures of yesteryear on Sunday matinee, Monday and Tuesday, we present this Saturday night's picture of the first "Lonesome Pine" and Maurice Chevalier in "Folies Bergere".

The great romantic nomination for The Best Picture of 1936 was made on first showing of this great picture, and if there's ever going to be a contest to select the one best picture of all time, our answer would probably be the same!

In Walter Wanger's "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine", which is shown as revival hit No. 1, the producers have taken an immortal story by Joseph Hergesheimer, selected a superb cast, headed by Sylvia Sidney, Fred MacMurray and Henry Fonda; and have added the magic of outdoor Technicolor photography, which is so natural, so lifelike and so perfect that one hears the wind rustle in the trees, but is constantly convinced that the action is really taking place before his eyes!

The color in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is just about as fine as it could possibly be. Every slight shade of distinction in the tones of the trees and clouds and gloriously beautiful mountain backgrounds is sharply and perfectly refined. The actors and actresses pulse with warm, glowing life, and at all times live and breathe, instead of being merely pictures on the screen.

The story takes us back to the wooded Cumberland Mountains, to the action where deadly feuds are raging among the illiterate mountain families, chief among whom are the Tollivers and the Hacketts, whose main delight is to lie in ambush and kill each other off. A city slicker (Fred MacMurray), who wants to run a railroad through the Tolliver and Falin land to reach a valuable coal-mine, finds himself up against the refusal of the two clans to make any mutual agreements, and in his attempts to overcome this he finds himself thoroughly embroiled with both sides.

Running through the "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is the tender romance between Fred MacMurray and Sylvia Sidney, the primitive, passionate daughter of the hills, with a subtle undercurrent of Anglish brought to the simple mountaineers by their inability to understand modern civilization.

Henry Hathaway's perfect direction is marked by sympathy and intelligence. "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is a picture that will be enjoyed interest from start to finish.

"Folies Bergere"

The most famous of the world's musical extravaganzas is brought to the screen in Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Folies Bergere", starring Maurice Chevalier shown at Revival hits, on this show on double bill.

More than $1,000,000 was spent in creating the sensational effects for this picture, which is melodiousness of musical thrills, in which the singing star plays his first dual role. Chevalier is first seen as Paul Charlier, charming, singing, strawhatted idol of the Folies Bergere, but as the amorous he-matinched, he encounter French Baron, whom Charlier impersonates in his act, as well.

The scenes of the original Folies Bergere, so familiar to visitors to pay Paris, are reproduced here, for the famous music hall, the Folies bar, and all the rest of the colorful setting, have been reproduced in this magnified screen adaptation.

Merle Oberon, as the beautiful and beautiful wife of the Baron, while Alan Gurney is cast as Maud, the jealous partner and sweetheart of Charlier.

Impersonates Baron

Things begin to happen when Charlier is called in to impersonate the Baron in life as well as in the Folies, and a hilarious climax is reached when the Baron returns unexpectedly and sees his beautiful wife's fidelity by pretending to be merely Charlier's impersonation of himself.

Several sensational dance numbers featuring a large chorus of beautiful young girls, were staged by Dave Gould, noted for the Chorus number in "Flying Down to Rio" and the Continental Number in "The Gay Divorcee".

Chevalier sings five songs especially written for him by Leo Robin and Jack Meskill and the team of Lane and Adamson which wrote "Alexander's Weather". He also sings a chorus of "Valentina", with which he first broke into fame in the original Folies Bergere as well as on Broadway.

Ends Today

Shown today only matinee and evening, Albert Payson Terhune's great dog story "The Mighty Three" featuring Noah Berry Jr., and Barbara Read. As added bills, news and cartoon, novelty musical and comedy complete this splendid bill.

Interesting Angles in N. H. L. To be Decided by Five Games Played Tonight and Sunday

Leafs Can Finish Second if They Win And Maroons Lose Two

APPS IN LEAD

Scoring Honors Between Apps And Schriner in Doubt

By A. E. FULFORD

A flash that had brings all the actors on stage for a quick unravelling of the last threads of the plot will close the National Hockey League schedule this week-end.

The wonder of it is that there is still a bit of plot remaining to be worked out after eight teams have staged 192 games in four months. But there are several things to be decided in the five games tonight and Sunday.

Perhaps the most important is second place in the Canadian division. Montreal Maroons have it now and will keep it if they can get a tie against Americans in Montreal tonight or defeat Toronto Leafs in Detroit. If they lost both contests Toronto Maple Leafs can finish in the runner-up spot by winning from Detroit in Toronto Sunday.

Maroons Forced to Try.

Maroons will be forced to try for both games as they have a new threat from Leafs but because of the new rule which has been organized in the schedule determine the venue of play-off battles. The Maroons have 49 points now to 41 for Boston, runners-up in the American division. Should they end third, ahead of Bruins they must play the second and third place teams in the first Stanley Cup playoffs in Boston.

Another matter to be cleared up is the point-scoring leadership. That may be settled in Montreal tonight but it is unlikely. Syl Apps, Toronto's goalscoring centre, and Marty Barry of Detroit, the injured Larry Aurie of Red Wings and Sweeney Schriner of American, are in the race.

There is little doubt Leafs will give Apps every sensible chance of taking the honors tonight. They will have him on the ice every moment they can without tiring him for the play-offs. Detroit will do the same with Barry.

Must Lead After Barry.

But both will face relentless checking from opposing forwards. It will do Leafs no good to get Apps two passes until Barry is closely checked and the same applies to Red Wings. It should be a thrilling battle.

Schriner has only the Maroon contest tonight to hold his record goalscoring championship he won last year. His chances are slight but it is possible that Maroons still have things for which to fight.

There is also the matter of the Vezina Trophy to be cleaned up. From Boston seems certain to take it along with the netminder's position on the Canadian All-star team. Smith has had only 94 goals scored on him. His nearest rival is Dave Kerr, of New York Rangers, with 105.

The only games that mean nothing to the teams are the contests tomorrow night between Chicago and Rangers in New York and the Chicago-Bruins clash in Boston.

MEMORIAL CUP SURVIVORS

By midnight tonight only eleven clubs will remain in the chase for the Canadian championship. There is no tie devices in three play-off games between St. Michael's College and Stratford, Ottawa Riddens and Perth and Winnipeg Monarchs and Portage La Prairie will part company in deciding contests. Today's Memorial Cup finals will bring seven teams in the east and seven in the west, follows:

East.

N.B. Amherst; Quebec, Montreal Victorias; Ontario, Ottawa Riddens; Perth, Copper Cliff Redmen; Stratford, Toronto St. Michael's.

West.

Dizzy Dean, the wisecracking braggadocio of the famous Gas House Gang of the St. Louis Cardinals, had a lot of baseball for his year at least.....The famous Dizzy Dean, pitching to Commissioner Landis to be placed on the voluntary retired list.....That ought to save $50,000 for the use of his right arm in the baseball wars. Either Dizzy or his pitching arm, or Dean, couldn't see it that way. He offered the irreproachable $25,000 to the Judge to take on.....One of the most colorful figures in the baseball game since Dean will be missed in the ball parks of the National League this summer.

Smashing records which have stood for forty years, in their trial spins, the Canadian Olympic squad is favored to defeat the Light Blues of Cambridge in the annual regatta held on the Thames River.... at the Dark Blues some through it will be the first time in forty odd years.....It is estimated that over 100,000 people will line the river from the banks of the Thames.... and only one person in the whole crowd be identified with either college.

Ron Church, Picton baseballer whose relegation to the ranks of the intermediates for the 1937 season for the wisecracking sports writers who have followed the fortunes the wise ones up by donning suits and gloves and playing catch around again.....A Cobourg scribe who categorizes Church as the "Dizzy Dean" of the Eastern League prophesies the rangy one will be found with a suit of baseball wearing tools instead of the suit and gloves this spring.

MONCTON HAWKS MAY BE SURPRISE TEAM IN SERIES

Start Allan Cup Playdowns Against Hall Victors Tonight

FORT WILLIAM IN

Defeat Winnipeg Packers 4-3 in Final Game of Series

Eastern Canada's war ready today to start its annual fight for senior amateur hockey supremacy when the Allan Cup series gets under way tonight with Moncton Hawks and Fort William Hurricanes as the opening attraction.

Whereas only three clubs are left in the Canadian race for a game involving Maritime and Ottawa Districts senior champions tonight will be the east's first step toward cup glory.

Winners in the Maritimes last year, Moncton Maroons have emerged from the Ottawa District while Hull Volants is a total-goals series victor. Meanwhile, Fort William Hurricanes set down Moncton declaring best team they have met this season made Maroons one of the years surprise teams.

Maroons may not be able to produce a team like its great Hawks of last season but Doc Morrison's line-up should be strong enough to defeat Hull Volants. Hull came out of an Ottawa, City League that produced Ottawa Senators and, moreover, then whipped Smith's Falls in play-offs.

Fort William is Finals.

Of the three western survivors, two will start the Allan Cup competition tonight at Calgary. The third, Fort William, will open its home-ice series defending Winnipeg Packers 4-3. The game was the third of a three-game series between Thunder Bay and Manitoba titlists. The Hurricanes, who represent Fort William, playing all three matches on home ice, clinched it up with a victory in the second.

Stan Robertson, centre-ice star, led Wanderers in the scoring with scoring three times. Packers battled back repeatedly and Percy Gilmour reduced Fort William's lead to a single goal 25 seconds before the finish.

Wanderers' opposition in western finals will be North Battleford Senators or Edmonton Dominions: North Battleford's outstanding victims thus far have been Regina Aces, while Edmonton set down Nelson Maple Leafs, British Columbia champions this week.

Quebec Aces On Way.

Last night's only other Allan Cup contest involved Quebec Aces and intermediate Quebec winners, Quebec Aces and St. Jerome. Aces won 4-0 and can look for better competition in consecutive games when the Allan Cup series begins.

Ottawa Rideaus took another step toward the Allan Cup senior hockey junior throne last night when they beat Perth 3-2 right in Perth. The Rideaus will be the visitors when expected to mean the end of the Perth hockey season. Rideaus will meet Amherst St. Pats, Maritimes champs, in the first stage of Memorial Cup playdowns.

Three other junior classics were held last night, Stratford Nationals and St. Michael's College battle at Toronto's Mutual Street Arena in the gliding game of their best-of-five series to be resumed at the same locale tomorrow to play Copper Cliff Redmen Monday. Tonight at Wingham Flying Dutchmen and Listowel Monarchs will conclude a hectic Huron County series and Windsor Wyandotes will entertain Edmonton Rangers in the start of an inter-provincial round.

ALLAN CUP SURVIVORS

When Winnipeg Packers were eliminated by Fort William Wanderers last night, only three western teams remained in the chase for the Canadian senior hockey title. Two of these, Edmonton Dominions and Calgary Tigers, clashed down to ten teams, follows:

East.

N.B., Moncton; Quebec, Hull Volants; Ontario, Ottawa Rideaus; Ontario, Sudbury Wolves; Toronto Goodyears and Dominions.

West.

Ontario, Fort William; Saskatchewan, North Battleford; Alberta, Edmonton Dominions.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Mar. 20.—Three pitchers who thought there was room for them in Chicago at New York Yankees last year are in for an unpleasant surprise this season. Manager Yankee Joe Sewell has arrived in camp weighing 198 pounds, five more than he packed in 1936, and said he expects to start the season at more than 200.

APPEAL IS MADE TO CONSERVE AND PRESERVE GAME

J. N. Macarney, Conservation Officer, Addresses Local Anglers

PLEADS FOR UNITY

Speaker Tells of Value of Tourist Trade to Province

"The conservation and preservation of our game" was the interesting topic of an address given to the members and friends of the Belleville Canoe and Anglers' Association by J. N. Macarney, chief conservation officer for the Province of Game and Fisheries of the Ontario Government at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. A very flow auditorium of over 200 club members and interested fishermen and hunters from all parts of the district listened to the speaker present. Emeliel J. E. Shortt of the local club welcoming all and introducing the speaker.

"Primarily I wish to inculcate the spirit of the wild life in the province to you in the matter of the tourist trade," he said to our shores. As you may know conservation has become part of our natural resources. The department of game and fisheries is one of the chief preserving, it means wise usage, and conservation. Conservation is the wise use of the natural resources we possess and must retain for future generations. Conservation as he stressed the vast value and tremendous importance of Canada's commercial and fur trade, which is computed in millions of dollars and those engaged annually.

Tourist Trade Valuable.

"Perhaps these our wild life is worth millions through tourist trade to the province," he continued, "building and scenic value. Our tourist trade brought $113,000,000 to this province last year and that money was not centralized, but parsimoniously distributed among those in the rural districts. It naturally follows that we must protect and conserve our natural resources and wild life to continue this attraction to the tourist traffic, but in order to complete this we must retain the natural environment and not pollute the waters and forests," instructed Mr. Macarney and he briefly referred to the reckless slaughter of game which is being carried on by the white man following the conquest of this continent by Champlain, Cartier, pioneering in the matter of fins and feathers. Powder and ball guns have added to the handicaps. With the illegal practices and poaching are more hazardous," stated the speaker as pointed out that the game laws of the past were not concurred recently but over a century ago.

"In 1892 a commission was formed to look into the matter of our wild game life and even then regulations were considered too liberal and in order to save the natural resources. Again in 1911 another commission was formed and another. That year there were 22,000 registered hunters in the province which of course did not cover all as many were unregistered. Between but in 1936 we had over 100,000 tourist anglers and hunters in the province," said Mr. Macarney as he reviewed the work being done by the game department in the breeding series and breeding ponds throughout the province. "Last year over 70,000 pheasants were reared and set out 625 million fingerlings and fry. Ontario pens that it takes about 400 fry to produce one adult fish, so you can see the magnitude of the work we are confronted with in the matter of replenishing our lakes and streams," the speaker, as he later reviewed briefly the history of the game fish in Southern Ontario, in Jack Rabbits, pheasants and other game birds.

119 Crown Game Reserves

"We have established 110 Crown Game Reserves, which contain one million acres in Ontario. There is also 9 provincial parks contained in these reserves, but the overflow or surplus stock from these reserves is proving an adequate hunting," explained the speaker as he referred to his particular, in speaking on the subject of fur. Mr. Macarney also warned each member of the Association that the game laws were under demand and for his own personal gain should endeavor to assist in the enforcement of the game laws.

Mr. Macarney concluded by referring to the recreational value of hunting and fishing. "There is no greater or finer recreation known than fishing. It is a philosophy in itself, a sportsmanship, perseverance, thrifty, a character-builder and provides real contentment most desirous to most. To go fishing is to leave behind all the cares behind, to get closer to nature and God."

Moving pictures of game fishing, hunting and wild animal life in the Canadian forests were highly appreciated. President Shortt made a short report on the recent attendance at a special meeting of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and announced the dates spring casting season would soon open.

OTTAWA RIDEAUS DEFEAT PERTH 3-2

Stave Off Third Period Rally in First Game of Series

Perth, Ont., Mar. 20 (CP) — Cy Dennerly's Ottawa Rideaus defeated a third period rally and defeated Perth 3-2 in the first game of the Ottawa-Perth senior hockey series finals here last night.

Second of the two-game, total-goal series will be played tomorrow at Ottawa, the winners moving against Amherst St. Pats, Maritime champions, in the Memorial Cup eastern playdowns.

Trailing from the time Orville Burns and Jack Sparrow scored early before the nine-minute mark in the opening frame, the locals battled hard to overcome the visitors' two-goal lead. Ottawa's checking forwards held their own in the middle period even though outscored, 2-1, but failed to overcome the margin in the play during the final session.

ATTEMPT BEING MADE TO CLARIFY SOFTBALL PITCHING RULES

Guelph, Mar. 20.—Need for clarification of softball pitching rules has been seriously considered during the past year by the Executive Committee of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, and proposals for clarification will be placed in the Intermediate ranks. Ken Waist who has been assistant secretary-treasurer of the Association and was not extended to even catch a position on the team, was just what the doctor ordered, a grasshopper to whom could be depended upon when the umpires were down.

As Clinton and Thorold clash tonight at Stratford, the Redmen cannot expect to get into the finals before Friday night. Possibly Preston and Uxbridge the weatherman smiles broadly and promises warm weather tomorrow in all probability the Redmen will not take their final home game on either Kingston or Oshawa, so let's hope the mercury drops considerably that night.

The Belleville Anglers' Association is not only an active concern, but one that is constantly on the job. Last night when the club had as its guest speaker Mr. John Macarney, chief conservation officer of the Game and Fisheries Department of the Province, stationed at the Y.M.C.A. over 200 members and interested visitors from all parts of the City and Quinte area were on hand. Mr. McCarney outlined the necessity of conservation of our natural resource, our wild life, but also stressed the importance of tourist trade hunting primarily for the recreational value, true sportsmanship and the love of wild life. "It is no longer necessary to fish or hunt for food, as we can go to the store and purchase the wild game seasonally in open season. As a matter of health and sportsmanship, there is nothing to equal fishing out where nature is supreme," said Mr. McCarney. The Belleville Anglers' Club is doing splendid work in the line of conservival and re-establishment of game fish in Hastings and surrounding counties.

Duke Smith's Yacht Club "Sailors" must win over Tweed intermediates in the Tweed arena tonight in the fifth inning County Hockey League tonight. Should Tweed win they will have the final game played at the Belleville Arena, but the Tweed intermediates have a right to play on their own ice. The game will be played.

Eddie "Buzz" Bennett, ace reserve of the Galt Terriers for the past three seasons, was making a big impression with the Leafs all over the week-end and hopped off the rear end of Conn Smythe's list at Oshawa. "It's queer, but we had been informed by several scouts of Bennett's was enroute to Napanee, where he was to take over the managerial reins of the team on the sudden departure of Hughie Lehman, but Bennett seems to became train-sick, or perhaps Oshawa's reputation for hockey has spread so far that it may rate "Buzz is at present employed at the General Motors, although he is a veteran and will appear in the livery of the Galt Terriers intermediates for the meantime Walt Grove was not altogether displeased with Gilbert Grills, as we understand he picked up a wandering cricket equally as good, if not better than Bennett. The name—Walt refuses to divulge same—is withheld however. Although Lee Reay would neither confirm or deny it, we understand there has been a high-

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

Little did we ever think away back last November when Ed Thomas was scouring and searching around the immediate district for material that was that the Belleville Redmen would eventually wind up in the local medals "E" finals for the championship of Ontario. Ed Thomas had some mighty fine material to choose from but the parsimony of the clubs under his wing since he took over the reins of management along about 1918 or 1919. With the exception of the odd year now and then Eddie Thomas has yearly provided the patrons with teams in the O. H. A.—some were good, others naturally not quite so good. In all those years Ed Thomas never had such an one thing—an O.H.A. championship for Belleville. Whether or not he will reach the zenith of his aspirations in 1937 or not of course remains to be seen, but the Redmen are knocking at the championship door and will take a lot of pulling from the club that happens to rub them out.

The 1937 edition of the Belleville intermediates may not be a colorful and flashy aggregation from the boy exhibition, but they are a hustling, fighting team that possesses plenty of what it takes to make champions. They are a well-balanced skipper Thomas has iced better teams in past years, but the going was tough and the competition keener in those days. There was no Stratford, Thorold or Clinton with Pat Boland and Benny Bowman in the team, Kingston with Gord Green, Frank Geyer on defence, "Daw" Whalen, "Gunner" Arnott, Ken Wood, Bill Hall, Cannig, Sammy Symons, Ted Jones, Bill Flaherty and Bill Tweedie could mention, but the best these clubs could do against Belleville was to battle to a great fighting draw in the old Y.M.C.A. Kingston and the Jackson brothers the Redmen have as great a defence pair as one will find in the intermediate ranks. Ken Waist who was here assistant secretary-treasurer from Athens and was not extended to even catch a position on the team, was just what the doctor ordered, a grasshopper to whom could be depended upon when the umpires were down.

As Clinton and Thorold clash tonight at Stratford, the Redmen cannot expect to get into the finals before Friday night. Possibly Preston and Uxbridge the weatherman smiles broadly and promises warm weather tomorrow in all probability the Redmen will not take their final home game on either Kingston or Oshawa, so let's hope the mercury drops considerably that night.

The Belleville Anglers' Association is not only an active concern, but one that is constantly on the job. Last night when the club had as its guest speaker Mr. John Macarney, chief conservation officer of the Game and Fisheries Department of the Province, stationed at the Y.M.C.A. over 200 members and interested visitors from all parts of the City and Quinte area were on hand. Mr. McCarney outlined the necessity of conservation of our natural resource, our wild life, but also stressed the importance of tourist trade hunting primarily for the recreational value, true sportsmanship and the love of wild life. "It is no longer necessary to fish or hunt for food, as we can go to the store and purchase the wild game seasonally in open season. As a matter of health and sportsmanship, there is nothing to equal fishing out where nature is supreme," said Mr. McCarney. The Belleville Anglers' Club is doing splendid work in the line of conservival and re-establishment of game fish in Hastings and surrounding counties.

Duke Smith's Yacht Club "Sailors" must win over Tweed intermediates in the Tweed arena tonight in the fifth inning County Hockey League tonight. Should Tweed win they will have the final game played at the Belleville Arena, but the Tweed intermediates have a right to play on their own ice. The game will be played.

Eddie "Buzz" Bennett, ace reserve of the Galt Terriers for the past three seasons, was making a big impression with the Leafs all over the week-end and hopped off the rear end of Conn Smythe's list at Oshawa. "It's queer, but we had been informed by several scouts of Bennett's was enroute to Napanee, where he was to take over the managerial reins of the team on the sudden departure of Hughie Lehman, but Bennett seems to became train-sick, or perhaps Oshawa's reputation for hockey has spread so far that it may rate "Buzz is at present employed at the General Motors, although he is a veteran and will appear in the livery of the Galt Terriers intermediates for the meantime Walt Grove was not altogether displeased with Gilbert Grills, as we understand he picked up a wandering cricket equally as good, if not better than Bennett. The name—Walt refuses to divulge same—is withheld however. Although Lee Reay would neither confirm or deny it, we understand there has been a high-since battery located in Kingston since the autumn leaves left last fall. The Leaside-Weston Elks is running full blast in Kingston, you know. Owl Jo Priesberg more than one strange face is seen traversing the sidewalks of George street these days, two of which look very much like Western Canada "big mitts".

The Bay of Quinte intermediates are closing their season with the O.C.H.S.A. finals last night in Toronto, the Trenton junior girls being the lone sextette to win in the semi-finals. The Belleville Collegiate setup slipped badly in the last half to lose out to Owen Sound by one point, the score being 23-21 against them. The S.C.I. seniors had a distinct edge in the first half and were leading by eight points. Owen Sound knotted the count and scored the winning basket in the final minute sounded. The B.C.I. juniors were no match for the Welland wise who won without much struggle 34 to 15. The Picton senior girls put up a great fight but went to Stratford 23 to 21. The Trenton juniors won over Oshawa 12-9.

The Belleville Redmen are the sole remaining hockey team in Eastern or Central Ontario. The Kingston Frontenac Colts ran into an abrupt halt and had to thumb it to the Queen City to meet St. Michael's College in the Memorial Cup semi-finals. The Colts are the property of the Motor City sports pen pusher and talk incense and things that dazzled him in the days of hockey yarns, if. The first shall be last and the last shall be first.

The Kingston sport scribe says they "are supposed" to have a few ball players tucked away in the Limestone City that will be available, or some place of convenience, but to date he has been unable to locate or contact any of them.

The Belleville Arena closed its doors today and will remain so in all probability for the next 12-8 preparation for a possible intermediate "B" final.

CONTRACT SIGNED BY DIZZY DEAN

Hitch Developed at Last Moment But Soon Ironed Out

Daytona Beach, Fla., Mar. 20 (AP) —Jerome Herman Dean, self-styled "baseball's greatest pitcher and pessimist" was back in the St. Louis Cardinal fold today after a contract hitch of two hours in the afternoon, and went back into conference with Branch Rickey, baseball executive he and Brendon came out of the room with the laconic statement: "It's all right."

Brendon Dean said, wanted him to be sure Jerome Dean heeds his teammates, to mind his own business and to keep his pessimistic views about Frankie Frisch's instructions.

"I asked him why he wanted me to meet with Rickey and he said Dean in an aggrieved tone. "I never have decided to sign Carnelius I always did what Frankie ordered."

"I told him I was concerned it's all over," Brendon comments. "If Dizzy wants to talk to me again I'll see him but I'll be busy at the next meeting."

Less than an hour later, after talking at length over the telephone, presumably to his wife at Bradenton, "Ole Diz" showed up again and signed up.

Boston, Mar. 20 (AP)—Danno O'-Mahoney, 230, Ireland, and George (Dazzler) Clark, 230, Scotland drew down $1,000 each, both counted all-star fall from ring in third fall).

Moira—On Monday evening many friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Emerson of Moira to honor Miss Ethel Howard, who is leaving shortly to take up residence at Halleway. Mr. Milton Vandervaeter acted as chairman on the occasion and called upon Miss Harold Mott to read the following address:

Dear Ethel,—

It is with deep regret that we learn of your contemplated move from Moira. In your going we lose a valued friend, one who has always been willing and ready to help in any place in which to live. Your loss will be keenly felt by everyone. You have spent your entire life in Moira during that time you have always yourself to be an interested Church and Sunday School member, and we trust you will continue on in the same path in your new home. During your life here you have proved an inspiration to the young generation in your community.

No doubt you will take with you many pleasant memories of Moira. You are not going so far away from us that you cannot often return and we hope you will do so and renew by every opportunity to return and meet your old friends and many old acquaintances. We wish you every success in your new venture and we would ask you to accept this purse as some slight token of the esteem in which you are held by your Moira friends.

Signed—Mrs. Wm. English, Chas. Ketchenon, Wallace McInroy, Jos Williams.

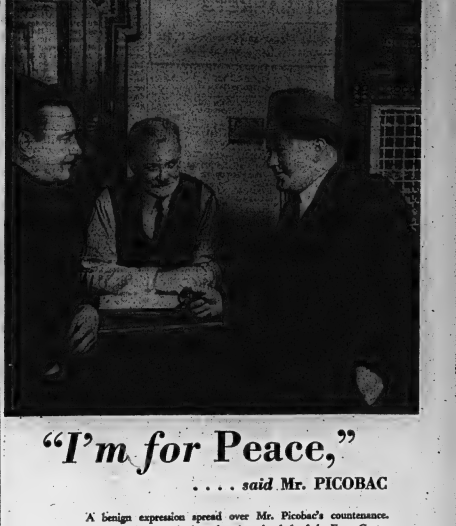
Queen Victoria's Bust For Senate Alcove

Ottawa, March 20 (CP)—The Rideau Family will be represented by still another carving in the Senate chamber when the bust of Queen Victoria is erected in the alcove above the Speaker's chair in the Red Chamber.



The bust, work of the widely-known sculptor, Mrs. Florence MacCarthy, is completed and when the marble arrives it will be cleaned and set up in the Senate between the lion and the unicorn, which were placed a few weeks ago.

The model was carried from the underground work room of Mr. MacCarthy and Leo Botuy, famous for their work on the Memorial Chamber, and placed in the alcove to enable the sculptor to discover the general effect.

Mrs. MacCarthy has portrayed the Queen as a girl, her eyes slightly lowered, looking down on the Senate floor.

FIVE YEAR SENTENCE IMPOSED

St. Catharines, Ont., March 20—(CP)—N. W. Moore, convicted of a serious offence against a girl was sentenced here today to five years in penitentiary by Justice McFarland.

"I'm for Peace," . . . . said Mr. PICOBAC

A benign expression spread over Mr. Picobac's countenance. Removing his pipe, he leaned against the desk of the Essex Centre Grand Central Hotel, and gazed at his audience of two.

"I'm a peaceful man," repeated he. "I try to be a good neighbour, same as President Roosevelt does . . . and Mr. Baldwin. But . . ."

"You don't like people to walk on you," suggested George Boniface, genial proprietor of the hostelry.

"Peace with self-respect," agreed the Burley tobacco patriot. "Canada is a self-governing, self-respecting Dominion in the British Commonwealth of Nations. She's not looking for trouble. But I'll say she will hold up her end if trouble ever starts."

"Well, 'don't start anything around here," advised Gus, who drives the bus that meets all the trains.

"Don't worry," rejoined Mr. Picobac, puffing in great content. "I won't. As long as I have enough Picobac tobacco for a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke, there'll be no trouble with me. I'll keep the peace and be a friendly neighbour."

MARKET COMMENTS

The local market yesterday experienced a moderate reaction, the mines and industrials suffering to the general selling. For some little time the list has shown signs of staleness and a corrrectionary movement was bound to clear the air. A number of houses in the Street having been advising clients to stay on the sidelines for trading pending out that many issues had discounted favorable prospects a little too far ahead.

A break is not expected to carry too far for the reason that the Street harbors a number of sold-out bulls who have been hoping for a setback to repurchase their favorites. The majority of accounts are in good shape to withstand a reaction and it will only be the thinly margined accounts that will be forced to liquidate. We appear to be definitely in a bull market and even in the great bull market that culminated in 1929, sharp setbacks occurred from time to time.

TECHNICAL REACTION

With a world-wide upward trend of business and prices, which soon chooses to be established, shrewd and experienced observers, see little prospect in the immediate future for anything more than normal technical market reactions, characteristic of all bull markets. Such reactions would offer attractive opportunities to accumulate sound securities and we are of the opinion that they should be utilized for that purpose.

DANCER BECOMES OPERATIC STAR

Soprano of D'Oyly Carte Company in Winnipeg Girl

Detroit, March 20 (CP)— Two years ago the home city of Winnipeg, Brenda Bennett discovered that beside being a good dancer she had possibilities as a singer. Today she is a leading soprano of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, "baby" of the troupe.

Up until 1935 she had notions of being a ballet dancer and spent many years studying difficult pirouette deux and pirouettes. With an eye to the future she travelled to London and finally to the studio of a well-known singing teacher. Hard work and an insatiable ambition soon proved successful and she landed with the D'Oyly Carte company. They are now playing Detroit for two weeks.

Sitting in her dressing room after playing the leading feminine role in "Gondoliers" in the Gondiers, Miss Bennett refused to tell her age.

A guess she was in her early 20's and he looked for more conversations of this kind. "I had long hair," he said. "That we could have more of these exchanges."

Mr. King looking fit and rested and asserting himself eager to get back to the work of Government, left for Ottawa late only a few minutes in Montreal. He had come by way of New York from Virginia Beach, Va., where he spent the last week or so holidaying by the sea.

The left wheel snapped off and was carried for 100 feet before the plane came to rest.

Police reporters were bent, the left one badly.

She was attempting a daylight take-off for Howland Island after receiving reports there was cloudy weather as well as a storm south of here, and favorable weather thence to Howland.

The plane was loaded with between 800 and 900 gallons of gasoline.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Brian to the Rescue

By Alice Duane

It had been an unusually uneventful morning for Brian Kent, sitting at his perfectly appointed desk in one of his uncle's spacious offices.

Brian was getting into shape a report his uncle had asked him to have ready that afternoon.

Once or twice that morning he had been on the verge of interrupting this report business, finding an excuse to dictate a letter so that even for a short few minutes he could have had a reason to have his uncle's very charming young secretary sitting at the opposite side of his desk. But there was always a chance that his uncle might come in unexpectedly— and the report was urgent.

The steady dull drone of machinery was becoming almost unendurable—and then the low, throaty growl followed by the high deafening shriek of the fire alarm.

No special need for alarm. Brian quickly assured himself. After all, the factory people had probably been given specific instructions for orderly exits from the building in such an emergency.

The factory side of the building Brian knew was absolutely fire proof but this older section that housed the executive offices and the office staffs was of wooden construction. There was a sprinkler system and numerous fire exits, but even these things sometimes happened.

Brian quickly gathered up the papers strewn on his desk, crammed them into his coat pocket and dashed into the large bare room where the typist and stenographers had their desks. Most of the desks were already deserted. Girls were hurrying across the floor to exit hurriedly. Only a few girls who lingered and told them to go on without them.

"Where is Miss Mason?" he called to one of them.

"She ran into the accounting department the girl told him.

Brian hurried over and called to himself and dashed forward to the accounting department. Miss Mason was kneeling beside a small safe in one of the smaller offices.

In a fraction of a second he reached her took the papers from her hands, threw them in the safe and without waiting to explain lifted her in his arms.

"What are you doing?" she asked and then realizing that there was no alternative let her slender young body relax in his strong young arms.

"There is no terrible hurry," she told him, as he hurried down the hall. But Brian assured her that he was taking no chances. He would have carried her down the fire escape if she had not so seriously objected. Instead he went down the stairs ahead of her, turning back at every step to assure himself of her safe descent.

Miss Mason breathed a sigh of relief when she had reached the ground and realized that none of the girls had been looking on.

"They will all be over at the other side," she told Brian, who stood looking down at her in friendly, possessive way.

"You had me worried for a minute," he said. "And don't you ever take time to put letters in the safe again."

"But that's orders from your uncle," Miss said. "There's always the chance that a letter might be valuable—so just as a matter of drill we always do it."

"Just that every time we have a fire drill we are supposed to do precisely what we would if there was a real fire—"

Brian looked amazed and then laughed.

"The joke's on me," he told her. "But how did I know it was only a drill? No one told me."

"How did you happen to run across me?" Miss asked. "Weren't you going to leave the building?"

She was trying not to laugh at him.

"Not until I'd found you," he said. "You see, that's the first thing I thought of when I heard that shrieking siren. I suppose I thought I was saving your life or something—anyway, I'm glad for your sake the other girls didn't see the rescue—" He looked a little crestfallen and foolish.

"I wouldn't have minded, if you hadn't," Miss told him. "I started to cry out at first, because I was so surprised. But—I didn't mind. I'd been hoping all morning you'd look for me to take some dictation—"

And I'd been wishing I had a chance—"

A gong rang . Miss said it was the signal to return to the building. She wasn't laughing now. "They are grazied to see me."

"Oh, pshaw," Brian told her, "I really made a mistake—and incidentally let you know, as you must know now that I'm seriously interested."

"Couldn't we talk about that some other time?" Miss suggested. "That is—I've got to get back in line to go in with the other girls—she was walking away from him—"but I'm interested, too."

"Let's talk about it tonight at dinner," he called softly. "I'll call you up for dictation and we can make plans—So long, Alice—"

"So long, Brian. Thanks for the rescue. And next time there's to be a drill I'll let you know."

TARZAN'S QUEST

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

With excited screams and gestures, Nkima led the Waziri warriors toward the village where he believed Tarzan was still a captive. The little monkey was unaware of Tarzan's escape, for he had fled in panic soon after the ape-man had been made a prisoner.

Tarzan's stalwart Waziri presented a splendid picture of fierce, primitive fighting men as they coursed through the jungle; And when they burst into the clearing outside Udalo's village, the women fled in fright into the kraal, and the gate slammed shut.

Inside the palisade, Udalo and his warriors seized weapons and mounted the high platform from which manded the clearing.

"Who are you: what do you want?" Udalo demanded.

"We are Waziri," Muviro answered, "and we come to meet our chief, Tarzan of the Apes."

The brain of Cragmire, that wish-monger, whirled dizzily. He was convinced that Tarzan, whom he had helped to escape, had treacherously stolen his treasure. Now he would find means of taking revenge on those warriors who were Tarzan's friends.

Rescue Workers and Parents Frantically Search School Wreckage for Mangled Bodies Following Explosion

"Oh, generous!" he said with scorn. "It's easy enough to be generous when you've got the money. I wasn't thinking of that."

He drove some way in silence, until he said, "I thought we'd have lunch at Lyme Regis. It's a pretty little place," and then abruptly, "Where would you like to go for a honeymoon?"

Heather caught her breath, and bit a tip to check the words which almost rose to her lips, "Oh, must we have a honeymoon?"

"Anywhere you like," she said.

"You choose," he insisted. "We'll go abroad, if you like. Scotland would be nice at this time of the year." He looked down at her. "You see, I'm taking it for granted that you're not going to keep me waiting, my dear."

"I'm," she said faintly, and accidently all her fears came creeping back upon her. To marry the man when she loved some one else with every beat of her heart; to go away with him—alone—without the family to make it seem at all possible; it seemed a frightening and impossible thing to face. For a moment she was conscious of panic, and it was in vain that she tried to remember the man's kindness and gentleness and generosity; in vain that she tried to forget Jane and of his insolvency, of Bobbie and Effie....

Heather stole a terrified glance at Mathews. Their honeymoon! somehow she had never thought of a honeymoon with Henry Mathews.

"You're kind," she told herself, but it did not help, and there was a long silence, which even Henry made no attempt to break until at last he said, slowing the car a little, "I'm not sure which way we turn here. There ought to be a sign-post."

It gave her a breathless space, that presently she could smile again and say, "I believe I'm hungry, and that's dreadful, seeing that I had quite a good breakfast."

Mathews glanced at his watch. "It's only twelve," he said, "but we shall be there in half an hour."

He talked on ordinary subjects after that, drawing her attention to the countryside, telling her that his grandmother was born in a village close by and what a fine woman she was.

"I can't remember my grandmother," Heather said. "I can't remember my relations. My father and mother were both only children."

"Your father's a fine man, I've a great respect for him," Mathews said firmly.

Heather took her courage in both hands. "You know he hasn't any money?" she asked timidly.

Mathews laughed. "Hess, my son, of course he hasn't," he said blithely. "He's just a child. If you gave him ten thousand pounds tomorrow he'd be broke by next week. He did not think it necessary to add that some one would have to help Caesar out of a temporary embarrassment, but that was what he was quite prepared to continue to do.

He drove up with a flourish to the old Royal Lyme Hotel in the town, High Street of Lyme Regis, and turned to give Heather his hand as she said proudly 'My wife', as he followed her through the low doorway, and it would always have broken his heart could he have known the coldness of hers, and the effort it was to face him across the table and to smile.

She thought passionately, "If only I could love him." It would be such a happy solution, and the way which she knew would never be realised.

Afterwards they drove for miles through the country, where all was ready the trees were showing the first tough of autumn. They did not talk very much, and Heather was glad.

They were still some miles from The Haven when heavy drops of rain began to fall. Heather started when Henry said, "Enjoyed it?"

"It's been lovely—so peaceful."

"The best day I've ever had," he said simply, and then as the rain increased he suggested stopping at a small wayside cottage where they could get tea. There was a fire in the small sitting room, and they had tea in its warmth and watched the pelting rain on the windows. It seemed to get dark very quickly, and Heather said nervously, "I don't think we ought to start back, don't you?"

Mathews stood up. He looked very big and clumsy in the tiny room. "Before we go," he said hungrily, he stopped.

Heather looked up at him; she knew what was coming, and she tried to smile as she met the intensity of his eyes.

"They used to call it 'naming the day' when I was younger," he said.

For an instant she felt her whole body shrink from him, then with an effort she held out her hand. "When you like," she said.

Mathews' kindly face grew very red. "October the eighteenth, it's my birthday," he said. "If you feel you could marry me—for a birthday present."

She wondered if he saw the trembling of her lips. "October the eighteenth, then," she said gently, and while her heart cried out within "Not quite two months in which to belong to anyone!"

He raised her hand to his lips awkwardly, and when she felt he had touched it she drew it quickly away. Bruce had always kissed her hand. Years after all the years she had forgotten how often he used to hold her hand against his lips and kiss the soft palm.

They drove back through the falling rain almost silently. Effie saw them from the window and ran to the front door. "I'm glad some one's come," she said. "Bruce and I have had tea all by ourselves, and the others are all out. Bruce got here by an earlier train, and drove from Weymouth in a taxi. He's brought me a huge box of chocolates."

She hung on Heather's arm as they went to the drawing-room, where Bruce stood with his back to the fire. He came forward, and shook hands with Heather and then with Henry, who had followed.

She went upstairs to take off her hat, followed by Effie. "Where is Winter?" Heather said.

"She came in to lunch, and brought Dick with her, and her son half had," Effie said ingenuously. "But he wouldn't stay after lunch, and when half-past gone, they went out with Bobbie. Did you have a nice day?"

"Very nice. We went to Lyme Regis." Then abruptly, "Why did Vilette go out when she knew Bruce was coming?"

Effie shook her head, "I think she didn't expect him so early. She went out with Bobbie."

Heather went to the window. "They'll be wet through," she said.

"Oh, no they won't. They took a car."

Effie looked at her toes meditatively. "Bruce didn't seem to mind a bit. I thought Vilette wasn't here," she said naively.

"Why should he mind?" Heather held out her hand. "Come along, let's go down. They'll be in directly."

The wind had risen almost to gale force, and down on the sands the big waves were breaking in clouds of foam.

"I think I'll go out," Effie said suddenly. "I've never seen a really rough sea." She turned to Bruce. "You come too."

He rose good naturedly. "All right, but only for a short time."

Heather watched anything as they crossed the bay land to the cliff edge, Effie clinging to Bruce's arm, her head bent down against the wind.

"It's nice to see a fire," Heather said, and then, "I think I'll go and see if Caesar is awake."

But Mathews stopped her. "Wait a minute, and let me tell you that you've made me a happier man than I ever thought I could be."

She looked up at him. "I'm glad," she said simply, and then he let her go.

Caesar had awakened when she entered his little sanctum. "It's Effie in here, and we've got a fire in the drawing room, so won't you come in?"

Caesar followed her and she left him to talk to Henry while she went to see about supper. It was Jennings night out, and so Priddy was in supreme command of the kitchen.

"The apple pudding smells good." Heather said kindly. "Shall I lay the cloth for you, Priddy?"

"Thank you, Miss," Priddy answered complacently. "I believe in getting things done."

Heather went back to the fire and listened while Caesar told Henry Mathews the story of the letter relating to the estate of a William Winton, who had died that day, and Heather felt touched and strangely interested by how he took quite resentful, as if he objected to anything that might rob him of his privileges.

"Of course," Caesar said grandly, "I don't suppose it is a fact that there is nothing so strange in fiction as there sometimes is in real life, and I must admit that I am filled with optimism."

Bruce and Effie came back, their faces flushed with the wind and the spray. "It's glorious!" Effie said with enthusiasm. "The spray broke right over us, didn't it Bruce? Oh, I wish the sea could always be rough."

"I wish Vilette and Bobbie would come in," Heather said.

"I expect the car's broken down," Effie announced, with a look at Bruce. "I'll bet it has if Vilette's been trying to drive."

"She can't do much harm," Bruce answered. "I'm not worry." Just then the telephone bell rang. "I'll go," he said and went out into the hall, closing the door behind him.

When he reopened the door he looked about anxiously. "Is Mr. Mathews," he said, and the door closed again behind him.

Bruce came back. He stood in the doorway, and in the darkness of the hall his face was impossible to see his face. "They've rung up from the Royal Hotel," he said. "Effie was right—the car has broken down. Mathews and I are going over to fetch them."

Heather turned quickly, but he had already gone.

"The scrodrome," she said, looking at Bruce.

Effie shrugged her shoulders. "I knew it. I heard them talking," she said. "Bobbie wanted Vilette to come to hear, but I did hear something about going to Lyme Regis. They are a couple of mean cats. They might have taken me with them."

"But surely they can't have been there all the afternoon?" Heather said blankly, and she went quickly to the window. Henry's car was already almost out of sight.

It was a quiet supper table. When supper was cleared away, Bruce not settle to anything, and presently he said he would go and see what had missed, she put on a thick coat and slipped out.

It was quite dark now. The wind took her breath away but she fought her way down to the main road, the rain beating down on her uncovered head, her hands icy cold.

Why why they so long returning? It was not as if distance there was a faint glow of light which grew bigger. She moved out into the middle of the road, groped in the pocket of the mackintosh for a handkerchief, and waved it.

"Heather—why have you come?" and at once she realised that his voice had changed, was unlike his voice, and she said shrilly, "Where are they?...Why don't they speak, Bruce? Why won't Aunt's boy speak with you?" Her voice rose to a cry.

She craned forward towards the car, and although it was too dark to see clearly, instinctively she knew them was nobody with him. She found her the grip of his arms, and that seemed the only real thing in the world, the one thing that kept her from falling, or from going mad.

"Heather.....listen to me..... you must be brave."

Instalment 26

Heather was suddenly very still, trying desperately to control herself, but hardly breathing as Bruce went on brokenly.

"Something has happened.....we don't know yet, but we mustn't give up hope.....you mustn't give up hope. They'll all look to you to be brave, besides it may be all right...please God it will." And then he told her that early that afternoon Bobbie had persuaded one of the girls to take him and Vilette for a joy-ride. His voice faltered on the word, which Bobbie had so often and so proudly used to them all.

"It was quite fine when they started.....soon after three, they say it was. They flew towards the sea....." He stopped, unable to control his voice, and Heather felt that she was sinking down, sinking down, sinking down.....and yet she stood here, up-held by his arms with the mocking wind dancing her hair.

"They may have landed somewhere for safety—when the tide has changed so suddenly.....we don't know yet. They might have been trying to get in touch with us for hour, but nobody knew where they came from. The children, Mathews is staying there—doing everything possible....."

And then he stopped speaking. For a moment the wind seemed to catch its boisterous career, as if in shocked sympathy, and Heather said incoherently, almost as if she were dying. "You mean—they haven't come back?"

Bruce said brokenly, "We must'n't give up hope. There is every hope, I believe, I am sure, they are safe somewhere. We must not give up hope, Heather—"

She freed herself from his arms, closed and covered her face with her shaking hands.

Looking back upon that tragic night, Heather could never understand how she lived through it. They were forced to lie to Effie to Caesar—even to poor old Priddy, whose affection for Bobbie was her strong point. The hour were an unending nightmare, only made supportable by Bruce, whose courage and confidence never wavered.

When Effie and Caesar were safely in bed, Heather crept downstair to the drawing-room, where Bruce and John were waiting with strained attention for the telphone to ring. They felt that it would even be a relief to be told the worst—it was the suspense that could not be borne.

At midnight the wind seemed to have dropped a little, though the thunder of the waves boomed like guns.

Heather went to the window and drew aside the curtain, but it was too dark to distinguish anything, though she stood there with her face pressed to the cold pane until Bruce gently drew her away.

"Try to be patient. Just for a little longer," he said. Heather shrank away from him and went back to the fire, holding her hands to its warmth. She started violently when a clock somewhere struck the half-hour.

"If only it would get light,' she said feverishly, and then as neither of the men made any response they be picked up by a ship—it has happened, hasn't it?—Perhaps by a ship that hasn't any wireless."

All night she had been trying to believe that the impossible had happened.

"If only she could cry ....."Why don't we do something," she broke out, and sitting bolt upright, "It drives me mad to have to stay here, when I might be helping to find them. Why doesn't Henry ring up and tell us something—why doesn't he ring back? There must be something to tell us, after all these hours."

She offered no resistance when Bruce gently forced her to sit down in an armchair, though he had drawn close to the fire.

"Heather—Bobbie—Bobbie."

His name broke from her lips with a stifled moan, and Bruce went down on his knees beside her and took her in his arms, holding her as if she had been a child. His cheek against her hair, while he tried to comfort her. She made no resistance, hardly realised that it was he who held her.

The hours dragged by; two...three ...four...five till the first streak of daylight showed faintly against the darkness, and at last they heard the sound of a car through the silence.

Heather was at the door before Bruce could get her, running wildly down the road, but it was only Henry, haggard and weary.

INFORMAL GAS LINE TO TEXAS SCHOOL PROVED TOO EXPENSIVE

'Partly Responsible' For Gas Line Connection Sup't W.C. Shaw Admits

Shaw Whose Son Was Killed Retires to Cot After Testifying

STUDENTS GIVE CLUE

Says Light Switch Was Pulled in One of Rooms

New London, Tex., March 23 (AP) —Frail and weary with grief, W. C. Shaw, superintendent, told a military inquiry today he was "partly responsible" for an informal gas line connecting for the heating system of explosion-wrecked London School and that he "should add to a portion of my particular objection to the connection.

The gas line "is being studied among numerous other factors in the search for the cause of the disaster which killed 405 children and teachers.

Shaw's Son Killed

Shaw, who lost a son in the explosion, was so weakened that he retired when the witness stand to a nearby cot. He is a sufferer from high blood pressure.

A clue to the ignition of the explosion was provided by John Deal, 15, a student.

"A flash of fire blinded me," Deal testified. Looking up, he said, he saw a man pulled a light switch in the manual training room.

Talk With Superintendent

The gas connection of which Shaw testified was with a line of the Pacific Gasoline Company. D. L. Clark, field foreman of that company, testified the school had "tapped" the line for heating "but without his knowledge or consent.

Shaw said he had talked with Bart Clower, 19-year-old student, before serving the school, was purchasing gas while the field gas was shut off valve.

Mr. Clower did not give us specific permission," Shaw said, "and warned that we were liable to be cut home at any time if connected, but he did not particularly object."

Justice ran play from the school to the company's line, Shaw said, and he was "partly responsible" for giving the order.

WANTS ROWE'S VIEW ON INCOME

Hepburn Asks Ellis to Find Out if He Wants Repeal

Toronto, March 23—(CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn today obtained from Arthur Ellis (Cons. Ottawa South) a promise he would ask his leader, Hon. Earl Rowe, if he favors repeal of the Provincial Income Tax Act.

The promise came during debate in committee stage on the bill to repeal the Amusement Tax Act. Mr. Ellis said the government had increased the tax and was not abolishing it. It had taken the income tax from the municipalities also but was returning it in the form of subsidies. It was unfair to cities.

"Now mr. hrrr," said Mr. Hepburn to Mr. Ellis, "we've adjourned the House tonight so you and your colleagues, and you haven't invited me, can go to a dinner in honor of Mr. Rowe. I challenge you to ask Mr. Rowe to make a statement on the Income Tax Act, or he'll repeal the Income Tax Act."

Londoners Protest Against Destruction of Landmarks

New Construction Involves Wrecking of Historic Buildings

DISCUSSED IN HOME

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 23 (CP)— While Londoners are busying themselves in beautifying the city in preparation for the great event, the coronation of King George VI.—a wave of popular protest is sweeping the nation against the progressive destruction of historic landmarks.

Since the days during the war, when Canada's legions stormed the heights of Ramilies and Vimy Ridge, in on those much anticipated fronts which have become hallowed ground to such spots as the Strand, Leicester Square and Piccadilly, there has wrought a tremendous change. Much is going modern.

Everywhere are the signs of this trend. Streets are emblazoned in vivid colors. Old-fashioned traffic signals have been installed, snack bars and lunch counters have mushroomed the city ... new buildings of imposing and modernistic architecture have been erected or are in the process of construction on every hand. It is the latter transformation, often necessitating erasure of a sight with some historic or sentimental association, that has brought the cry: "halt the destruction."

So powerful has been the burden of the agitation that the issue finally reached the floor of the House of Commons.

Editorials have appeared in most of the leading daily newspapers supporting the movement for preservation. Hundreds of letters have appeared in the columns of the press and thousands of letters have appeared in the mail bags of the press proclaiming what has been variously called "vandalism," "wanton destruction" and "municipal hara-kari."

Old Theatre Demolished

It has been pointed out that "Goodbye Piccadilly, Farewell Leicester Square" is nothing on a new significance. Demolition of the famous Alhambra is to be followed by an even more interesting building—the former home of Sir Joshua Reynolds, with its quaint old doorway engravings showing Johnson, Boswell, Garrick and others of their circle, is one of its rooms.

The public monuments as Waterloo bridge, Carlton House Terrace, Admiralty Arch, Lansdowne House, the 17th, and 18th Century mansions in Whitehall have already been demolished. Extension of Covent Garden has involved the wrecking of many ancient buildings in Long Acre, exclusive Mayfair has undergone the renovation rage and more recently the ill-fated mansion of the Privy Council gave judgment which will consign the old Church of All Hallows to the pickaxe and shovel.

VATICAN PACT CALLED OBSOLETE BY NAZI EDITOR

Pontiff's Letter Read in Churches Is Called Encyclical

PAPAL MISGIVING

Nazi Party Blamed For Encouraging Foes of Christianity

Vatican City, March 22 (AP) — Pope Pius, in a reference interpreted as that Vatican as cited "unmistakably" at Chancellor Hitler, warned the third Reich today anyone who attempts to replace God as the supreme religious being should be regarded as "a senseless prophet of absurdity."

In the second encyclical message in a week, which was read yesterday in all Catholic churches of Germany, the Holy Father said bluntly;

Salvation or Perdition

"The pact now or has reached where there is a question of the final salvation or loss, of salvation or perdition."

Therefore the 1933 concordat between the Vatican and the Berlin government—in which the secular right of the state to name bishops were set forth—has been destroyed and "rendered intrinsically valueless."

He placed direct blame for destruction of the agreement on the government in writing "We have seen everything—to defend the sanctity of the solemnly plighted word."

True Peace Sought

At the same time, he expressed hope the conflicting interests of Nazidom and the Church may be restored to "true peace."

His declaration denounced the "open violation" of concordat schools and the suppression of liberty of choice for those who have a right to Catholic education."

RAILWAY WAGE PARLEY REOPENED

Executives of C. N. R. And C. P. R. Meet Union Officials

Montreal March 23—Closed in secret official conferences opened between railway union representatives and executives of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways was called suddenly here on Saturday to reopen wage negotiations.

The Canadian National Railways were represented by President S. J. Hungerford and Vice-President Sir Joseph Beatty sat in for the Canadian Pacific. Donald Gordon, chief General Chairman of the union conference, and the Vice-Presidents of the railway unions were present for the men.

Both union and company officials bluntly refused to discuss the purpose of the meeting or what progress accomplished, but from an authentic source it was reported that the views of 117,000 railway employees had been placed before the conference representatives by the unions.

The suggestion was strengthened by the fact that delegates from the seventeen unions affected will likely meet on Tuesday and it is believed the union representatives will meet the companies on Saturday will present company views to their meeting.

Saturday's sudden and secret meeting was held at the request of the railway unions, it was stated by a company official.

Howard B. Chase, Chairman of more than fifty units of engineers from coast to coast, said he would have no statement to make as Sir Hungerford, President of the National Railway System, would be had any comment to make, as did other railway men.

Saturday's meeting was the first direct parley between the companies and the men since more than a month ago when ballots were taken to the running trades on the strike question.

Complete restoration of the 10 per cent. wage deduction would cost the two railways $15,000,000 a year, it is estimated.

WINDSOR LINEAGE NOW APPROVED

Children of Former King to be Styled His or Her Royal Highness

London, March 22 (CP Cable)—The Daily Telegraph today said it has understood that the decree creating the Dukedom of Windsor had now passed the Great Seal.

The new Dukedom has been made, she said, (a fact from all other Dukedoms in that the children will inherit thereto. No courtesy title would therefore be available in the case of an heir being born to the Duke unless special permission were made by the Crown when such a contingency arose.

Children of former King Edward would be styled his or her Royal Highness, but, according to the Royal proclamation of 1917 when the King formally adopted the name of Windsor, the style Royal Highness, or Prince or Princess, was restricted to the children of the sovereign and his grandchildren in the male line.

Therefore grandchildren of the Duke would have only the courtesy title Lord or Lady prefixed to their Christian names and the surname of Windsor the eldest in the male line eventually would succeed to the Dukedom. Younger children would be known by such names as "Lord David Windsor" and "Lady Mary Windsor" and so on.

WHEAT SOARS TO 8-YEAR PEAKS ON ALL MARKETS

Domestic Wheat Rises 10 Cents in Week at Chicago

PEG PRICE UP 3c.

May Futures Sell at $1.40 7-8 For Seven Hour High

Chicago, March 22 (AP)—Ekyrocketing almost four cents a bushel, wheat prices soared today to new eight-year peaks, propelled by a buying scramble attributed to increased evidence of shrinking world exportable supplies in the face of heavy European demands.

May wheat jumped above $1.41, its highest it has been since 1929. July wheat soared above $1.38, its peak since 1930. Buenos Aires, Liverpool and Winnipeg grain markets also were focal points of enormous speculative buying, with gains in all these world trade centres soaring from fractions to full points, in some cases topping records for 11 years.

MEN'S WAGE BILL GETS 3RD READING

No Opposition is Met With in Third Reading

Toronto, Mar. 22 (CP)—Ontario's minimum wage bill to permit the establishing of minimum wages for 450,000 male workers passed third and final reading in the Ontario legislature this afternoon at the closing sitting of the session. There was no opposition.

Premier Hepburn, leading the House, moved the Power Contracts Validation Act, an act to confirm a recently negotiated power contract between the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Ontario Valley Power Company.

Mr. Leighton's Stand.

Wilfrid Leighton (Cons., Toronto-St. David's) urged the premier to delay the Power Act, which certain power contracts were declared null and void, repealed. This preamble declared the Commission had failed to carry out its contracting for power generated outside Ontario.

If original contracts were illegal, the present one would be also, Leighton declared, Hepburn said:

Mr. Hepburn said Hydro issues had been thoroughly debated in the legislature, in the press and on the platform.

"Inasmuch as the legislature has said so, these contracts are illegal," he said.

"Do you believe the original contracts were illegal because the municipalities were not consulted?" asked Arthur Ellis (Cons., Ottawa South).

"I'll answer that by saying this act will not be changed," declared Mr. Hepburn.

Italian Says He Thought He Was to Go on Service in Ethiopia

26000 .....t shoots

Madrid, Mar. 23 (AP)—The government's northeastern army reported today it had pressed the insurgent retreat into a vast, disputed town after town in rapid advance on the insurgent stronghold of Siguenza.

The main column of General José Miaja, commander of Madrid's armies, was reported to be approaching Almadrones, only 12 miles south of the insurgent base of operations at Siguenza, after a 28-mile advance from Guadalajara.

At no point, dispatches from the various combat centers outside of Almadrones reported, had the pursuing column been stopped or thrown by the fleeing insurgents, routed in their fifth attempt to smash Madrid's defences.

Dumps Are Bombed.

Launching the drive on Siguenza, government bombers dropped 26,000 pounds of explosives on insurgent concentrations and supply dumps. Munition trains were said to have been destroyed and one bomb found its target on the railroad station, causing a great explosion that was believed to have demolished a gasoline depot.

Prisoner Big Communist Refrain.

Madrid, Mar. 23 (CP-Havas) — Fifty-seven Italian prisoners among the most recent batch captured on the front where the government are waging a victorious counter-offensive—indeed voluntarily the Communist entrain after listening to a fiery address by Dolores Ibarruri, fiery Communist deputy, known as La Pasionaria.

After singing the Communist anthem they cried "long live the Spanish people!" and "Long live the Italian people!" Their spokesman declared allegiance to Leftist authorities and foreign newspapermen assembled in the prisoners' compound to hear the speech.

Italian's Spanish Odyssey.

One of the prisoners, who spoke Spanish fluently, recounted his Spanish Odyssey. Short after leaving Italy—for Ethiopia he believed—he had learned that he was going to Spain. He accepted because Italian Fascist propaganda had told him a majority of fighting Red propaganda in the Mediterranean.

He and he landed at Cadiz in December, participated in the capture of Malaga and was dispatched to the Madrid front, finally believing Madrid would be the base for the Mediterranean seaport.

These hopes were partially fulfilled when the Italian contingent made their first successful advance in Guadalajara. Now he realizes that the sudden terrible air, tank and infantry attacks of the government, he said.

Rome, March 22 (C.P.-Havas — A Libyan sandstorm, not new interference with Italian aid to Spain, is Premier Mussolini's sudden departure from Tripoli yesterday, it was officially announced here today.

The sandstorm, it was declared, forced the Premier from his plane to the oasis of Ghadames, in the interest of his personal safety and therefore hastened his departure.

Some reports, however, comments on the reported rout of Italian contingents in Spain drew angry blasts from the newspaper Messaggero.

"Anti-Fascism excluded the possibility that Malaga, which is declared impregnable, would fall," the newspaper said. "A few days later Malaga fell to the insurgents, not without the efficient support of Italian volunteers, a fact that Valencia communiques and reports in the British press appear to ignore.

"Episodes of this type will repeat themselves. The British nose, already longer than that of their Spanish friend (Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia), may be further lengthened, so much so, that no man can hide it."

London, March 23 (CP-Havas) — The Daily Mail reports that Spain by the Madrid forces was the real reason for Premier Mussolini's sudden departure from Tripoli for Rome yesterday, it was reported by the Daily Herald today.

Mussolini, it said, hopes to return, will study the Spanish situation and send new "recommendations" to General Francisco Franco, it was per said.

A sandstorm yesterday was made the official excuse for the plan," it went on. "But there is no doubt here that the events in Spain really influenced Mussolini in his sudden decision to return home as rapidly as possible."

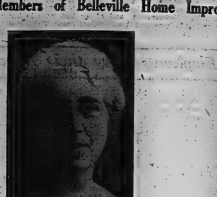
ALLEGED TRIGGER MAN IN TORONTO HOLDUPS IDENTIFIED BY FOUR

Windsor, Ont., March 22.—(CP)—Identified by four witnesses as trigger man in a Toronto bank robbery, Fred Podermiesk, 36, alias Fred Preston, wanted on two charges of bank robbery in that city, was returned over to Toronto to stand trial, police arrested Podermiesk yesterday in a surprise visit to a home here.

The man yielded to arrest without a struggle and denied he was involved in the bank robberies. He has been living in a hotel here for many months and police said he formerly resided in Winnipeg.

Two bandits were involved in both robberies, Podermiesk is suspected of. One took place Jan. 15, 1936, when the Dominion Bank Branch at Davenport Road and Vaughan Avenue was robbed of $4,402. Four of the six witnesses brought here from Toronto yesterday identified Podermiesk as one of the gunmen.



The other robbery occurred May 20, 1935, when the Bank of Commerce branch at Lansdowne Ave., and Wallace Street, was held up and $1,500 taken.

Windsor police said Podermiesk had been an employee of the Michigan Club here closed down in a police gambling raid three years ago. He was arrested at that time and fined as being a vagrant. It was said he was employed as a dice man as one of the gaming tables.

Detective Nimmo said a previous arrest was made one week ago in Toronto when Harry Mooney, alias Robert Davey, also Toronto, was charged with being in possession of an offensive weapon. Nimmo said Mooney has also been identified in connection with the two bank holdups.

SPEED LIMIT BILL MAY BE LAID OVER

Not a Government Measure But Committee Passes Third Reading

Toronto, Mar. 22 (CP)—Ontario Legislature met for its first morning sitting of the session today. They will also be held tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday in an attempt to reach prorogation before Good Friday.

The bill was called Friday but Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon asked it be delayed. It is not a government measure and the government may ask to have the question laid over until next session.

Finish Debate.

The budget debate will be wound up today. Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon will conclude it. There will be no night sitting.

FRANCE TO RUN AIRPLANE PLANTS

Race Against Time to Nationalize Country's War Industries

Paris, Mar. 23 (AP)—The French government, racing against time to nationalize the country's war industries, took over two of France's largest airplane factories today and ordered expropriation of a third.

In addition to the three plants brought under full air ministry, the government ordered nationalization of the "Stamping and Mechanical Construction" Company at Caudebec to complete the largest single group of private munitions works to be brought under government control at one time.

Today's sweeping decree left the Renault Munitions Plant the only major war industry in private hands.

The airplane plant orders put into effect one of the final phases of Air Minister Pierre Cot's drive to take over all military airplane accessory factories by April 1.

Brought under actual control of his production schedule—guarded as a close military secret — was the Hispano Suiza Aircraft Engine plant and the Aeronautical Corporation Union Plant at Beglee. The Louis Breguet Plane Factory at Le Havre has been decreed for nationalization and the government will take possession in the near future.

The growing list includes the mammoth Schneider Works, producers of the famous 56-millimetre gun. The Brandt Arms plant, the Hotchkiss Machine-gun Factory and the Le Mans Carriage Works.

Under the nationalization law to take its profits out of war, enacted August 11, 1936, President Lebrun's government must complete its program by March 31.

Only the part of the factories decreed to munitions is taken over by the government with other phases of their operations being left in private hands.

POLICE NOT AWARE SUSPECTED PLOT

Authorities Place No Credence in Report Against King's Life

London, March 22 — (AP) — A spokesman for Scotland Yard yesterday asserted police headquarters knew nothing about reports it was investigating a suspected plot against the life of King George VI.

The newspaper Sunday Referee reported such an investigation in progress. It said detectives had raided the rooms of a unknown man and found a throwing knife wrapped up in a map of the route of the coronation procession.

The newspaper asserted Scotland Yard was questioning one unnamed man. It reported detectives found more than 100 newspaper clippings giving details of the coronation procession May 12.

Details covered by the clippings, it said, including, the position to be occupied by the King's carriage in the procession, the times when the procession was scheduled to pass certain points and the exact route to be followed.

Toronto, March 22 — (C.P.)

Thieves broke into the office and home of Louis Rich, wholesale fruit merchant, and stole about $4,500 in cash and several hundred dollars of jewelry last night, he reported to Police. They got $1,500 in cash from the safe they smashed open and $2,500 in cash from a bedroom dresser drawer.

HER LIFE A MISERY THROUGH BACKACHE

Pain So Bad She Could Scarcely Walk

Three years of suffering and then at last—glorious relief! This woman feels it her duty to tell other sufferers how she got back her health. Here in her letter she tells her story:—

"I feel it my duty to tell you how, after nearly three years of suffering with neuritis and backache, I have obtained relief after taking two bottles of Kruschen Salts. I have been in hospital, had various beds, etc., but nothing touched it until I read about Kruschen Salts and the benefit derived from them. I can walk at least three miles a day now, and before I could only crawl about the house."—(Mrs.) A.N.

Kruschen is an excellent diuretic —that is, it helps to stimulate kidney functions. When kidneys are restored to healthy, normal action, poisonous waste is properly eliminated, the blood-stream is purified, and you get welcome relief from the disgusting pains of backache.

W. H. MORTON, PUBLISHER

REMEMBER THIS

How important general understanding of the space taken to bring a moving car to a stop may be realized when it is pointed out that not alone does the Industrial Accident Prevention Association issued a statement quoting the measurements and findings of Barney Oldfield, one of the greatest of motor drivers, reference to which was made in this paper a few days ago..... Now there has come an article from the Accident Recording Division of the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Department of Highways along the same line named "Speeding and Stopping Distances." The letter is prepared in the form of a chart which strikes the eye.

M.P.H. Ft. For Sec. Thinking Dist.	Braking Dist.	Total
20	22	18 - 40
30	33	40 - 73
40	44	71 - 115
50	55	111 - 166
60	66	160 - 226
70	77	226 - 295

Drivers of cars which are not in perfect condition and of cars on roads not under favorable conditions must take account of these conditions because still greater distance in which to bring a car to the stop will be required.

These facts should be seared in the minds of drivers so that at no time will there be taken an unnecessary risk as far as the occupants of the car or the occupants of another car or other vehicle or pedestrians is concerned.

Comment on these figures by the Highways Department is as follows—"In view of the fact that the safety with which we can travel at various speeds is dependent upon the distance required to stop, it would seem that the belief that a vehicle weighing a ton and a half can be 'stopped on a dime', from say, thirty miles an hour, is responsible to a considerable degree, for the large toll of death and injury now resulting from the use of motor vehicles."

THE SALVATION ARMY GOES FORWARD

The Salvation Army is found wherever there is life and in no place is it more appreciated than in a mining centre. Last week's "The War Cry" tells a story of Captain R. White's experiences in a fast-growing mining town. All of us have read his visit and the establishment of a corps in a mining centre are welcomed; that it adds to stability of life in a community is readily understood. Capt. Whites' experiences are told as follows:

"Coming into Val O'or a little over a year ago at night, it was very difficult to form any impressions of this new Northern Quebec mining town, for there was no electric power to be found and that could be seen were the gas lights or coal oil lights in the windows of the homes and stores.

"In daytime, however, the town presented a very different character, and on what appeared to be an empty lot could be seen a small shack roughly made from logs.

"From the very beginning I had confidence in the pioneering men who had come into this new land, mostly to try and serve the people and community, and that today this confidence has been amply proved, for these same men now have commodious and up-to-date stores.

"Army Open-airs are quite a novelty to many people in the district, and generally we soon have a crowd to listen, and while a number do not understand our language, they enjoy listening to the music and singing. A man came to us one Saturday night and said he had you singing "The Old Rugged Cross", and while I make no boast of being a Christian, I do think of my mother, for she used to sing that to me years ago. God bless you, my boys, stick to your work."

"The first thing necessary was that the Lieutenant and I should have some place we could call our 'Quarters' and with this idea in mind we set to work. The men helped up and our expectations were more than surpassed when the new Hall and Quarters situated in the middle of the town began to rise. It was clear that The Army was quite welcome.

"The building is not quite finished but soon we hope to have it dedicated to the service of God and the people in this new community.

All successful men have agreed in being casuationists; they believe that things were, not by luck, but by law — that there was not a week or cracked link in the chain that joins the first and last of things — Emerson.

HERE'S ONE FOR THE GOLFERS

There is in the City of Lakeland, Florida, a very interesting golf course. We have asked one of your Belleville Citizens now wintering there, to describe it for us and this is the description:

One enters the course driving through an impressive gateway, large pillars topped overhead, snowy white and at the left a guardhouse where a guard sits all day long to intercept and refuse admission to interlopers. Only golfers followed, or from two to four in the official tenson visitors to the Carpenters' Home, the Estate of which cost $3,000,000. Passing under the archway of the gate one proceeds on a winding, nicely paved roadway to the neat little club house, also all white. The view from the Club house facing back toward the gateway is entrancing, looking over rose bushes laden with rich colored red roses, over a pretty circular pond of water (a hazard) and on the tenth green (and it is green) with the white substantial gateway as a background. All this in a setting of palms and pines.

Did you ever see a Golf Course cut out of or through an orange grove? Well, here it is.

The second green takes back from the lake, with pine trees on the right.

The third leads down to the lake. A lone oak of good size stands between the green and the lake. With care one stays on the green instead of going on into the lake.

The fourth, proceeds right along the shore of the lake, the shores of which, (except the fairways) are thickly wooded. The old men from the Home out in boats fishing, one man, a Scotchman, I think, alone in a boat was using five poles all at once.

The fifth is a dogleg. The first part has a grapefruit grove on the left, and the second orange trees on the right.

The tee-off for the sixth hole has orange trees to the right, orange trees to left and orange trees behind. At each tee is a seat with a back, long enough to seat five people. At this tee we use this seat for refreshments.

We pick oranges or eat as we wish and eat them to our hearts' (or stomach's) content. Back we go again toward the lake. It is a delightful view with palms and pines and orange and grapefruit trees laden with fruit, the orange blossoms scenting the air just ahead the lake glistening in the sunshine.

The seventh hole brings us back again to our oranges and the eighth fairway runs along between two orange groves.

The ninth heads for the clubhouse again.

The second nine holes have a different beauty. No orange trees, but always passing through and between pine trees, tall and stately, with many artificial water hazards.

There are no water hazards on the first nine except the lake.

All in all it is claimed to be the sportiest and best kept course in Florida.

We are expecting Bryson Donnan along in a few days to have a try at it.

PERFECT PUBLICITY

In Chicago just now an old man may be seen travelling in a bus, evidently very deaf, for he wears a conspicuous ear-trumpet. Always by his side is accompanied by a very attractive young girl.

As soon as the bus starts the girl leans towards him and says loudly:

"Grandpa, remembers to buy the Doublezade mustard."

"Doublezade? Why Doublezade?"

"Where does one buy it?"

"In any grocer's."

The old man evidently doesn't understand what the girl is talking about. The charming one of office is despairing attitude as though calling passengers to witness that her voice will not carry.

Generally, a male spectator comes to the rescue of charming Eve and offers his services, and in a stentorian voice shouts: "Mustard Doublezede, best in the world, at all grocers. Have you understood?"

The "deaf" man smiles his thanks. Shortly after the two leave the bus and wait for the next — and begin all over again.

Stray Bits

A FARMER ON THE DEPRESSION

I see my mistakes as many others likewise, I bought a car instead of a team of horses and it is worn out but the horses are still O.K. I bought a radio instead of a cow and the radio gives static instead of milk. Had the latest hen roost instead of the well cleaned out.

I spent $4 for a trip in 1928 and used all my credit in 1929 and traded up my future wages on instalments during 1930. My hard times caught me in bad shape in 1931. If I had spent my last $10 for flour and meat instead of gas I might have been O.K. The next year I built a garage out of the chicken house instead of fixing the leaky roof on the house.

In 1933 a good neighbor gave me a cow he did not use but it was poor except of the pasture where the fence was broken down and in the night in its dog-gone way got into my wife had no water to wash the baby's clothes.

I mortgaged my only horse to pay for two blankets my wife had bought from a slick agent at the door instead of paying the preacher, the cow died in a cold night but I ain't got no cash. I am tied to the end of the rope and the rope I am working for is hauled on account nobody would pay me.

I had $4 saved up for a rainy day but it turned dry and I spent it for two inner tubes and a spare last year to make ends meet with a turnip patch. Had to give two nights to sell everybody else was selling turnips for nothing and the market glutted.

I am worried clean to the bone and my wife's health is failing owing over next week to spend a month. I ain't going to the poorhouse and I can't pay for a license for the radio so I just don't listen. Don't gotta go but the preacher was in a day or so ago and said a man named — was going to be married in a short time.

I hope he gets here because I'm expecting the account of my undertaker was so blamed pleased like to me in town the other day.

HATS AND THEIR WEARERS

A man who wears his hat on the back of his head is jolly, careless and not industrious. A man who wears his hat squarely on his head is methodical. He may have troubles, but he does not talk much about them. He may be fortunate in many things, but he does not allow good fortune to upset him. The man who wears his hat down over his eyes may be a thinker, or he may be a knave. It depends upon his entire mind. But how about the man who never wears a hat—he hunts all the time!—From the Atchison Globe.

Dust Bowl Dwellers

Five years of recurring drought have failed to sway the faith of Kansas dust bowl farmers in their dusty bowl country—or to dull their ability to take a joke.

Example: Jake Dale, some which would make the North woods famed Paul Bunyan look like a tyro, who is now a Topeka attorney, is told by oldtimers to "tenderfeet" from other sections and to those who have sprung up in the "Great American Desert" to make their homes in the dust bowl country.

Stories of the West Texas wind are based on truth, but Dale is a master of record that barbed wire fences have been blown down—when bunching cattle have piled up in the strands and form a solid barrier. Corn shocks are many years have bothered livestock breeders. The same with high average fence rows that cattle and horses can step across.

Newcomers usually are initiated with the story of a man who lived in one place without a drop of rain years without seeing any rain fall. A drop of rain struck him one afternoon and he stopped into the street and the man fainted.

Passenger trains have pockets of sand in his face to revive him.

"We've always leaned toward the goat-skin test," one "sand-hog" reported. "As dand my dog here always get a goat-skin and slap it over the kephale. If he can't hold it there, it's too windy to work in the field!"

"It's easier to use the log-chain method," replied a native scientist. "Just hang a good-sized log chain from the eaves of the house. When you can't hear it rattle, it's too windy to better stay inside."

A Baptist minister of the South plains district told his congregation how to determine if it was too windy to attend church.

"Stick your right hand into the air, sup it, and if it feels cold, you can see where your hand was, you'd better stay home."

Despite the tragic results that so often follow the use of gasoline in the home for cleaning purposes people will go on taking chances. Warnings are ignored, in effect, they say: "I have used it often and nothing happened, I don't think it is nearly as dangerous as they say it is." Then some day the trap springs and the lesson is learned too late.

Persons who are still not convinced that gasoline is "liquid dynamite" and that it should be handled with due precaution should read Colonel J. Bishop, deputy fire marshal, had to say during a lecture to Chatham Collegiate Institute pupils some time ago on the danger of using gasoline. "Persons using gasoline or benzine for cleaning clothes in their homes," he remarked with emphasis, "don't give a hang for their lives or are terribly careless." This is strong language, but it is the only way to make some people listen to that people who use gasoline in homes for cleaning don't give a hang for their lives, or are insane."

We pass this information and warning on in the hope that it will provoke serious thought in the minds of those who think gasoline isn't dangerous. When used without proper precautions gasoline is one of the most always terrible and violent death. Think it over.

Elephants Bury their Dead

Mr. Charles Low, in his book, "Great Asiatic Mysteries," deals with the question as to whether elephants bury their own dead. Having been speaking up of Assam and Burma—countries where wild elephants are probably more numerous even than in Ceylon and Southern India—hundreds of men have been employed clearing and burning the jungle.

"Yet engineers," Mr. Low asserts, "in charge of the work have stated that never have they come across the body of an elephant which has died of a natural death, though they had seen hundreds of carcasses of deer, gaur, gayal, buffalo, and tame lying dead—and also the remains of elephants which had been killed by themselves and others.

"What, then, becomes of the dead? Some Indians believe this of old age or disease?... The scientific explanation shot by sportsmen have been known to remain in evidence for as long as seven or eight years, although subject yearly to inundation in the rains and to fire in the dry season. The truth is that we are all in the dark on this subject.

"The natives of Assam, who, with their ancestors for centuries before them, have lived practically cheek by jowl with the elephant in his jungle fastness, say during the opening up of Assam and Burma—countries where wild elephants are probably more numerous even than in Ceylon and Southern India—hundreds of men have been employed clearing and burning the jungle,

"As for the question of whether this animal is capable of such a thing, no one who has seen an elephant stacking teak, treefelling, or doing any of the dozens of other exacting tasks which these animal laborers perform, entirely on their own initiative, throughout the East, can seriously doubt his ability to perform the task of interring one of his own brethren."

In view of the announcement that a fresh attempt is to be made to find the elephants' graveyard, it would be much next year, Mr. Low's chapter about the elephants is an exceptional interest.

"To the Tibetans," he says, "every elephant is a god, the Buddha, the 'Home of the Gods.' Feeling its mystery, they have peopled it with gods, the guardians and demons of the Lamaistic pantheon. The Chinese Buddhists, however, attempting to scale the mountain's crest. It is well known that the gods who have made Everest's remoteness their home fiercely drive off all intruders—a belief which it is difficult to refute, in view of the fate which has attended the efforts of each of the five expeditions which have attempted such an intrusion.

"It is firmly believed among many of the natives of the locality, moreover, that should another attempt ever succeed the wrath of the gods at this sacrilege would bring disaster on the land far and wide. For this reason every obstacle is placed in the way of all would-be climbers of Everest, and the special permission of the Dalai Lama himself has had to be obtained by every expedition which has attempted the climb."

Mr. Low's book has chapters on mysterious jungle tribes, the Tasaday, Veddas, Sakai, and Jungle Angkor Thom in the jungles of Cambodia, while those mysteries of the Himalaya and confining which bowller the most shrewd are described and, if not solved, the light which scientific investigation has revealed is made clear. This collection of mysteries of the East is more thrilling than the majesty of travel books.—Montreal Star.

Mr. William Hunter, Reeve of Marmora and Lake, was in the city today.

The annual meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society will be held in connection with Holloway Street Methodist Church Sunday morning. The Rev. Mr. Rice preached an excellent sermon.

Count de Chambrun

Arrested by Paris gendarmes after she had shot and seriously wounded Comte Jacques de Chambrun, an hereditary citizen of United States and former French ambassador to Rome, Madeleine de Pontnage, daughter of French journalist, declared she shot the diplomat because he betrayed confidence she had imposed in him thereby causing her to lose the love of a highly placed Italian statesman. French and British newspapers linked the name of premier Benito Mussolini to the triangle. Mme. Pontnage reportedly had many pictures of the Italian dictator in her studio. She was interviewed in Rome in 1926. Rome denied that Mussolini was involved.

Stirling and District

Annual St. Patrick's Party of St. John's Church

Stirling—Over seventy-five guests joined with the members and officers of St. John's, Anglican Men's Association, for a social evening held in the Memorial Hall on Wednesday evening in honor of St. Patrick's Day. An interesting Irish program was presented and the latter part of the evening spent at card games, Jimmy Wright and Gordon Mills, two juvenile artists of the parish, offered an Irish song assisted in appropriate costumes for the occasion, with Mrs. H. E. Alger providing accompaniment. A soprano solo by Mrs. H. F. Ells was also rendered in a pleasing fashion. A tap dancing act presented by a group of youthful students in the art was very much appreciated by the large audience. The group included Misses Marion Dick, Betty Hancock, R. Conley and Helen Dick. The made for their number being provided by Mr. Murney Hick playing the part of the patriarchal Fr. E. A. Carleton, President of the Association and as chairman for the evening while Rev. A. S. McConnell was the priest in the card playing. Progressive euchre was the game of the evening and the tables were artistically arranged in the colors of St. Patrick.

Friss Winners

First prize for the lady with the highest score was awarded to Mrs. M. Hick with a total of 76 points who received a china cup and saucer. Mrs. James Lagrow captured second prize also a cup and saucer with a total of 71 points. The ladies consolation prize was awarded to Mr. Ackers. Mr. Sid Williams with a total of 74 points gained first honors for the gentlemen and received a deck of playing cards. Second was Mr. Horace Wright with 68 points who was awarded a smoking set. The consolation prize for gentlemen went to Mr. A. Hammond.

After the presentation of the prizes to the winners, the members of the club served luncheon assisted by Jimmy Wright, who acted as his Irish costume, Jimmy delivered a large pail of homemade plate of tasty morsels to each table from a wheel-barrow, much to the pleasure about the hall. Cakes made in the Irish style and shaped as shamrocks added to the Irish atmosphere which prevailed. After the luncheon period had ended a social hour was enjoyed by those wishing to take part with splendid music provided by Mrs. H. Moore and Mr. Murney Hick.

PERSONALS

With the hockey schedules all completed more than a week ago, the local arena climaxed its activities for the year with a special night of public skating when music was provided by the C.N.R. orchestra and his amplifying apparatus. With winter sport finished, local baseball fans are already making preparation for the ball season and the possibility of having an entry in one of the local leagues is very encouraging. A club was formed in Stirling last year but it was deemed wise by those in charge in refusing from entering a league until 1937, so the activities of the club was confined to a series of exhibition games which were well attended by local baseball fans. With the amount of baseball talent available in Stirling it seems likely that a strong team will be in the field.

Miss Ella Alcombrack of Frankford is spending a few days visiting at the home of her sister Mrs. Arthur Hollis.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Bennett, Mark and Roy of Frankford spent Sunday afternoon visiting at the home of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. George Bennett, Ridge Road.

Weekly Fish Supper Sponsored by S.Y.M.B.C. Are Real Success

On Friday evening, the last of a series of lenten fish suppers sponsored by the young men's class St. Andrew's Young Men's Bible Class was held in the church parlours with the largest attendance of the series period.

The members of the class have portrayed remarkable organizing ability in the efficient manner they directed these suppers without the assistance of any of the ladies of the church. Specially appointed committees carried out the kitchen duties with very little confusion while the needs of the guests were attended to by a group of waiters chosen from the class roll the weekly suppers consisting entirely of old fashioned fish and chips were provided. The class is grateful to Mr. Walter Wright for his co-operation in preparing the eatables. To all those who assisted in a manner all way with donations, and to their many friends who attended the suppers consistently to give the support to the boys. They are also grateful to Mr. Jack Ormiston, local radio engineer, who each week installed a loudspeaking system and electric recording apparatus for the Methodist church choir service. This organization is continually introducing new and novel means of raising funds for community work in the future and their efforts are heartily endorsed by the general public who willingly support them in their work.

A. Dunean Addresses West Hastings Young People

On Friday evening the newly organized Young People's Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntington, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace for their second meeting when the guest speaker was Mr. Arthur Duncan of Stirling, President of the Belleville District Young People's Association of the Kingston Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Mr. Benson acted as chairman for the evening and the Scripture lesson was presented by Mr. Duncan. Miss Jean Thompson presented the secretary's report of the last regular meeting and the speaker was introduced by Mrs. Rutford.

After conveying the greetings of the Belleville organizing body to the newly formed organization Mr. Duncan delivered an interesting address on the subject "Industrial growth in Modern Youth." Youth has brought about by the provincial leadership in every outstanding social movement. Material wealth. Christianity in its beginning was a youth movement. Materially the value of youth and vigor is readily recognized. Youth is desired for service in war and to aid in paying the cost of war. In many lands youth has changed the entire social structure of a nation. The upward trend of human intellect is now turning to spiritual direction and youth must give leadership in bringing man to a closer walk with God. As they lead in war so shall they lead to establish eternal peace on earth and goodwill to all men. At the close of the meeting luncheon was served by the gathering consisting of sandwiches, cake and ice cream. The latter part of the evening was spent in games and contests.

EXTEND POWERS OF COMMISSION

Bill Will Allow Retroactive Investigations in Companies

Toronto, March 20 (CP)—From one storm to another the Ontario Legislature was driven today and ended early today.

Through legislation so as to get through by Good Friday, the Government just before midnight pushed through and second reading a bill to extend the power of the Ontario Securities Commission to retroactive investigations into the financing or financial operations of any company in Ontario.

Debate going on tonight and that settles it," said Premier Hepburn when George Henry, Conservative House leader, asked him to leave the bill over to Monday, when more members than the 30 or so then on hand would be present.

"Nervous spectators" of various companies would be exposed to the searchlight, when the bill became operative, Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck said.

Purpose of the bill was defined by Leopold Macaulay (Con., York South) as the setting up of "star chamber court methods" for "raising" Senator Arthur Meighen 16 when the Government had lost two lawsuits.

Roebuck Willing For Probe

Premier Hepburn said this was one reason for the bill. He intended to investigate the companies with which Meighen had been associated.

Mr. Roebuck, answering a question, said he was willing to have his connection with Diversified Investment Trusts Company, of which he was once president, investigated.

"Why not convict Meighen right now without the trouble of setting up this legislative formality," Mr. Macaulay asked. He said the Premier had spread charges affecting 90 men since he took office.

"Name some," Mr. Hepburn challenged.

"Mr. Meighen," said Mr. Macaulay.

"Another."

"Down in the Grenville by-election some years ago, I remember you saying you thought Howard Ferguson, who was Premier not long ago, was Mr. Macaulay's answer.

"I think he was lucky at that—so considering the money recovered from timber concessions he granted," said the Premier.

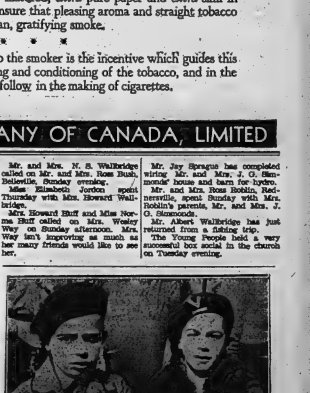
These are the facts—

You smoke because you enjoy it—because smoking gives you pleasure, gives you that something which nothing else in life quite supplies. How much pleasure it gives you depends upon the tobacco. Ever and always, "it's the tobacco that counts".



Speaking particularly of cigarettes, a cigarette cannot give you more than pleasure, satisfaction and comfort—it is not in any sense a cure-all. The only extras in a cigarette that can increase your pleasure are extra good tobacco, perfectly matured; extra pure paper and extra skill in manufacture. Together they insure that pleasing aroma and straight tobacco taste that alone give you a clean, gratifying smoke.

* * * *

To give the greatest pleasure to the smoker is the incentive which guides this company in the selection, ageing and conditioning of the tobacco, and in the manufacturing processes that follow in the making of cigarettes.

"Wings of the Morning" in New Perfected Technicolor

Brought to the screen in all the life-like beauty of natural Technicolor, "Wings of the Morning", the first outdoor drama of a lovely fugitive fleeing from strife-torn Spain opened to three capacity audiences Saturday at the Belle Theatre. Annabella, a new and alluring sensation of the screen, is starred with Henry Fonda and Leslie Banks in the film, which produces the world famous tenor, John McCormack.

A thrilling mixture of drama, spectacle and scenics, the Twentieth Century Fox special achieves remarkable effects through its natural perfected technicolor, film clear and beautiful so perfect you'll think every scene is a painting.

The spectacular changing of the desert into Buckingham Palace, home of English kings; the most sensational Derby ever run with jockey Henry Fonda, riding the most brilliant race; John McCormack singing "Kerry Dance" singing the classic of the Cumberlands, with Sylvia Sidney and Cedric Hardwicke; and Henry Fonda heading a large and well-chosen cast.

The dramatic high note of the primitive mountain folk and their intense love for their native land, and expression, has its action entirely set in the lovely wooded hill country of Kentucky which has given Technicolor photography a magnificent opportunity to bring to the screen all the natural color, and beauty of the mountainous country.

The color photography, with actual sunlight, has entirely avoided flooding the production with gaudy, harsh colors, a fault which has found with many earlier attempts to bring color to the screen. In "The Wings of the Lonesome Pine," the color has the simplicity and the naturalness of the true outdoors; it is never too blatant, but rather always pleasant and understandable. Very often one even feels that the action is really taking place before his eyes, rather than on a screen!

Throughout most of the cast, from Miss Sidney, MacMurray and Fonda down to the smallest part, is magnificent, but special mention is deserved by the little four-year-old newcomer, "Sonny" McCormack, who captures the hearts of the audience by his portrayal of "Buddie."

"Follies Bergere"

Those fervid fans who can think of nothing nicer than Maurice of nocturnal Paris, will find the Folies Bergere playing as revival hit No. 3 on this grand double bill, where precisely that miracle awaits them.

For "Folies Bergere" Darryl F. Zanuck's lavish 20th Century musical extravaganza, for release through United Artists, offers the inimitable Frenchman in his first dual role.

Jack Chartier, the straw-hatted singing star of the Folies Bergere revue, whose favorite indoor sport is battling with his haughty jealous little dancing partner-sweetheart, Mimi, Chevalier is the charming chap we all know. But as the suave, mustached, concealed Baron Casimir, who juggles in bank's funds and is forced to make a secret flight to London to try to raise a loan to cover his deficit, we have an entirely new and interesting characterization which proves that Maurice is an actor as well as an entertainer.

The fun begins when Chartier, whose clever impersonation of the Baron nightly thrills Folies Bergere audiences, is called to the bedside for the flown Baron in life as well.

The Baron's beautiful but neglected wife finds the attention not altogether disagreeable and hilarious happenings ensue. A climax is reached when the baron returns unexpectedly and, in the midst of his wife's flirtation, tests her by turning the tables and pretending to be Chartier. Now follows a little comedy of errors reaches an unexpected end delightfully Parisian denouement.

Coming Wednesday

The magnificent story that changed a million readers lives, now triumphantly lights the screen to make the whole world wake up and love. "Green Light" comes to the Capitol starting Wednesday with Errol Flynn and Anita Louise.

TWEED CAPTURES COUNTY LEAGUE

Madoc, March 22 (Special)—Tweed, the fourth place team in the regular schedule, emerged victorious in the semi-finals Playoff to the league championship by defeating the Belleville Sailors in the third game of the series at the Madoc arena on Saturday night, each team previously having won a game, Despite the mild weather the ice was fairly good and the play was quite fast. Both teams seemed evenly matched for speed, but the winners displayed much better combination and more finish around the net, and as a result the better team won on the night's play. During the regular season the losers led the league with 24 games finished and a poor fourth. However, the winners have just rounded into form and knocked off two good teams, Madoc and Belleville.

Belleville seemed to be lost with very little combination and most of their efforts consisted of individual rushes. Harvie was again their outstanding player and figured in the tallies, scoring one and assisting the other to Semark. The losers defence was weak at times and Tweed's third goal was directly attributed to their poor work. For the winners the second string turned in an exceptionally fine game, with Goal Tompson and Defence Man Gairns playing a steady game. Madoc and Belleville.

"All the conclusion of the concordat, the state could not know how the church would take interpret its provisions," said the newspaper, declaring that "the practical relations with the Holy See has not necessarily unfavorable and eternal values."

Papal Letter Read

The Holy Father's letter, read Sunday to astonished church-goers, brought into the open the Catholic Church conflict which the 1933 concordat, giving principally with the Catholic religious education rights, sought to pacify.

The Reich would be fully justified, said the newspaper, in invoking the Versailles Peace Treaty against a phrase of international law interpreted generously to mean an agreement which valid only so long as conditions at its establishment remain the same.

Duration of Concordat

The Pope's letter on the concordat speaks of permanent regulation of relations, but from the standpoint of the church, it can never mean a period so long that it is changed into a permanent one, and the state and peace at home and abroad,' said the newspaper.

Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, leader of the Nazi party, commented, in the editor.

Catholic circles said the Papal communication dated March 14 from the Vatican, was equivalent to an encyclical because of its content and general appeal.

Fuehrer's Statement.

Pope Pius declared in his letter he signed the concordat "despite grave misgivings," and the state had to be in the best interests of the church and the German people.

"If its terms were not kept that is just the fault of the concordat; the other side made unfair interpretation of the concordat, evaded its provisions, slammed its doors and finally more or less openly violated its principles," said the Nazi leader.

Full rights to continue religious instruction of Roman Catholic youth were promised the church in the concordat, while civic education was delegated to the state which pledged uniform education laws.

What Would Have Happened to Germany

In return for the guarantee of Catholic religious rights, the state agreed to ban political pronouncements by Catholic clergymen and prohibited dissolution of the Catholic Centre Party.

The pastoral letter declared elections on abandonment of parochial schools in Germany were not fair because they were not secret, and reiterated, the church never would agree to schools in which religious teachers are not free and in which the spirit of teaching in other branches is anti-Christian.

"At the conclusion of the concordat, the state could not know how the church would take interpret its provisions," said the newspaper, declaring that "the practical relations with the Holy See has not necessarily unfavorable and eternal values."

Thirty-Five Goals in 5 Games Close N. H. L. Season; Teams Prepare for Playoff Dates

Canadiens Meet Detroit, Bruins Tackle Maroons, Leafs Take on Rangers

EXPERT GUESSING

Sweeny Schriner Leading Scorer Although Amerks Eliminated

By A. E. SULFORD

It's open season today in the upper section ruining sport of stealing the scalps of the National Hockey League and Stanley Cup play-offs. A final scoring salvo that produced 35 goals in five games boomed farewell to the regular season and left the ten-cent starts tomorrow night.

While sixteen matched contestants in an effort to find the answers, Chicago Black Hawks and New York Americans slipped from the scene quietly, Americans taking with them the league's leading scorer for the second successive year, left winger Sweeny Schriner.

Nothing that happened in the final batch of scheduled games will run the playoff set-up. Detroit Red Wings, last year's world champions, and Montreal Canadiens meet today and Boston Bruins and Montreal Maroons open the first of the home-and-home series tomorrow night at Detroit in the opening game of the three-of-five series for the league title.

At Montreal Boston Bruins and Montreal Maroons open the best-of-three series between second-place clubs and the third-place teams, Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers, also at Toronto.

Experts Can Only Guess

All three series are bound to be tightly played and picking winners is largely guesswork. But most of the experts who have come out with opinions favor Red Wings to take Canadiens and Toronto to clean up Rangers, possibly in two games.

There has been little unanimity about the Boston-Maroon series but the Montreal boys have gathered many adherents over the week-end. Tommy Gorman's men finished strong in beating Americans 6-4 at Montreal Saturday night and in taking Detroit 5-1 at Detroit.

That scoring splurge may make the Montreal-Boston battle more Art Ross' Bruins but whatever the result of the series it is more than likely to settle up the winning team for the scoring of the Rangers-Leafs tussles. Rangers did a fair job of scoring themselves in whipping Chicago 6-1 at Boston last night.

Detroit lost two games, dropping one to Toronto's Saturday night setback as well as to Maroons, but their prestige was lowered not at all by the setbacks. Jack Adams' crowd had nothing to lose and took no chances.

Canadiens Wins by Field

The defeat left Canadiens with only a one-point margin over Maroons in the standings.

Schriner took the point-scoring championship with a total of 22 assists in the American game at Montreal. Joe Lamb, Lynn Patrick and Nick Stewart scored the other New York goals, Stewart's tying him with Larry Aurie of Detroit for third scoring honors.

Amerks and Maroons tie 1-1 in the first period but Maroons went ahead 3-1 in the second and added five goals in the third period. Hall a dozen Maroons sharpened their scoring eyes—Bob Gracie and Lionel Conacher each scoring two and Gus Marker, Baldy Northcott, Russ Blinco and Dave Trottier getting the others.

Toronto tried hard to give Syd Apps chances to score in the game with Detroit but the best the sensational rookie could do was one assist. Toronto Red Wings, however, also scored in the first for Leafs and when Howard Mackie and Hec Kilrea crossed it in the third Harvey Jackson drove in the winner.

Herb Lewis scored Detroit's only goal against Maroons, Dave Trottier flattened his average with two for the Maroons and Marker, Baldy Northcott and Paul Runge drove the others past Detroit goalie. Detroit goalie who won the Vezina Trophy despite the fact 102 goals have been scored against him this season. It was the lowest total of any netminder in the league.

Bruins' win over Hawks was their first in Boston Garden. Charlie Sands and Ray Getliffe led the Boston scoring parade with two each and rookies Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart got the others, all before Pep Kelly scored for Chicago in the last minute of the game.

NORMAN SMITH IS BEST GOALIE

Montreal, Mar. 22 (CP)—Pudgy Norm Smith, the goalie few figured would last long in National Hockey League warfare, is the 1936-37 winner of the Georges Vezina Memorial Trophy, the league's highest award to a netminder.

Montreal Maroons handed Norm one of his worst setups of the season last night, shooting five goals past him. But the little guy with the red jacket got had only 102 goals in his cage all season. This was four less than Tiny Kerr of New York Rangers.

Smith took the cup with the highest goal total ever dobbled against a winning netminder. Previously the 101 goals allowed in the 1931-32 season by the late Chuck Gardiner was the record.

Both Smith and Kerr played right through the 48-game schedule, the former getting a 2.10 goals-against average of 2.10 a game against Kerr's 2.13.

Following are the winners since 1927-28, when the trophy was up for the first time, showing the number of games played by each netminder and the number of goals allowed:

DETROIT WINGS STANDOUT TEAM DURING SEASON

Had Everything For a Great Club And Given Expert Coaching

SCHRINER TOPS

Babe Siebert of Canadiens Leads Defencemen in Scoring

No matter how you juggle final National Hockey League statistics you can't beat Detroit from the others on the season's play—Detroit Red Wings. The champions proved on the record they have every-thing necessary for a great club, the result of expert coaching by smiling Jack Adams.

The big red team scored more goals than any other, but less scored against them, produced the league's leading line and top defencemen in the United States section. But they missed the big prize, the individual scoring crown, which went to New York Americans' Dave Schriner.

Schriner had the season with a rush to add six points in two games and become the second N.H.L. player to top the league two years in succession. Charlie Conacher of Toronto Maple Leafs was the idol in 1934 and 1935 before the slick-haired Amerks winger from Calgary took over the reins.

Playing most of the season twenty pounds overweight following an influenza attack, it looked at'though Schriner might not get back in the grade. But he returned to top form after the Americans had been knocked out of the playoffs and crossed the finish line with 46 points, one better than Conacher's 45 of 1935.

Apps' great showing added to his chances of collecting the prize rookie honors which Schriner won in his first year in the league and repeated in that department.

Schriner Called Great.

There's no brophy for leading scorer but Schriner's accomplishment sets him beside such greats as the late Howie Morenz of Montreal Canadiens, Percy Lalonde and Joe Malone, each of whom earned the scoring title on possession. Lalonde repeats for a third season, he will be in a class by himself.

Wings' ace front line of Marty Barry, Larry Aurie and Herb Lewis showed the way to all others, amassing a total of 119 points. Close behind with total of 122 goals, two more than Montreal Maroons' total. Their lowly rivals, Chicago Black Hawks could get but 73 goals, less than slipped by Alec Connell and Bill Beveridge, the Maroon netminders.

Burly Babe Siebert of Canadiens, with 28 points, led the league's defencemen. But Wings' had a close rival in Ebbie Goodfellow who finished the American section rearguarding men with 25, the same total hung up by Montreal veteran, Lionel Conacher.

The season finished with hockey's iron man, Murray Murdoch still scoreless. New York Rangers' wing-er, who has played more consecutive games than any player in the big-time, marked up 14 assists. He never came closer to scoring than he did last night. Will Drake robbed him as Rangers beat Canadiens 3-1.

North Battleford Beavers Touted by West as Squad To Fear in Senior Playdowns

The west blew trumpets today for North Battleford as the Beavers continued their march along the road leading to Canadian senior hockey finals. One victory away from western finals and three from the series for the Allan Cup, the Saskatchewan club continues to impress as it speeds along.

After knocking aside Regina Aces, winners of a provincial group, the Beavers drew a bye in the first stage of interprovincial playdowns. Saturday they swung back into competition and showed no ill effects from the lay-off as they defeated Edmonton Dominions 4-2 at Calgary, scene of next month's cup finals. Edmonton had eliminated British Columbia's winner, Nelson.

It's been no secret North Battleford has strength and the club's week-end display was just another step toward realization of the hopes of a good part of Saskatchewan fans are by no means beaten yet, of course. The series is on a best-of-three basis and Edmonton, only city besides Toronto with teams still in senior and junior playdowns, has been looking forward to a truthful showdown. The next rematches the entire west has been touting Beavers all winter.

Winners Meets Fort William.

Cam Burke, clever wingman scored the winning goal for Saturday's winners. Dave Dunlop added the other counter and Jerry Brown and Bob Kaslyn the losers' lone marker. The next game will be continued tonight at Regina and the winner will meet the winner of Fort William in western finals.

The current week will see the entire scene change. Toronto, crowned a provincial title yesterday by defeating St. Kenora, moves into intermediate winner, 3-1 for a second successive victory. Tonight Toronto Goodyears and Dominions will clash in the fifth and deciding game of their best-of-five series and the victor will be sent against Sudbury Tigers later in the week.

Hull Volants and Moncton Maroons started western intermediate playoffs Saturday, Hull winning 3-2. Maroons tried a mass attack system and Goalie Ray Barlon had to be good as Volants swept away constantly to tear in on him unchecked. They'll play a second successive game Friday.

Jansen of Hull scored three times. The best-of-three round will continue at Ottawa tomorrow night.

If the Ottawa Rideau-Perth contest had not been postponed, three junior teams would have passed from the playdowns Saturday. St. Michael's College of Toronto put out Stratford and Winnipeg Monarchs set down Portage La Prairie. Rideau have a one-goal advantage in their total-goals record with Perth and, playing at home, will be favored to take the round tonight.

St. Mike Takes Stratford Series.

The five-game St. Mike's-Stratford series was a high-scoring affair. Saturday's count, 8-3, brought the total goals in the round to 30 and left little doubt about the kind of hockey the kids are being taught. A highly regarded defencoman, George MacNamara, just 16, highlighted play Saturday before a record that packed Maple Leaf Gardens. He scored three goals for the winners.

St. Mike's will tackle Copper Cliff in the junior country tonight in the next stage of playdowns. Indications were Copper Cliff would be without one of its best in Dude Irwin, bright and Defencoman Johnny Hooford is expected to play somewhere else. Both were injured in the Sudbury series.

Winnipeg and Portage La Prairie ended a classic series that was scheduled to go the limit. A record crowd was on hand when the third game was played at Portage La Prairie Friday night and the Winnipeg Monarchs set down their counters before Portage repeated. The Winnipeg team will meet St. Boniface Seals in Manitoba finals.

Saskatoon Wesleys, Saskatchewan's junior threat for Dominion honors, gave Edmonton Rangers tougher treatment than Dominions had from North Battleford. Rangers took a 4-0 beating on Saskatoon ice and will continue the best-of-three series at Edmonton tonight. Sid Abel scored all Wesleys' goals.

PHYLLIS BURROWS TRENTON IS HERO OF CAGE CONTEST

Scores 23 of Her Team's 29 Points But Not Enough to Win

PETES LOSE

Stamford and Niagara Falls Winners of Other Tilts

Toronto, March 22 (CP)—A trio of young basketeers, a boy and two girls, emerged from the annual Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association basketball championships today as the individual stars of as stiff a series of battles as the annual hoop meet ever witnessed.

The accurate shooting of tall Bill Harrell and Doris McLeod was largely instrumental in Stamford Collegiate of Niagara Falls annexing two titles in the four finals played here Saturday night. To Phyllis Burrows of Trenton went the heroine's role in defeat.

In the senior division, the Falls basketballers had little difficulty in registering victories. The boys' quintet, with Harrell scoring 14 points, turned back Owen Sound 48-18, scoring almost at will. The girls defeated Collingwood 28-12. Miss McLeod was Stamford's heavy scorer with 13 points.

The fireworks came in the junior division, with little Miss Burrows providing the spark. Midland edged out a 32-30 win over Trenton, but only by beating back a late Trenton rally that saw the eastern Ontario girls run in nine points in the game's closing minutes. Welland won over Peterborough 33-18 in the other junior final.

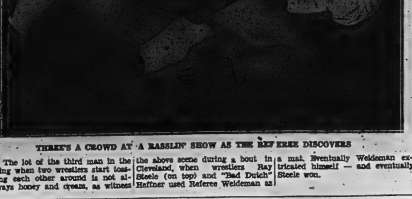
Scored 23 Points

The fast-stepping little Trenton forward scored 23 of her team's 29 points. Midland led 20-21 at the three-quarter mark of the speedy game and Miss Burrows ran in three quick baskets just before the final whistle in a vain effort to stave off defeat. For Midland, Betty Nicholls, with 16, was the leading point-getter.

A decided edge in the passing department and more accurate shooting gave Stamford boys their win over a plucky but less experienced Owen Sound squad. In amassing his point total, Harrell was ably assisted by Frost and Steve Robinson. They scored 11 and 13 points, respectively.

Collingwood's hard-fighting girls made little headway against the senior Stamford basketballers. Like the boys, the Niagara Falls team showed more accuracy around the basket on close-in shots and frequently baffled the Collingwood schools girls with their swift passes. Miss McLeod led Stamford in its victory registering 13 points.

In the junior boys' final, Peterborough and Welland battled on even terms for most of the game until the third quarter. With four personal fouls against him, Sedgewick, Peterborough guard, was taken from the game. After that, the Welland juniors rallied in baskets almost at will.



HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

Dave Schriner of New York Americans held his second successive National Hockey League scoring crown today, victor by a point over Syl Apps, Toronto's pint rookie. Schriner, with a great last-week rush, finished with 48 points, picking up 8 goal and two assists against Montreal Canadiens Saturday night. Bob Gracie sped five points during the week-end to gain last-place in the final "big seven" of the season.

At present Fred Perry is on an exhibition tour as a professional with Ellsworth Vines.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

MARKET COMMENT

The announcement from New York that International Paper, the leader in the paper industry, had set the price of newsprint for the first six months of 1938 at $50 a ton, came as a pleasant surprise to the industry as well as the many thousands of Canadian shareholders in the paper companies. The setting of a $50 price for newsprint is significant for several reasons.

It is interesting to note that International's announcement only calls for the $50 price for the first six months of next year, appearing to indicate that the newsprint companies are not committing themselves too far ahead, as well as the possibility of further advances in newsprint prices should the demand for the commodity continue unabated. Another very constructive point is that some foreign markets are already bidding higher than $50 a ton for newsprint.

Noranda's Ore Reserves Sufficient for Seventeen Years

Oliver Hall, assistant General Manager of Noranda Mines Limited stated in his paper on "Mining at Noranda" that two million tons of ore are mined annually which gives an average of 6,500 tons a day. Providing costs do not advance materially, the mine has ample ore reserves for seventeen years. Turning to the annual report it is indicated that the value of ore reserves is in the vicinity of $460,000,000, or expressed in another way, the net value is approximately $140 a share.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Mar. 22 (CP)—Scattered buying added narrow gains to the paper and some of the miscellaneous issues of the industrial section of Toronto Exchange today but the general tone was moderately heavy. Weakness of the New York Board influenced the interlisted group and they bounded more losses than gains.

The Great Lakes Paper stocks firmed 2 points or more each and Abitibi Preferred at 56 had a gain of two points. International Nickel was conspicuous on the losing side and fractional losses were showing this afternoon for Consolidated Smelters, Distillers-Seagrams, Walkers Common, Ford "A", Brazilian, C.P.R. and Fanny Farmer, Trading was light.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, March. 22 (CP)—Aside from gains in the oils and in a few of the golds including O'Brien, Teck Hughes, Hollinger and Jellicoe, the mining list of Toronto Exchange was inclined to sag today. Lower prices were showing this afternoon for the base metals including Pend Oreille, Falconbridge, Sherritt, Jack Wells and Hudson Bay and a majority of the golds sold down.

Heavy early selling of Red Lake Gold Shore depressed the price to 73 and only partial recovery was recorded. Darkwater, Macassa, Pickle Crow, Pamour, Hard Rock and East Malartic were lower.

WALL STREET

New York, March 22—(AP)—The stock market was again in retreat today many issues losing 1 to 4 points in the worst.

The encouraging feature of the performance, from the standpoint of trader, was that dealings turned unusually slow after a fast opening. Extreme losses were substantially reduced near the fourth hour.

The large pipe line group, Dominion Stores and Dome Mines were fractional laggard, while Distillers-Corp. Seagrams and Hiram Walker sagged. Canadian Pacific was fairly steady. Dominion Government issues lifted slightly, Canadian dollars held unchanged at 100.59 3-8 cents on the curb. Lake Shore mines moved a little higher in quiet trading.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

MONTREAL, March 22 — Butter receipts for the market were slightly stronger at the week-end. Receipts of both commodities were less than in the corresponding week last year, and demand was good. Other prices were steady with Friday's levels. Receipts for the week, with comparisons, were quoted at the Board of Trade as follows:

Cases	Boxes	Boxes
	Eggs	Butter Cheese
Last week 7,624	3,966	451
Week ago 7,409	5,106	461
Year ago 6,761	4,761	54

Sales on the Canadian Commodity Exchange on Saturday were: 145 boxes of Quebec buyer's in specials, 92 cents, and the market was quoted at the close at 92c to 93c bid. On the open market most dealers were asking 26 1-4c for No. 1 in cartons or l.c.l. lots. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by jobbers firm at 27c for solids and 27 1-2c for prints.

On the egg market graded shipments in cartons or l.c.l. lots were quoted 21 1-2c for A-large, 20 1-2c for A-medium, and 19 1-2c for A-pullets.

DROVE CAR INTO BACK OF BUS

Vehicle Badly Wrecked And Only Recently Purchased

Youthful hopes for a pleasant summer, and a youth's new car were wrecked simultaneously Saturday night, when a Chrysler coupe driven and driven by Harold Stark, twenty year old youth of Bloomfield, crashed into the rear end of a passenger bus operating between Picton and Trenton, two miles west of Wellington on the Trenton-Picton highway.

The bus which had stopped on the right hand side of the road to pick up James Dalrand, a passenger, had all its lights, including those in the interior, burning. According to a statement given by Stark to County Constable James Lovelace, who investigated the accident, he did not see the bus until near it. So sudden application of the brakes caused the car to skid on the slippery highway, and crash into the rear end of the stationary bus. The motor of the car was badly wrecked, while the heavy frame of the other vehicle was slightly damaged. Neither Stark nor a young lady passenger riding with him in the car was injured. The car had been purchased that afternoon, Stark stated, and was making its first trip, when the accident occurred.

No charges would be laid, Constable Lovelace stated at the end of his investigation, the affair being one of a purely accidental nature. The bus and five passengers were delayed over an hour.

PAIR CHARGED WITH COAL THEFT

Remanded For Trial After Pair Are Viewed at County Jail

Escorted from the Hastings County Jail where they are being held pending sentence for shop-lifting charges in Trenton, Arthur Barnet and Jean Ross, who gave Toronto as their home address, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today charged with the theft of a fur coat from Delaney's fur store in Belleville during the month of January 1936. Both cases were remanded for trial to be held on Tuesday next.

The charges pending were laid after Mr. Gordon Delaney had accompanied local police to Toronto recently and subsequently was permitted to visit the county jail and interview the parties being held on the Trenton charges. The fur coat charges were laid after Mr. Delaney completed his jail interview.

Bernard Boomhower, Belleville appeared before His Worship Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., today charged with the theft of two automobile car batteries. The accused was not asked to plead, Chief Kidd asking for a remand in the matter until Saturday, which was granted.

Two citizens, who had imbibed too freely, but not wisely over the week end admitted their erring ways and were given ten days in which to raise the necessary fine imposed.

POLICE BLOTTER

Reports and complaints regarding the theft of virgin timber, from the property of the Sir Pierce Lumber Company in Lake Township, were investigated by Provincial Constable E. Smith over the week-end. The officers in charge ascertained the identity of those alleged to be responsible for the taking of some 150 large pine trees which have been felled and were being removed from the bush. The parties apprehended claimed certain rights to remove the timber. Constable Smith is now making his report to Inspector Gardner today suggested that due to certain complications in the matter of possible prosecution should be laid, the hands of the Pierce Lumber Company, owing to alleged altercations having arisen between the parties concerned.

Donald Boyle, 183 Dundas street east reported the theft of his bicycle to the local police authorities on Saturday night. House tomorrow," asked Hon. David Croll.

Up To Leader To Decide

"I'll leave it to my own leader to decide that," said Mr. Hepburn.

"You don't report anything to the House unless the Prime Minister says so. You don't dare."

Numerous bills were put through various stages as the House held the first morning sitting of the session. Public bills numbering ten met simultaneously with the legislature. There will be morning sittings tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday in an effort to be finished by Good Friday.

The bill carried without division.

Third reading was given to an act to encourage the mining of coal. The measure will place a bounty of $1.08 a ton on Nova Scotia coal.

Would Have Measure Wait.

Mr. Heighington valley suggested the measure stand until the committee on privileges and elections has reported on its inquiry into charges against Dr. A. Roberts, Sault Ste. Marie member.

Dr. Roberts has been accused of "blackmail" of the Algoma Steel Corporation, as the price of his support of the bill.

The House passed third reading of a bill to exempt from municipal taxation improvements made to houses under the Dominion Housing Plan.

Hon. David Croll, Minister of Municipal Affairs, said the department would send a letter to assessors suggesting other improvements be exempted as well.

George Henry, Conservative House Leader, said such a letter would be to invite assessors to violate their oaths.

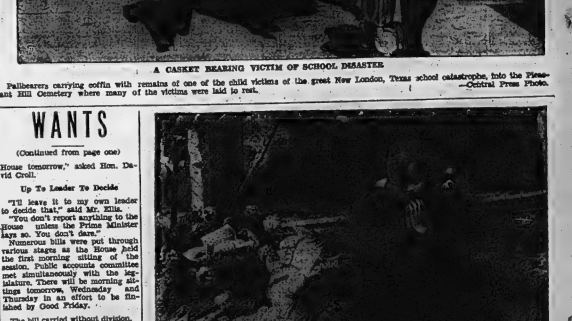
Opposed to Letter.

Premier Hepburn and Mr. Croll talked it over and the Premier said he agreed with Mr. Henry such a letter would be entirely irregular.

"No such letter will be sent out," he said.

Unanimous approval was given in committee of the House a bill to regulate the sale of codeine. Premier Hepburn the drug are to be re-criptions for the drug are to be re-quired. The measure would also apply to compounds of codeine. Other drugs to which new regulations will apply are amidopyrine and barbituric acid, their compounds and derivitives.

A government-bill "to avoid unnecessary duplication and suitable competition between local telephone systems" went through the committee without argument.



The bill would provide the permission of the Ontario Municipal Board for one company to erect lines adjacent to or parallel to those of another company.

Report of the Amusements Tax Act was approved by committee.

Premier Hepburn piloted an Federal Income Tax Benefit Act is being increased in 1938. Reduction in federal relief subsidies is that year caused him, Premier Hepburn, to look about for more revenues and the amusement tax was increased.

The act will become effective when proclaimed. In his budget address the premier said the tax would be abolished June 1.

—Whether the Islands' force which blasted 465 pupils and teachers to terrible death was put piped without permission brewed a heated controversy today.

In this rich East Texas oil region, dotted with hundreds of little fresh-of added graves, a military court of inquiry summoned board members of the ill-fated consolidated school, one of whom stormed feelingly "we are not stealing any gas."

On the records was the assertion of an oil company foreman that the gas used in heating the school was "sweet gas" without danger of explosion. But in his budget address the premier said the tax would be abolished June 1.

In the background was the theory of competitive experts that radiators without proper vents caused accumulated gas which let go last Thursday in the nation's worst school disaster.

Jim Foreman D. L. Clark of the Parade Gasoline Company, gave the impression in an interview that at New Orleans official knew of the gas accumulation condition. He said Joe Clover, superintendent of the company, five years ago, asked the school board to install vents in the roof. It has been stirred of certain gasoline contains before being sent here, and Clover said without a warning odor, through the line to the school was not commended.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Mary Had a Little Lamb

By JANE OSBORN

It was the summer after Mary Lasher's sophomore year in the State university that she met Bob Lamb at a country house-party. Bob Lamb had just finished his junior year at a smaller college. He was perfectly clear from the end of the first day at the hospitable old farm house that Mary liked Bob and that Bob was keen about Mary. But Bob thought he had no right to speak about marriage—he had a year more at college and it would be still another year—whatever work he took up—before he could think of supporting a wife. But he did not hesitate to tell Mary of his feelings for her. For the time all he hoped of her was that she would permit him to be somewhere near her. . . . The idea, then that Bob should transfer himself from the smaller college and enter the senior class of the university she attended.

So when Mary went back to college it was noised about that she had brought a "fever catcher" with her. The girls in her fraternity house laughed at her and with her. Then one of them sitting at the piano began softly playing the strains of "Mary had a little Lamb."

The girls took up the words and Mary sat there blushing.

"But Bob's fleece isn't as white as snow," protested Mary weakly. "He has black hair."

"But he did follow you to school one day—you'll have to admit that," laughed one of the girls, and they went on singing their song.

Bob Lamb had been transferred from the fraternity to his own college to the chapter in the university where it was known to the members that they had a girl to thank for transfer.

"Miss girl—Mary Lasier—a junior—Gamma Sigma," informed one of the men. "Some one ought to drop a word of thanks to Mary—she did is a good turn."

One of the men who had listened to the serenade began softly to whistle the notes of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Some one with a bass voice began croaking the words. A tenor took it up. Two others joined in and the impromptu quartette stood up with mock solemnity and chanted the song.

No one meant to give offense but everything Bob Lamb's appeared with Mary—at college dances, at concerts or just strolling around the campus—there was always some one nearby to whistle or whistle the annoying tune. All Bob desired was just to be somewhere with Mary. Yet the less he desired it the more they saw less and less of each other than they had hoped would be possible by both attending the same college.

So after the end of Mary's junior year and Bob Lamb's senior year they felt that they had seen far too little of one another. Bob was going to New York to go into business with his uncle and Mary would be back at college for her last year—a thousand miles from New York.

Bob heard of a college camp somewhere in the next state. There was a tent colony for the men and another for the women. A camp where serious-minded students went to study astronomy under the direction of a number of renowned astronomers. Neither Bob nor Mary had ever felt more than a passing interest in the study of the stars, but at least there would be opportunity to see each other at lectures and on observation excursions. They could sit together in the evening on mountain tops gazing at the stars. True, there would be the other students and the learned professors, but there would be no one to tease them. They needn't let anyone know that they had ever met before. It was Mary's idea that their names must not go with them. Some one might think of the stupid song about Mary and her little lamb. It would be simple enough in Mary's case. She could easily use her middle name, Ella. . . . It took some maneuvering on Bob's part. Finally he took an old friend, Bill Hall, into his confidence and arranged to use his college certificate for enrollment.

For the first few days of the session at the summer camp everything went beautifully. Then it became apparent that Bob—now Bill Hall—and Mary—not Ella contrived to sit next to each other on all occasions. One evening when the clan of campers were starting off up the mountain side some one in the party began to hum the tune of the nursery song that had become so odious to Mary. It seemed as if everyone took up the air—whistling or warbling as they went. Then some one began singing the words. "Ella had a little Lamb, his fleece was black as coal—

And everywhere that Ella went the Ball was sure to roll."

"Let's pretend we don't know they mean us," whispered Mary.

"That won't work," said Bob Lamb—rather Bill Hall. "Let's pretend to like it."

So they made it out—wherever they were seen together some one was pretty sure to take up the notes of the old song. And at the end Bob got a letter from his uncle—offering him a little more than he had expected by way of a beginner's salary. On the strength of this Bob asked Mary to marry him as soon as they left summer camp. Mary, in spite of a third year at college, was willing.

"Don't let's have a church wedding," she suggested. "The organist would be sure to play that hateful tune instead of the wedding march."

TARZAN'S QUEST (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Gupingo, the witch-doctor, whispered to Udalo and the chief called down: "Tarzan is not here. If you don't believe me, your warriors may come in and see." Mbiviro did not believe him. Had not Tarzan's friend Mkima led them urgently to this village.

Mbiviro thought to gain more information by questioning the chief intimately; so when Udalo made the sign of peace he led his band forward. Udalo trembled at close sight of these stalwart Waziri, but Gupingo said slyly; "My magic will overcome them!"

As they entered the village street, the Waziri were surrounded by fighting men and conducted to the chief's hut. There began one of those long palavers so dear to the hearts of African natives. But Udalo continued to deny knowledge of Tarzan's whereabouts.

Meanwhile, Gupingo busied himself in his hut, secretly boiling strange herbs. Finally he poured the potent brew into a small gourd and made his way stealthily toward the woman who was preparing native beer to be served the visitors at the feast.

"What is it?" he asked urgently. "Have they . . . is there?" His voice died away as Bruce reeled back against the wall.

Matthew tightened his grip. "Pull yourself together, man," He spoke in a hoarse undertone. "Think of the others . . . Here — stay where you are — I'll tell them something . . . anything . . ."

He went back to the drawing-room, closing the door behind him. "No news yet," he said, with forced calmness. "They'll ring us again as soon as there's anything to tell. It's light enough now for a proper organized search."

He almost broke down as he looked at Heather. She was holding Effie in her arms, and the tragic faces of both girls were turned to him in terror. He went on with a valiant effort:

"It'll soon be broad daylight, and then there'll be news — you'll see — we shall have news soon . . . Logan and I are going to help — you don't know as soon as we know anything ourselves." His strained face twisted into the semblance of a smile. "You get dressed, Miss Effie," he said, encouragingly. "Not that that nightgown isn't vastly becoming—"

He stopped speaking, and there was a profound silence before Matthew turned to John. "Stay with them," he said abruptly, and was gone.

Five minutes later, he and Bruce had left the house, two white-faced men, driving through the pearly dawn, on a mission which both of them knew to be hopeless.

It was Matthew who spoke first. "It's that — all they told you?"

Bruce nodded. "They said . . . . floating wreckage . . . and a coat . . . a boy's . . . striped blazer . . . Bobby's, I suppose—" His voice broke. He's, I suppose—" His voice broke. He's, I suppose—" His voice broke. He

TRUCE IN CHURCH WAR CALLED IN GERMANY

Decree Leaves Affairs In Evangelical Church As They were Feb. 15th

First Result of Encyclical Issued by Pope Pius Eleventh Seen

NO RECENT CHANGES

Kerri Says 'State Wishes to Ensure Freedom of Faith'

Berlin, March 23.—(CP)—Hans Kerri, Reichsminister for Church Affairs, called a truce today in the conflict between the Government and rebellious Protestants as the first result of the condemnatory encyclical of Pope Pius.

Apparently not wanting a fight on two fronts, Kerri issued a decree by which all affairs in the Evangelical church remain as they were February 15 when Chancellor Hitler ordered general synodical elections, Deaconess Dibelius announced.

Such church governments as existed at that time were strengthened as legal, under the decree, but no changes may be made in administrative setup until after the elections, and disciplinary measures are suspended.

Herr Troebe, Kerri's Press representative, said the order did this way: "By this decree executive authority in church matters passes from the state to those church governments which were actually in office February 15.

"The state thereby wishes to ensure freedom for this, considered and election. All measures undertaken since then are null and void."

Washington, Mar. 23 (AP)—The United States Customs Service decided today to let travellers bring a gallon of foreign liquor into the United States without telling border officials about it or paying duty on it.

Formerly, they had to make special affidavits guaranteeing that the gallon of spirits permitted under the $100 personal exemption was intended for sale or commercial purposes.

Sport gliding on air! The glider pilot does not care particularly for fine days. The settled conditions are best, because then there will be wind and clouds. Underneath these the ordinary-looking (cumulus) clouds will always be found rising currents of air, or wind blowing more or less upward in them. A rolling country is ideal, because where there are hills, wind will be found upward. The skilful glider knows how to pick out the upward currents and the best places to find the windward side of hills. He avoids those clouds that are closed to hill. In a straight wind the glider will (unfortunately lose elevation); he needs an upward current to soar or even to keep his elevation.

RIGID INSPECTION TEXAS SCHOOLS IS NOW EXPECTED

Another School Located Endangered by Escaping Gas

'AGREE AS TO CAUSE'

New London, Tex., March 23 — (AP)—Night shifts worked at every rural school in the vast east Texas oil field area was the order issued affirmatively today of the directors of the London Independent School District, expiration—caused, experts agreed, by accumulated gas.

School officials were shut as safety experts began a search for possible other schools around the field to close here.

Extreme caution pervaded the area especially after Gordon C. Hawley, chief engineer of the state's fire hazards department, told a military court of inquiry yesterday he had located another gas—filled school in the vicinity endangered by escaping gas.

Dr. E. F. Schoch, Texas university chemical and authority on explosions, said all signs pointed to an accumulation of gas under the Consolidated School by the cause of the London tragedy, worst of its kind in the nation.

Acorns for Coronation Day Supplied to Ontario Schools

'Men of The Trees' Society Have 10,000 Shipped

FROM NEW FOREST

Toronto, Mar. 23 (CP)—Born from a Toronadian's enthusiasm for the work accomplished by the organization in England, the Canadian branch of the "Men of the Trees" will foster the planting of trees and seedlings throughout the Dominion to create memorials coronation day.

The organization came into existence here about two years ago with the aim of "promoting, protecting and taking care of trees". The Canadian branch was organized by E. E. Robson, president of the Canadian branch. The idea of forming the organization which now has 500 members, came after he attended a meeting in London of the "Men of the Trees".

From New Forest.

The body has had 10,000 acorns shipped to Canada from the New Forest, England, to be planted May 12, coronation day. In addition to the acorns, 5,000 seedlings will also be brought to Canada in the immediate future.

These acorns and seedlings will be distributed free to schools throughout Canada, London, Ont., being made by inspectors. A. G. L. Barnes, executive member of the committees in charge of the coronation celebrations for the acorns have been received from points as far apart as British Columbia and Nova Scotia.

Richard S. Barbe Baker.

Richard S. Barbe Baker, forester in the Imperial Forest Service, London, England, is the organization which had its start from a similar body which Baker launched in Kenya Colony on the east coast of Africa.

Baker was appalled while in Africa by the woeful destruction of forests in the British Empire and the large areas in the forests. After planting on the cleared spots, the natives would move on to new fields when the ground was no longer of use to them.

Object in Baker's African scheme was to have the natives protect the forests. They were given little discs to wear, bearing the words of the Tree" marked on them.

LITTLE ILL-EFFECTS

Lad Offers Names of Two Youths He Says Attacked Him

Hamilton, March 23.—(CP)—Pushed and jolted almost a mile over rough country roads and then hurled over a debris-strewn hill with his feet tightly together, 12-year-old Robert Stewart of Bartonville, crawled several hundred yards to his home early today.

The boy, found about 100 yards from the Valley Road intersection to scarpers by whistling. He had been lying on the road for seven or eight hours, but was none the worse for his experience except for a slight shock. He refrain from crying.

Story Reconstructed

Provincial Constable Don Sherville was at loss to account for the attack on the boy. Reconstruction events from the lad's story, M. Sgears he was on his way home from St. John's school after remaining late for practice and about a mile from his home when the attack occurred.

The boy said he was set upon by two lads of about 15 or 16 years of age. The boys arrived at him from a hiding place along the road and with the statement "We got you now," compelled Hubert to walk before them to an abandoned farm house.

Here they yanked off the lad's rubbers and found his feet bound, then pushing him over a hill some 80 feet in height with a gradual slope.

Remarkable Escape

The assailants then departed, according to the lad, and he apparently was stunned by his experience, making no move to get himself off the hill. He then recovered hill until they had been gone some time.

Italian Defeat in Spain Called 'Adowa' of Saragossa Road

London, Mar. 23 (CP)—Premier Mussolini today is making the international agreement to ban volunteers for Spain.

The British government has learned from the Italian government, it is announced today, that the alleged landing of Italian volunteers at Cadiz March 8 and the sending of medical material with a volunteer staff of doctors and helpers was false.

One press report has put the landing of Italian volunteers March 5 as high as 10,000.

Other inquiries, it is stated in British circles, will be made into the Italian statement. Otherwise British officials decline comment.

Britain Press Investigation.

Great Britain pressed an independent investigation today into reported Italian aid to Spanish insurgents in direct violation of the ban against intervention in the civil war.

The continued reports that Italian troops have landed in great numbers in Spain since the control agreement into effect Saturday, were investigated separately by the British in an effort to avoid clogging the agenda of the non-intervention committee. The group, of which Count Von Welczeck is expected return yesterday from a visit to Libya was scheduled with the insurgent drive northeast of Madrid.

The defenders of Madrid have charged that captured insurgents disclosed the backbone of the drive against the Spanish capital was the Guadalajara front was three divisions of Italians.

(Officials in Rome scouted the idea of any special significance to Il Duce's return.)

The French sources expressed the belief that Britain might now decide whether to withdraw support from the international Patrol or to go to his aid more directly. The Admiralty denied aid.

NO SYRUP OFFERED FOR SALE TODAY

Syrup purchasers in the city market this morning were doomed to disappointment when not a drop of the spring delicacy put in an appearance. As a matter of fact the market was shorn of anything which resembled a vendor of produce.

The cold weather and frosts of the past few days has been detrimental to the running of sap, a farmer further stated today. "As soon as the frost sets in we always get a heavy run", he said. "Frost makes sap, and what we have had lately seems cold for there are few days have six hundred trees and so far have produced nine gallons of syrup. The sap did not run at all yesterday nor will it today, but look out when the thaw comes." He prophesied that the price will come down to $2.50 per gallon as soon as syrup in any quantity appears for sale.

CATERPILLAR SEEN AS SIGN OF SPRING

Ho-hum, plenty of signs of spring all around us but balmy weather is still far away. However that does not apparently daunt the little harbingers which from time to time put in an appearance. Here in Belleville we have had noted the "measuring" woodworks, all sorts of spring flower shoots, and even a partridge, but it remained for a Lindsay resident to go to the head of the Spring early-arrival class.

Walking down a street in the home town, the Spring harbinger looker-upper, saw something brown and black crawling over the snow. Closer examination revealed it to be a caterpillar, thinking it up he brought it triumphantly to the local newspaper office, and announced that Spring was here at last.

80 TANNERY MEN RETURN TO JOBS

Strike Picture in Ontario is Spotty To-day

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario's striking picture was spotty today with 80 Owen Sound tannery workers returning to their jobs and in Oshawa a fresh disturbance following the shut-down of the Coulter Manufacturing Company plant. In the foreground also remained uncertain the Industrial Union drive as organizers for John L. Lewis, chairman of the industrial organization sought to line up 3,000 textile workers in Toronto.

Textile Workers

Labor leaders found great significance in the announcement of Alec Welch, organizer of the United Textile Workers of America, he would open a campaign to organize Toronto textile workers in industrial unions. This followed disclosure a similar drive was underway among steel and metal workers in Toronto and spells the first major offensive of the C.I.O. in Toronto. Their demands for collective bargaining along with wage demands precipitated the widespread automotive strikes in the United States.

Our bright spot was the decision of 80 McCaw Tanning Company, Owen Sound, employees on strike since Saturday, to return to their benches with 10 per cent pay increases and time and a quarter for overtime assured. The company represented no compromise with President K. W. McCaw.

Fever in Mar. Given

At Welland trouble threatened again as 3,000 employees of Empire Cotton Mills, Limited, balloted on giving a shop committee of union and non-union workers power to bargain for all workers. Ontario Government mediators meanwhile tried to iron out grievances over alleged violation of terms that were to have ended the textile strike six weeks ago.

Forty-six employees were out at the Brinton Carpet Company, Peterborough, demanding reinstation of a 25 per cent. wage cut, while 300 tobacco workers at Kingsville pressed their demands for more money from Consolidated Tobacco Company. Official avowed police protection to any who wanted to work, declaring interference would be dealt with "to the full extent of the law."

Berlin-Belleville Phone Conversation Is Clearly Heard

"I could hear my wife speaking as plainly as though she were in Toronto", Mr. Gerald Jenkins, proprietor of the Jenkins Studio said yesterday in reference to a telephone conversation which he had with Mrs. Jenkins who is staying at present in Berlin, Germany. Mr. Jenkins spoke for three minutes with Mrs. Jenkins, and heard every word plainly. He said:

"It was perfect," he said, "and in the exception of a slight interference at the beginning of the conversation, which quickly eliminated, one could not wish for anything better."

In telling had about the conversation is that Mr. Jenkins' voice was carried over cables to the German capital while that of Mrs. Jenkins' voice was sent by different way. When Mr. Jenkins' voice spoke into the transmitter here in Belleville it was sent direct to Montreal and Drummondville, Quebec, by land wires and from there via airwaves transferred it to Berlin, England. From there it went to London by landline, thence to Paris by submarine cable and from there by landline direct to the waiting ear of Mrs. Jenkins in Berlin.

Replying to Mr. Jenkins, the voice from Berlin was transmitted to London via the same route and from there to Rugby, England, by land wire. Here Mrs. Jenkins' voice took the same route as that of Mr. Yamachichi, Que., and from there transmitted by land wire to Montreal, Belleville and the ear of Mr. Jenkins.

POLICE BLOTTER

Gaining entrance by means of breaking a window, unknown thieves were interrupted in their efforts to rob the Belleville Fruit Machinery Company building by P. C. Taylor late last night, but escaped under the cover of darkness.

While patrolling his beat last night P. C. Taylor found a north window leading into the Fruit Machinery Company broken open. The officer immediately went into the building through the open window and after finding a north door also opened, apparently from the inside, notified Mr. H. R. Foley, manager of the company, who immediately came to the scene of the trouble and after a thorough examination of the building, stated he was of the opinion nothing had been disturbed.

Undoubtedly the would-be robbers were searching for brass fittings that are stored in that part of the building. The arrival of P. C. Taylor while patrolling his beat, is believed to have resulted in the culprits being frightened off.

James Keegan, Belleville, who was arrested in Toronto on Sunday on a warrant charging him with the theft of 400 pounds of lead in Belleville, appeared before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace, today on charges of theft. Keegan was remanded in custody until March 30th, bail being denied.

Jack Ireland, 128 Pinnacle Street, reported the loss of a bicycle to the local police last night. The wheel was stolen from its parking place outside of the Belleville Collegiate and had not been recovered at noon today.

Two dogs of local business houses were found insecure last night following which the proprietors were notified and upon subsequent examination nothing was found to have been disturbed on the inside. The transients slumbered undisturbed at the police station last night.

Parallel Parking Approved And By-law Ordered After Plan Adopted by Council

Some Spaces Lost But Street Will Have 10 Feet More For Traffic

RELIEF COSTS DOWN

Coronation Committee Named to Arrange Celebration

By an almost unanimous opinion the City Council at their regular meeting on Monday evening in the Council Chamber approved of parallel parking instead of the angular parking now in effect in this city and gave permission to the City Solicitor to draft a by-law covering the action, so that it can be approved immediately and the system changed before the heavy traffic of the summer sets in. Other than approving this change the business of the council was transacted in a short space of time and the only discussion developed on the gates that was to be paid for bread for relief recipients.

Plan Brought In

Alderman Clapp, chairman of Public Works in spite of the fact that a special committee had been appointed and is still active on the question of parking and other kindred projects, brought in the recommendation to change the system from angular to parallel parking. He also produced a plan drawn by him showing what is involved in the parallel parking that, a loss of space of one foot, six inches would be shown in two cars, if parked angular or parallel but that ten feet in width would be saved in the parallel parking. Ald. Baragar approved of the system stating, that he had advocated this system for some time as the Front street was a dangerous thoroughfare with parking as now regulated.

Alderman Jennings:— As a member of the committee on parking we are not ready to make a report but I have seen the plan and if you give the committee until next meeting, it is more than likely, that a full report will be given and this scheme approved thereafter.

Alderman Lewis:—I think this matter should have been submitted to the committee before being introduced on the floor of the council."

Alderman Clapp:—I am not looking for any kowtails but I am concerned with the safety of the citizens."

Alderman Lewis:—I'm all fairness to the committee, I think this matter should have been submitted to them before any action is taken."

Parking Lots Not Ready

Alderman White:—I am going to move that this recommendation be approved."

Alderman Armstrong:— "I must compliment Ald. Clapp on his suggestion but the committee appointed and I think he should go on that committee and after study of the plan the committee can then bring in a report to the council for their consideration."

Alderman Jennings:— "The parking lots at the back of the stores are not ready to be used and if this recommendation goes through there will be no place to put the extra cars, that cannot be accommodated under this plan. I am sure we are not ready to report next meeting."

Alderman Baxter:— I think everyone is in favor of the plan and as a member of the parking committee I will guarantee there will be a report for the next meeting of the council."

Alderman Thompson:—"Let us get this thing straightened out tonight as the need for a change is very urgent."

The vote being taken, the council approved with the exception of Ald. Lewis, who argues, that instead of about ten cents per square foot under the parallel parking there will be 45 per cent., which is too great with the limited space there is for parking on Front Street.

Welfare Report

A report of the Welfare Department was received by the council, which shows a marked decrease in the cost of relief in February of this year in correspondence with the same month last year. The figures as given by Ald. Lewis and approved by the council are:—

Food, February 1936, $6,230.50; February 1937, $4,427.07; Fuel 1936, $2,275.85; 1937, $1,206.10; Clothing, 1936, $370.39; 1937, $647.38; Shelter, 1936, $744.10; 1937, $765.87; household necessities, 1936, $96.32; 1937, $53.32; medical, 1936, $406.25; 1937, $301.50; Total 1936, $11,336.36; 1937, $7,501.75.

Number of families: 1936, 409; 1937, 296.

Number of individual cases, 1936, 30; 1937, 44.

May Increase Scale

The recommendation to pay Mr. Babcock $100 for surveyor duties during the year was referred back to the committee, but Alderman Thompson had expressed the opinion, that Mr. Babcock had been out with the remainder of the employees of the city and had not received any increase since the time. "I think the price should be boosted at least $50," said Ald. Thompson and Alderman Harvey agreed with the suggestion and asked that the matter be referred back which was done.

Aldermen Barlow, Baragar and Jennings were appointed by Mayor Arnott to act as a Coronation Committee and that power be given them to confer with the various service clubs in the city and also church societies and other organizations with a view of attempting a celebration in honor of the event. George Blakey, representing the Telecraft Company asked for permission to submit prices for decoration for the occasion and was referred to the committee. The tenders of Bell Telephone and Bell Canada, and Paul Street, were withdrawn and they will not be sold unless the approval of the council is obtained in the matter. The council authorized the purchase of 200 caps for the firemen, the same to be blue and 3-8-ounce with a peak for $22.00 each, while the suit for the Fire Chief was given at $25 and the tender was accepted, it being the lowest submitted.

Report To Be Given

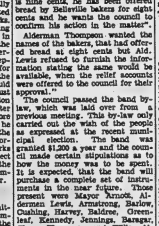
The meeting arose as to what action would be taken in the matter of purchasing material for the Coronation Decorations, and it was decided to have a report submitted by the committee, when Ald. Clapp was in favor of having the work done by hand this year in order to give some relief at the same time as a better job. Alderman Thompson stated that the matter had been purchased and paid for by the ratepayers, who enjoy the privilege and he thought it would be a good idea to find out just how much the Utilities Commission was going to charge for the water and if it was going to be cut down than had been previously paid, he was in favor of continuing with the sweeper. The Alderman also favored the Chairman of Public Works bringing in a report on the sweeper for the next meeting and in the meantime to hold back the recommendation of the City Engineer.

Cost to Complete Yard

The City Engineer also submitted a report on the cost of completing the city yard placing the amount required at $15,000. The matter was referred to the special committee for their action and report. Under the head of enquiries Alderman Greenleaf asked "When the sewer across Memorial Park was going to be filled in?" and Alderman Clapp stated, that in view of the intention to stone it up in the near future while Aldermen Wills and Armstrong explained that the ditch was left open for experimental purposes as regards the flooding in that area but fortunately this year no flood was expected. Alderman Baldree asked for a report on Mr. Palmerston but Mayor Arnott stated there is no report to make at the present time as the matter is in the hands of the City Solicitor."

A lengthy debate ensued, when Alderman Thompson enquired of the Chairman of Welfare, Alderman Lewis, "if the department intended to pay nine cents a loaf for bread to relief recipients as was set by the Bellerville bakers?" and Alderman Lewis stated his attitude was that if bread could be purchased at eight cents, that the bread would be purchased at that price. Alderman Lewis under the head of general business again brought up the question, explaining his standing in the matter stating that he was ready to accept the one cent raise in prices but when two cents was asked, he doubled it that constituted a moderate profit. Alderman Greenleaf asked if bread could be purchased cheaper in Belleville and Alderman Thompson stated that was correct but would not agree to the suggestion, that it was as good bread as was being sold in this city by Bellerille bakers. Alderman Barlow stated there was a big difference in bread and Alderman Lewis expressed the opinion that the two cent raise asked represented an increase of 20 per cent.

Ingredients Up



Alderman Thompson:—"Do you realize there has been a 50 per cent raise in the price of ingredients."

Alderman Baragar:—"I think we are treading on dangerous ground and that we should purchase Belleville bread."

Alderman Armstrong: — "Ald. Lewis states to this council, that although the price set by the bakers is nine cents, he has been offered bread by Belleville bakers for eight cents and he wants the council to confirm his action in the matter".

Alderman Thompson wanted the names of the bakers, that had offered bread at eight cents but Ald. Lewis refused to furnish the information stating the same would be available, when the relief accounts were offered to the council for their approval."

The council passed the band by-law, which was laid over from a previous meeting. This by-law only carried out the wish of the people expressed at the recent municipal election. The band was granted $1,200 a year and the council made certain stipulations as to how the money was to be spent. It is expected, that the band will purchase a complete set of instruments in the near future. The present were Mayor Arnott, Aldermen Lewis, Armstrong, Barlow, Challing, Harvey, Baldree, Greenleaf, Kennedy, Jennings, Baragar, Clapp, Thompson and Wills. Alderman Baldree was chairman of the committee of the whole.

SOLICITOR TELLS HOW BILL FARED

Report of His Appearance Before Private Bills Committee

A. B. Collins, K.C., submitted to Mayor Arnott and members of the council the action taken by the Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature in dealing with the question of appointing a City Manager for Belleville and the result of the members of the City Council. The letter is self explanatory and is herewith given:—

To His Worship the Mayor, and Aldermen of the City of Belleville.

Pursuant to the recommendation of your honorable body passed the 26th day of January, A.D., 1937, on receipt of notice that the bill was to be considered by the Private Bills Committee on the morning of the 19th inst. I went down to Toronto Monday afternoon and first contacted Mr. T. L. Carr, the Member for Northumberland, who very kindly sponsored your bill. A further conference was had with Mr. Carr on Tuesday morning, the 16th inst., before appearing before the Private Bills Committee.

When the bill was called Mr. Carr briefly but most capably introduced it, following which I was given the privilege of addressing the committee and submitted the pertinent facts leading up to the introduction of the bill including verbal and documentary evidence of the provisions which had been submitted to the electors and the result of the vote thereon.

Following the custom the committee then extended to anyone who might be opposed to the bill the privilege of addressing the committee; and Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., on behalf of himself and others opposed presented argument.

Following a general discussion by the members of the committee, from which it was quite apparent that Section 7 of the bill, whereby that dealing with City Managership would not likely survive, the chairman accorded to me the right to reply before the vote was taken. My reply was confined to an attempt to meet the objections which were emphasized by the Ontario Municipal Board, and the members recalled immediately opposed to the Managership clause.

In the vote which followed a motion that Section 4, namely, that providing for a reduction in the number in Council, be not stand, was carried by 12 to 8.

A similar motion respecting Section 7, namely, that providing for City Managership, was carried by 17 to 1.

Subject hereto the bill was reported for second reading, which I understand is by the private bills with a number of other private bills in the Legislature the same afternoon.

Dated this 16th day of March, A.D., 1937.

A. BERNARD COLLINS, K.C., City Solicitor.

Marmora and District

Marmora.—Preparations are going right ahead for the High School hockey team to go to London for the C.O.S.S.A. finals which will begin on Friday 26th. At this meet, the champions of the various sections of Ontario, Ottawa, North Bay, London and Marmora will be represented. Although Marmora's right to enter these finals was bitterly contested by the Oshawa Collegiate Institute, the latter's evident lack of deserving the league rules, namely in playing men who had not obtained an average of 50%, placed them out of the running. For this reason the protest which was filed and sent into the secretary of the league, Mr. Morfet of Tweed was granted. The boys are very thankful to those supporters, business men of Marmora and Deloro, who are generously contributing to their financial needs.

Miss Rose Auger left Thursday for Trenton where she will renew her position of last year at Pirhurst Manor.

THE TEXAS DISASTER

The holocaust of death which claimed nearly five hundred innocent lives in the destruction of the schoolhouse at New London, Texas, from an explosion, has called forth the sympathy of the civilized world. A sense of pity for the helpless, distracted parents, many who have searched in vain with their own torn hands among the wreckage of the once fine building is felt on all hands.

Rarely in a generation does so great a tragedy occur. Set in the glory of a bright afternoon, just a few moments before the children would have been free from classes in their modern schoolhouse, the calamity seems all the more horrible. It looked as if fate were preparing its worst for the most innocent of human beings, as the moment came when this building was to blow up, presumably from a collection of natural gas.

People the civilized world over sympathize with the bereft.

The source of the gas connection with the school is being thoroughly publicized.

All the while the grief-stricken parents mourn, refusing to be comforted. Everyone feels the touch of sorrow and the shock of this disaster in which scholars and teachers went to their death.

WHENCE FIRST MAN IN AMERICA?

A symposium on Early Man held recently at Philadelphia by the Academy of Science was really a symposium of the stone age; they made implements of flint and stone. What was he like, whence did he come and how did he reach America? asks the New York Times.

Some scientists say that it would not have been impossible for a man of his intelligence to have fashioned a skin boat to travel fifty miles across the Bering Strait. Those who say animals walked over the ice in the winter in order that there be food for the inhabitants are simply told that there was a solid mass of ice in the strait in winter-time, which would have made emigration easy.

The first adventurers seem to have come out of Asia. Dr. Antevs claims that the great ice mass in which most of North America was sheeted would have held back the boldest. It was about 20,000 years ago that the way was first open. Dr. Handlicka holds that it is not necessary to go back more than a quarter of that time. He claims that the men who made darts of flint, found near Folsom, N.M., were modern Indians. He says that the ice barrier that gripped this continent for thousands of years had first to melt, then to crack open and allow man to pass. He discards suggestion of voyages across the Pacific from the Polynesian islands as utterly out of question.

The New York Times points out that to the suggestion that the oldest inhabitant might have originated in America, anthropologists throw up their hands in protest. Admitting that evolution works in America as in Asia, they can find no ancestors for man for there were no large anthropoid apes, nor even a love or Peking Man or a Neanderthaler. Hence their final conclusion is that the original Americans originated somewhere else.

TREASURE IN THE SEA

Such phrases as "hidden treasure," "sunken gold," "Captain Kidd's gold," "treasure island," still have a glamour for the mind. Not only the boy who delights in dreams of voyages of discovery, but also the adult and the ordinarily sedate business man loves adventure of this kind. It is one of the primal motives of human nature.

Twenty-two years ago a treasure ship, freighted with a vast cargo of human life as well was sunk to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean by a German submarine—the Lusitania. In about three hundred feet of water the hulk lies, eleven miles off Old Head of Kinsale, Ireland. Bitterness of that loss is partially forgotten with the passage of years, the twenty-two years since that disaster, and now thoughts return to the gold which the ship carried in her hold to the bottom.

How much gold she carried down is unknown but is believed of have been in the neighborhood of fifteen millions of dollars. Divers have already stood on the hull of the ship.

Now there is going to be an effort to find the wealth it contained. The diver who finds it gets five per cent. An expedition will operate from the salvage ship Ophir. The men will carry their own air with them in containers of helium and oxygen. The iron plates of the ship are to be cut or blasted through.

The expedition may succeed in throwing light on the riches and the nature of the cargo which the Central Powers claim was mainly ammunition.

Though laughter is loosed upon by philosopher as the property of reason, the excess of it has always been considered the mark of folly.—Addison.

I . . . A ROSE

I grew in a kingdom where flowers bestowed
My homage as queen of them all;
My beauty was noted e'en in beauty's abode!
Perfumed with the scents that enthrall!
A robin awoke me, each dawn, with his kiss,
And the bees lay all day on my breast;
Nightingales, at twilight, would trill out sweet bliss
And bid me a happy night's rest.

One morn I was plucked from my body so fine,
And no one e'er knew how I bled .
I was placed with some distant relations of mine . . .
"Oh, what a grand bouquet!" They said:
"The bride should be proud of a bouquet so rare."

Then, they tied us with pink ribbon bows;
And someone exclaimed: "How wondrously fair
Is the coloring of this perfect rose!"

On the way to the church, I somehow, escaped
From the ribbons that chained us so tight;
And I fell on the street, and my face was all scraped,
And I sighed as my pride took its flight .
I lay there unnoticed an hour or so,
Till a wizened urchin came along;
She widened her eyes, and whispered so low;
"Dear God, has answered my prayer."

In a tumble-down shack, so humble and old,
She took me with trembling wee hands.
Laid me in a coffin on a woman so cold,
And sobbed: "Mamma, God understands".
That was yesterday. I know now sweet face
Is growing all ragged and wild .
I know I am dying, but I die in God's grace,
For I've fed the soul of a child.

FORTUNATO MANURE IS AN ITALIAN

whose fortune has been of the mixed variety. Twenty-one years ago he left his native Italy and settled in the United States. He raised a family of seven children, worked at odd jobs as a laborer, but found himself out of work in 1929 when prosperity went on a sit-down strike in the United States. Fortunato went back to Italy in 1931 and in 1935 was called up for military service by the Fascist government, given a free ocean voyage and set to work digging roads in Ethiopia. Recently Fortunato made his escape by boat, having been captured while fighting against the government in Spain. Asked what he was doing in Spain Fortunato replied, "Working for Mussolini." Beyond that, as reported by Time magazine, all he knew was that one morning he packed his kit in Ethiopia under the impression that he was to be sent back to Italy, found himself a few weeks later disembarking from an Italian transport at Cadiz, officially a volunteer of Spanish Foreign Legion. Last week Fortunato Manure was one of 200 Italians, ranging in rank from private up to lieutenant-Colonel who were captured by Madrid's defenders in five days of furious strife which threw the ranks of "Italian spearhead" thrusting at Madrid from the northeast on the Guadalajara front.

GENERAL ITALO BALBO, who led the fleet of Italian army planes from Italy to Chicago a few years ago, passing over Belleville, is now Governor-General of Libya, Italian colony in north Africa. Recently General Balbo has been entertaining his chief Mussolini, who with a great retinue of eminents, has been inspecting Libya, and making a gorgeous appearance mounted on a splendid white horse, surrounded by a brilliant retinue. Foreign correspondents describe Libya as little better than a sandpile, and have been able to find little more in Ethiopia than sand, salt, wild men and wilder women. Mussolini hurriedly left Libya being hastened on his way by a virulent sandstorm, according to press correspondents.

RUSSIA'S EPIDEMIC OF ATHEISM SEEMS TO BE SUBSIDING, according to late press reports from the Soviet Republic. One report said that the League of Militant Godless has fallen in membership from 5,000,000 to 2,000,000, and that Commissariat of Education had closed five big anti-religious museums, and that anti-religious propaganda among youth has been discontinued. Having tried living in a vacuum the Russians are apparently moving out into the more abundant life of faith and reason.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 23rd, 1917.

Mr. E. R. Fairis, Carleton St., has returned home after a trip to England. While in the Motherland, Mr. Harris saw his son, Gunner L. Harris, who left Belleville with the 59th Battery.

All the ice has been cleared from the sidewalks on both sides of Victoria Avenue Hill from Pinnacle Street up. The improved walking is appreciated, Pinnacle you.

The Front Street property known as the Coleman Block on Front Street has been purchased by Mr. D. V. Sinclair. This property has a frontage of 45 feet on Front Street and extends back to the river. It has been in the Coleman family for generations. We congratulate Mr. Sinclair upon having acquired another Belleville's most desirable business blocks, which also may be taken as an evidence of his confidence in the future of Belleville.

That Word 'That'

The Brantford Expositor warns up once more the old warning to cub reporters and others to dispense with the "very habit", it was the late Arthur Brisbane we believe who was always at war with that word. Its cause to the conclusion it should never be used, but there are occasions when the word can serve a fairly good purpose. The Expositor admits to occasionally using the word "very" beautiful or "very" interesting or "very" surprising. Another word which "very" is used upon is "splendid". A splendid concert, a splendid meeting or a splendid word. Splendid means brilliant or magnificent, and few events rank such rating.

One of the great offenders is the plain word "that," and the offence comes in using it in places where it is not needed. There has been a clipping on the desk here several days and the late Brantford article touches it into print. A man who has been riding on a railway train went over a spot where there was an accident shortly after. He is reported as telling that:

"We passed over the spot not half an hour before. There was nothing that showed that anything was wrong. The tracks looked all right, for they are regularly patrolled. It seems that in the short time in between that the water had cut the under the track."

Mr. Expositor the word "that" comes in five times, and could have been written more effectively without any of them at all. The second sentence is clumsy and could be improved by a number of ways. The third sentence is where the usage of "that" takes place. The train man said that the track was regularly patrolled." The word "that" adds nothing to the sentence, and it is better: "The trainman said the track was regularly patrolled." In the last sentence "that is not needed although it is correct.

We do not know of a more frequent error than the continued use of "that," and it keeps on bobbing up at all times. There are few writers but with long experience who cannot go over their copy before sending it to the compositor and eliminate "that" several times. Apart from the frequency of its use there also is the question of "which" would be the proper word.

Stray Bits

THE ANGLER'S SONG—

Oh, give me a creek that the speckled trout love, though the way may be tricky and long; where there is lots of discomfort to suffer and no human voice in song. The way may be bad, but I'll take it for me lad, though I have to get there on the rim; though the pesky black flies work out on me there. I'll need all my courage and vim. I'd be wasting a deal if my ears did not head the call of the Red Gods in spring, when the cherry bloom fills the air with perfume and the song birds are all on the wing. Give me a creek that the speckled trout seek and a fly on the end of my line, where never is heard a discordant word, and humans are all kind of mine.—Harry Moore in the Trenton Courier Advocate.

INTERNATIONAL AMITY—

Calais, Maine, and St. Stephen, New Brunswick, are opposite sides of the St. Croix River, and connected by a long bridge, a perfect example in amity for Europeans that are sore at each other. For more than a century these communities, with their sister towns, have lived above or below in cordial friendship. They are, in fact, chummy. Only the river and the bridge distinct from each other.

The two fire departments are practically one. If a blaze is serious, regardless of jurisdiction, it's the department that can get there first. September. In the afternoon and evening visitors continue rapidly from one side of the river to the other.

On Dominion Day, St. Stephen sponsors a celebration. The route of the parade in Canada's natal day includes about a mile through Calais, and the fakirs check across the line of March.

On the Fourth of July, Calais celebrates the independence of the United States. The paraders carry the Stars and Stripes along a mile of St. Stephen's streets. Aquatic sports are held on the St. Croix below the bridge, swimming races being from the United State to Canada and back. Baseball teams.

The annual St. Stephen exhibition is also held in Calais, and the latter having discontinued its fair for a year or two, St. Stephen Canadian centre. The Calais band supplies all the music. About forty per cent of the visitors are from St. Stephen, which eliminated its local fair to concentrate its efforts in the communities.

The St. Stephen-St. Croix baseball club, six times the champions of the Maritime Provinces, and title holders for 1936, have their fair star catcher, ace pitcher and crack outfielder as well as an outfielder and utility player. The football, basketball and hockey teams are also co-operative.

The merchants and manufacturers on both sides advertise in the Calais weekly newspaper and vice versa. Both have agencies circulating on both sides of the river.

Calais and St. Stephen employed in St. Stephen and vicinity. When a long established shoe factory in St. Stephen foundered in 1935 most of the employees obtained work in the Calais factories. The largest industry in Calais. Although Calais has a population of about 6,000 and St. Stephen about 5,000, St. Stephen is more active industrially. —New Era.

THE MAN THEY WANTED—

There is a story going the rounds about a small municipality which is contemplating hunting for a new minister. The board members were perplexed as to what to look for, and at one of the chief executives of the church they happened to be in touch with an official business. The executive met the board and they told him what they had in mind. One man suggested they needed a great orator and pastor; another said the man they wanted would have to be a genius for organization; another put in that they needed someone with an eye to finances; another intimated they would require a good politician to keep the various factions in mind; another wanted someone with athletic ability to coach the young. The church executive listened attentively and then said: "Well, gentlemen, all you want is a cross between Rev. Dr. Fridgens, Sir Edward Beatty, Hon. Charles Dunning, Premier Hepburn and Lionel Conacher, and you want to get him for $100 per month; I tell you it can't be done."

POST CARD—

How beautiful the post card scene!
A mellow sunshine sheds its beam
On stately wall or stately tree,
Where all the world seems at its ease.
It shows no dust or smarting heat
Nor counters filled with things to eat.

No crowded cars nor smelly ships
No petty bandits out for tips;
It illustrates a glorious scene
Where all is silent and serene
To make a restful holiday
For every traveller on his way.
A picture true in every line,
Dreams
How beautiful a post card scene!

BODY OF ACTOR WASHED ASHORE

Father Identifies Body as That of Frank Vosper

London, March 23—(AP)— Dr. Percy Vosper today definitely identified the body of a man washed up from the English Channel near Beachy Head as that of Frank Vosper, actor and playwright who had been missing since he disappeared from a champagne party on a liner as far back as 1935.

Vosper disappeared from the cabin of Miss Elizabeth Gatford, British beauty queen, where a farewell party was being given aboard the liner Paris as it neared Plymouth after a trans-Atlantic crossing from New York.

BOARD RECOMMENDS A TARIFF INCREASE

Ottawa, March 23—(CP)— The government today had before it a recommendation of the Tariff Board that the tariff on rubber boots imported from the United States and other countries employing the Dominion's most favored nation tariff be increased, in effect, from 27 per cent to 33 1-4 per cent.

The Board, which reported yesterday, suggested the rate be increased from 30 per cent to 37 1-2 per cent, but the effective figures were reduced by the fact a 10 per cent discount operates under the Franco-Canadian Trade Treaty and likewise also in the United States and other countries included in the most-favorite-nation clauses of this country's other trade pacts.

The recommendation, it followed, would leave the British preferential rate at 15 per cent under the current budget. It would increase the intermediate rate from 30 to 37 1-2 and leave the general rate at 45 per cent.

Net Return to Car Makers Greater Than in the U. S.

Tariff Board Report on Car Industry is Released

SAFETY GLASS

Ottawa, Mar. 23 (CP)—The government today had before it a comprehensive report of the tariff board following a long inquiry into the automobile industry.

The report, presented yesterday, found among other things, there was unnecessary waste in Canadian distribution methods and that the net return to Canadian manufacturers is larger than that to United States manufacturers for the same type of car.

To counteract this, the board suggested the government invoke section 17 of the Customs Act empowering it to reduce duties where it can be shown Canadian producers are taking advantage of the tariff to maintain enhanced prices.

Canadian manufacturers of safety glass, used in the industry, continue to experience difficulties with the European plate glass cartel, the report found. The sole producer in the United Kingdom has not shown all Canadian requirements, in spite of the fact he is given a premium of seven per cent, over continental manufacturers. For him to do so would result in his command panel but the board suggests that in this event the government should declare all Canadian safety glass subject to 100 per cent. British content, irrespective of the origin of the plate glass.

Copper producers in Canada, the report declared, are still subject to the variable of the tariff, despite narrowing of the margin between domestic and export prices.

Freight Rates Not Uniform.

Lack of uniformity in railway freight rates is a difficulty which Canadian manufacturers complain of face, the report said. Agreements on unit prices were established with the railway companies, and a reduction granted on the understanding the manufacturer would ship all rail. One firm, however, paid more than $10,000 last year in excess of what it would have paid, had highway and water transport been also used.

Free entry of certain parts entering make-up of bus bodies were recommended as a temporary measure to enable manufacturers to adjust themselves to developments in this industry. The board, however, saw no reason why bus body specifications cannot be fitted into the automobile schedule proper.

Proposals to raise British Empire content, which will be from 40 to 45 per cent, on Mar. 31, 1936, have already reflected expectations of Canadian manufacturers. Some have substantially enlarged their plants, in anticipation of a broadening of operations, said the report.

The Board recommended that certain sections of the automobile schedule of the customs tariff be amended to clarify conditions governing entering into the manufacture of vehicles under the free British content instances and lower rates in others.

NO ONE WANTS HOUSE

London, March 23—(AP)— Even the extraordinary contention by counsel for exclusive addresses has failed to end the rental "jinx" on the former home of Mrs. Wallis Simpson at 16 Cumberland Terrace, Regents Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Culbert Stewart, who hold the original lease, have cut the rental to $210 a week to no avail.

CANADIAN HELD IN $20,000 BAIL

To Be Charged With Grand Larceny in Boston Court

Boston, March 23 (AP) — Judge Elijah Andlow today held John Bruno Merlin, also known as John Merlin, in $20,000 bail for the Grand Jury after police Captain John A. Dorsey told the court Merlin would be charged with the larceny of $87,000 to $100,000 in the operation of an alleged get-rich-quick scheme. Merlin, a native of Roblin, Ont., was brought back from New York Saturday.

Merlin, reputed operator of the Baldwin Associates, an organization which published financial "Tipster" sheets in Boston and New York, pleaded innocent in Municipal Court to a charge of larceny of $700 from a Boston man.

Captain Dorsey, attached to the office of the Attorney General Paul A. Dever, told the court today's charge would be followed by 127 other complaints made by a group of investors who claim they were promised from six to 25 per cent profit.

J. H. Abrams, counsel for the former history salesman, said his client intended to make Boston Investors to finance two financial advisory services in Boston and New York. He maintained that action against Merlin would have originated in a civil court.

Merlin's arrest followed an investigation by Boston Better Business Bureau, an aftermath of complaints that worthless cheques were issued to two Boston investors as dividend payments.

Inside View of New China Sleeping Giant Awakens

"Hot Spots in China, Japan, Russia," Proves Interesting Topic in Address to Belleville Service Clubs by Dr. A. J. Brace, Who Spent Twenty-Five Years in China —Russia Too Strong For Japan, and China Prepares to Resist Aggression—Kidnapped And Kidnapper.

An inside view of China, its problems and possibilities in connection with the expansion and protection policies of Japan and Russia, was given to a joint meeting of Rotarians and Kiwanians Monday in the Hotel Quinte, Belleville Rotary (23rd) being hosts to the Belleville Kiwanis Club, the guest speaker was Dr. A. J. Brace, who has served as World Secretary Midland Council, Y.M.C.A., during twenty-five years; in China in University work, served in at least two major wars, and achieved distinction as an explorer.

President Jack Short welcomed the Kiwanian guests, and the welcome was acknowledged by Kiwanis President Ed. Logan, and Kiwanis Secretary George Griffin.

Sandy Burrows was song leader and Leo Riggs presided at the piano, while Charlie Dolan acted as sergeant-at-arms. Several vocal solos were contributed by John Deacon as only he can render them and were much appreciated by the audience, his selections including "Thanks and You," "The Morning," and "The Hills of Home."

China as seen from the inside by Dr. Brace during the twenty-five years of his residence there, formed a moving picture of absorbing interest, and his talk was illustrated by a large map showing the Republic of China and the provinces to which Dr. Brace sought to teach the young Chinese the English language and Christian character.

Kidnapped the Kidnapper

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the army and navy and Premier of China, one of the most interesting figures of modern times, who was "lost" to the world's view through being kidnapped by Young Marshall Chang Hsueh-liang, held for ransom and rescued by his wife, graduate of Wellesley College, who flew in a plane to the place of his captivity and not only returned to headquarters but had succeeded in bringing out his captor in the same plane, was the highlight of Dr. Brace's interesting pen picture of "Hot Spots in China, Japan and Russia."

Emergence of the Chinese also denies to perfect themselves in the English language and acquire eclectic knowledge of modern civilizations to enable them to fit in with the new movement. Unification of China, is one of the hopeful signs of the times, and further evidence that China had wakened from her sleep and will have to be reckoned as an important factor in the family of nations in the future is the fact that there are hundred different dialects, and efforts are being made to simplify them to merge the Chinese dialects into one national language.

Russia's Aerial Power

Reference was made by the speaker to Japan's hunger for more territory, to the two forces struggling in Spain, the one with material party and the militaristic party. Japan's commercial life has suffered a severe check when Russia destroyed her aerial power and as much greater than Japan's, was a fleet of military planes each holding fifty soldiers and carrying five thousand soldiers fully equipped to Vladivostok in a great spot in forty minutes.

Checked Japan's progress is a treaty with Germany, and turned the eyes of Aggression toward China but a treaty the terms of which threatens to put the Chinese soldiers at the first instance of first place and see what will come of it. For many years the college has been to put the scholar, who contributed to our provincial man, in first place, nationally, the farmer in second place because his industry was the basis of all; the artisan in third place, because he produces something and the merchant fourth because he provides service and the soldier fifth because he was a burden which should not be necessary.

Chiang Kai-Shek's Profession

"I feel the need of a God such as Jesus Christ," was the profession of faith of China's Premier, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, in accepting the Christian religion, and Dr. Brace had great hopes that the unification of China may be accompanied by the instilling and developing of a national Christian character, for which the Y.M.C.A. and all religious agencies in China are working. Otherwise a nation of 460 million inhabitants capable of placing an army of thirty or more millions in the field, might become a menace, a real "yellow peril." Already a modern army is being formed in China under the direction of 150 German officers, and 300,000 soldiers with modern equipment could be put in the field at once. The new army has proved its worth already in various clashes with the Reds who have been driven back and held in check when on the eve of acting final stroke.

Good Roads and Banks

Under the direction of Premier Chiang Kai-Shek great progress is being made in the unification of China, one of the steps important being the taking over of many small banks and the establishment of three national banks which has had a very beneficial effect upon trade and commerce. Thousands of miles of good roads have been built and thousands more are planned, motor roads are under construction, and the result has been that many makes of motor cars from other countries are pouring into China now.

No Unbreakable Army

China's new army is not a Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera army which goes to war with umbrellas to keep the rain off but a real honest-to-goodness modern army capable of making itself felt in any campaign, said the speaker.

With over 108,000 miles of good motor roads, modern air lines, radio broadcasting stations and send out the gospel of the new United China over the land, eagerly listened to by many receiving sets, including many crystal sets made by the Chinese themselves; and a new and modern army fit the making China of tomorrow bids fair to be over especially if the threat to put the Chinese soldiers in first place nationally is implemented.

Hoped She'd Smell Forever

Chinese culture of three thousand years is finding place in the arts and sciences being fine in literature, painting and fine to produce a marine compass beside many other feats were sketched graphically by the speaker in the rapid fire "Hot Shots" which, interspersed into the address, covered much ground and was all the more interesting. Its anecdotes of Chinese students unable with their limited language and his own slips with the Chinese language were very amusing. Dr. Brace's conclusion said good bye with flowers to a much loved China, which he had accompanied by a touching tribute to Chinese children, to the roses and expressed the hope that she would smell forever, meaning of course that China would be remembered forever.

Dr. Brace told one on himself in relating an incident which happened as a young man when he was in charge of Chinese soldiers for the Western Front during the Great War. Replying to a question from a Chinese soldier, who he had supposed was an enquiry as to the whereabouts of the latrine, he made of his furniture, he said: "I am going to the rest I will pack." Imagine his feeling when he was informed by his friend sitting next to a helper that the soldier's real question referred to what disposition he intended to make of his family. Of course the Chinese were quite polite to laugh but a sly grin or two was in evidence when the speaker tried to set himself right with the company.

An interesting reminder prefaced Dr. Brace's address. Thirty-five years ago when he came back from the Boer war in South Africa he gave an audience in Belleville a description of experiences at Paardeburg and Modder River, under places where history was made.

Kiwanian George Griffin introduced the speaker and appreciation was voiced by Rotarian E. V. Illsley.

Gordon Reid reported for Kiwanis that the ladies of the Y.W.C.A. of the Y.M.C.A. Child Clinic on Pinnacle Street would be ready in about two weeks when a formal opening would be held. It was felt that the City Hall was not suitable for the purpose hence the move. Two rooms had been secured on Pinnacle Street, and were being newly decorated and renovated for the purpose.

Rotarian Tom Hutchinson was called up on the carpet by President Joe Shortt and decorated by Rotarian Fred Douglas, not for Easter lilies but for distinction in in times of peace, the decoration being the arrival of a new member in the person of Rotarian Dr. Mallory Clark to mark the auspicious occasion. Included Master Burnside and gaily decorated baby caddies.

PERMIT SOUGHT TO BUILD THEATRE

Committee Appointed to Confer With Mr. McCarthy on Matter

A special committee of Mayor Arnott, Aldermen Wills, Cushing, Clapp, the City Engineer and City Solicitor was appointed to deal with the request of J. C. McCarthy for a permit to erect a theatre in this city that will cost approximately $50,000, according to Mr. McCarthy, who appeared before the Council on the matter on Monday evening. The permit has not been granted to Mr. McCarthy by the City Engineer because, it is understood the building proposed does not conform to height with the building by-law now in force in that section, where it is proposed to erect the theatre. The letter of the City Engineer and that of the City Solicitor follow showing the position the city is in with respect to the matter. Alderman Greenleaf expressed the opinion that the law was flexible enough to allow Mr. McCarthy to proceed but the council thought best to investigate the matter thoroughly. The letters are herewith given.—

March 18th, 1937.,

Re J. C. McCarthy's Theatre Permit Application.

I beg to report that I have received an application from Mr. J. C. McCarthy to erect a modern, up-to-date theatre and motion picture house on the lot on the east side of Front Street, immediately north of the Crystal Hotel. The construction details furnished me by Mr. McCarthy comply with all the regulations set forth in the Theatres Inspection Act, 1937, and all Municipal Building By-laws with the exception of by-law No. 2117 governing the height of buildings abutting on certain streets in the business section. This by-law calls for a distance of not less than thirty-five (35') feet, measured from the level of the street to the eave of the front of the building. Mr. McCarthy's plans show this height for the theatre to be twenty-nine (29') feet. The distance to the top of the coping of the front wall is shown as thirty-two (32') feet.

In addition to these regulations permission must be granted by resolution of the Council to erect a theatre in the locality as set forth in the Building Restriction Law No. 2186 as amended by by-law No. 2068.

The value of construction for the building permit is estimated at $30,000 and Mr. McCarthy will attend the Council meeting on Monday evening, March 22nd, to discuss the various details of this new theatre, the plans of which are attached hereto.

Yours truly,
CHAS. A. MOTT,
City Engineer.

March 22, 1937.

J. Wilfred Holmes, Esq.,
City Clerk,
City Hall, City.

Dear Mr. Holmes:

This will acknowledge receipt of yours of the 19th inst., with which you forwarded the Report of the City Engineer to Council together with letter from Mr. McCarthy requesting and original By-laws numbers 3058, 3117, 3259 and 3260, all of which are returned herewith.

In your letter is embodied a copy of the Council's recommendation as follows:

"That the Engineer's Report regarding the McCarthy theatre be referred to the City Solicitor for report as to legality of amending Building By-law to conform with regulations in his case.

From a perusal of the City Engineer's report it appears that the tentative plans submitted by Mr. McCarthy for the erection of a building for Theatre purposes do not conform with the provisions and regulations required under the Corporation's By-law number 3117. The Corporation's authority for such a By-law is found in Section 396 (3) of The Municipal Act, which provides that no such By-law shall come into force, be repealed or amended without the approval of the Ontario Board.

The Legislature apparently aimed at granting to municipal councils the power to secure some degree of uniformity in the height, bulk and character of the buildings to be erected in certain defined areas, and evidently inasmuch as rather wide powers are vested in the council the Legislature thought well to make the approval of The Municipal Board a condition precedent.

In the latter part of the year 1933 The Board found it impossible to take steps to regulate the height and character of buildings to be erected on the lands in the downtown or mercantile area of the City or Belleville, and towards that end pursuant to Section 396 (3) of The Municipal Act enacted By-law 3101, which was submitted to The Municipal Board for its approval.

Pursuant thereto the Board by its Order of November 20, 1933, appointed Friday, December 30, 1933, the City Hall, Belleville, for the hearing of such as required by Statute directed that all parties whose properties might be affected should be notified of the hearing and that a copy of the proposed By-law should be attached to the notice.

At the sittings of the Board held on December 30, 1933, the Corporation was represented by counsel and a number of interested parties who attended, some of whom were also represented by counsel, but no evidence before the Board; and the whole matter was gone into very thoroughly and as a result thereof and with the approval of the Board By-law number 3117, which is in the nature of an amendment to By-law number 3101, was subsequently enacted and passed into force on the 12th day of March, 1933.

To secure the consideration of any amendment to the By-law the following procedure, is a condition precedent, namely:—

(1) The submission of the proposed amendment to The Municipal Board.

(2) The Board's appointment for a hearing.

(3) Serving on all owners of property in the mercantile area whose names appear upon the last revised assessment roll at least ten days previous to date fixed for the hearing of the application for variation with a copy of the proposed amendment.

(4) A hearing by the Board at which all those whose property might be affected, would be heard in person or by Counsel.

(5) Finally the Formal Order of the Board by which the amendment will be allowed or disallowed.

Other amendments to By-laws, passed under section 396 of the Municipal Act, may be secured only after compliance with all formalities attended with considerable delay.

Yours very truly,
A. B. COLLINS,
City Solicitor.

Mr. Vernon Orr, who conducted the Tourist Information Bureau at the foot of Front Street last summer, appeared before the Council on the Tourist Camp for the coming summer, by a motion introduced by Alderman Greenleaf that the Board of Tourist and Publicity be put under some discussion with the park, which resulted in the motion being referred back to the committee for further consideration and this plan was adopted on motion of Alderman Barlow, seconded by Alderman Wills, and have been taken on the motion as Aldermen Clapp and Cushing abstained from voting.

Some of the members were agreed that the camp had lost money for the city in years past and after the motion was put Mr. Orr had made of the Tourist Information Bureau, he asked for the man to have in control of the camp. Alderman Greenleaf said that a number of tenders should be called. The members went away from the motion and Mayor Arnott reminded them that the question was whether they wanted to make a charge or not.

THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY TO STOP CONSTIPATION

You have to correct the cause. Simply taking a pill now and then is just temporary relief and often harmful.

Most constipation is due to meals low in "bulk." Put enough "bulk" in your diet and you can really correct common constipation.

That's why millions of people eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day. This cereal furnishes "bulk" which does not "break down" in the body. ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, gently sponges and cleanses the system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a food—not a medicine. You buy it at any grocery store. Besides "bulk," it has vitamin B1, iron to the blood, nutrition and iron for the blood. Eat 2 tablespoonfuls daily with milk or cream. Three times daily in severe cases.

Kingston, Ont., March 23 (CP).—At a city council meeting that lasted long after midnight, a bylaw was passed setting a license fee of $500 on each slot machine and pin board operated here. The fee is five times the amount the fee last year, when the council collected a total of $6,000 from machines.

MRS. M. MEAGHER CELEBRATED 91ST BIRTHDAY SUNDAY

Mother of Charles And George Meagher Hostess to Relatives

DOES NOT USE GLASSES

Walking cheerfully with a cane, slightly lame from an accident which occurred fifteen years ago, mentally alert and physically active enough to get about her own work, Mrs. Marion Meagher, of Napanee, mother of Mr. Charles and Mr. George Meagher of Belleville, celebrated her ninety-first birthday at the home in which she has resided for the past sixty years on Sunday, March 21st.

Quietly, in the midst of a small gathering of friends and relatives this alert old lady accepted the congratulations and good wishes of a large number of well-wishers who called at the home, a host of telegrams, letters and cards brought felicitations from afar and near.

Sunday evening, Mrs. Meagher, who yet has to seek the help of glasses in order to be able to read her daily newspaper, busied herself about her home and prepared a meal, and held a table for her guests without assistance.

Born in Ireland in March, 1846, Mrs. Meagher received her education in the schools of "Auld Erin" as Toronto was then called. Later she met and married Charles Meagher, a storekeeper in Fenelon Falls and resided for a number of years in Orford, province of Ontario. When the late Mr. Meagher sold his business and joined the Commercial Travellers' Association, sixty years ago, the Meagher home was transferred to Napanee where it has been ever since.

Mrs. Meagher has an unique claim in the fact that her adopted grandfather is Mr. W. Wright, was the first white child born in York, or Toronto, as it is now called. The cradle in which he was rocked has been on display for a great many years in the "Old Log Cabin" a feature of the Canadian National Exhibition.

Dales of Newmarket, who has been interested in Mission for nearly fifty years, spoke very entertainingly of her experiences in mission-ary work in Canada and the United States. Lunch was served at the conclusion of the meeting.

The choir of Tweed United Church met at the home of Mrs. W. E. Tummon on Thursday evening. The early part of the evening was devoted to practice of Easter music. The annual election of officers was held with Miss Isabella Campbell in the chair. The following are the officers for 1937:

Vice President — Mrs. S. H. Connor.
Secy.-Treas. — Mrs. H. A. Orser.
Mus. Secy.—Ruth Foster.
Gowns Committee:—Mrs. W. E. Tummon, Miss Florence Blaney, Barbara Sammon.

He has been a member of the choir for the past four decades, during which time he has established quite a record for regular attendance. In 1936 he did not miss attendance on a single Sunday.

The members of the choir, desiring to honor an esteemed fellow choir member, presented him with a book, "In the Steps of St. Paul," and the following address:

Dear Mr. Garrett:

For the past thirty-five or more years, you have been a loyal and efficient member of the choir of Tweed United Church. You have sung under the leadership of a great many directors and organists whom you have supported most loyally by your faithful attendance at choir rehearsals and church services. You have always served as an Esquire to your fellow choir members, past and present.

It is the earnest hope of all of us that you may still be spared many years to raise your voice in the hymns and anthems which you love so well.

As an expression of our appreciation of the inspiration and example which you have set us we ask you to accept this book, "In the Steps of St. Paul," which we trust will give you many hours of enjoyment.

Signed on behalf of the choir

Mrs. R. A. Grier, President
S. H. Connor, Director

The address was read by Mrs. Connor, while Ruth Foster made the presentation.

Mr. Garrett, taken completely by surprise, expressed his sincere appreciation of the choir's thoughtfulness. In reminiscent vein he told of some interesting things which had happened many years before.

Two or three humorous Irish contests were held. Miss Marion Tummon and Mr. S. H. Connor were the winners. Lunch was served by a committee composed of Misses Campbell, Stuart and Barnett. The thanks of the choir was expressed to Mrs. Tummon for her hospitality.

Frankford and District

Bishop and Mrs. Marshall Honored at Golden Wedding

Congregation of Emmanuel Church Fetes Them on Anniversary

GIFTS PRESENTED

Contemplating a quiet golden wedding celebration, Right Rev. Bishop Clarence Marshall and Mrs. Marshall were delightfully surprised last evening when members of the congregation of the Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church, Belleville, gathered in the Sunday School room where a delicious banquet had been quietly prepared, and surprised Bishop and Mrs. Marshall upon their return anniversary. Bishop and Mrs. Marshall were recipients of many words of congratulations during the course of the banquet prepared by the ladies of the Emmanuel Church and were subsequently presented with a purse of gold and a beautiful floor lamp, as a token of the esteem in which they are held by the congregation. Although taken fully by surprise, Bishop Marshall responded in his most eloquent manner in thanks for the thoughtfulness of those so interested in him-self and his good wife upon the unique and happy occasion of their golden wedding.

Married in Herefordshire

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall were married by the late Rev. A. Chapman in Herefordshire, England, on March 22nd, 1887, where he resided and was employed as a clerk. He noted as a lay preacher in the Free Church of England, which was known, as the Reformed Episcopal Church. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall came to Canada in the early part of the present century and took up residence in the city of Belleville where for the past fifteen years Bishop Marshall was employed by the large Grain Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway as a grain buyer. He accepted his first charge in Belleville in 1919, being rector of Emmanuel Church. In 1930 he saw the Reformed Episcopal Church, with which he had identified himself, and affiliate with the Anglican Church of Canada, reformed to as the Reformed Episcopal Church.

Consecrated Bishop in 1933

In 1933 Rev. George Marshall journeyed to England where he was consecrated Bishop of the Free Church of England in Canada and became the first bishop of that Church as his diocese that part Canada extending from the Atlantic sea board, Mr. Marshall was Bishop of Canada. Mrs. Marshall is a native of Bishop Marshall and has not only been a great help in the work of the church, but an inspiration to him during his long period of ill health.

Bishop Marshall is an honorary member of the General Council of the Reformed Episcopal Church in the United States and was only recently called to New York City to assist in the consecration of a new bishop in that city. He was a lay preacher in England for many years before coming to Canada, however.

Congregation Fetes Couple

Hoping to make their golden wedding anniversary one of great joy and happiness, the congregation of the Emmanuel Church prepared a banquet and programme for last evening. Mr. M. W. Barlow capably acted as chairman and toastmaster while Mr. R. H. Ketcheson made the address of presentation, during which Mrs. Ketcheson and Mrs. Cecil Davis presented the happy couple with the purse of gold and the floor lamp, as a small token of esteem on behalf of the congregation of the church. Bishop Marshall responded and gave his heartfelt thanks for the tokens and many words of congratulations. The banquet was prepared by the Ladies' Aid Young Women's Guild and Men's Club of the church.

Gift From Ottawa

Rev. Mr. Forman, of Ottawa, St. David's, presented the fifty-years-happily-married couple with a beautiful silver flower bowl on behalf of that congregation. Mrs. Marshall responding in her customary and pleasing manner to this unexpected and pleasing gesture. The chairman and toastmaster on the evening proposed the toast to the ladies, which was responded to by Mrs. R. A. Thompson and Mrs. W. Coles. The programme included readings by Miss Jean Cooke, Miss Flora Bunton and fitting vocal numbers for such an occasion rendered by the Ballad quartette, Miss Irene Hallam, Mrs. M. W. Barlow, Thos. Hallam, Sr., and Thos. Hallam, Jr.

Miss Mollie Pomeroy presented Bishop Marshall with a suitable bouquet of flowers, while Rev. A. L. W. Coles, in the absence of Canon Ardagh, added his tribute to the Bishop and Mrs. Marshall in his usual capable witty manner. The evening closed with the singing of "For they are jolly good fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne."

HINTS ON HOME IMPROVEMENT

Floors

Have you looked your floors over with a critical eye lately? You know, more than any other part of the home, walls, doors, woodwork—your floors take a terrific amount of punishment. Think of the thousands of feet you yourself have walked on their surface, then add those of the rest of your family and friends. It becomes sense the traffic is staggering.

There are few variations on the floor market that are easy to apply, and are quick-drying and inexpensive. Your painter can give you a new floor in almost no time, or you can even do it yourself. Here are practically all the directions you'll need. Just wash the floor with a good lather of soap and water and rinse it off with plenty of clear water. If it's a bare wood, of course you'll have to wash it with turpentine to get that oil off. Next apply smooth on all the cracks with soapdaper. Then apply wood putty with a knife, fire the using a good varnish for the first coat. Use a good coat of varnish. The two coats will give you an extremely tough, wear-resisting finish, and any more economical in the long run. As you apply the varnish, first use strokes with the grain of the wood, secondly against the grain, then finish with one of a slightly moist brush, again with the grain. Be sure that you've worked every crevice and every angle portion of the wood, for a careless, grudged varnish won't chip, or scratch white or discolor with water or cold water, be careful and get a good recognized brand. The best is not costly.

Varnish isn't the only thing for floors, however. Paint, in itself, makes a contrast well with wall and ceiling treatment, is good for bedrooms, darkest rooms or kitchens, and is very easy to keep clean. And is very easy to keep clean. And is very easy to keep clean. And

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE STRAND

"Wings of the Morning"

Held Over Until Thursday

With a record of eight weeks at his MAJESTY'S Theatre Montreal, the all - technicolor production of "Wings of the Morning," will open at the Belle Theatre on Saturday and from since evidence of public acceptance, and with many telephone calls and requests from screen lovers who wanted to see this screen epic, but through circumstances were unable to do so on the original play dates, the Belle management announced this morning that they have been successful in arranging for two extra days which means that the production will be held over until Thursday, matinee daily.

The flaming romance of a lovely fugitive fleeing from strife - torn Spain, "Wings of the Morning," Twentieth Century-Fox special, introduces a new and exciting screen personality in Annabella, starred with Henry Fonda and Leslie Banks in the film, which, besides being a world-famous tenor John McCormack.

Brought to the screen in all the life-like beauty of natural Technicolor, "Wings of the Morning" provides a thrilling mixture of drama, spectacle and surprise, including the dramatic changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace, horse of flaming fire, and the most sensational Derby ever run with Gypsy Steve Donoghue riding his most thrilling race.

Breathtaking in its sweeping scenes, the film acquires a lyric beauty and dimension through its natural, normal Technicolor. You like and beautiful that you'll think you've never seen color on the screen before.

Annabella, a brilliant new star as different and alluring as her unusual name, first appears in the prologue as Mona, a gypsy dancer. She marries Leslie Banks, the Earl of Clonfarl, who dies on the hunting field five months later. Marie goes back to her gypsies to be told that her descendants will be cursed for her marriage for three generations.

Modern times brings us Annabella as Marie, the great granddaughter, who flees Spain in the midst of revolution to a quieter Ireland, where she can have her horse, "Wings of the Morning," trained for the English Derby. Victory in the world provide her with a dowry to marry her Spanish fiance.

Kerry Clifallen, a young Irish farmer, played by Henry Fonda, also has a Derby Candidate, but he falls in love with Marie, agrees to train the horse for her, and gives a party for Marie at which Marie is kidnapped.

When her jockey breaks his leg, Kerry Clifallen, rides the mad Derby. Steve Donoghue, to ride Marie's horse, although he knows that victory for Marie will mean defeat not only for his own horse but also for his love for Marie.

Derby Day brings not only the most sensational Derby ever run but the harrowing realization that the course of the gypsies may still have a last paralyzing influence on the lives of those involved. A surprising conclusion, in which Marie's great - grandmother makes her last earthly gesture, turns the way for the happiness of Marie and Kerry.

The enjoyment of the feature attraction is enhanced by the exhibition of an entertaining array of

AT THE CAPITOL

"Green Light"

"Green Light," best selling novel of ten years, and now transmuted to the screen, comes to the Capitol for a pre-Easter holiday treat on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the First Mortgage Film.

Errol Flynn, the young Irish star who made an international influence with his first starring role, "Captain Blood," and followed it with another smash hit in "The Charge of the Light Brigade," has the role of Dr. Newell Paige, a young surgeon who sacrifices his career to save that of an older friend.

Co-starred with him is the lovely Anita Louise as Phyllis Forrester, for whose mother's death Paige has performed the feat. They were met at the home of Francis Ogilvie (played by Margaret Lindsay), a wealthy man who tells to Paige, and falls instantly in love. But when Phyllis finds out she will be refuses to see him again.

Henry Hornsdale (played by Sir Cedric Hardwicke) is a clerk with a broad and beautiful philosophy of life, and the confidant of Paige's three young people. Through him, Paige is made to realize that Phyllis is innocent and she finally goes with him in the Rocky Mountains, where he is riding his life in the hope for a vaccine that will control the deadly infantile paralysis.

Arriving there, she finds him prostrate with the disease himself with the deadly virus. All through his illness, he insists on continuing his case history which will be valuable to other research men if he should die. Phyllis remains with him, and with his recovery makes a valuable contribution to science. Anita Louise is the lovely Irish Paige's name, and reunited at last, he and Phyllis are married.

POLICE BELIEVE CHILD WAS SLAIN

9 YEAR MYSTERY

Winnipeg, March 23—(CP)—Police today pondered the mystery of the skeleton of six-year-old Julia Johnson, who disappeared nine years ago from in front of her home in east Winnipeg, in the belief the child was murder slain.

Identification of the shoes and a pair of ragged stockings still clinging to the bones was made by Mrs. Johnson, 36-year-old brother who was but 16 at the time of the girl's disappearance.

Later in police headquarters the mother, Mrs. Anton Johnson, pointed to a wisp of dark brown hair and said it was the same as having belonged to her youngest child. Detective Constable George Smith and Detective Chief Charles MacIver said they were almost certain Julia had been slain and that her body stuffed into the boiler with the sheer probability of identity as it grew eventually and erase all trace of the crime.

Mackiver revealed police had been seeking since the crime an elderly man with a brownish-grey beard.

Was Seen With an Old Man

A sworn statement by Theodore Kovacs, living a neighbor of the Johnsons, said Kovacs had been seen a few days after the disappearance of Julia walking with an old, grey-bearded man in the vicinity of the now-deserted warehouse. At times the statement said, the man and child ahead bouncing the tennis ball found yesterday among the thirty pile of bones.

Both parents hoped against hope through the years of uncertainty that their daughter was alive. Police called regularly every two weeks during all that time at the office of the Child of Province, hoping for some clue that would lead to return of the baby girl.

GOV'T IS URGED TO REMOVE DOUBT

First Divorce of Mrs. Simpson Challenged by A. B. Keith

London, Mar. 23 (AP)—An authority on constitutional law made public today the question whether Mrs. Wallis Simpson's divorce from her husband is valid in the eyes of British law and urged government action to remove all doubt on that point.

Mrs. Simpson was divorced from Lieut.-Commander E. W. Simpson, United States navy, in Warrenton, Va., in 1927. The conditional decree from Ernest Aldrich Simpson was granted at Ipswich, Oct. 27, 1936, and is expected to be made absolute April 27.

Writing a letter to the Edinburgh Scotsman, in which he commented on doubts with the Church proceedings, A. Berriedale Keith of Edinburgh university Prime Minister Baldwin make a statement, on the advice of the Lord Chancellor and the attorney-general, on the question of the validity of the Warrenton Decree.

Professor Keith said Parliament legislate to settle whether the Warrenton decree is valid in the eyes of British law.

No Action Unless Demand.

Other legal authorities expressed belief no such action would be taken unless there is official demand for it.

Keith wrote:

"A difficulty arises from the fact that the decree is invalid, certainly in the eyes of English law, are competent to grant decrees of divorce which are admitted to full recognition in British courts are those of a state in which the husband is domiciled at the time when divorce proceedings were initiated.

GETS FIRST DRINK

Swallowing his first drink of water in more than a year, three-year-old Trevor Lee Scott of Chicago (ABOVE), signalized what physicians hope will become one of surgery's great triumphs.

In September, 1935, Tommy swallowed some lye which burned, and completely closed his esophagus. The only food he could get through a tube inserted in his abdominal wall. Using delicate instruments, surgeons succeeded in reopening the esophagus slightly until now Tommy can drink water and eat soft foods. Eventually it is hoped, he will be able to eat and drink normally.

Season's Dope on Finalists Can Be Thrown in the Ashcan As Teams Prepare to Take Ice

PERTH ELIMINATED

North Battleford in Western Finals Against Fort William

By A. E. FULFORD

The season is the spot today for all the dope that has been gathered during the 48-game schedule on the relative strength of the six National Hockey League teams opening the play-offs tonight. You can't figure one of the three series or the way the clubs have performed against each other.

That is, you can't unless you consider Montreal Canadiens a walkaway victory over Detroit Red Wings in the N.H.L. title series. New York Rangers a mild workout against Toronto Leafs and Boston Bruins a breeze with Montreal Maroons.

For the dope says Canadiens, the Bruins and Rangers should win pulled up. The Habitants have defeated Red Wings four times, tied them once and lost twice. Bruins have humbled Tommy Gorman's men five times and lost only once. Rangers have the same fine record against Toronto.

Repeat is Upset Dope Recital

But there will be very little betting that the dope is right. These playoff battles are very different affairs from league games and as things shape up today Detroit are favorites over the Canadiens and Leafs take the nod over Rangers. An experienced net minder capable of turning in opinion on the Maroons-Boston affair but anyone else would be just guessing.

As the teams gathered in Detroit, Toronto and Montreal today all were in remarkably good shape. Jack Adams thought Bobby Bowman might be missing from the Detroit defense but the pesky manager was late to report. Normally his fighting has healed enough to permit his playing.

Jimmy Ward is recovered from his attack of flu and has left hospital. He won't be on Maroons' lineup tonight but may see action soon. Sylvio Mantha, Boston rear guard fireman, is the only player off who has been put out of the game recently, except, of course, Detroit's Larry Aurie.

Leafs and Rangers Ready

Both Leafs and Rangers report in great shape but Lester Patrick is crying down the chances of Lester Manager so heavily that Conn Smythe of Leafs has become suspicious. He figures the old pro either has a trick or two left that may reverse the recent poor showing of his team.

While Red Wings went through a workout yesterday at Detroit, Coach Hart kept his Canadiens off the ice. The Habitant manager figured that light team would get more good from a rest than a practice.

Leafs also rested yesterday and Rangers made an overnight trip to Toronto. Here today's and Friday's battle will see the greatest pack of young players hit their first Stanley Cup playoffs together in years.

Eleven to Make Bow

Eleven youngsters will be making their bow to the world title playoffs tonight. Toronto has Syl Apps, just officially announced as the outstanding rookie in the league race, Fowler, Turk Broda, Gordon Drillon and Nelson Stratton. Detroit, Joe Cooper, Neil and Mac Colville, Alex Shibicky and Phil Watson are those who appear to have never performed in post-season series before.

While few are prepared to pick a favorite in the Boston-Montreal set everyone is agreed the games should produce a new high in hard-hitting hockey. Both teams have big forwards who don't mind tossing their weight around and defencemen who hand it out generously.

And there is another point on which there is pretty general agreement. That is that which ever team comes out of the shooting area will be soft pickings for either Rangers or Leafs in the next round.

CHANGE MADE IN PLAYDOWN DATES

Changes Will Effect Both Allan And Memorial Cup Playdowns

Ottawa, Mar. 23 (CP)—Changes in the dates for Allan and Memorial Cup playdowns, which were first announced early today by Cecil Duncan, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"If the Hull Volants-Moncton Maroon series goes three games," Duncan said in reference to the Allan Cup playdowns, the final game will be played Thursday, Mar. 25. In that event, the winner will open against Quebec Aces in the next round Saturday, March 27. If Hull wins the first game will be in Ottawa, Saturday, Mar. 27, with the second game in Quebec, Mar. 29. If Moncton wins, the series will open in Quebec Saturday, Mar. 27, with the second game also there Monday, Mar. 29. The Hull-Moncton series ends tonight, the round with Quebec Aces will open Thursday, Mar. 25. If Hull wins, the series will open in Ottawa, with the second game in Quebec Saturday, Mar. 27. CONNIE MACK ENTHUSED OVER HIS YOUNG CLUB

Marion City, Mar. 23 (AP)—Connie Mack heads back to the United States next week well enough recovered of diamond dynamite, prepared in Mexicana, in his pocket.

Baseball's grand old pennant nor even first division berth for the 1937 Philadelphia Athletics—the three New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers in the races, the 74-year-old manager, beginning his 56th year in baseball, nevertheless is enthused over his baseball club.

"We've come along fast here lately," said Mack, "and we'll be an improved—greatly improved—team over 1936 (when the A's occupied the cellar berth).

"We have as good an outfield as there is in baseball. Our starting infield will be first-rate. This crop of Philadelphia Athletics will be better than some of the finest prospects in it I've ever seen."

ALLAN CUP SURVIVORS

When Toronto Goodyears and Edmonton Dominions skipped out last night, the number of teams in the fight for the Allan Cup emblem hockey title was reduced to seven. The Allan Cup field, made up of five clubs in the east and two in the west, follows:

East.

N.B.—Moncton; Quebec—Hull Volants and Quebec Aces; Ontario—Toronto Dominions and Sudbury Tigers.

West.

Ontario—Fort William; Saskatchewan—North Battleford.

Eleven Newcomers to Make Bow in Rangers-Leafs Tilt

Following a night of the winter's weirdest amateur hockey happenings the smoke cleared a little today and revealed a pooling of two Canadian championships from Saskatchewan. Represented by North Battleford and Saskatoon in senior and junior ranks, the western province is setting a remarkable record in playdowns.

North Battleford's Beavers gained country-wide attention weeks ago. Now in western finals after thrashing Edmonton Dominions 4-2 and 15-3. But it's only recently Saskatoon Junior Wings have attained prominence, reaching western semi-finals after setting down Edmonton Rangers in two straight games.

Amid imposing of last night's results was North Battleford's 12-goal verdict over Edmonton. Other surprises, however, included the size of Copper Cliff's margin over Rangers, 5-1, Copper Cliff's 5-2 upset of Toronto St. Michael's College in junior playdowns and Kirkland Lake's 7-3 win over Toronto Goodyears among the seniors.

Perth Out Hard Way.

Perth gave Ottawa Rideaus a terrific fight before bowing out in Ottawa and district junior finals, forcing a 6-6 tie in last night's game and dropping the total-goals round 8-8. The only score that didn't create much shock was Winnipeg Monarchs' 4-1 decision achieved against St. Boniface in the first of Manitoba semi-finals.

The thundering North Battleford squad will play Fort William in the Allan Cup semi-finals and the winner's opposition in finals there will be Sudbury Tigers, Toronto Dominions, Hull Volants, Moncton Maroons or Quebec Aces, all still in the eastern fight.

Jack Shillington starred for Beavers last night, gaining five goals while George Allen followed with three. North Battleford scored four times in the first period, five in the second and three in the third.

Only group of the Ontario Hockey Association's senior "A" classification, the Toronto and York Mercantile League did not finish until last night. Goodyears, champions of the Goodyears league leaders during the regular schedule, Coached by Happy Day, Dominions include on their line-up Roy Conacher and Jim Primeau, brothers of men who have made names in professional ranks. They will face Sudbury in a best-of-three series that starts in the northern city tomorrow.

Kenora Nanton Down.

Moncton Maroons and Hull Volants will continue their best-of-three round at Ottawa tonight to play Quebec Aces in eastern semi-finals by taking this game. Whoever emerges from among Moncton, Hull and Quebec will play the Sudbury-Toronto victor for the right to journey west.

Saskatoon's good junior unit scored four times in the final period to oust Edmonton, 6-5, last night, and got all Wesley goals in their 4-0 triumph Saturday, put two last night.

Southern Ontario fans were stunned by what Copper Cliff did to St. Mike's. The Irish had just finished winning the Ontario Hockey Association title, scoring 28 times in their five-game finals with Stratford, then they journeyed north. They led 2-1 at the end of the second period and seemed headed for victory when Red Hamill spurred the Redmen to life. He tallied two quick goals and Tobe and Webster bagged two more. The second game of the best-of-three round will be at Toronto tomorrow.

Perth Scores First.

After winning 3-2 in Perth, Ottawa Juniors were expected to step through the second match with ease at home. Perth soon changed that by scoring three times before the first period and going ahead on the round. Rideaus outscored their rivals 4-1 in the second, though, and each counted twice in the last chapter.

Rideaus wil lentertain Amherst St. Pats, Maritime champions, in the round which starts at the capital tomorrow night. The winner will face Montreal Victorias for the right to play the St. Mike's-Copper Cliff survivors in eastern semi-finals.

Winnipeg Monarchs became pronounced favorites to enter western junior semi-finals against Port Arthur by drubbing St. Boniface. And if Monarchs get by the blueshirt city they will play the winner of the Kirkland Lake-Nanton series for the right to travel east for Memorial Cup finals.

MEMORIAL CUP SURVIVORS

The race for the Canadian Junior Hockey Championship is all but at the quarter-final stage following last night's elimination of the Edmonton Rangers and Perth. The Memorial Cup field, including the two teams in the east and five in the west, follows:

East.

N.B.—Amherst; Quebec—Montreal Victorias; Ontario—Ottawa Rideaus, Copper Cliff, Toronto St. Michael's College.

West.

Ontario—Port Arthur; Manitoba—Winnipeg Monarchs, St. Boniface; Saskatchewan—Saskatoon Wesleys; B.C.—Trail.

SYLVANUS APPS, GORDON DRILLON ARE BEST ROOKIES

A HIGH SCORER

"Turk" Broda And Jimmy Fowler of Leafs Favorably Mentioned

By ELMER DULMAGE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Mar. 23—Sylvanus Apps, Syl, Conacher Smythe, and Frank Selke, with enough room in their Maple Leaf backyard to stock at least a whole minor league, pulled in the choicest hockey rookies of the season. No other National League hunters found the pickings nearly as good in a year when the crop was bumper.

Best rookie of the season and first winner of the Calder Trophy is Sylvanus Apps, Toronto centre from Paris, Ont. Runner-up to Apps in the annual Canadian Press poll of hockey writers is Gordon Drillon of the Leafs. From Moncton, N.B., Drillon came under scrutiny by Smythe and Selke while playing at an amateur pace.

Among the top seven named by the newspaper writers are two other Toronto players—Defenceman Jimmy Fowler and Goaltender Walter (Turk) Broda. Fowler is a Toronto boy and Broda is from Brandon, Man.

Other ace rookies—Sal Cellitte of Boston, Neil Colville of New York Rangers and George Brown of Montreal Canadiens—lined up in that order behind Apps and Drillon. Brown, of 84 Player Board of Strategy missed Cellitte who comes from London, Ont.

Apps Is Modest

But in Apps the Leafs signed the year's greatest all-round athlete. An amateur with Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Hockey League last season, an Olympic pole vaulter in Berlin in the summer, Apps was the freshman sensation of the hockey paign.

He's all but won the scoring championship in his first try, finishing one point behind Syl Conacher Boston of New York Americans. He and Drillon and Buster Jackson formed Toronto's most feared forward line, a division second only to the Aurie-Barry-Carr trio of Detroit in point-getting.

The Paris centre will hold the new trophy offered by President Frank Calder of the N.H.L. for one year. A miniature of the cup will be for keeps.

Writers participated in the poll ranked three players and three point for every first place vote, two for second and one for third. Out of a possible 84 points Apps had 79. Other totals were: Drillon, Sal Cellitte 31, Neil Colville 16, Brown 13, Bruce A. Fowler 5.

CAMBRIDGE CREW FAVORED TO WIN

Oxford Eight, However, Possess More Power And Experience

by

Putney-on-Thames, March 23—Superior in brawn and experience a veteran Oxford crew is favored to snap Cambridge's string of 12 straight victories in the annual Thames classic over the two universities over the winding Thames course today.

Despite the fact the polished Cantabs have won all their races by 3 ½ lengths or more in the betting, supporters of the dark blue are confident their eight will equalize. They will win the 99th race between the universities.

Trial row indicate the two eights are nearly even for a race over the historic event has ever produced. Oxford has broken two records on the Putney course and equalled a third. Early in the month the dons rowed 3.22 seconds under mark, that has stood for 40 years. Last June they bettered by 22.26 the four mile, 300 yard course in training with A. B. Hodgson (Oriel), Canadian Rhodes scholar, rowing to 33 strokes a minute.

Cambridge will not row over the course, which extends from Putney Bridge to Hammersmith Bridge, but on the light blue with R. J. A. Perrit (Trinity Hall) at stroke has been rowing over a longer five mile course.

Five veterans in the Oxford boat and a much heavier crew have encouraged dons that the only time both eights were on the river simultaneously

Cambridge

In 78 races, which have been rowed since the first race in 1829, Cambridge has 47 victories and Oxford 30. There was a dead heat. The record was set by Cambridge in 1934 at 18:03.

CHIPS from the SPORT BLOCK

OLD and NEW

By George H. Carver.

"When a Feller needed a Friend." Highlights in the life of Cleveland's ex-ace hurler....Played shortstop in his early teens....Later his father impressed with his speed insisted that he try pitching....Did a semi-pro trick the youngster in and showed him how to throw curves, develop a change of pace, and later drilled him in the art of control....Blocked out a small diamond behind the Feller farm and served as backstop for his son when this was possible, he also swung the long Feller throw balls at a target erected on a barn....In this way Feller learned the wonderful control, which at the tender age of eighteen makes it possible to throw the pill in an opened tin can 60 feet away.

Played his first game with the Cleveland "Tribe." And struck out so many batters, that the other teams in the league refused to play. Entered high school at 15 years of age....Pitched seven games for his Alma Mater and won five of them via the shutout route, and without allowing a single HIT.....Then joined the "Farmers Union" baseball team as an outfielder. Batted .350 in his first game for them, and held the opposition batters to .238 in his workouts. His appearance but got vaccinated one day.

He turned in FIVE NO-HIT games while pitching for Fayetteville, Ohio....Then he was signed by the Cleveland "Tribe" in 1928. Record in 1934 was "ZERO HIT" triumphs with a strike-out average of 20 per game.....And he was not 21 years of age at that time. In 1935 again joined the Farmers Union squad and played in the Negional ball tournament in Dayton, Ohio....He struck out 18 batters in one game and was nearly killed in the rush, when a berry big League scout came to saw the game. "Ganged" him to get an option on him.....Cleveland management suggested that Fargo-Moorehead Union....Where a job swapping parcels for a men's store. In 1936 he again sought O'Neill, but that worthy told him to stick to his pennies and that baseball could put Feller off until the next noon, and the next day he had a job in the store with his pleas....Now, the Hon. Steven Hannagan is still kicking himself in his heart for the youngster, was becoming weary of baseball, and would serve hit upon a brilliant idea.

The Indians were to play the St. Louis Cards an exhibition and Hannagan suggested "Bob Feller night." He would stick Feller in against the Cards, and if he showed that he was on and without incumbrance, many, if not most of the tourists would naturally want to stop and see the proceedings. By eliminating the extra two days that riders would be able to obtain more speed, which will be one of the paramount ideas of the show.

The City Fathers stahped their approval on the proposed 200 mile snowshoe marathon championships to be raced over local streets on Labor Day at their regular meeting last night with certain reservations, however. The conditions are to be the same as last year, with the exception, that a slight change has been made in the route. The Quinte Motorcycle Club, assisted by the Rivoals Club, will sponsor the race. They have proposed to alter the course slightly, Starting at the corner of West Bridge and Yeomans, the racers will proceed north on Yeomans, the same direction as last year, to West Moira, thence easterly to Stirling, then south to Catherine then west to Dunbar, hence south to West Bridge and then west to the point of starting.

Undoubtedly the motorcycle personnel know more about their business than we do, but for general speed and safety reasons in the opinion of many, would it not have been better to come off West Moira St. at Everett's and proceed south to West Bridge and then proceed west to the point of finish? This course would only give four corners in a race of a right angle turn, as based on the highway traffic it could be diverted at the Devil's Elbow and at the corner of Yeomans and West Bridge St. for the making of a couple of hours, while the race was on and without inconvenience to many, as most of the tourists would naturally want to stop and see the proceedings. By eliminating the extra two turns the riders would be able to attain more speed, which will be one of the paramount ideas of the show.

$40,000 Loss to Building And $15,000 to Newspaper

Vancouver, March 22 (CP)—The editorial staff of The Vancouver Sun moved into temporary quarters to prepare today's editions after fire swept through the three-storey building housing the editorial and business offices of the newspaper.

The fire was believed to have started early today in an elevator shaft near the second floor editorial rooms and spread to the first and third floors. The damaged building was uncondemned at the time.

Canden Insurance Owner

Damage to the building, owned by interests in Canton, China, was set at approximately $40,000. Loss to the newspaper was confined to contents of the building and estimated at $15,000, fully covered by insurance.

The adjoining four-storey building owned by The Sun Publishing Company and housing the newspaper's presses and linotype machines was protected by a screen and fire doors and was undamaged. The six-storey Shelly office building on the other side likewise was not affected.

Valuable records and files were not endangered, having been stored in an office in the Shelley building.

Wheeler, opening in opposition to the Roosevelt Court Bill, began by reading the Hughes letter which the Chief Justice said was approved by Justices Van Devanter and Brandeis.

Mr. Bowen is a former member of the Alberta Legislature and once acted as floor leader for the Liberals. He was born at Osgoode, Ont., near Ottawa and was educated at Bourden College and McMaster University. He became a Baptist minister and was pastor of churches in Winnipeg, Dauphin and Edmonton.

TELEPHONE TALKS IN THE WATSON FAMILY

"What would we do without the TELEPHONE?"

Sally Watson turned to her Mother. "Whatever would we do without a telephone?" she asked. She had just finished making arrangements for the evening with the ever-faithful Jack.

Mother smiled as Sally raced upstairs to get ready, realizing how much the telephone had smoothed the day for all the family.

Do your children have to admit to their friends, "We have no telephone"? It's hardly necessary when the cost is so low—actually only a few cents a day!

The opening comprised community singing of Irish airs and the Institute Ode. A fine report of the proceedings at the Ontario Agricultural Society Convention held in Toronto in February was given by the lone delegate, Mrs. C. N. Winyick. The guest speaker was Miss E. McDermid, who rendered an excellent address on "A Canadian Senator," taking as an example the Hon. Cairine Wilson, first Canadian lady senator. A hearty vote of appreciation was given Miss McDermid by those present. The National Anthem brought the meeting to a close. During the social half-hour the hostess assisted by Mrs. Geo. Huffman, Mrs. W. R. Connor and Mrs. Will Parks served luncheon.

Mr. Russel Foster had the misfortune to break his leg on Friday morning as a result of slipping on ice.

MARKET COMMENT

The Wall Street market's immediate reaction to the labor issue, and it may be expected to rally and go with its developments. At the same time there is a steady demand for a greater share of profits, the administration is also showing concern over recovery as a whole. Already figures show that foreign buying of American stocks up to early March was an important factor in the strength in the market. Officers and directors of corporations are showing a preference for the selling side, judging from latest SEC reports. What the Administration decides to do about the so-called "hot-money" problem, therefore, may have great significance, assuming that anything effective can or will be done. In view of the confusing play of economic events operating, in the market at the moment, however, it hardly would be the part of wisdom to be under-estimate the part that the Administration can play in shaping trends from here, or to ignore its bid for greater control of wages and prices. The outlook for the months ahead certainly is not clear and whether or not it will improve and be in the intermediate trend may depend upon the individual's conception of what constitutes an intermediate trend.

General Steel Wares

The management of General Steel Wares is far-sighted enough to have increased their inventory position before the recent advances in copper, lead and zinc. The common paid save $1.80 per share a year on the preferred stock from the retirement of the former bond issue besides eliminating the exchange risks involved in the former three-way payment issue. After due allowance is made for the above mentioned saving the company would have shown the $7 dividend on the preferred practically earned in 1936.

Advice on Buying Bonds

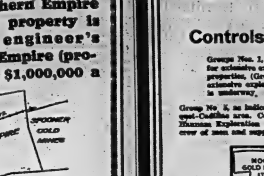
Some pertinent comment on the question of buying bonds is contained in an article by Oliver J. Gingold in Barron's, from which we quote:

One investor who came through the last depression with his investments practically unimpaired over a period of 25 years, practically unscathed, offers the following as rules considered in investing in bonds:

So far as his foreign bond holdings were concerned, he bought only those issued by the Scandinavian and hard-headed business nations. In this way he held bonds of the British Empire, including those of Canada and Australia, also obligations of Switzerland, Holland and Dutch securities, and even bought municipals and bonds of those not in close localities in preference to government bonds of other foreign nations.

In the purchase of domestic corporation bonds he placed management first in consideration and laid down the following dos'es:

Never buy bonds of a company which has shown over a long period of years a tendency to mortgage every asset as fast as collateral is lined up.



Avoid bonds of the more volatile industries which as a result likelihood depends on the management's sagacity in buying inventories.

Don't be carried away with grandiose banking and syndicate statements which may foreshadow they are selling bonds for the accumulation and may have nothing to do with the management of the company.

Southampton, Eng., March 23—(CP)—Claiming to be the first British airliner to gain a commission through the ranks of the British army since the cadet system was introduced 16 years ago, 21-year-old Second-Lieutenant Grenfell Finn-Smith, left for service in India with the 2nd Battalion Welsh Regiment, recently, "The army is the finest life in the world," declared the young subaltern.

Fire Destroys Garage at Victoria

Dog Awakens Mrs. E. Storms Too Late to Remove New Truck

Mountain View, March 23 (Special)—Awakened by the fierce howling of the family dog which was housed in the garage Mrs. Earl Storms, of the second concession of Ameliasburg, near Victoria, arose from her bed at three-thirty this morning only rushed to the garage to find it a blazing inferno of flame and smoke. A new Ford V 8 truck, the contents of the garage, and the building itself were completely destroyed. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Phillip Storms escaping from the dog in the garage awakened Mrs. Storms. Their neighbors gazed her to leave her bed and seek the cause of the animal's alarm. Thrusting open the door, she was met by a sheet of flame and smoke, which filling the house she put in an alarm, but neighbors rushing to the scene were powerless to salvage any of the contents. The dog which was slightly scorched, was otherwise unharmed.

While the origin of the fire is unknown, local residents are of the opinion that the fire could have been started by night prowlers in search of plunder, occurrences which have been prevalent in the neighborhood during the past few weeks.

FEARS EXPRESSED FOR "FLYING DUCHESS"

London, March 23—(AP)—Emergency workers in the Penlands turned from their struggle with a blizzard today to the problem of the "Flying Duchess," the 71-year-old Duchess of Sanford, in the air and unreported crashed on some watery field.

The Duchess, who has had considerable land covered with several feet of water for a smooth, dry landing place, took off from Croydon airfield for Woburn, Bedfordshire, on a pleasure flight. She never left Woburn, she took up flying when she was 70.

Airplanes roared off in the cold, clear dawn to comb the territory for a sign of the missing aeroplane and police resumed search of the Woburn Abbey estate, Duke's borough where a gamekeeper said he saw the plane fly over.

"I saw a plane flying very low over the wood," he related. "It was making a bad job of it and the chine disappeared from view, the engine seemed to fail and I think the plane must have come down."

Fishermen along the coast of Penlands and north of London. Woburn, where Woburn Abbey, seat of the Duke of Bedford, is located, is about 40 miles northwest of London.

Five hundred men searched the Woburn district throughout the night, using hurricane lamps to penetrate the remote sections of more covered woodlands.

Asked to Withdraw

"Have some decency," shouted Arthur Ellis (Con., Ottawa South).

"Withdraw that remark if you have any manhood," shouted George Henry, Conservative house leader.

"You can't talk about manhood", retorted Mr. Hepburn.

"I don't suppose you can either," said Mr. Henry.

Thomas Kidd, (Con., Kingston), was pounding his desk demanding withdrawal of the "insult", to every Opposition member.

"That shaft went home", commented Premier Hepburn to the ministers around him.

Wilfred Heightington, (Con. Toronto St. Davis) said the remark was "beneath" motives. He asked the Premier to be gracious enough to withdraw it.

"I'm prepared to follow your ruling" the Premier told the chairman.

"I said their attitude placed them in that position," continued the premier, "It is quite obvious that is their intention."

"Disgraceful," shouted Mr. Ellis.

Premier Hepburn is so offensive it makes me wonder why anybody wants to belong to this house," said Mr. Heightington. "It makes me feel like throwing up the sponge and quitting."

"Right around the buildings now are several prominent Conservatives who at the passing of the bill in case we might collect more money," declared Mr. Hepburn.

Little Co-operation.

"I hope you get what is owing the province," said Mr. Ellis.

"We are getting precious little co-operation from you," retorted the premier. The opposition attitude is that the "smoke screen" they had thrown up "puts them in the position of protecting crooks," the premier said.

Every prime minister's position is shorter than his memory or his sense of proportion," said Mr. Heightington. "It is a preposterous and insulting remark."

The debate continued. Finally Chairman Clark was heard ruling he had not heard anything from the words reflecting on the members of the opposition.

The Conservative protested the ruling. A standing vote was taken and the ruling was upheld on the same division a motion to call Speaker Price to the chair in the Chamber was defeated.

CAT

Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon said he wanted to know how Sam Lawrence, (Con., Hamilton West) voted. Mr. Lawrence said he misunderstood the first motion but his stand was with the opposition.

"That suits me fine," said Mr. Nixon. "I like to see you with the opposition."

"I'm stayed with my party more than you ever did," said Mr. Lawrence.

Mr. Ellis said the bill was a direct attempt to deal with criminal law, which was in the federal jurisdiction. Sections if it would be ruled ultra-vires.

The bill went through committee after a lengthy discussion, the opposition defeating changes as fast as the Conservatives offered them.

The measure now stands for third reading.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Fish Night at Flaherty's

By Walter C. Morgan

"I'm Mister Frank Rogers, the travelin' auditor, he says. The first thing I'll do is to take care of your petty cash. In the meanwhile he says, you can get busy an' open the safe. 'Yes, sahnar,' I says, an' when he turns he sees me wid a gun in me fist. 'You may be the auditor and you may not,' I says, 'but I'm the agent of this here railroad, an' you'll not lay hand on annythin' till I see your credentials. I'm no sucker,' I says."

The sleek young man with the bullet head removed the cigarette from his mouth long enough to inquire:

"And did he produce them?"

"He did so, Allie. An' wid that we shook hands, an' we've been good frinds ever since. Frank is up here from New York tonight, an' I have a date wid him. It's glad I am to have made your acquaintance, Allie, by station is at North 41st street, an' I don't often get out that way, but I hope to meet ye again. We'll have wan more little drink. Wake up per friend George."

It was Saturday night at Flaherty's, and Saturday night at Flaherty's is fish night. Mr. Donlin was enjoying himself. He was with him were barroom pickups.

Mr. Donlin tipped the waiter with a dollar bill taken from a bill-fold that appeared to Allie to be modestly well-filled. He bent his head toward Mr. Donlin and whispered a caution:

"Easy, brother. Careful how you flash your roll around here."

Mr. Donlin beamed on him reassuringly. "Don't worry, Allie, me boy, I am not sucker." He took off his hat and mopped his forehead with a handkerchief a shade redder than his face. "I'll be lavin' ye now," he said. " I must go to meet Frank."

Allie rose with him. He stooped and whispered in George's ear, then followed Donlin to the street.

"I didn't want George along," said Allie. "Just between ourselves, he's a blabermouth. Well, here's my corner. Come in and have one more on me."

They entered and Allie led the way to an uncoccupied room back of the bar. A sharp-eyed woman with a bright, handsome face and a mop of red hair attended them. As Donlin raised his glass the door opened, and he peered into the hore of an automobile. Behind the gun was a masked face, and behind that a voice reminiscent of George said: "Stick 'em up!"

Donlin complied. Allie made a quick sarcown movement of his head toward his hip. The gun shifted. "Cut that, or it's wipe for both of you. Get behind and roll him. Hand me the dough and no wise moves. Get me?"

Allie went through Donlin's pockets swiftly. He produced the red handkerchief, the cheap watch, and about fifty cents in change, but the billfold was missing.

"Where's the shtuff?" growled the bandit.

Donlin's features registered dejection. "Your frind George must have frisked me after all, Allie," he said. "An' I thought it was wise."

The girl who had left them appeared at the door and scanned fearfully. The bandit lowered his gun and shrank away from her.

"I told you to lay off your rocket in my place," she cried. "Give me that gun!" She snatched the gun from his hand and turning it on him forced him to the floor. "Open you bum," she cried, "scram!"

"I don't understand this thing," said Allie. "If George frisked you why did he come here to hold you up?"

Mr. Donlin was looking the gun over. He seemed to be interested in it.

"I think I can explain that to ye," he said, "but here, let me slip this gun into your pocket, I don't like to have it lyin' around; it's dangerous. Now, look. I'll show ye a little trick, an' you'll know why George came after me."

He took off his hat and held it so that Allie could see the bill-fold partly projecting from the sweatband.

Disallow Bill to Exempt Furniture In Executions Act

Toronto, March 23 (CP)—Despite a plea of Major J. H. Clark, Liberal member of Windsor, that the present legislation was barbaric and had resulted in untold hardship, the Legal Bills Committee, on the suggestion of Attorney General Roebuck, refused today to report an amendment to the Executions Act.

The amendment sought to exempt furniture and other chattels up to the extent of $1,000 from seizure for debt.

Attorney General Roebuck said the bill had some merit but it was too late in the session to work it out in detail. He suggested it be left over for further study during the recess of the House.

Presenting the case for the bill, opposed by nearly 100 legal representatives, Mr. Clark said he did not think anyone would buy furniture with the idea of defaulting a creditor.

"The crook will look after himself no matter what legislation we pass," he said. "People's furniture has been taken through their getting into debt through no fault of their own. I know of one returned soldier who suicided after he lost his furniture through no fault of his own. Surely it is a shameful state of affairs when such furniture can be taken. It is barbarous. It is merely the case of taking a pound of flesh. Nearly always the furniture brings nothing, it does not pay the debt."

Major Clark said he had $18,000 in furniture in his home which could have been subject to seizure.

"If you have that much it should be seized," said J. J. Glass, who added he was sure no creditor would overlook such an amount.

"If people are allowed to seize furniture at this time it is a reflection on the intelligence of the Legislature," declared Mr. Clark.

Mr. Roebuck said he was sympathetic to the principle involved but suggested the bill should not be reported in its present form. He promised to study the matter during the recess with the view of trying to meet the situation.

To Exempt Automobiles in the Mining Act

Amendment to the Mining Act which would have permitted miners to choose their own medical attendant was laid over for a special meeting of the committee.

John Rowlandson, Cochrane South, said the miners who paid $1.00 a month for medical services should have the right to select their own physician.

"One doctor in Kirkland Lake gets $1,000 a year and spends his winters in Bermuda," he said. He sends up students at half pay to take his place.

"It is a good thing he is not a member of the House or he would be kicked out," commented W. Baird, High Park.

Hon. Paul Leduc, Minister of Mines, stated the bill should not amend the Mining Act. It was finally decided to take the measure up with the Minister of Health and hold another meeting on the matter.

TARZAN'S QUEST

Gupingu pointed slyly to the ceremonial gourd and whispered to the woman who was preparing the beer. Then he left, with her his strange herb concoction and walked toward the palaver of warriors. He caught Udalo's gaze and nodded. The chief clapped his hands.

Women came, bringing food and drink. The ceremonial gourd was presented to Udalo. He raised it to his lips.

His throat moved, as if he were drinking, but none of the liquor passed his lips. Muviro, however, took a long gulp and passed it to the next warrior.

When all the strangers had drunk, food was set before them. Muviro did not eat. Instead, he was looking at gimpy-eyed ai his men. What had gone wrong with his eyes? Everything was blurred. His warriors sat with stony stares, their bodies swaying drunkenly.

Muviro's brain whirled, but he retained enough sense to realize that he and his men had been betrayed. He staggered to his feet, drew his long knife and whipped it from his loincloth. "KIU!!" he cried. "We have been poisoned!" Then he hurched and fell.

PROROGATION IS SET FOR THURSDAY

Premier Promises to Table All Contracts Concerning Quints

Toronto, Mar. 23 (CP)—Ontario Legislature today prepared to debate a bill repealing amendments to the 1936 Assessment Act, regarding division of corporation taxes between public and separate schools.

Premier Mitchell Hepburn informed George S. Henry, Conservative Home leader, before adjournment last night the opposition bill for repeal of the amendments would be called for second reading today. Mr. Henry assured the premier the opposition would co-operate in winding up legislature business to permit prorogation Thursday.

The budget debate ended in a 55 to 18 government victory on the time-honored motion to go into committee of supply. Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon who concluded the budget debate claimed the Conservatives were afraid to vote against the budget.

Sam Lawrence (C.C.F., Hamilton East) voted with the opposition while the only other Independent in the House, Farquhar Oliver (U.F.O., South Grey) voted with the government. Dr. A. D. Roberts (Lib., Sault Ste. Marie), read out of the party recently by Premier Hepburn, was not present for the division.

At the Training Camps . . . .

Lakeland, Fla., Mar. 23 (AP) — Southpaw pitching trouble was first on manager Mickey Cochrane's trouble list today as the Detroit Tiger camp. One of his best rookie bets, Clyde Hatter, was wild and ineffective in the 6-2 loss to Boston's Bees yesterday. Cochrane hoped for better work from other lefthanders today against Washington.

Orlando, Fla. Observers who watched Washington beat Boston, 4 to 1, said today it looks as if the playing days of Joe Cronin are ended.

Cronin yielded third base to Pinky Higgins and now is being heated for second base by a rookie from the west coast, Bobby Doerr.

San Bernardino, Calif.—Kept idle by a snowstorm yesterday, the Pittsburgh Pirates returned to the practice field today. Several players, including Lloyd Waner, were ill with colds.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Joe DiMaggio began the stormed leaf of a big player's worth in the big time, "the second year", with a pair of hits in his first game with the Yankees and a firm resolve to use a lighter bat as the season progresses.

Daytona Beach, Fla.—Dizzy Dean will get his first workout of the season under fire Sunday against the Detroit Tigers, manager Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals said today.

To Table Contracts.

"The bill to make Percy Wilson, Ontario official guardian, successor to Hon. David Croll, Welfare Minister, as one of the Dionne Quintuplets guardians went through the committee stage. Mr. Hepburn promised to table contracts made by the guardians on behalf of the babies.

Leopold Macaulay (Con., York South) declared the financial dealings of the quintuplet's were of public interest.

"I have no objection to making the contracts public but further contracts will be handicapped by publication of this information," the premier said. "If it becomes known companies pay for using the quints' names in their advertising, they might not want to renew the contracts."

"But there is nothing we want to cover up so we'll table them," he added.

The bill for the guardianship change then passed without objection.

Nothing to Worry About.

Arthur Ellis (Con., Ottawa South) urged that behind the government's bill to make the Investigatory powers of the securities commission retroactive was a thinly-disguised motive to "besmirch" Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative Senate leader. He said a Royal Commission already had inquired into dealings of companies with which the senate was connected.

"If he (Senator Meighen) is in the clear, he'll have nothing to worry about," commented Premier Hepburn.

CORONATION NEWS AND SOUVENIRS OVER THE TEA CUPS

Coronation news is now Front Page all the way and the interest in this great and colorful event is steadily growing especially among the women folks. All kinds of Coronation souvenirs have been prepared and are meeting ready sale, the most popular, perhaps, being Coronation Spoons, and various articles of jewelry. Accordingly the Salada Tea Company have hit upon the happy thought of presenting a Coronation souvenir in the form of a handy tea-caddy spoon to tea drinkers. The Salada Company by special arrangement with the Ontario Intelligencer has secured for each of the readers a very useful and handsome Tea Caddy Spoon. These spoons were exclusively made for Salada, commemorating the Coronation, and bear the official design of H. M. George VI and H. M. Queen Elizabeth.

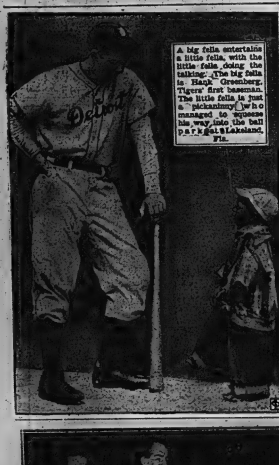
All that is required of readers of this newspaper in order to secure one of these Coronation Souvenir Spoons is to clip the Tea Pot trademark from a package of Salada and mail or deliver it with ten cents to this newspaper, using the coupon which will be printed in this paper from time to time while the offer is open. The spoon will be mailed promptly.

As this offer is for a limited time only those who wish to take advantage of it should do so at once.

There was a story going the rounds that the Cleveland front office wanted to make a Sunday pitcher out of Feller . . . That is, work him mostly on Sundays and jam the parks around the American League until "his box office value slumped. . . It didn't take Manager Steve Orlofi long to spike that one. . . He considers Feller a sure fire bet to win 20 or more games and will use him as often as consistent. . . Last time he worked Feller fanned five of six batters to face him and said he'd have got the last man if he'd had a little more rest on the ball.

London, March 23 (CP)—"It is a difficult thing to explain in the cold atmosphere of the court," said a witness in the King's Bench Division recently.

"Ask the attendants to lead it up few yrs," was the comment of the presiding Justice."



"I was speaking metaphorically," the witness explained.

A big fella entertains a little fella, with the little fella doing the talking. The big fella is Hank Greenberg, Tigers' first baseman. The little fella is just a pickaninny he managed to squeeze his way into the ball park at Lakeland, Fla.

MANTHA INJURED

The play-off chances of Boston Bruins suffered a setback with an injury to Sylvio Mantha. He suffered a cracked bone in the right elbow at Chicago recently. Sylvio, veteran defence man and formerly with Montreal Canadiens will be out for the remainder of the season. Manager Art Ross intends to drop Hooley Smith, reserve centre, back on defence with Bill Holleli.

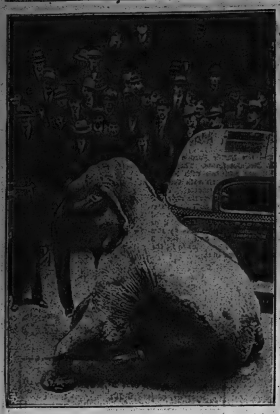
The Democracy of Print

. . . ster be rich or poor, highly placed or . . . e, everyone seeks news.

. . . e desire to know what is happening in the . . . is strong and instinctive; the need to . . . atisfy this natural curiosity urgent and persistent.



Before newspapers were available, few enjoyed the privilege of regular dependable news of events, ideas or achievements . . . men, manners or markets . . . beyond the restricted boundaries of their own communities. The settlers journeyed weary miles to maintain the necessary contacts with affairs and friends. Roads were few and primitive. Travel was difficult. Mails were infrequent and means of communication slow. In winter the "snowshoe express" took weeks to travel from Montreal to Niagara. Foreign news was scarce.

Today all the news from far and near is brought to every Canadian, quickly and completely, by his daily newspaper. No matter what his interests or occupation may be, it serves his needs. Day after day it provides up-to-date information which influences his opinions, plans and purchases. JUMBO STAGES BIGGEST SIT DOWN STRIKE YET

This elephant, a member of the circus troupe that performed in New York recently suddenly decided to emulate workers in other walks of life, by calling a "sit down strike" in the midst of traffic in mid-town Manhattan. INVESTIGATORS SEEK CAUSE OF SCHOOL BLAST

In order to test the theory that an accumulation of gas in boiler wells was responsible for the explosion that blotted out the lives of nearly 500 school children at New London, Texas, investigators are shown breaching the wall of a wing of the building which survived the blast. Claim that the school was receiving stolen gas from a nearby well has been denied by William C. Shaw, superintendent of the school. The charge has been made by an oil field foreman. A military board of inquiry is investigating the explosion.

ARE WORLD'S MOST HANDSOME MEN, SAYS MISS CARROL

Ranking the ten, who in her opinion, constitute the world's most handsome men, beautiful blonde Madeleine Carroll, British screen star, missed completely the masculine element of Hollywood and didn't give the world's younger element a "tumble". TOP three in Miss Carroll's album are President Franklin D. Roosevelt of United States, No. 1; George Bernard Shaw, Irish playwright, No. 2, and England's foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, No. 3. Explaining her selections, Miss Carroll asserted that she considered few young men handsome. Merely good looks do not score in her ratings. Miss Carroll classing handsome men as those who "have reached their goal through effort that tries courage and develops intellect." HIGH NOON

by RUBY M. AYRES

"Well, Caesar'll tell you all about it," Bobbie said in rather a bored tone. He told me, but that was only because I was the only one handy, and he had to tell some one." He shrugged his shoulders good-naturedly as Heather ran past him into the house; nothing always got excited about things.

Heather went quickly enough to Caesar's room, although she was trembling with excitement. The room was in darkness, except for the firelight, but she could see Caesar in his armchair, his head resting against its padded back, his beautiful hands, which he so prized, by toasted had never done a day's work, folded on his knees.

She went forward timidly. "Father," and then as he did not speak she laid a hand on his.

But Caesar did not move or answer; Caesar had gone, far away with his dreams, where nothing could ever disturb his serenity.

O-O-O

Bobbie dragged the last strap of the big trunk into its place and stood up, wiping his hot forehead with his sleeve.

"That's that," he said with satisfaction. He looked across the room to where Effie sat by the window, her chin propped in her hands, looking with gloomy eyes at the strapped trunk with its black and white label, which read "Cape Town." With a quiver in her voice, she said, "Won't it be simply awful, without you?"

"Of course it won't be awful," Bobbie retorted firmly. "We're lucky. You're simply fond of fairy stories that I wonder you don't see that this is better than any of that rubbish. Look at the home we've got! Look at old Henry—look at that house which nobody ever thought for a minute would have anything in it to mention call that a happy ending you're barmy."

Instalment 20

Effie seemed to have tumbled over one of her own fairy tales in succession that Effie had hardly been able to realise them, but now with that CAPE TOWN label on the big trunk staring at her from the other side of the room she felt the necessity for "sorting herself out" as she would have expressed it.

Violet's tragic death — Caesar's death — the story of a love affair which nobody had ever dreamed would come their way — the sale at Tregley — their wonderful fortune, and their own removal to Henry Meadows — the big discovery she found it all very difficult to understand. One moment Heather had been engaged to Henry and Bruce to Violet, and the next moment Violet was no more and Bruce was to marry Heather.

She realised that in a way it was a wonderful thing and something she had always subconsciously longed for—that Bruce, to whom she loved best of all should marry and live happy ever after, but her happiness was blunted a little by the tragic knowledge that the "others" seemed to be cruelly left out of things.

She had hated it when the furniture was sold and taken away from Tregley, even though Henry had tried to comfort her by saying that her lip quiver he said, "I've got a surprise for you—come and I'll show you."

"What is it?" she asked miserably, and he answered "What do you want most in the world?"

"For Heather to stay with us," she said quickly.

His smile faded, and for a moment he looked as if something were hurting him badly, though he was pressed almost at once. "Well—I mean after that, of course! What would be the next best thing?"

"To have a pony of my own," Effie said dolefully, and then, "But——"

"It's waiting in the stables," he interrupted. "It's a dapple-Grey along."

She was all smiles as she went with him hanging onto his arm and babbling away in her excitement. "Oh, you are a darling. What shall we call it? Oh, Henry, there can't be any one so wonderful as you in all the world!"

From one of its sitting rooms, which had been given over entirely to her use for packing and sorting out her things, Heather heard the little conversation, and paused for a moment to listen.

How wonderful Henry was. She thought—always cheery and ready to shoulder other people's troubles, both his own and those of others. He had devised ways and means of dispelling them. There were times in her eyes as through the window she saw his head figure with Effie clinging to his arm, disappear everything.

It was Henry who had solved all the difficulties—Henry who had planned as if she were his daughter instead of the woman she knew he loved. He had bought a new flat, a week after Caesar had died, when driven by her own unhappiness she had come here to see him. He had found him in the study one of her lives for Bruce, and of all the mistakes she felt she had made in spite of her wanting to do what was best for every one.

He had listened in absolute silence, with no sign of emotion, until she had finished, and then he had said, very simply:

"That's how I look to me, my dear. I'm a short-sighted man in many ways but when I'm....I'm....fond of any one I see all there is to see. I always felt that Logan—cared for you more than he did for that poor child Violette, but I wasn't sure enough, too, perhaps because I didn't want to be. I closed his throat loudly. "Well, now we shall have to be content with that's all, and see what's the best thing to do, he said in a business like way.

She looked at him unhappily.

"You must think I've behaved badly-stupidity." But he had silenced her quickly.

"Whatever you do is right for me," he said, "I'd endure you more than any other woman—or man for that matter." He paused, and then for an instant his voice had faltered, as he added. "If you're going to be happy, that's all that matters. You've had more than your share of trouble, God knows."

But he had not allowed much sentiment to enter into their conversation; he had talked about the future, about the family, and had thought of everything—and then they should all come to stay with him as Tregley was to be sold.

"If.....things had gone as I.....thought they would," he said, "I should have had you all, for the rest of my life, so don't you think I might be allowed to have some of you just a few weeks?" He had put his foot firmly down on Heather's suggestion that she and Bruce should take Effie to South Africa with them.

"And spoil your honeymoon?" he demanded. "Nonsense—let her stay with me and Old Priddy, and they can go out to you in the spring. I may even bring myself! It's years since I had a real holiday."

His hadn't spoken of his own bitter disappointment, and when she tried to say something to express her deep affection for him and her gratitude, he said:

"I once thought you might have been my wife, my dear, but I can see now it is better as it is, and—I shall think of you as a daughter all I may."

She had not been able to answer for tears, and he had changed the subject by telling her that Priddy was to be their chief companion, and paused for a moment to listen.

Now wonderful Henry was. She thought—always cheery and ready to shoulder other people's troubles, both his own and those of others. He had devised ways and means of dispelling them. There were times in her eyes as through the window she saw his head figure with Effie clinging to his arm, disappear everything.

OXFORD WINS FIRST VICTORY IN 14 YEARS

OXFORD VICTORS IN 91ST RENEWAL OF HISTORIC RACE

Defeat Cambridge, Thirteen Times Consecutive Winners

TIME IS SLOW

Oxonians Finish With Terrific Speed in Ideal Weather

Putney-on-Thames, Mar. 24 (CP) — After thirteen consecutive disappointments, Oxford today broke Cambridge's long series of boat race victories by beating the light blues by three lengths in the 91st renewal of the intervarsity classic first rowed in 1829.

The Oxonians finished with a terrific burst of speed to cover the last 300 yards after holding their own over the first four miles of the winning course from Putney Bridge to Mortlake. Every member of the heavier dark blue eight continued upright after the finish line was crossed, while several members of the Cambridge crew slumped heavily over their oars.

Oxford completed the course in 22 minutes, 39 seconds, the slowest time since 1877 when the race resulted in a dead heat in 24 minutes, 45½ seconds. Cambridge finished the record of 18 minutes, 3 seconds, made in 1911.

The victory brought the number of Oxford triumphs to 41 against 49 for Cambridge. It was the first Oxford victory since 1923 and the second since the Great War. In addition to the 1877 dead heat, both boats sank in 1913 and in 1859 Cambridge's shell was swamped in a gale.

Perfect Weather.

The classic was rowed under perfect weather conditions. A light pleasant beat down and the waters of the Thames were scarcely ripped by a soft westerly wind.

The course was lined with thousands and other crews and the towpaths and embankments were crowded with spectators. But despite the fine weather the crowds did not measure up to the usual 500,000.

A. B. Hodgson, the winning stroke, told newspapermen "it was a very pretty race until Chalmers' crew stops, then we were able to get a bit

'STRIP TEASE' IS TOO HOT FOR ENGLAND

London, March 24—(AP) — The American "strip tease" may be on—but "it's too hot for England."

Diane was imported direct from Manhattan for a new show to open Monday—but the argument over "strip teasing" started before she landed in England.

Black arranged a preview of the dancer's specialty in private audience and to th dragging cadence of a blues number, Diane took off her clothing bit by bit while Black's eyes widened—bit by bit.

Black then pronounced his sentence: "It may be art—but it's too hot for England."

Diane's backers appealed to the Lord Chamberlain's office, the department which censors plays.

Diane, in a bewildered voice, protested.

"I don't see what you're mad about. I wear boots, don't I?"

50 MILE SPEED BILL IS PASSED

Will Come Into Effect Shortly After Prorogation of Legislature

Motorists in the Province of Ontario will shortly be permitted to travel at fifty miles per hour on the open highways, and at thirty miles per hour in cities, towns and villages.

The bill to increase the present speed limit passed quickly through Committee of the Whole House Tuesday afternoon, without any opposition and stands now for third reading. It will become law upon proclamation, probably soon after the House prorogues. The limit before the bill was introduced was 30 miles per hour on the highways and twenty in populated areas.

Originally the bill called for complete abolition of speed limitations. It was introduced by J. H. Clark (Lib. Windsor-Sandwich) but in the Committee of the Whole House the Liberal members agreed to a proposal from Hon. George D. Henry that a fifty-mile per hour limit be set.

Premier Satisfied

Premier Hepburn said that he's a conservative gentleman. Premier Hepburn told the House, "I know the members for Windsor-Sandwich was disappointed about the amendment, but the Leader of the Opposition made a very fine compromise. I do not believe fifty miles is an excessive speed when you have to travel that far," he concluded facetiously, "in addition to the earth driving to fifty miles and keep within the law."

"Make it forty, that's fast enough for me," declared Hon. George Marshall.

The amendments were not put in motion form and a few minutes later the bill passed through committee stage.

Father and Son Charge Police with False Arrest

Brussels Drovers Claim They Were Handcuffed And Money Taken Away

FATHER IS ILL

Stratford, Ont., March 24—(CP) —Action may be taken against two Provincial Police Constables by Archibald L. Mercer, aged 63, well-to-do Brussels drover and his son, Ian, both mistaken yesterday for robbers and charged in court with theft.

"We have instructed our solicitor, Senior Hall of Brussels and Seaforth, to examine the law and advise us how to advise Donnelly on proceedings against the Provincial Police for assault and battery, shooting with intent to do bodily harm, and false arrest, said Ian McDonald, graduate in commerce of the University of Toronto.

"We are awaiting the outcome in the case of my father who collapsed as a result of the experience. He was put to bed with a blood pressure of 200 and is reported today suffering a paralytic stroke. For this we certainly will take civil damages," said the son.

Ian McDonald said they had shipped a car of 60 pigs and because of exchange difficulties had taken a cheque for $956 to Stratford to take back to Brussels. He had the cheque in an envelope in a coat pocket and was accompanied by his father and two men in a motor car travelling more than 50 miles an hour when they stop Ian nine mile north of Mitchell yesterday.

Thought They Were Hold Up

"The men were in plain clothes and I thought it was a hold-up" said the son. "I have driven my car at 97 miles an hour, but I drove faster yesterday than I ever did before. When we came t, the police threw cheese factory I was a team of horses and some men there and decided to try them for

FILIBUSTER OF CONSERVATIVES BREAKS AT 3 A.M.

Education Estimates Pass After Nixon Declares No Adjournment

GRANTS CRITICIZED

Geo. S. Henry Forced to Withdraw Remark Against Premier

Toronto, Mar. 24 (CP)—Ontario legislature members today prepared for the government's stand on Conservative demands for repeal of the 1936 school tax law amendments which re-apportioned corporation taxes among separate city public schools.

Government heads were silent when questioned last night on what Premier Hepburn planned as a reply to Conservative demands. Hon. Dr. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education, and Attorney General Arthur Roebuck were asked if they favored the bill urged by Hon. George Henry, Conservative House leader, for repeal of the amendments. Mr. Hepburn was not in the House.

Leopold Macaulay (Con., York South) questioned Mr. Roebuck when he would support the bill for repeal.

"My opposition to repeal is on the point and make me answer a question I don't want," said Dr. Simpson.

Goldwin Bigle (Con. Toronto-Woodbine) queried Mr. Roebuck and was told: "Wouldn't you like to know."

"He doesn't know," said Mr. Henry, nodding at Roebuck.

"It's an important question at the best," retorted Mr. Roebuck.

Both questions arose when the House was discussing education department estimates. Conservatives had launched a blockade of a $5,193,000 estimate for public and separate school grants.

Filibuster Lengthy.

Conservatives filibustered from 11 p.m. to nearly 3 a.m. Mr. Henry in

PLEA FUTILE IN SUICIDE THREAT

14-Year-Old Boy Tried to Argue Father Out of Intention

Oxford, N.Y., March 24—(AP)—A 14-year-old boy fought almost two hours to argue his father out of a suicide threat, State Police Sergeant Bernard Simmons said today.

Young quoted the boy, Joseph Smith, as telling his father, a 45-year-old cripple and unemployed miner, told him last night:

"Dad, I'm going to the barn and driving to fifty miles and keep within the law."

Leopold Macaulay (Ona., York South), suggested a forty-five-mile limit.

"Make it forty, that's fast enough for me," declared Hon. George Marshall.

The amendments were not put in motion form and a few minutes later the bill passed through committee stage.

FLYING DUCHESS STILL MISSING

Squadron of Planes And Ground Crew Carry on Search

London, March 24—(AP)—Search parties, flying from 10 stations of the Royal Air Force joined with the heavy inlet of the North Sea—and even hunted out to sea, today in a search for Miss Beryl Markham, 28-year-old airwoman.

Princess Caetani, the Duchess disclosed she might have flown to her death in an attempt to realize an ambition to round out her 199 hours or solo flying into even 200, the planned for a short trip around" of about two hours when she took off.

The Duchess took up flying when she was 17 and has flown in all some 30,000 miles.

Change in School Tax Rumored at Queen's Park

Premier Hepburn Refuses to Comment But States He Will Speak on Henry B ill on Second Reading of Bill to Increase Speed Limit to 50 M.P.H. Delayed.

Toronto, March 24—(CP) Ontario Legislature adjourned at noon today with an air of expectancy. Reports, mounting in persistency, said Premier Mitchell Hepburn would announce important changes in the school tax law today. The Premier kept silence.

"I'll speak on the Henry Bill probably tonight," was his only comment.

The House had a quiet sitting this morning. Estimates and Bill were through with a rush in the afternoon and evening sessions and unless unexpected delays occur prorogation Thursday seemed assured.

Bill is Delayed

Third reading of the Bill to increase automobile speed limits in Ontario was delayed by the Ontario Legislature today.

Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, said he wished to comment on the Bill when James Clark (Lib., Windsor-Sandwich), was in the House. Mr. Clark sponsored the original Bill to abolish the speed limit.

Premier Hepburn indicated there would be no election this year, when moving Second Reading of the Bill to name a permanent chairman of the Committee of the Whole, who would also be Deputy Speaker.

"At the next session in all probability there will be a Redistribution Bill and it will be a longer session than usual, he said. "For this reason there will be a real need for the appointment of a permanent Chairman of the Committee of the Whole".

George Henry, Conservative House Leader, agreed the need for a permanent Committee Chairman was apparent.

46 YEARS SERVICE WITH RAILROAD ENDS TODAY

John W. Lloyd of C.N.R. Shops Retires on Pension

Outstanding forty-six years of faithful service in the employ of the Canadian National Railway, John W. Lloyd, 203 John Street, engine inspector at the C.N.R. shops here, tills a landmark for the last time in active service at four o'clock today. He will be added to the ranks of the pensioned employees of the company and retires to enjoy the fruits of a life filled with the faithful discharge of his duty.

Born in Napanee, sixty-five years ago, Mr. Lloyd came to Belleville as an apprentice at the age of 15 and secured a job in the old Grand Trunk locomotive shops as an engine-wiper under the foremanship of Mr. W. D. Rolph.

These shops were located next to the present C.N.R. station, where the Dover Road now are at present.

His initiative and ambition to work soon gained for him recognition of his superiors, and within six months he was given a fireman's job, a position he maintained until 1901. Mr. Lloyd recalls vividly the old wood-burning engines which were rapidly becoming obsolete at the time he first entered into the railroad service.

Further promotion was forthcoming and for nine years he was classified as a locomotive engineer.

In 1911 he again entered the locomotive shops, this time in charge of the staff, a position he has held until the present day. In his period of service, Mr. Lloyd has served under a number of foremen, all well known in Belleville railway circles. Among these were Messrs. W. D. Rolph, Phil. Yeigher, Mr. Marks, Mr. Hall, W. H. Towner, J. Walsh, F. C. Ward, and the present foreman, Mr. A. H. Noble.

YOUTHS ADMIT STEALING CAR

Questioned by Police And Answers Proved Unsatisfactory

Windsor, Ont., March 24—(CP)—Three explanations they gave police today concerning the car they were driving proved unsatisfactory, Sandy Gadsby, 24, of 2664 The Street) Port Colborne, and George Rogers, 20, of (21 Marquis Street) St. Catherines, were taken to police headquarters and questioned for three hours. Later they said the car was stolen and that articles of jewelry found in their possession were stolen loot from a house robbery in Strathroy.

Police reported that Brown was at the wheel when they halted the car, on Huron Church line just north of Sandwich. He was missing and the officers found a driver's license, a registration license and ownership card. Brown said he had borrowed the car from his father and had neglected to bring the cards with him.

The officers then inquired about the keys to the car but were told both keys had been broken. The officers at this stage thought the pair could stand further investigation. Searching the car, they found a permit case bearing the name Thomas Nolman, and the address (13 Hillcrest Street) St. Catherines. Nolman said he has flown in all some 30,000 miles.

YOUTHS ADMIT STEALING CAR

Questioned by Police And Answers Proved Unsatisfactory

Windsor, Ont., March 24—(CP)—Three explanations they gave police today concerning the car they were driving proved unsatisfactory, Sandy Gadsby, 24, of 2664A The Street) Port Colborne, and George Rogers, 20, of (21 Marquis Street) St. Catherines, were taken to police headquarters and questioned for three hours. THOROLD TO PLAY HERE ON FRIDAY

First Game in Intermediate Finals to be Staged in Local Arena

Eddie Thomas, manager of the Belleville Redmen, announced late this afternoon that the first game of the intermediate O. H. A. final series, for the championship of the province, would definitely be played at the Belleville Arena on Friday night with the Thorold "Mooshaw-ers" as the Redmen's opponents.

As first Manager Thomas had thought of moving the venue of the game to artificial ice, but as the local intermediates are accustomed to the local ice surface and due to the fact it is the first O.H.A. final series to be participated in by Belleville hockey fans in 21 years, Manager Thomas deemed it advisable to give the home town fans the opportunity. The series is the best two in three. The Thorold "Mooshawers" will arrive here this afternoon highly heralded by the O.H.A. having eliminated Clinton "Colts" from the semi-finals. Tickets for the game will go on sale tonight and Eddie Thomas, popular sports supervisor, said a conference between company heads and officials of the United Automobile Workers of America, would continue this afternoon in the hope of settling the dispute on a basis equitable to the interests of both groups.

Letter 'E' Unused in Novel Running into 50,110 Words

Story "That is Different" Reads Very Smoothly Say Readers

SAMPLE OF WRITING

By WALTER R. CLAUSE

Los Angeles, Calif., Mar. 24 (AP)—Ernest Vincent Wright, 66, sat down to write a novel that would be different. Today, after 5 years, he has typewriter and completed the story. It's the words.

"E" Bar Tied Down.

"Let's tie down the "E" bar and tell about it!

Publication of a four-stanza composition without a common fifth symbol, and acclaim of it as most novel, got him to thinking.

And so Wright got it, writing this fantastic composition. It was difficult at first. Most pronouns and articles, for him, "E" words, said, grinning and pulling at gray hairs of his trim, triangular growth on his chin.

Four Months' Work.

Four months and 30 days it took to do it all.

It is amazingly smooth. No halting parts. A continuity of plot and thought clear clairvoyant words.

Try a snatch-grab at his manuscript, at random, say a fourth down, and it will read like this in introductions and find this as typical:

"I think I know you should know this charming Gadsby family. So first I will bring forth Lady Gadsby, known as such through Mayor Gadsby's inauguration. Her self-sacrificing efforts take part in many a city activity, such as clubs and church women with vocal ability for choir work and good capability on piano and organ. No woman could fill a so many ways; no woman was so willing and ready to do so.

Wright calls his book "Gadsby—Champion of Youth". It is about a mayor who commits his youth in his administration.

Writing this way is a good thing for an insomnia victim to try.

YOUNGSTERS YEARN FOR CHOCOLATE BUNNIES

Rabbits, bunnies everywhere. Little rabbits, large rabbits, rabbits in various hues and sizes, odd sizes, even ones, bunnies standing on their hinder legs, bunnies on all fours, bunnies reclining at ease, others peacefully munching an insipid breakfast, in fact an army of the chocolate animals has invaded Belleville in numbers seldom seen in the city. Departmental stores, confectionery stores, and restaurants are showing displays of chocolate rabbits that are a source of wonderment and envy to the youth of the city.

And speaking of the brown and brown delicacies, is the proverbial Easter egg, clothed in brilliant raiment of multi-coloured hues. These too vary in size and consistency. The usual brushes of confectionery artists have converted these symbols of the humble hen's eggs into things of beauty.

Arranged in attractive displays in the various stores the pre-Easter showings of the things dear to the hearts of the children are proving to be the synonym of the eyes to the younger generation of the city and district.

KID STEALS SHOW ON HUMAN SEAL

When the Armenian "Human Seal" refused to take to the water in Lindsay yesterday, because a dozen or more small boys were in the pool to the eastern trade. In spite of the obvious fact that no unusual price is expected to be registered, according to Mr. Church. During the present winter there has been a great production of eggs, but as prices are down for eggs and high for feed there has been a tendency for many farmers to kill off their stock. This has brought the prices of poultry down, particularly feeding fowl.

Ducks and geese are not available in any large quantity, while turkeys will also be relatively scarce for Easter buyers, it was reported.

They didn't say a word about being police. I was knocked down by a horse I was hiding near by and the man by my father turned and fired his revolver, frightening the horse. My father thought it was shot."

The father and son were handcuffed and the envelope containing $956 was taken before they were allowed to show their identity, the son said. Mr. J. E. Walmsley Resigns As Tabernacle S. S. Sup't

Official For Nearly Sixty Years Tenders Resignation

A. D. ARCHIBALD NAMED

The session of the Tabernacle United Church met on Tuesday night and very regretfully accepted the resignation of Mr. J. E. Walmsley as superintendent of the Sunday School.

Mr. Walmsley was elected secretary-treasurer of the school in 1874 when the Tabernacle congregation worshipped in the building where the Coca-Cola plant now operates. He continued until 1886 in the office when the pressure of civic duties caused him to relinquish the position for six years. In 1900 he resumed the duties and in 1917 he was elected superintendent of the Sunday School.

Mr. A. D. Archibald, who for many years has been superintendent of the Sunday School at John Street Methodist Church, was congregation of which disbanded some years ago on the decision not to rebuild, will succeed Mr. Walmsley as the superintendent of the Tabernacle Sunday School. Mr. Archibald has had a long experience in Sunday School work.

Pioneers of Dungannon Twp. Happily Wed Sixty Years

John And Mrs. Wood Live Quietly at Hillier in P. E. County

REEVE OF TWP.

They talked of the good old days. They lived again the times, when the northern part of the county of Hastings rang to the sound of life, pioneers axe, the hammer and saw to log cabins gaining the being of the long dangerous treks by horse, sleigh and wagon, by the dim light of lanterns.

In the bright lamplight of their home near Hillier, Prince Edward County, where they have resided for the past fifteen years, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood, hardy pioneers of Dungannon Township, Hastings County, surrounded by a number of the friends of many years, many of whom made the long journey from Dungannon, quietly celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding on Saturday night last.

Rather it was a celebration of reminiscence that a few hours of anniversaries. For this fine old couple, both of whom are in their early eighties, spent the evening talking with the old friends of the days of long ago.

Three Day Trek

For instance there was John McGee of Scholarie, who fifty-seven years ago, with Mr. Wood, assisted Mr. and Mrs. Wood, when they moved from Lanark to Dungannon Township. Not one could almost hear the jingle of sleigh bells, the howl of the wind, and the sound of lumbering sleighs as the party started on their three day trek to their new home. There were many others there too, who told many interesting stories of the yesteryear.

Sixty years ago, on March 21st, to be exact, John Wood and Jenny Black to the altar in the Presbyterian Church in Middville, Lanark County, where the Rev. J. Cochrane made these man and wife.

Interested from his boyhood in the manufacture of cheese and other dairy produce, Mr. Wood soon became affiliated with the Dungannon Cheese Factory attaining the managership of that plant at an early age and retaining it until 1886.

Settled on Crown Land

But the pioneer instinct of the man was not satisfied. Hearing of news that crown lands were to be obtained he immediately made application and received a grant of two hundred acres near Turriff in Dungannon Township, Hastings County. He resigned his position with the cheese factory, packed his belongings and with his family started the hazardous journey over roads, which were nothing more than trails. In the early spring, they arrived at their land, through woods, which rang at times with the plaintive cry of the wolf-pack, the little party, accompanied by John McGee travelled for four days before they came in sight of their new home.

There in Turriff they established their residence and by virtue of their willingness to help in anything, which meant for the advancement of the community and the help of their fellowman soon won a place in the hearts of all who knew them in the district. The Wood home soon became known far and wide. It was the centre of hospitality and a meeting place for many of the surrounding neighbors. "The Good Samaritan of Dungannon" Mrs. Wood was familiarly termed by all, who knew her. While she never took an active interest in outside life, she was always ready to help a neighbor in distress. Many an ache and pain, both physical and otherwise, disappeared within the friendly grip of the Wood homestead under the motherly care of Mrs. Wood.

Reeve of Township

Leaving the care of the homestead to his stalwart sons, Mr. Wood branched out in another field of endeavour. He became affiliated with a prominent manufacturing company, then in its embryotic stage, and brought the latest developments in labor-saving devices to the notice of his friends. His efforts were not confined to this line of work alone. He took part in passing interest in the welfare of his township and by dint of his initiative and actions was elected to the position of Reeve of Dungannon, a position he held for several years. In 1886 he resigned from that position and removed to his present home in Hillier. He was a valued member of the Hillier Township Council and during the number of years he sat as a member of that body his services were highly valued and his advice often sought in the momentous questions of the day.

Members of the present Hastings County Council, who are still active in that body speak in glowing terms of the ability of John Wood in his effort for the furtherance of benefits for his township.

But time and the strenuous life of the old days, tireless activity, and an ambition, which would not be denied took its toll. Fifteen years ago John Wood resigned his position as Reeve of Dungannon, disposed of his property and retired to live his declining days in the peaceful quiet of his present home in Hillier.

Scotch Descendant

A descendant of old Scottish Presbyterian stock, he has been a lifelong member of the Presbyterian Church. For twenty-five years he controlled the destinies of the Middleville Lodge, A.F. and A.M. and in Masonic circles he was elected to the position of Master of the Bancroft Lodge in which he was held in high esteem. He was also a member of the Royal Arch Masons at Madoc.

And as they sat, this fine group of old people, Unable to get to the home because of the drifts and difficulties of the road leading thereto, they waited the distance to the house to be with the friend of their childhood days, William Reddy, of Wellington, who attended the same school as Mr. Wood sat near his host. Another group, silver haired, and mentally alert added to the animated conversation of the things that used to be.

But modernism who suddenly injected into this pastor of the hardy generation. A spry little miss, grand-daughter of the guest of honor suddenly sprang to her feet and gave the assembled guests the 1937 version of a fox-trot.

Hardly had the applause died down than a school friend of Mr. Wood, well in his eighties rose to his feet, "John" he said, "shall I show them how to dance a right hand reel." And at the host's nod of acquiescence, some of the old people rose to their feet and gave a fine demonstration of the dance which thrilled the youth of their day.

Luncheon Served

Later in the evening a delicious luncheon was served by members of the Women's Institute and which was featured by the presentation of a beautiful birthday cake, decorated with silver, and suitably inscribed with the dates 1877-1937. Many gifts and tokens of congratulation were received by Mr. and Mrs. Wood.

Nine children were born to the union, seven of whom were present at the anniversary. One daughter, Mrs. M. L. Black of Turriff died in 1926. A son, J. W. Wood of Toronto was unavoidably absent. Members of the family present were: Mrs. I. L. Burd and J. F. Wood, Wellington, Miss Ada and Mr. and Mrs. C. Wood of Hillier, M. R. Wood, Turriff, Mrs. M. O. Hubel and J. N. Wood of Toronto, and Miss James West of Hastings.

CAR ABANDONED NEAR A GARAGE

Note Left in Door to Repair Car as Driver Would be Back

Mystery surrounds an abandoned automobile at MacCauley's garage in Marysville some time early Tuesday, Provincial Police are announced today. The automobile, a Hudson sedan bearing Ontario licence plates number 168-C-3 was found in front of Mr. MacCauley's garage as he opened his place for business early Tuesday. Stuck to the door or the car was a note that read—"Mac—car needs repairs, think bearings burned out. Will be back Friday," and the note was signed in pencil K. Harden, Toronto. On the back of the slip of paper, however, was the name Tom Waters, Shuter St., Toronto.

Inspector Gardner today was investigating the matter and believes it mean him to believe the abandoned car may have been used by a quartette of Toronto post office robbers, who were apprehended in Gananoque on Sunday afternoon by Provincial Constable Mortley Stanford and held in connection with the theft or $1,400 worth of stamps and $600 in currency from a sub-post office in Toronto on March 19th. Provincial Police are making enquiries as how the parties to leave the abandoned car at Marysville continued their journey, unless travelling in two automobiles. The vehicle is being held by the Provincial Police for further investigations and persons to claim the vehicle will be questioned.

"We have no connecting link between the automobile and the post office robbers except a description of a similar car given by Toronto police and in which the robbers are alleged to have been travelling."

The men gave the names of Fred Bailey 25, Hamilton Street; Edward Darling, 26, Jarvis Street; Charles Brown, 29, Gerrard Street, and Leonard Hill, Russell Avenue. Gananoque officers stopped the quartet as they drove through that town. The car was driven by Brown, but registered under Hill's name.

SPRING FEVER STRIKES TOWN

Marbles Roll, Ropes Skip And Tops Spin

Marbles and roller skates, skipping ropes and tops, muddy playgrounds and water covered sidewalks.

Belleville residents are experiencing their first touch of spring fever this week as balmy zephyrs, the first of the season, spread their spring caress over the district, sending temperatures rising under the bright rays of a strong morning sun, and urging local housewives to dragging cabinets for the tools of spring cleaning.

For the majority of all large it has no far been a week for unbuttoned overcoats and yearning sighs. For offices and business houses it has been a pause in weeks of unseasonable weather, a pause during which time doors have swung open idly on their hinges, the cleaning department of public works at means the first careful measuring of work that annually must be done, the clearing of streets and roads from the debris left by the melting snow.

Complaints Heard

Winter this year has left no heaped drifts on embankments through the business section of the city, but during the past week or so of drier weather deep ruts have formed from the tons of cinders and sand that have been scattered over the main intersections and hills to reduce the menace of ice.

Chief among the complaints being received by the works department at the city hall during the past few days have been those arising from the deep ruts, solidified by the seepage from lawns and soils along their borders. Not all of the complaints also being received at the present time are those due to the muddy condition of school playgrounds. This week a survey is being undertaken by city engineer Chas. Mott in an effort to find some remedy for this condition following an official request by the Board of Education.

FINE DISPLAY SEEN IN FLOWER SHOP

One of the most interesting and novel window displays to be seen in Belleville is noted in the flower shop of Dorothy P. Quick, Bridge Street this week. The Easter season is bringing very much to the fore with a glorious display of Easter Lilies, Hyacinths and Rose Bushes banked around a very happy little looking of Easter chicks housed in a very complete, small-scale incubator and brooder. The colorful Easter decorated in the colors of purple and yellow raffia, replete with drinking fountain, food container and other accessories lend to their comfort. The baby chicks were supplied by the Hatchery of the Leith Canadian Company Limited of this city.

$1,000 OBJECTIVE RED CROSS DRIVE IN BELLEVILLE

Dr. W. S. Caldwell Speaks to Local Branch Supporting Appeal

LOCAL ACTIVITIES

One thousand dollars will be the objective of the annual campaign of the local branch of the Red Cross Society, it was decided at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. when Dr. W. S. Caldwell, assistant director of the Ontario Division of the Red Cross met with Belleville members to discuss arrangements for the drive.

The campaign this year will be undertaken the last week of April and at the meeting yesterday detailed plans were made for its success. The president, Mr. I. O. Hefkey was in the chair, and conveners of the various phases of Red Cross work in the city reported on the accomplishments of the past season.

1,300 Articles Completed

Mrs. Stuart Lasier, vice president of the branch, who is in charge of sewing room activities reported that 1,300 articles completed by the various groups affiliated with the Red Cross were distributed through Miss Lynch of the Welfare department and other agencies. The School for Leisure of John Street; United Church made two hundred and forty articles, and no pains of son; the Home and School Club of Queen Alexandra School, one hundred and forty-two garments; Collegiate group under the convenership of Miss Dwyer, forty-seven knitted articles; Mrs. Gordon's group, thirty-six articles; Mrs. Cameron's group — four hundred articles; St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E.—fifty articles; Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E.,—forty articles; Women's Conservative Club—sixty articles, Women's Liberal Club—seventy-five articles.

Other activities included the distribution through Miss Lynch of 150 mattresses, 192 kitchen utensils and a quantity of clothing received from the Air Station. Cod Liver oil and milk were given to children in need, and families of two returned men were helped. Other welfare enterprises were assisted and one occasion was reported to be sent to the flooded areas in the United States.

Miss Anna Hurley, secretary-treasurer of the Red Cross, reported that $940 had been collected in the campaign last year and that there was a balance of $40.

Reports were received from Mrs. A. D. Archibald, convener of the Home Nursing Classes which were attended regularly by about thirty and were conducted by Mrs. Forsyth and Mrs. Taylor; from Mrs. MacPherson, convener of the Outpost Red Cross which was making marked progress.

Mr. Hefkey announced that Belleville branch would be represented on the Provincial Executive. Mrs. Stuart Leiter having been recently appointed to that committee. The members were pleased to learn that Mr. N. R. Vivion, field secretary of the Ontario Division, who had been ill for many weeks, was able to resume his duties and will be visiting Belleville next month.

Dr. Caldwell

Dr. W. S. Caldwell who addressed the meeting on behalf of headquarters congratulated the branch on the work done during the past year. It was a very encouraging, he said, to see the way in which the various branches of the province, and the city co-operated together, with the Red Cross during the year. The interdenominational character of the Red Cross was notable in its unresting force, fostering community spirit and this branch's outstanding work had fulfilled a great principle of Red Cross.

An item in the work of the year's activities, the distribution of cod liver oil, was discussed by the speaker who he considered the great importance of this food. In the judgment of medical authorities every growing child should have cod liver oil. A campaign of education should is before the branch in this work of seeing that all children in the community receive this much needed food.

Outpost Work

Dr. Caldwell expressed the satisfaction of the executive committee for the support this branch gave to outpost activities. He referred to the program of the twenty-nine outposts, the railway car and dental, nursing and other health services to isolated districts in the north. During the depression years this work was not expanded but within the last few years the outposts were added. Dotted all across the northern country are centres a long way from doctors services, in great need of assistance. For them Dr. Caldwell made the plea that anything the local branch can do, by contributing support, money invested in this way is of real benefit to the citizens of our country, who are pioneers back the frontiers of civilization.'

Campaign Officers

Mr. Hefkey expressed appreciation of those present for Dr. Caldwell's interesting and inspiring address. Plans were then made for the campaign beginning April 26th. Mr. Hefkey was re-elected campaign chairman, J. W. Imlah campaign treasurer, and Mrs. Lazier, convener of the sewing room. The workers will meet at a dinner on Friday, April 23rd. Dr. Caldwell kindly accepted the branch's invitation to be speaker on this occasion. All members of the executive will act as a general campaign committee and it is hoped that the efforts of the Society will meet with the same encouraging response from the citizens of Belleville who have so loyally supported the Red Cross in past years.

Truckmen Approve Of 50 M. P. H. Law

Belleville car and truck drivers, particularly those who have occasion to travel the highways regularly on the roads here are received with approval generally the decision of the provincial government to raise the speed limit to fifty miles per hour, it was indicated through questioning this morning.

Some time ago, it will be recalled, the local Chamber of Commerce went on record as favoring the higher speed limit through a recommendation passed, which was later presented the Ontario Government.

"The new law will mean a lot to the busy motorists who have seldom obeyed the 35-mile law when on the road," one well known local trucker stated today. "In the past, whenever I got above the limit I always had one eye on the rear vision mirror to make sure a traffic policeman wasn't following me on the road. This method of driving has been the cause of more accidents on the road than any other," added a local salesman who averages hundreds of miles a week. "With the higher speed limit there should be fewer accidents."

"That law of speed is not excessive for the present day cars equipped with four-wheel brakes and clear safety glass. The only objection to higher speeds on the roads will be the fast turning of curves and passing on hills. But the higher limit on the straight-away can be undertaken with complete safety," it was added.

POLICE BLOTTER

Reposing at the police station are several Ontario licence plates that have been picked up on local streets and now in the custody of the police. Some are attached to the licence plate bracket, while two include the bracket and rear light of the vehicle from which they were broken off. The owners may have the same by proving ownership.

The theft of switching licence plates from one motor vehicle to another has been quite prevalent in this district of late, police authorities revealed today. Two such offenders have been apprehended using licence plates that were issued for other vehicles, this week. Charges under the H.T.A. were laid in each case. The annual spring checking of defective brakes and the over-loading of trucks is in progress, Motorcycle Patrolman Dan Irvine revealed today.

Two inebriates shared the cell block at the police station with seven inmates last night. Charges of intoxication were preferred against the former two today.

CITY TO MARK CORONATION DAY

Belleville will like all cities which pride themselves on their loyalty, observe Coronation Day on May 12th with due ceremonies. The city will be decorated and there will undoubtedly be a municipal service to celebrate the event.

The coming coronation will not be like coronation day in 1911 when the late King George was crowned, for a new means of celebration is offered this generation—the benefit of hearing the actual service of coronation by broadcast as well as the sounds in the streets of Old London when the King and Queen go to and return from Westminster Abbey. This and the hour at which the coronation will be held will make it obligatory that services held in this part of the world be at a different time for all will desire to hear the sounds from ancient Westminster.

PREHISTORIC IROQUOIS VILLAGE

A prehistoric Iroquois village site where the village of Roebuck, Grenville County, now stands, is the subject of the latest bulletin of the National Museum of Canada, a book of 178 pages which is the work of W. J. Wintemberg and will be invaluable as a source of information of life as lived in a palisaded village. The site has been known since 1845 and subject to desultory digging and surface searching by local collectors but had never been systematically explored until in late years. Much of the material found at the site had been lost. But the collection secured from the site by Mr. Wintemberg is large, enough to give an idea of the culture of the Iroquois, there being 187 boxes of specimens including human skeletons from 85 graves. This bulletin seeks to characterize the culture here revealed.

The site is a small one, about eight acres in extent, occupying the more or less flat top of a long sandhill, high and dry for habitation. Inhabitants claim the hill used to be higher than it is today and that the affect of ploughing, the washing of rains and the force of winds may have resulted in lowering of the height.

The age of the mound is unknown. There is no positive evidence of its great antiquity but it was evidently occupied and deserted by Indians before the arrival of the first white explorers as indicated by the absence of iron arrowheads, iron axes, brass kettles, that show evidence of contact with whites.

The bulletin marks very clearly the manner of life of these inhabitants indicating their food and the means obtaining of it, its preparation and the use made of bones and implements, implements of warfare, dress and adornment, specimens of materials used in games and amusements, objects of religion and superstition, indications of smoking, processes of manufacture of pottery and the development of Indian art.

Few if any indications of trade with people of other stocks were found. The trade in shells were extensive, while the rocks and minerals found within the area are all from within the district, none having been introduced by trade. One harpoon point, however, appears as if it might have come from a bone of a sea animal.

The art of this people was mainly decorative and is seen on pottery, pipes, and stone, bone and brass artifacts. It is probable that perishable materials as skins, barks, and wood were decorated with painted designs and that life forms were in some cases carved in wood but the people seem to have found their chief channel for artistic expression in the decoration of their pots and pipes. The art is mainly geometric with both curvilinear and rectilinear designs. The pottery and the pipes are in many respects like that of Mohawk and Onondagas and it is thought that the Roebuck site culture is like that before the Mohawks and Onondagas became separated in to the present different tribes. There are six other sites of a similar character in Grenville County. Other village sites were located in 1914 on the 1/4 lot in North Marysburgh township, Prince Edward County; others on lots 31 and 32 Concessions Six, Sidney township, Hastings County. Similar culture extends eastward into Quebec and into New York and Vermont.

It is believed that such sites were occupied only about from ten to twenty years. While there is evidence of an earlier Algonkian occupation in the same area, there is little evidence of assimilation of Algonkian culture traits.

Such bulletins are interesting in view of the recurrent finding of skeletons and flint arrowheads in various parts of Ontario, all pointing to Indian occupation.

BELLEVILLE IN CHINA

FROM BELLEVILLE TO CHINA IS BUT A SHORT STEP now, compared to the stage coach and clipper ship days when transportation was measured in months, not days, hours, or minutes as it is now. Goods made in Belleville find a ready market in China from builders' hardware to text books—and therein lies a tale, as the poet sayeth. Dr. A. J. Brace, author, explorer, soldier, and teacher, told an audience of Rotarians and Kiwanians in Belleville Monday many interesting things about China, gleaned from his twenty-five years residence there. Interesting as Dr. Brace's talk was still more interesting was he in an after session when he was interrogated about various phases of life in China but lightly touched on in his address. Speaking of the intimate connection of Belleville with the Orient he mentioned the fact that his scholars in the Canadian University in Chengtu, interior China, used text books published by The James Texts, of Belleville, and incidentally all of his Chinese students who used these text books passed with honours.

All through the far East The James Texts are known and its text books used in the schools and universities. Kobe, Japan, knows more about The James Texts than it does about the London Times; Singapore, the Straits Settlements, India and other well known places which seem so far away on the map but are closely linked with Belleville in various ways are familiar with The James Texts.

Incidentally, pardon our modesty, but lest we forget to mention it, the text books of The James Texts, Belleville, which now encircle the globe, are transformed from manuscript to metal by the marvellous Linotype, guided by skilled Ontario Intelligencer operators, carefully proof read and revised by the author, Mr. G. M. James, B.A., LL.D., and printed on the latest modern automatic presses in the press room of the Ontario Intelligencer, then bound and parcelled and delivered to the office of The James Texts, ready to answer the calls which come from all parts of the globe for these splendid aids to education. Mr. James discovered something that was needed in Canada, and the world discovered that in Belleville was something which all the world needed in the promotion of education—thus from small beginnings was developed a publishing business which finds a world-wide market.

Another interesting sidelight revealed in conversation with Dr. Brace was his reference to one of the most valued teachers of the Canadian University in Chengtu, Mrs. Walmsley, of Picton, who will shortly leave China on furlough to return to Picton for a well-earned vacation and enjoy the Picton Centennial Celebration. Mrs. Walmsley, by the way, has used text books from The James Texts, Belleville, for for some time and gets splendid results from them.

The new farm laborer was sent to milk the cow, but as he was such a long time gone the farmer went to see how he was getting on. He found him feeding the cow with milk.

"Here," he called. "I said milk the cow —not feed it."

"Well," replied the novice, "I thought it came out a bit thin, so I'm putting it through again."

City Assessments

Belleville, March 22nd, 1937.

The Editor,
Ontario-Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

One of the most difficult public duties is making the assessment roll. The assessment Act requires the land to be assessed at its actual value and the buildings to be assessed at the amount that the land has been increased by the existence of the buildings. The assessment roll constitute the total of the real estate assessment and the assessor is obliged to attach an affidavit to his assessment roll to the effect that he has done the above.

Sales of real estate in the city during the last few years would appear to indicate that our assessment in Belleville is far too high, in some instances double the amount of the actual value. It is probable that if the actual value were applied the land would have to be 75 or 80 mills on the dollar, although the total amount of taxes paid by the individual would not be any more. If the assessment of all properties was placed at the actual value and the rate raised to what it presumably ought to be it would have a tendency to make the tax-payer and also the members of the Council exercise more care as to the cost of administering the city's affairs. There seems to be a feeling among the citizens that we have been, to some extent, endeavouring to "keep up with the Joneses" and the result is the tax-payer is finding it difficult to pay his taxes in many instances. The result is building operations and even improvements are at a standstill. Of course there would be little advantage in erecting a considerable number of buildings if they could not be rented profitably.

When the owner has paid his taxes, insurance, ordinary repairs and set aside something for a sinking fund to replace a building when it becomes useless and obsolete and deducted these from the rent received it is difficult to obtain even 1% on the assessed value. Experience has taught in the case of new buildings a sinking fund for replacement (not for ordinary repairs) should be created by depreciating 3% on the cost of the building and in the case of old buildings 3% instead of 3% should be deducted from the rent received.

If this deduction is not made and a sinking fund created the owner is simply using up capital under a mistaken assumption that it is income. A building has a lifetime just as a human being and when the building ceases to produce a profitable income it becomes a liability instead of an asset and if a sinking fund has not been maintained to restore the building to a profitable condition its lifetime for all practical purposes is gone.

Yours truly,
W. C. MIKEL.

Stirling, March 24 (Special)—Great interest was taken in the evening's program at St. Paul's Young People's Union which took place in the church parlors on Monday evening with a good number of the members in attendance. The President of the organization, Mr. Don Williams, presided over the meeting which began with a brief song service. Mr. H. K. Hulin led in prayer and Don Scott read the Scripture lesson which was taken from 2nd Timothy, 1-15. During the business part of the meeting Miss Nora Wescott read the Secretary's report. Mr. Marion Bell offered a banjo solo at this time with Mrs. R. W. Bishop playing the accompaniment. The speaker of the evening was Miss Mary Hulin, past president of the Union. Basing her thoughts on a text in Gal. 5-14: "God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ," Miss Hulin delivered a most interesting address particularly appropriate to the Easter season. At the conclusion of the address of the evening, a roselection was served and contest. Mr. Don Williams addressed those present briefly on "What the Presbyterian Union seeks to do for local Church Unions." Mr. Williams having been associated for some time with the central governing body of Young People's Unions in the Belleville Presbytery, spoke with authority and experience on official material set forth in a document recently sent out from the office of District President Mr. Jos. Vrooman. During the social part of the evening, Mrs. William Ward directed an interesting "tea" contest.

Mr. Ernest Bowen presided as chairman for the evening. During the business part of the meeting which followed, the Secretary's report of the last regular meeting was presented by Miss Winnifred Ward. Miss Alice Calow offered a very pleasing violin solo, accompanied at the piano by Miss Jane Moffatt. Another splendid musical contribution to the program was a vocal quartette composed of Misses Marybelle Rodgers, Marion Hick, Doris Jandrews and Shirley Cornelison. The girls were directed by Miss Jane Moffatt who also accompanied them at the piano. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Duncan Montgomery who delivered a very helpful address speaking on the subject, "Actions That Speak Louder Than Words." The final musical number of the evening was a vocal solo by Miss Betty Hulin, accompanied at the piano by her mother. She sang very sweetly, "Silver Haired Daddy of Mine." This part of the meeting was climaxed with the singing of another hymn and the Synod Benediction. During the social period which followed, Miss Margaret Rombough directed an interesting contest.

Mr. and Mrs. Mumby intend residing in Prince Edward County, a few miles south of Belleville and will move in the near future.

The gathering was called to order by Mr. W. J. Tanner, who asked Canon W. G. Swayne, rector of the parish, to speak. The Canon expressed his regret at losing Mr. and Mrs. Mumby from this community and dwelt upon the splendid support he had received from them in all church and community activities. They and their family have always been ready and willing, he said, to do more than their share.

An address was read by Mrs. Lindsay Tanner, expressing the regret of the community in losing friends who have always been foremost in church work and social events and wishing them every success and happiness in their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Mumby thanked the friends present for coming in a few well-chosen words after which all joined in community singing and partook of a dainty lunch served by the ladies.

The Address

To Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mumby

Dear Friend and Neighbor—

Having learned that you will soon be leaving this community, we, your friends and neighbours, have invaded your home tonight to spend another social evening with you.

Longfellow has said, "The name of friend is sacred." During the twenty years that you have lived with us mutual friendships have been formed, and we regret very much your removal from this vicinity.

We shall miss you in our church and we desire to express our sincere appreciation of your loyalty and support, and willing helpfulness in connection with our church services. We shall miss you also in our social gatherings, but as you are not going so far away we shall hope to see you with us whenever occasion permits, with the assurance of a warm welcome awaiting you.

We feel, as a community, we could not let you go without some memento of the many years spent among us. So we ask you to kindly accept these gifts, and may they be the means of recalling the past with the future, often bringing to your minds, a recollection also of your old home associations in Rawdon.

Our thoughts and prayers, and kind wishes go with you to your new home. Knowing you will carry your helpful spirit to your new community, and that you will be guided by the same wise Father who watches over and cares for us, wherever we are. And may you be spared many years to enjoy life, ever looking forward to one brighter and better.

Signed on behalf of this community,

Hiram Dafoe

The offering for the day amounted to $4.82 and the service closed with an Easter hymn.

Mrs. Frank Smith and her daughter, Mrs. Verna Bromley, assisted by Miss Winnie Phillips, then served a delicious lunch to which all did ample justice. A pleasing feature was a birthday cake adorned with candles in honour of the birthday of Mrs. Arthur Phillips. Mrs. Holmes gave the toast to the honoured member and the gracious hostess. At the close of a social half-hour a vote of thanks tendered the hostess for her hospitality.

Miss Eleanor Graham and Master Maurice Graham of Wellington are both ill with pneumonia. Owing to so many children being ill in the community the Institute meeting which was scheduled to be held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Rainie was postponed. Masters Edward and Arthur and Ralph McMullen spent the week-end with the latter's grandmother.

Rev. Harding was guest speaker at Springbrook United Church, Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Tucker spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Pitman in Stirling.

H. W. Pixley conducted a leader training course at Springbrook; last week and several are planning to write examinations in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Remington and Ted, and Miss Jean Remington, of Portland, visited relatives at Mount Pleasant and Hoard's over the week-end.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

The haunting loveliness of beautiful Annabella, the screen's newest sensation, wearing the silver thread of a beautiful romance, which at times stirs your heart to its innermost depths, through the glamorous pattern of the drama, and Tyrone Power of Kings, is a refreshing departure from the usual blonde and brunette screen sophisticates of modern theatrical fare, and brings the picture "Wings of the Morning" now appearing at the Belle Theatre to the top flight of modern picture entertainment.

Expressively beautiful in the very simplicity of its dramatization, and "Wings of the Morning" is not one of those pictures which carry you to the heights and depths of emotion. Rather it is one of those swiftly moving tense dramas which move out of the screen into your very being and carry you along with the highly sustained interest to the final fade-out.

Annabella, the newest star to flash across the horizon of the screen, alluring in the youthful freshness of her beauty, takes you to new dramatic heights in her portrayal of a lovely young gypsy who marries an Irish Peer only to have the curse of her tribe placed upon her for leaving her people. Then the swiftly moving drama takes you to war-torn Spain from which Marie, the Irish bride, escapes, finding at the safety of Ireland.

Here she meets Kerry Gilfallen (Henry Fonda) a young horse trainer who agrees to train Marie's horse "Wings of the Morning" in spite of the fact that he has a Derby entry of his own.

From this point the beautiful young star, and Fonda, do some of the best work of the production. Events move swiftly leading from location to situation, climaxing with dramatic moments and under-run with a vein of subtle comedy which will satisfy the most fastidious theatre-goer. Especially beautiful is the scene, beautifully done, of "Ould Ireland" photographed in the lifelike beauty of the green Tyrone countryside. The green and blues of lovely Killarney Lakes in all their majestic beauty will leave you breathless with amazement. The voice of John McCormack will thrill you through world a decade ago and which has lost none of its charm. Finally, there comes out of the screen in all its former glory and splendor.

The epic running of the famous English Derby at Epsom Downs with silks of the Queen in natural colors forming a picturesque kaleidoscope as they flash across the wide screen in a memorable dash for the wire. The actual scenes of the crowd at the Derby, Westminster Abbey and English Peers in their grey cutaways and the cockney coaters in all their brilliant pearl-button array are dramatically commencement which saves romance for the young lovers and lifts a gypsy curse; the last earthly gesture of the dying gypsy mother which paves the way for the happiness of all concerned, are but parts of a picture which will linger long in the memory of Belleville theatre-goers.

"Wings of the Morning" has been held over Wednesday and Thursday due to popular demand. Montreal lovers of the romantic sometimes called the most fastidious in the country took "Wings of the Morning" to their collective hearts and so great has been its popularity that it is being held over for the eighth week in His Majesty's Theatre in the Quebec city.

If you love a tender thrilling romance; the fire and life of the Sport of Kings; the glamour and passion of Romany and the natural beauty of the Emerald Isle, given to you as only technicolor can give it set in a background of highly dramatic entertainment, then do not miss seeing "Wings of the Morning."

THREE FAMILIES ESCAPE DEATH

Alton, Ont., March 24—(CP)—Three families escaped death early today when fire gutted the rear back of the butcher shop of William Hinman here. Mr. Hilliard Hinman and family occupy the flat above the shop.

His daughter, Ruth, recovering from an illness was awakened and ran out of the store after Mr. Hilliard had broken his way through the glass door in the front of the shop.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Green Light"

"Green Light," that stirring story of love, sacrifice and love, which had many hundreds of thousands of readers in the past couple of score of years ago, comes as a pleasant relief to the Capitol Theatre today until Saturday, with Errol Flynn, the handsome, splendidly-cast Cosmopolitan production, and Anita Louise, Pirn National.

Errol Flynn, the young Irish-American leading man who starred in "Captain Blood" and "Charge of the Light Brigade" is the masculine star of Lloyd C. Douglas' gripping tale. He plays I. Paige, the scientist who devotes his life to researches destined to alleviate human suffering.

The girl he wins, after mash misunderstanding and unhappiness is the lovely little blonde Anita Louise, who had a recent triumph of her own as the leading star in "Anthony Adverse," in the film version of the famous Hervey Allen best-seller honors with Flynn.

The skilful philosophery, Dean Harcourt, friend and advisor of all the characters in the story, is played by the distinguished British character star, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who has come from 1,000 Isles from the London stage to the Hollywood cameras for just this one job.

Margaret Lindsay portrays a devoted medical nurse who loves Flynn, but has a surrender plan, Henry O'Neill as a surgeon who sacrifices himself and Spring Byington as a martyrdom.

Walter Abel, whose most recent success was as the district attorney in "Fury" was cast as Inspector Legrand in that role of Flynn's friend and fellow scientist.

Interesting reports about "Green Light" here come from preview audiences, it was directed by Frank Borzage.

Added Treats

Shown with this splendid feature will be a short featuring Ozzie Nelson's Band and an adventurously named all star comedy, "Spring Is Here" with Reis Ockoff.

30 MEN ADRIFT

Early today the Fijian wirelessed: "Fire now under control. Chinese badly injured. Grounds hold not reach bottom in fore hold."

Honolulu, March 24—(AP)—Thirty explosion - harassed men were rescued from the burning hull on the Pacific Ocean today, 1,000 miles from the nearest ship.

And that vessel could not reach them because it did not have sufficient oil.

The men abandoned the freighter Fijian after a second fire explosion in number four hold, a radio message relayed to the coast by a passing liner said.

The only hope of the crew was believed to be another mile-long tow to the south sea island of Arutua in the Tuamotu group of about 2,000 miles south of Honolulu.

Details Are Meagre

Only meagre details were carried in the radio message from the British freighter Janeta which was rescued to Honolulu by the naval radio at Pago Pago. The Janeta was 2,000 miles from Arutua.

Nearest craft was the United States coast guard cutter Shoshone. She was at Jarvis Island, about 1,000 miles away, but her fuel supply was too low to make the trip.

The Janeta said the explosion occurred at 10:04 P.S.T. last night, about five miles south of Little Arutua Island. Her first report did not explain how the explosion occurred, whether the Fijian sank or whether any of her crew were killed or injured.

Rescue Ship 16 Days Are

Ironically the Fijian was one of the rescue ships which went to the aid of the motorship Silverbarch, when that vessel burned her 10 days ago.

The Fijian was identified by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce Marine Department as the steamer Norverne, of New York, but under charter to Flood Brothers, San Francisco shipping concern.

Raymond Flood, vice president of the Flood firm, expressed disbelief it was his ship. The reported locality of the explosion was along the Line Islands group, a route which she left March 2 with general cargo for the South Seas and the Antipodes. No other Fijian is listed in shipping registers.

She was in command of Captain Parker, Flood said, and carried a crew of about 30 men.

The Fijian is a 333-foot steel vessel of 5,000 tons, flies was

Frood Mines, Copper Cliff Picked to Score Wins Over Dominions and St. Michaels

Mine Country Fans Think They Have Junior And Senior Champs

MONCTON IS OUT

Hull Volants And Quebec Aces Battle For Eastern Title

The power Northern Ontario hockey has accumulated over a period of years will be turned on tonight for a major test. The mine country has declared all season it has Canada's senior and junior championship teams, but they'll have to show their strength in important games at Toronto and Sudbury.

Already in eastern semi-finals, Sudbury Tigers and Copper Cliff Redmen of the Nickel Belt League have imposing records. Tigers, playing as a Frood Mine club, have lost only once all year. Redmen had notable success against senior competition during the schedule, then stepped to the district junior title.

The mark Sudbury Falcons set in going to Allen Cup finals in 1936 has presaged Tigers' success. They'll have an ace in hand, too, for Frood possesses certificates of six players from other Tiger clubs and hasn't bothered using them in playdowns thus far. Tigers looked masterful in downing Port Colborne recently and officially lay claim to their hand in forced the extra men won't be added to the lineup.

Jim Dewey a Star.

Leader of the Sudbury team thus far has been Jim Dewey, former Moose Jaw star. Dewey stood out in the Port Colborne series, scoring four of his team's six goals in the second and deciding game. Coached by Red Stuart, who led Halifax Wolverines to the Allan Cup two years ago, Tigers are strong all along the line.

Toronto Dominions will be the opposition in Sudbury tonight. They won the right to progress when they took the Toronto and York Mercantile League title this week.

The other semi-final bracket includes Quebec Aces and Hull Volants, champions of Montreal and Moncton. Hull completed its two-game defeat of Moncton on Ottawa ice last night, scoring six times in the last period for a 9-3 triumph. Moncton gained a lead early in the game but Volants came from behind to leave no doubt as to their strength.

Quebec won the championship of the powerful Montreal group, then stirred back St. Jerome's provincial intermediate champions.

Copper Cliff Game Up.

Copper Cliff is already one game up on St. Michael's College of Toronto in their playoff series. Redmen took the opener at home 5-2 and can capture the series with a win at Toronto. Led by Red Hamill, a former Sudbury star, they're a fast, hard scoring force. Often they take time to gather speed but they have wi□□ped opponents all season in spectacular rallies.

Tonight at Ottawa, a dark horse may be uncovered. Playing against comparatively mediocre foes all winter, Amherst St. Pats have hung up remarkable scores. Champions of the Maritimes, they'll be fast and keyed against the Ottawa and District winners, Ottawa Rideau, in the first game of a best-of-three series. Last year the Ottawa Rideau team broke Little Lumber Kings, accepted a couple of heavy jolts from Amherst before coming in home plate playdowns.

Ernie Gibbard, Eastern Ontario maestro of the diamond, stopped his car in this city last night, dropped into a local theatre and took sufficient time out to tells us that the Napanee baseball squad would be hard put for high class pitching on this coming season. . . . "We won't stand much of a show this year", quoth the Gibbardville mentor, who bunied his squad to a couple of championships a few years ago. "We have lost Brennan, and others of our stars, which depleted our pasts considerably". . . . "Who will do the receiving for you", we approached . . . C.H. got his drive on the fairway . . . "Still", tilting the derby hat "I THOUGHT I had a bird by the name of Bennett, but apparently he decided to go on a all down strike while passing through Oshawa, and so far as I know he hasn't got up yet".

"Well", we queried. "So what" . . . Again the black beauty tilted . . . C.H. watched with a critical eye his friend buying the tickets at the box office. . . . "Good picture on here, eh?" . . . "Yes" . . . "Star" . . . came back, "Brennan was a good catcher" . . . "All right, you win. I expect to get a catcher named Jeffers from somewhere. Outside of that we won't have any new faces" . . . All of which doesn't mean a thing, except perhaps there will be three or four ball hawks, who will get their mail in Napanee next summer for the first time. .

Decisive and convincing scores featured the first of the playoff tilts in the National Hockey League last night, and in so doing left Toronto Maple Leafs in the last period for a 9-3 triumph. Moncton gained a lead early in the game but Volants came from behind to leave no doubt as to their strength.

Quebec won the championship of the powerful Montreal group, then stirred back St. Jerome's provincial intermediate champions.

Copper Cliff Game Up.

Copper Cliff is already one game up on St. Michael's College of Toronto in their playoff series. Redmen took the opener at home 5-2 and can capture the series with a win at Toronto. Led by Red Hamill, a former Sudbury star, they're a fast, hard scoring force. Often they take time to gather speed but they have wi□□ped opponents all season in spectacular rallies.

Tonight at Ottawa, a dark horse may be uncovered. Playing against comparatively mediocre foes all winter, Amherst St. Pats have hung up remarkable scores. Champions of the Maritimes, they'll be fast and keyed against the Ottawa and District winners, Ottawa Rideau, in the first game of a best-of-three series. Last year the Ottawa Rideau team broke Little Lumber Kings, accepted a couple of heavy jolts from Amherst before coming in home plate playdowns.

The night's only other Memorial Cup game sends St. Boniface against Winnipeg Monarchs. Who won the opener of the best-of-three round, 6-1. If Monarchs win tonight they will play Port Arthur in western semi-finals.

LEAFS' ATTACK BOGS DOWN AT CRITICAL TIME

Rangers Make Every Move Count in Important Tilt

FREE-FOR-ALL

Players of Both Teams Mix Freely in The Closing Minutes

By A. E. FULFORD

Toronto, Mar. 24 (CP) — Lester Patrick's New York Rangers swung into the Stanley Cup spotlight today—the greatest surprise of the early duelling for world hockey honors.

The silver-haired master tactician's men defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0 here last night with as brainy an exhibition of hockey as the Stanley Cup series has seen in years. Outplayed on the attack, outskated, the New Yorkers won with brilliant opportunism.

Checking in world-beating style, they seized on each Leaf move and smothered it. Only twice during the whole game was Toronto able for a few minutes to get its attack moving, they swung into that medium with abandon seldom seen in Patrick's delicately tuned hockey machines.

The victory gave them a weighty advantage in the best-of-five, three series between teams finishing third in the National League's two sections. Tomorrow night they play in New York and if Rangers repeat they go on to meet the winners of the Boston-Montreal Maroon series. If a third game is necessary it will be played in Toronto Saturday.

The last-minute outbreak of fighting that dotted the ice with wrestling bouts and saw Red Horner and Ebbie Goodfellow banished to the penalty box, dropped their sticks and moved in on each other, Charlie Conacher of Leafs picked Coulter of Rangers for an opponent and Coulter swung on the nearest sweater of the wrong color.

Horner Belongs At Referee.

Red Horner, Leaf badman, swung at Referee Ag Smith's jaw and backed across the ice under the menacing index finger of Referee Bill Stewart's right hand, challenging the official to fight. Manager Conn Smythe came on to calm the tempestuous Davidson and ended by almost coming to blows with Smith. Finally Goodfellow and Coulter fought out of the fray.

Conacher, Watson, Davidson and Coulter were handed major penalties while Goodfellow and Horner in there was only 32 seconds to play and Horner was overlooked in the excitement. He wasn't missed.

A break led to Rangers' first goal after five minutes of scoreless duel-led. Horner was given a major for tripping Alex Shibicky as he badly limped off the ice and in a power play Lynn Patrick, uncovered before the net, took a pass from Neil Colville to drive the puck past Turk Broda.

There was little more than five minutes of the game left when Murray Murdoch, accompanied by Colville, took Butch Keeling's pass and beat Broda from close in. In the next minute Shibicky and Neil Colville fooled the Leaf defence, weakened through attacking all night, and Shibicky lifted the puck over Broda's shoulder when the Toronto goalie fell to the ice to block.

Rangers Great Opportunists In Scoring 3-0 Shutout Over Leafs in First Playoff Game

Waited For Breaks And Made No Mistakes When in Close

DETROIT WINS

Defeat Canadiens 4-0 While Maroons Tame Bruins By 4-1

By A. E. FULFORD

Probably as astonished as anyone, New York Rangers today found themselves associated with Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Maroons as favorites to win their series in the Stanley Cup playoffs. The first night of battling produced its greatest surprise in the emergency of the New Yorkers as possible title finalists.

Lester Patrick's men defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0 last night in a rough, tough game at Toronto while Detroit were hanging a 4-0 shut-out on Montreal Canadiens at Detroit and Maroons were tumbling Boston Bruins 4-1 at Montreal.

The Patrickmen carry the one game advantage to New York where they meet Leafs Thursday in the next stage of their best-of-three series. Maroons take their lead to Boston Thursday while Red Wings hold Canadiens in Detroit for a Thursday battle in their best-of-three series for the National League championship.

Played For Breaks.

Splendid opportunism and tireless back-checking won the Rangers their victory over the favored Leafs in a game that ended in a brawl between players of both teams. They took advantage of breaks that Leafs Leafs made and, although outplayed on the attack, deserved to see their brainy hockey win out.

It shifted when Bob Davidson, Leaf winger, and Phil Watson of Rangers tangled in a second play-ers shed their gloves, dropped their sticks and moved in on each other. Charlie Conacher of Leafs picked Coulter of Rangers for an opponent and Coulter swung on the nearest sweater of the wrong color.

Horner Belongs At Referee.

Red Horner, Leaf badman, swung at Referee Ag Smith's jaw and backed across the ice under the menacing index finger of Referee Bill Stewart's right hand, challenging the official to fight. Manager Conn Smythe came on to calm the tempestuous Davidson and ended by almost coming to blows with Smith. Finally Goodfellow and Coulter fought out of the fray.

Conacher, Watson, Davidson and Coulter were handed major penalties while Goodfellow and Horner in there was only 32 seconds to play and Horner was overlooked in the excitement. He wasn't missed.

A break led to Rangers' first goal after five minutes of scoreless duel-led. Horner was given a major for tripping Alex Shibicky as he badly limped off the ice and in a power play Lynn Patrick, uncovered before the net, took a pass from Neil Colville to drive the puck past Turk Broda.

There was little more than five minutes of the game left when Murray Murdoch, accompanied by Colville, took Butch Keeling's pass and beat Broda from close in. In the next minute Shibicky and Neil Colville fooled the Leaf defence, weakened through attacking all night, and Shibicky lifted the puck over Broda's shoulder when the Toronto goalie fell to the ice to block.

SPRINGFIELD WON 1ST PLAYOFF GAME

Defeats Providence 3 to 0 When Goalie is Shut Out

Springfield, Mass., March 24 (CP) —Providence penalties and the goaltending of Alfie Moreau today left Springfield Indians with a one-game edge today in the semi-final Eastern Division playoff series of the International American Hockey League.

Freeman beat Goalie Paddy Phelan with a shot from the blue line in the first period of last night's game, while Ted Graham, Indian defenceman, scored a 1-0 victory and a one-game advantage to carry into today's contest. The winner of the best two-of-three games final as Providence.

A penalty to Art Lesieur, Providence defenceman, in a hasty board check paved the way for the Springfield win. While Lesieur was in the box Ed Indian increased the page and as the players milled about in front of the goalie Jack got his stick on Bob McCully's rebound and beat Byrne with a shoulder-high shot.

A capacity crowd watched the battle both at a torrid clip, kept the end of the second period Captain Frank Mario Mapodiano and Doggie Kuhn of Springfield highsticked each other and drew major penalties.

In the last frame the Indians turned the defensive tide to hold their slim lead. Benny Grant, Springfield defenceman, helped with fine netminding and the Reds were unable to take advantage of a penalty to McGoldrick.

HEC KILREA, HERO OF DETROIT WIN OVER CANADIENS

Substitute For Larry Aurie Scores Two Goals in Third Frame

HABITANTS OFF FORM

Johnny Gagnon and Armand Mondou Best For The Losers

By ELMER DULMAGE

Detroit, Mar. 24 (CP)—Growing confidence that the Red Wings might successfully defend the Stanley Cup championship they won last season was voiced by Coach Jack Adams celebrated a highly impressive start on their way to a second straight National Hockey League championship.

Victory over Montreal Canadiens by a 4-0 in the first of the best-of-five series last night, the Red Wings picked up confidence. Having lost four of seven scheduled games this season to the Flying Frenchmen, the Wings held grave doubts concerning their ability to topple Cecil Hart's team in the playoffs.

All doubts were wiped out as Hec Kilrea, blond speedster from Ottawa, stepped in for the injured Larry Aurie to lead to a smashing first victory. Adams and his Wings are next to make it two straight Thursday night and win the series in at least four games.

That means the Red Wings are flying high again. The team that won the N.H.L. title and the Stanley Cup last spring has returned to the playoffs with the old punch. Second-string forwards have come through with sparkling performances. Defence has tightened and everything is rosy —unless.

Canadiens Off Form.

"Yet, we won't be that bad again," promised a determined Hart. "Canadiens were off last night but we'll be a different looking team Thursday night."

Adams, owner James Norris Sr., and most of the Red Wings were willing to accept Hart's word for it. Beaten four times by the Frenchmen, the Detroit club was the first to admit Canadiens were not as warm as usual list night.

Kilrea, who has moved up in Aurie's place beside Marty Barry and Herbie Lewis, scored two third-period goals to make his playoff debut a brilliant one, ranking front line a great success. The league's most prolific scoring line was responsible for all four goals.

Lewis and Barry got the puck to Gagnon Goodfellow in the first period, the defenceman scoring from the edge of the defence zone. Gagnon and Art Ahren did the rest in the third period.

While the fleet Canadiens, led by the fiery Johnny Gagnon and Armand Mondou, forced the pace from start to finish, the Red Wings earned far more scoring chances by breaking up attacks in the centre of the ice and speeding down fast on the Montreal defence.

and the little doubtful whether the hockey lovers of this district will be afforded the opportunity of witnessing the first intermediate final participated in by a Belleville hockey team in 21 years or not. Last night the Thorold "Mountaineers" eliminated Clinton in the hermetic "B" semi-finals and gained the right to meet the Belleville Redmen in the final for the intermediate championship of the province. S. R. Brennan, executive member of the O.H.A. was in Toronto last evening and immediately upon learning the results, communicated with Manager Eddie Thomas, informing him that Belleville had been awarded the first game of the intermediate finals, the second game being played in Niagara Falls next week.

The Redmen held stiff workout at the Belleville arena last night, but by no means did they extend to play a final game on. Manager Thomas is still hopeful that the Belleville team will smile and blow cold breezes on the thermometer at Saturday's game. Sufficiently below the freezing point to assure good ice for the championship series, that opens on the Belleville home ice on Friday night. Failing to be assured of good ice in Belleville, Manager Thomas is anticipating moving the scene of the game to the Jock Harty arena in Kingston, despite the fact the Limestone City arena officials closed that rink on Saturday. Previous rink management promised to advise Mr. Thomas of their decision by noon this afternoon. Failing the necessary drop in temperature, that will if Kingston arena officials do not deem it advisable to re-open their rink for a game, doubtless be played in Oshawa, however, What the management of the Redmen, and naturally all local fans, hope for, however, is a sufficient drop in the temperature, thus assuring the staging of the intermediate finals in Belleville.

The Redmen held a torrid practice at the arena last night, reporting in ship-shape condition. Friday being a holiday undoubtedly a large following of local fans will accompany the Redmen in their quest for a provincial hockey title regardless as to where the game is played. The Thorold "Mountaineers" are reported to be a sturdy team of pucksters who have been knocking at the play-off

The initials play-offs in the N.H.L. surely established the soundness of the policy of the N.H.L. moguls in the opening games. Toronto went to the Rangers 3 to 0 at home; Detroit blanked the Canadiens 4 to 0 in the first game of the N.H.L. championships, while the Maroons cuffed the Boston Bruins 4 to 1 at Montreal, every game being a clean cut victory. The new cry now goes up—watch those Maroons." Judging from the noon-day broadcast the Leafs took two beatings.

IL DUCE SHOUTS EMPIRE DEFENCE

Italians Have Long Memories Says Premier

Rome, Mar. 23 (AP) — Premier Mussolini faced a cheering throng of Blackshirts from a balcony of the Piazza Venezia today, the eighteenth anniversary of Fascism, and shouted a defense of Italy's empire building.

Reporting on his nine-day tour of Libya, Italy's North African colony, he declared he and Italy stood unmoved by what he characterized as "slanderous" reports and criticisms from abroad.

He termed such comment published in Britain and France as "a tempest of printed paper and an incredulation of turbid ink."

He called Anglican pulpit utterances against Italy's Ethiopian conquest evidence that Britons were eager to see "motes" in the eye of others while neglecting "beams" in their own.

Italians' Long Memory.

Il Duce proclaimed that "vindication" of Adowa after forty years showed Italians had long memories and would be ready to reply unanimously to the wrongs of the future, opposing what he termed "force" with "an indestructible will."

(An Italian force was annihilated at Adowa in an earlier Ethiopian campaign.)

The premier described "professional pacifists" as "the real enemies of European peace and collaboration," adding that Italy sincerely desired peace.

He scouted reports abroad that he had returned from Libya a day ahead of schedule yesterday because of the Spanish situation.

KEPT FROM HIS SHIP BY SCIATICA

Sailor Who Could Hardly Walk For Pain

"I am a seaman," he writes, "and have travelled all over the world in sailing ships, from time ago I was taken bad with sciatica and rheumatism. If I went out I had to rest two or three times before I got home. One day an old mate of mine asked me what was the matter, and he said 'get some Kruschen Salts.' So I got some and I am pleased to say I felt a great ease. After continuing for a week I was a great deal better and on the Saturday I was back on my ship."—T. S. W.

The pains of rheumatism and sciatica are frequently caused by too much uric acid accumulating in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are notable for their work in dissolving uric acid and other ingredients of these salts assist the internal organs to eliminate the dissolved uric acid from the system.

QUEEN MARY TO WEAR OWN CROWN

Will Resemble the Diadem She Has Worn on Several Occasions

By MOLLIE McGEE

Canadian Press Correspondent

London, March 23—(CP Cable)—Queen Mary will wear her own crown at the coronation. It became known today. Detachable cross-bars will be removed along with several state jewels including the Koh-inoor diamond, which will be in Queen Elizabeth's crown. These gems will be replaced by others.

Queen Mary's crown will resemble the diadem she has worn on several occasions. It will have a wide jewelled band, with alternating outstanding crosses of pearls and fleur-de-lys.

Her coronation gown will be a magnificent reville model with silver gold metallic embroidery and sequins. It will be made in the simple style Her Majesty has chosen in the past for official occasions requiring the wearing of her robes and honours.

The gown will have the square decolletage and diminutive sleeves necessary for wearing the order of the Garter.

WORKERS IN AUTO ROTTEN-EGGED

Pickeiers Break Every Window in Five Cars at Oshawa

Oshawa, Ont., March 23.—(CP) —A car filled with employees bound for the Chevrolet Motor Company plant, was showered with bad eggs today as they attempted to pass a picket line.

Apparently men in the car did not know the factory had been closed down last night, after pickets broke every window in five cars and drove thirty other employees to seek shelter in the plant.

Three members swelled by many sympathizers, more than 300 men and girls were on picket duty and surrounded the factory.

Squad of police officers also were on duty but outside the one incident in which eggs were showered at the car nothing happened to cause police intervention.

Car Is Smashed Man

Jack Lowry, arrested last night on charges of assault, occasioning actual bodily harm, was released on bail. Police said no other charges have been laid.

Mayor Alex Hall, Chief of Police Owen Friend and Hugh Thompson, organizer here for the C.I.O. held a three hour conference last night.

Thompson maintained it was not their policy to cause trouble such as happened last night but held to right of striking employees to picket peacefully. Mayor Alex Hall said he would do all in his power to bring local manufacturing heads together with Thompson.

So far, Mayor Hall said, the situation in the Union has signed up practically all employees in regular plants but civilian guards returned to meet Thompson when one of the chief duties will be to quell rioting.

Coulter Manufacturing Company employees on strike since last Wednesday night, will remain closed indefinitely officials said.

OUTDOING BRODIE MAN BREAKS BACK

Dives 186 Feet From Bay Bridge at San Francisco

San Francisco, March 23 (AP)—The dubious distinction of outdoing Steve Brodie by diving 186 feet from the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge was held by Ray Wood today—at the cost of a broken back.

He probably will have to live in a wheel chair the rest of his life, paralyzed, physicians said. That is, if he lives.

Of his leap, 51 feet more than Brodie's purported 135-foot plunge off Brooklyn Bridge to fame and fortune in 1886, the 30-year-old St. Louis professional diver recalled today:

"I stepped off backward and counted four. Then I bent double and grabbed my left thumb with my right hand. As I came out of the back-knife, I held my hands over my head to break the impact of the water.

"That was all I remembered. I must have hit the water with terrific impact."

Wood who asserted he performed the feat purely for publicity and with no chance of immediate financial gain, jumped feet first from the lower deck of the span yesterday.

DUKE OF WINDSOR RENTS FARMHOUSE

Is Located in Beautiful Secluded Section of Salzburg District

Saint Wolfgang, Austria, Mar. 23 (AP)—An old-world brick Tyrolean farmhouse, the Appesbach, in the picturesque Salzkammergut region near Salzburg was being polished up today for the Duke of Windsor.

Unless the Duke changes his mind, he will arrive here on Monday for a month's stay.

In an isolated section, the Appesbach, a typical farmhouse, but with its second storey tiled out like a modern hotel, has its own tennis court near a golf course. It stands at the water's edge where there is a dock for motor boats.

There are villages along the six-mile stretch of Saint Wolfgang Lake, hemmed in by cliffs and stately mountains. In summer months, the Appesbach sector is regarded as one of the most beautiful spots in the Salzburg playground.

With snow on peaks and the roads muddy, the gay hotels in this section are now closed, and the Duke probably will find even greater solitude here than behind the walls of Enzesfeld Castle, where he has stayed since he abdicated last December.

INDICATES CAUSE OF BREAKDOWNS

Hydro Chairman States Defective Workmanship Probable Cause

Toronto, March 23 (CP)—Inquiry into generator breakdowns at the plant (Hague's Reach) and Madawaska plants of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission indicates "that defective workmanship was the most probable cause of the failure," Commission Chairman T. Stewart Lyon said in a statement today. Inquiry is still under way in the case of Queenston Generator No. 10 "and in that case again defective workmanship rather than method of operation is likely to be indicated as the cause of the breakdown."

Mr. Lyons' statement concluded: "I had no time, directly or indirectly, did Mr. Hepburn make suggestions, or issue instructions as to the method of operation of the Queenston plant."

HEALTH DEP'T TO REMEDY SITUATION

Foe System For Mine Doctors May be Changed Says Dr. Faulkner

Toronto, March 24 (CP)—Ontario Department of Health will seek to remedy the situation whereby Northern Ontario miners are compelled to pay fees to doctors stipulated by the mining companies, Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, minister of Health, promised the Public Health Committee of the Ontario Legislature.

Under the present system, companies retain $1 a month from each miner's pay for medical services and the companies let a contract for medical services.

"We cannot compel pay the company $1 a month whether he uses its doctor or not," said Mr. Bradshaw.

J. A. Hood (Lib. Cochrane North) said the plight of lumberjacks in respect to medical treatment was even worse than the miners. He knew of a case where a doctor came 200 miles from his camp and never went back to it.

Mr. Rowlandson said it has been the custom of camp doctors to take their fees and then look after the men's health vicariously with shipments of lemons and like things.

The doctor doesn't go in until the men start coming out feet first," said Jack Hood.

Mr. Rowlandson said 90 per cent of northern doctors objected to the present system.

Tears Turn to Smiles As Good Samaritan Replaces Candy Bunny

The first casualty on the Easter front where the youth of Belleville is advancing against the invasion of Chocolate Confectionery Co. rabbits and eggs, occurred this morning when Mr. Bill Thompson's store when a large brown rabbit crashed to the floor, victim to the hand of a youthful "soldier".

Tear-glistened eyes gazed ruefully at the disintegrated remains of one of the chocolate 'foe' as it lay shattered on the sidewalk. But the threatened tears turned to the sunshine of a smile when a Good Samaritan happened along, and securing the little fellow inside the store, replaced the lost 'enemy'.

dated the education estimate for grants to schools be left over until the debate on the budget. Premier Hepburn, Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon, however, declared there would be no adjournment and the education estimates passed and the House proceeded with the session until 6 p.m.

On a 47 to 13 division the House upheld the Speaker's ruling that Mr. Henry withdraw a statement which the Conservative House leader had made to the press.

Mr. Henry clashed with Dr. Donaldson (Lib. Kingston) on this point and was finally told there would be no adjournment until the House took an increase this year. Dr. Donaldson said the people only an estimate as the grants have yet to be finally decided on.

"The prime minister has for two years been guilty of misrepresenting or attempting to mislead the people of Ontario and you have been sitting in your seats and acting in this nefarious practice," Mr. Henry told the Premier. "You have misled and the premier spread the impression the people in separate schools were being reduced."

Speaker Called To

When the committee voted for withdrawal of the remark Mr. Henry bluntly refused to do so. He called on the Speaker, Mr. Nixon informed the committee that Hon. Elgin Gardiner stated: "For two years the prime minister had deliberately misled the people and the people with false statements."

Mr. Henry denied using these words and refused to inform the committee what he had stated. Following the division for withdrawal Mr. Henry bowed to the ruling.

Thomas Laird (Con., Kingston), criticized the special grant of $1,-000,000 to the University of Toronto

CUT THE COST OF MOTOR CAR MILES

You'd probably be surprised to know how much less it will cost you to operate your car this season if a little necessary service is given to it now.

Don't forget that your car is a machine and that its performance and safety depend upon the condition of parts that are invisibly worn in operation. Often a few replacements and repairs are all that is needed to restore the car to its original operating efficiency.

We make no claim that this is the only one but have indeed is one really specialized automotive service establishment. Complete modern lubricating equipment, all the time-saving devices, trained, expert workmen and a responsible management provide motor car service for all cars at its very best and at a surprisingly low cost.

Mrs. George Gray, Rednersville, is Ninety Years Old

Rednersville.—One of the very pleasant events of the week was the birthday dinner party given, planned and prepared by Mrs. Geo. Gray on her 90th birthday. Her guests included her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Kelley, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wale, Mrs. D. Conway, with little Miss Sharon Conway, a great granddaughter, all of Bellevile; Mrs. Crosby and Miss Jones, of Rednersville.

The table was gaily decorated with lighted candles and favors, as well as the sumptuous repast. The birthday cake, say with lighted candles, containing thimble, button ring and money, was made by the happy hostess of just ninety candlets.

Mrs. Gray received many pretty useful and thoughtful gifts and birthday greeting cards from her family and friends, but none were more appreciated than the pretty plant in bloom, given her by the ladies' Aid. Mrs. Gray continues still to collect for the cemetery fund and has been an untiring worker on that committee since 1913 as a work of the Rednersville Woman's Institute.

The hostess does not wear glasses and has a keen, alert memory. She is a most interesting story teller and one is carried in the stories of early pioneering days along the south shore of Bay of Quinte. Mrs. Gray's ancestors came to America from the Palatine hills in the Prince Edward County. Mrs. Gray is the happy possessor of one of the little chairs and desks brought from Ireland by her grandparents. The pertinent reminiscences and volumes for the manufacturers of that time.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Ties That Bind

By Bertha Leah Cross

Naomi Stevens sat on the back porch watching the dusk as it settled over the garden. To her, the time of day was the loneliest and the hour when she felt the most let down, tired, old and disillusioned. This night she was feeling unusually so because of the letter from Laura, the second she'd had this week. In the letter she pleaded even more urgently with her to accept her invitation to go to Europe as her travelling companion.

"If I only could," she whispered. "But here I am, as always, held back by my ties. If mother could only see, could realize how terribly she hampers me in everything I want to do. Talk about the selfishness of the young—it's nothing in comparison to the old. They think only of themselves!"

All of her life Naomi had craved a good time. She longed for travel and excitement.

First it had been her father, who unconscious to the point of selfishness, had forced both her and her mother to scrimp and save, while he wheeled and dealed, investing here and there over, while he hoarded his money. Then when he had died, ten years ago, she had lacked initiative and urge to get out of the rut into which their lives had settled. It had taken her these letters, however, to fight the flame of her dormant's crushed ego.

"There's money," she told herself plenty of it. If only mother can be aroused . . ."

But the mother—a self-effacing little woman who had lived for forty years under the domination of her husband. Cowed, timid, sterile, after these years of bondage. What force could galvanize her and make her forget her husband's dictum of statement: "Women's place is in the home." Could Mrs. Fred be manipulated from that obsession?

Naomi was now forty-five. She had let youth go by as far as love. . . . Fred had become tired of waiting.

She had been a lovely girl with a wealth of curly, brown hair and large, wistful eyes filled with dreams. Other men had been attracted. But they, like Fred, had been appalled by two much interference, and later by two much prospective mother-in-law. They had passed by to other less fussy, poised girls.

Now had come this opportunity. Galvanized into life, she let her thoughts dwell on this chance of a lifetime. Even the words in the letter were etched on her mind: "Come on, Naomi," her friend had written. "Check your mother with her sister and come with me."

The tears came now, faster and faster, singing her eyes, overflowing in a perfect torrent of heart-breaking tears of longing.

Suddenly the tears stopped and she set up with a snap. The fire in her eyes replaced the tears. "I'm going!" she said aloud. "I'm going to Europe with Laura. Mother can go to California with her sister." A red spot appeared on her cheeks. She had decided.

She began formulating in her mind her plan of procedure. First she would write Aunt Hattie that her mother was coming. If she could make her, and ask for her help. Then she would write Laura that she would arrive in New York ready to sail the seventh of July. "I'm going! I'm going! . . . speed, speed!" she said recklessly. "I am going to make myself young again and am life. Ive every dollar I've denied myself, I'll spend two."

After supper she walked to the village for the evening mail. She posted a letter to Laura telling her she would meet her in New York the sixth. "I've burned my bridges behind me now," she said, going straight home to break the news to mother. I'll find new interests, and new life, and youth," she told herself.

"Yes? What is it, Naomi?" Her tone held a mild surprise.

"I'm sailing the seventh of July with Laura."

"Sailing?" in a bewildered tone. "Yes, sailing for Europe on the seventh. And I've made arrangements for you to stay with Aunt Hattie while I'm gone."

"You made arrangements?" icily. "I haven't lost my mind, have I? Well, you've certainly taken a pretty independent step." Her quick anger cooled. She laid a hand on Naomi's with a quick pressure. Suddenly she laughed. "Child you was afraid to tell me? wondered what you had on your mind for a week."

"Yes, I was afraid. I was afraid you'd not want me to go. Oh, mother," her voice breaking. "I've got to go. I can't let this go by, as I have everything else in life." Her voice was growing shrill and rising a little, "Can't you see? Can't you understand?"

"I certainly can see," her mother replied slowly. "I have wanted a vacation for years and always thought I had to stay here at home on your account. But from now on, Naomi, these ties that bind are going to be elastic. They are going to stretch. For a month I've been trying to get up courage to tell you that I'm dying to go to California. I've always wanted to go—and now I'm going."

TARZAN'S QUEST (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

As Murviro fell unconscious, several of his men tried to rise and hurl themselves upon their betrayers. At a word from Udalo, the Ibimma warriors leaped up, but their deadly spears were not needed, for one by one the stricken Waziri collapsed upon the ground.

The tribesmen gazed in amazement upon this strange sight, for only Udalo and one woman knew that Gupingu had drugged them. And now the gloating witch-doctor leaped among the fallen Waziri and beat his chest triumphantly, "Great is the magic of Gupingu!"

"Kill!" a woman shouted, and others took up the bloodthirsty refrain. "Kill the friends of the Kavuru who steal our girls!" But Udalo put an end to their cries by ordering that the strangers be bound and placed in the hut whence Tarzan had escaped.

"These will not escape," he shouted, "and now I shall send runners to all the villages of the Bukena, far and near. Then when the moon is full on the second night, all will dance and feast and make merry —and eat the hearts of our enemies."

CHAPTER 1

DIVORCE PLANS

A sunbeam filtered through the single dingy window. It played for an instant on the tumbled tresses of a sleeping girl, touching them with golden glints. It lingered in the swift passage as though with pity on the wan, white face with its transparent blue at the temples and the violet shadows where long lashes rested in mournful slumber.

The girl felt its warmth and stirred. Her mouth lifted in a fitful smile. She dreamed on:

What dappled shadows the trees made on the sunsplashed green of the yard. How brightly that sun shone on the old house and the whitewashed barns. Her Hulk sister called to her, her young voice shrill with excitement:

"Judy, come quickly and see! The kittens have opened their eyes."

It was her mother's eyes now that came back to her in her dream. Her mother's eyes wet with tears she tried to conceal. Why was her mother sad? It was because Judy was going away. Going with the dancing fever, feeling so proud of her blue serge suit and her new dimity blouse. Judy going to New York to stay with Cousin Lucy until her name was planned in Broadway lights.

"One . . . two . . . three . . . four. Oh, for Gaw's sake This show opens in three days. Are you gonna step into it? Try it again."

I can't. I can't. My back is breaking. My ankles are in fire. It's like when I learned to skate. To skate with Lenny, who was skimming over the ice. Her mittened hands were clasped tightly in Lenny's. She and Larry were sitting in the big old-fashioned farmhouse kitchen.

Larry would take off her little shoes and warming her toes in his big, awkward fingers, he'd say, "Little feet made for dancing."

She would tell him again — he whose eyes worshipped her, whose heart ached for her — she would tell him what she was going to do, about the curtain calls she'd take with a shy bow, about the lunches home she'd have and the sables.

All the beautiful things she would do. An automobile for her father. Silk dresses for her mother. College for her brothers and pretty things for little Mary.

New York. Mecca. The glory and the stage. The voice of the manager broke through her sleeping memories. "Okay, kids. That's all for tonight. Say, sister . . . you, third from the end, Judy."

In her sleep that awful moment came back to her and unconsciously the girl's hands went to her throat in terror, "Sorry, sister, but we're going to drop you."

It was not a single ray but all the warmth and light of the sun that flooded the high-ceilinged, luxurious law-office of Warner Kendall.

It marked the sorrowing lines in the face of John Talbot who sat opposite Kendall.

"Are you sure, Talbot, that this is not another case of infatuation for a talent ideal?"

"Not this time," there was suffering in the low tones of John Talbot's voice, "I'm afraid she means it now. She wants me after little divorce. She wants it quickly and in New York."

"How long have you been married?"

Talbot stared into the past, seeing the beautiful, selfish girl to whom he was bound.

"Twelve years," he answered.

"I could have told you you two," Kendall broke off and then gently, "Your wife's name, Talbot?"

"I don't know exactly. I've never been unfaithful in any way. There's never been a woman for me but Hildegarde. I've done her bidding, liked and paid for the money she needed. It's another man I grieve about, but she says she wants I'll give her the divorce."

Kendall looked at him keenly.

"There's only one ground for divorce in New York."

"I know," Talbot said impatiently, "I came to you to ask you to fix it up. I'm willing to be pretty messy but I thought perhaps you could do it . . . this is not what is necessary."

Kendall had taken a small leather-covered book from his pocket. He thumbed through its pages until he came to one. "Miss Flora Devine."

"You won't like it very much but there's no time to do it. Here's a young lady who will . . . I'll make co-operate with you. We'll do it and an hour, the address will be given to your wife and her detectives. You rent a room in the house next where you will be found with Miss Devine."

Talbot looked at his friend as though he had said: "You'll be found with the body."

He cleared his throat, "I should like to see what she is like, this young woman. I mean I should want to be very careful. You understand?"

Kendall did understand. John Talbot was a very important man. Flora could be depended upon not to take advantage of her job.

"I suppose you'd like to see her without her knowing she's seen you?"

"Exactly," Talbot answered shortly.

"Okay," Kendall reached for the telephone, "I have a bright little lass. Miss Jones? . . . get me Loddendorth, the florist . . . on the wire and then get two tickets immediately for the matinee of "Princess Perdita" for this afternoon."

Say, wait a minute, Warner Kendall."

The telephone rang. Kendall picked up the receiver. "Hello, Loddendorth? . . . I want you to send a corsage of gardenias . . . to six . . . to Miss Flora Devine, 32 East 54th Street and hold it until a boy arrives from my office with a theatre ticket for the enclosed note. . . . No card . . . just the ticket . . . charge it to Warner Kendall . . . what's that . . . hummph, efficiency . . . has to get a speech."

At the other end of the wire a harassed clerk was scrawling frantically for the order pad. He scribbled the name, Flora Devine, on a scrap of paper, then noting another name and address on the paper, wrote them in his book and threw one piece away.

Kendall bit the end off his cigar and then addressed his friend.

"You take the other ticket. The lady will be sitting in the seat beside yours. She's never been known to pass up anything that's free. You'll know her by the flowers and I will not be necessary for you to acknowledge that you know anything about me."

"Thanks, old man," said Talbot gathering up gloves and gloves, "I'll see you at the club at six?"

"You will." Kendall said before John's broad shoulders in their perfectly tailored clothes passed through the office door.

CHAPTER 2

Thwarted Suicide

A few blocks away from where John Talbot had left Warner Kendall's law office, the brief ambuseam had visited a little transcient bedroom passed on its way. The girl who had been sleeping there awoke. Bright eyes opened. She lay still for a moment and then snuggled down on the hard mattress of her iron cot. She pulled the blankets up around her slender chin. She didn't want to wake but sleep had left her to reality . . . To-day. To-day! Oh, she might never wake on another morning.

The fastidiously neat smell of steaming coffee filled the room. There were other smells that lingered persistently in that shabby house. Cabbage and unwashed bodies and the combined odors of poor humanity.

It was a broken-down tenement in the West Forties, a rooming house where screams rang out terrifyingly in the night and where by day brought no light to cheer. It was a home where hunger now for all her than Judy could afford. Indeed she could not afford it now. Where she could not afford to live. Where she would be able to get three dollars to pay her rent?

Three dollars!

Judy thought of what she could do if she had 26 cents. With that she could buy a can of soup, warming soup. With the coffee, a can of warming soup and two loaves of stale bread and plenty of coffee. Coffee . . . Sparingly she would heat and reheat the soup and coffee and somehow make it last three days. She didn't have the 26 cents, she had only one lone little nickel in her worn purse.

With that nickel she would telephone Billy Howard. He always had a dollar for one of the girls who had worked in a show with him. Somehow that dollar would bring her luck. If she didn't get it she suspected someone—the landlady or the police—would mail the letters she would leave.

Judy would not leave any letters. Better to have them think that she had forgotten mother, dear mother, the brothers and the little sister. So great now for all that they had a roof over their heads and meagre food from the farm. So great that she knew they didn't have the money to send for her to come home. Better that they would think someday she would come home.

There would be no going back from where she was planning to go.

She mustn't think of them; it made her cry. She must think of the peace to come, the surcease from sorrow, and quiet and sleep. Luminous, Judy busied herself with planning and gathering the shabby room.

She pulled a beret over her soft blond hair and clutching her precious nickel in her unplowed hand, ventured out into the hall.

The scent of coffee was agonizing in her starved nostrils. She was half-way down the stairs when a voice called:

"Good mornin', Mis' James," a rich Irish voice greeted her, "Reckon he puhlish' on de rubbers. Reckon cauld marnin' and feels like snow."

"Yes it does, doesn't it?"

Judy lingered and her pinched nose sniffed delicately of the enchanting aroma.

"Your bain," Mrs. Mulligan said to herself, and laoud,

"If yer not in a hurry, come in wid ya and have a cuppa cawfee.

Sure, I hate to be havin' me mid-marnin' lagh by wid-out company."

"Oh, thank you but I . . ."

"Come along. I haven't an egg in the house or I'd fix you one this Mulligan lacks was low, but have a piece of bread and jam."

Warmed with the unexpected kindness and the kindliness of her neighbor, Judy set out once again with faint hopes. If she got the dollar . . . if . . . she would try certainly. In the slums, the rear restaurants, anywhere that she might get work. She could live a whole week on three dollars.

Trembligly, she dropped her nickel in the telephone slot. Superbe the operator lost the call and had that nickel was gone!

No, there was the buzz. She called her name and asked for him. A long long pause and then an expression-less voice, "No man he ain't in. wants leave a message?"

"Yes."

Blindly, Judy found her way out of the telephone booth. In her thin clothes she knew she hadn't the strength to walk uptown and get the chilling, penetrating cold again. Her heart as heavy as her leaden feet, she climbed the stairs to her room.

Closing the door softly behind her, her eyes turned at once to the little gas stove.

Fascinated, Judy stared at it for a moment and then, with a desperate gesture tore off the beret.

She must do it now, quickly while she had the courage.

But first she would say her prayers. She fell to her knees and it was then that she saw the square white box bound with a bright gay ribbon which lay on her bed.

She blinked her eyes and reached for it timidly. It couldn't be real. It was!

Eagerly, Judy looked beneath the gauze bow. There was her name and address. And there was the printed name of the florist Luddendorf. She knew the name. Only yesterday she had been there and asked for a job. What a lovely place that would have been to work. The clerk was so nice. Quel by years your name and address, Miss, and if we have anything we'll let you know."

But why did they send her flowers?

Judy lifted the cover and tenderly unfolding the layers of glossy tissue found the lovelies; thing she had ever looked upon in her life. There lay a corsage of waxen white gardenias, their still fragility accented by their black green leaves and the bow and pins of gleaming silver.

"Flowers for my funeral," she murmured and then suddenly she laughed loud and long and then she laugh ended on a sob.

Judy buried her face in the heady perfume until it brought her back to reality. Her hand groped in the box for a card. She found the tiny envelope. She tore it open and found not a card but a single theatre-ticket.

She took it to the light and as she read it, a feeling of glorious hope and wonder filled her. Someone in this was a sign from Heaven. The ticket was for the matinee of "Princess Perdita," the show from which she had been dismissed!

Judy had only seen the chorus because she would have to walk to the theatre at 45th Street. She must hurry to mend the run in her only pair of stockings. Her orange and black crepe dress and to brush her hair until it shone like gold.

Now she was ready. Almost reverently, she pinned the flowers to her shabby coat.

She flung back her head and wrapping her coat about her as though it were a thing of ermine she walked gallantly forth on the adventure that was to blaze her name across the world.

CHAPTER 3

The Meeting

Moving toward the meeting that was to color their lives with vivid hues, John Talbot and Judy James arrived at the Hurlburt theatre almost at the same moment.

It had taken the man but a few minutes to drive from the luxurious Park Avenue apartment he had shared with his wife, Hildegarde. It was because of Hildegarde that now he was setting forth on a venture that was more than distasteful to him. He thought cynically—that this afternoon would be but a small part of the unpleasant whole.

Later he got always a little sick at the memory of the girl who had been his wife, Hildegarde Van Deusel. He had married her because she was the most beautiful girl he had ever seen. He had been young then and she had been young then. Only they were not the same people. They had changed. Hildegarde had become a creature of whims and fancies, selfish, cruel, and he had become a man who had found that his wife's beauty was not enough to satisfy him.

Hildegarde had been the first to tire of the bargain. She had found that her husband's wealth was not enough to satisfy her extravagant desires.

Talbot had been willing to pay for his freedom. He had been willing to pay for it generously. He had been willing to pay for it in the way that Hildegarde had suggested.

He had been willing to pay for it with his name.

He had been willing to pay for it with his name.

MAROONS CALLED TO BEAT BRUINS IN TWO STRAIGHT

CLAPPER IN FIGHT

Pummelled Trottier to Ice And Swings at The Referee

Montreal, Mar. 24 (CP)—Battle-scarred Boston Bruins and Montreal Maroons, wearied after one of the toughest Stanley Cup playoff games in many seasons, bustled off to Boston today with the wise money on Maroons to finish the second-place series in straight games.

Exchanging honor for bump with the bruising Bostonians, Maroons won 4-1 last night in the first game of the best-of-three series.

Since 4:05, the Bruin machine-tried to batter down Maroons' lighter, but speedier, forces with a vicious body-thinning attack. They failed as Maroons pumped in goals in the first and second periods, and two more in the third when the threat-ening trouble flared into open fight-ing.

Dit Clapper piled into Dave Trot-tier after the Maroon cross-checked him. He pummelled Trottier to the ice, then swung a right to Referee Clarence Campbell's head at the of-ficial separated them.

Clapper Draws Major.

Clapper's tantrum brought him a major penalty and possibility of sus-pension from remaining Bruin play-off games. Campbell was to report on the incident today to President Frank Calder of the National League.

Carl Voss shot the first goal late in the opening period—the first goal of an ill-luck season for the blue centre. He picked up Baldy Northcott's rebound after goalie Tiny Thompson had made a close-in save. Northcott got the second after Percy Johnson and Earl Robinson set up the play.

Bruins came out of their shell in the third. After six minutes, while Derry Pares served a penalty, Roy Gottlieb whipped in the only Bruin goal on a swift four-man play with Charley Sands and Bill Cowley. Sec-onds later, when a goal might have changed the whole complexion of the game, Beveridge came up with a slow to Gottlieb, but Gottlieb fluffed.

They still ganged, but ineffective-ly, and first Herb Cain scored on a breakaway with Marty Barry and Ray Getliffe, the procedure with Wes Hamer also helping.

OWNER OF RED WINGS STILL THINKS CANADIENS ARE THE BETTER TEAM

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Detroit, March 24—(CP)—It doesn't mean a thing that Detroit Red Wings are one game to the good in the National Hockey League title series with Montreal Ca-nadiens—not James Norris, Sr., who happens to own the Detroit Club. Mr. Norris suspects Canadiens are the better team.

Anyway he told manager Jack Adams of this thought in the De-troit dressing room last night after the Stanley Cup champions gave the Canadiens a 4-0 beating. He seem-ed to mean it when he added he didn't think my boys were wonderful to-night but Canadiens still look like a better team.

Maybe Adams had the same idea—second interest now—when he told the Wings before the game: "As far as I'm concerned and as far as the owner of this team is concerned we're already had a world of fun with this hockey team. If you lose every game in this series, it's ok. You've been great."

Then came Napanee Jack's mas-terminding.

"But I want to see you fellows get this series' money. Get out there and give that extra bit that makes champions and championship or-ganizations. Never mind us, do it yourselves."

The Wings did, but Canadiens are not downhearted. Three goals are "part of the game" in their battle cry.

Manager Cecil Hart believes his Flying Frenchmen didn't really get started last night and that they rejected a bad game from their sys-tems. Thursday will be different and then back to Montreal for two more wins, he believes.

REDMEN TO MEET THOROLD TEAM IN THE FINAL SERIES

First Game to be Played in Belleville if Ice Condi-tions Warrants

PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

First Time Belleville Team Reaches Intermediate Finals in 21 Years

The Belleville Redmen were awarded the first game of the in-termediate O.H.A. "B" finals on their home ice by the O.H.A. im-mediately after the "Mountaineers" eliminated the Clinton intermediates last night. S. R. Burrows, local ex-ecutive member of the O.H.A. im-mediately communicated the infor-mation to Manager Eddie Thomas. Mr. Burrows being in Toronto at the time. Weather permitting the first game of the intermediate fin-als will be played at the Belleville Arena on Friday night, but in case of continued mild weather the initial game of the provincial in-termediate "B" finals will be played in either Kingston or Cob-ourg, the former being the more logical city as it is nearer Belle-ville. Both the above named cities possess an artificial ice plant in their respective communities.

Manager Eddie Thomas had his charges out to a stiff work out at the Belleville Arena last night, but the ice conditions were far from adequate for the playing of a championship series. "If the wea-ther turns colder during the next 24 hours, we will endeavour to play the first game of the finals in Belleville. If not we have contacted the Kingston Arena regarding playing the game there on Friday night and failing to interest them we will be forced to take the game to Cobourg. If we can interest the Kingston Arena officials into play-ing the game in their Arena, and our team plays the Thorold Inter-mediates even on the ice surface, while third game would naturally be played in Oshawa, as Thorold has the Maple Leafs Arena as their home ice," explained Mr. Thomas this morning as he was waiting the decision of the King-ston Arena officials as to what turn in the weather towards colder weather.

Thorold Too Good

The Thorold "Mountaineers" won the intermediate "B" semi-finals in the O.H.A. by virtue of eliminating the Clinton Colts 7 to 6, on the round, the Thorold club win-ning 4 to 3 at Niagara Falls and losing 4 to 3 at Stratford in the second game with Clinton last night. The forthcoming intermed-iate finals marks the first time in 21 years, that a Belleville team has advanced to the final series in the Intermediate O.H.A. ranks, al-though the Belleville senior "B" en-try of 1931 was eliminated in that category in the finals by Windsor.

The Belleville Redmen held a stiff work out at the Belleville Arena last night and reported in splendid condition. Local provin-cial finals, despite where the cru-cial series may be played is —Belleville, Kingston or Oshawa. The return game of a best two in three series, will be played on the Thor-old home ice, Niagara Falls, early next week.

The probable line-ups of the clubs will be:

Redmen—Goal Wait; defence, Bentley, Murphy; centre, W. Jack-son; wings, Tremblett, C. Jackson; subs, St. Louis; Whitton; Morgan; Burley; Barriage; McGuire.

Thorold—Goal, McGregor; de-fence, Thompson, Payne; centre, Turner; wings, Rose, Collucci; subs, Horne; Patterson; Weller; W. Lounsbury; T. Lounsbury.

TENNIS FANS DEBATE HOW TILDEN EXPECTS TO TAKE FRED PERRY

New York, Mar. 24 (AP)—While tennis fans and experts, some 10,000 of whom will pack Madison Square Garden tonight to see him play Fred Perry, are debating just how Big Bill Tilden will combat the English-man, Bill himself is writing in secret whatever campaign he may have mapped out in advance.

The 44-year-old veteran admits that, from a spectator's seat at Perry's matches as an amateur at Forest Hills and as a professional against Ellsworth Vines, he has drawn several conclusions concern-ing the Briton's game and what to do about it. But he isn't commit-ting himself.

"I don't believe there's anything that can make an athlete look more silly than to announce in ad-vance just what he's planning to do and then be unable to do it," the lean, slope-shouldered Tilden explained today.

To Bill, and the public's way of thinking, Perry should be the great deal harder man to beat to-night than he was in January, when the Britisher made a successful pro-fessional debut by defeating Vines on the same court. Perry has since been accustomed to indoor courts, lighting and the smoke-laden atmosphere.

He has, in addition, had eight weeks of steady competition against Vines—"the sort of competition," adds Tilden, that Fred certainly wasn't able to get while he was an amateur."

Bill has faced the britten only in doubles.

FLYING DUCHESS LOST

Hundreds of emergency workers in the farmlands near London have stopped work to turn their energies to searching for the Duchess Bedford who has been reported missing while flying solo from Wo-burn, Bedfordshire. The 71-year-old "Flying Duchess" reportedly started on a short jaunt and may have been forced down. The coun-try near Woburn is flooded and it is thought she may have misjudged water-covered land as being smooth and dry.

ONTARIO SCHOOL TAX LAW IS REPEALED

School Tax Legislation Wiped from Statutes in Turbulent House Scene

Premier Hepburn Forestalls Debate by Asking For Vote

HOUSE UNANIMOUS

Hon. Leopold Macaulay Forcibly Ejected From Chamber

Toronto, March 25—The division on second reading of the bill to repeal the amendment to the Assessment Act resulted in an 88-to-0 vote for repeal, the Government voting with the Opposition on George S. Henry's bill.

Taking his political life in his hands, Premier Hepburn humbly and courageously announced to an expectant Legislature last night he would repeal his school tax amendments of last session and would restore Section 65 of the original law so as to resolve Ontario's position with regard to this long-controversial situation to exactly where it was in 1936.

Admitting that the law was unworkable under present-day conditions—that it was "a failure"—that it had failed to "do the job for which" it was brought into this Province the equity of justice which had been done to the minority groups in two other Provinces of Canada, the Prime Minister, speaking in soberly serious language and the unaccustomed of the course of action he was pursuing, (Continued on page three)

ITALIAN UNITS 'DISAPPEAR'

Valencia, Spain, March 26.—(AP)—Spanish Government Aerial Scouts today reported Fascist Italian "disappearance" of all Italian Nationals from Insurgent divisions on the Guadalajara front, northeast of Madrid.

Officials announced aerial observers spotted insurgent reinforcements of Spanish Fascists, following the recent insurgent defeat on the Guadalajara salient.

But there was no trace whatsoever of the Italian units which participated in the unsuccessful insurgent drive toward Madrid.

Outlook Serious

If he does, then, in the diplomatic phrase, "a serious situation will arise." To put it more bluntly, there is the risk that Hepburn will go to the assistance of the Spanish government.

The non-intervention committee has suspended operations over Easter. Its great scheme of from- and naval patrol of Spain, which was to be in full line of attack next Monday, again is postponed.

Co-operation

Under it, the British, German, French and Italian navies were to have co-operated in preventing the Spanish waters to prevent brushes with the Spanish. Observers were likewise to have been stationed on the frontiers of France and Spain to check up supplies.

Officially, it is explained that the delay is due to difficulties, now surmounted, in appointing administrators. It is hoped the patrol scheme will come into effect the week after next, but no date has been fixed.

In both Paris and Rome feeling deepens. Charges of breach of the international agreement fly back and forth.

Orange Victory Says Orangeman

'Repeal Won't Free Hepburn of Responsibility' He Declares

Toronto, Mar 25 (CP)—C. H. Carrick, grandmaster in the Orange Order and a member of the Toronto Board of Education, said today repeal by the Ontario government of the School Act Amendment would not free Premier Hepburn of responsibility for the situation in which the separate schools a larger share of corporation taxes.

"He is like a man who finds the fire he started is burning his own clothing and says he had better put it out for fear it burns the city," said Mr. Carrick, Past Grand Master of Ontario West in the Orange Order.

"The repeal is an Orange victory," said Mr. Carrie, who headed a delegation to Premier Hepburn three years ago to protest any planned changes in the School Act. "He yielded all our present demands and said he was not going to be influenced by us," said Carrie.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

The warm breeze that is advancing mass of warm tropical air moves northerly and there are no signs of any of the division between them is called a "warm front". It is at this division, where the warm and the interaction between the two air masses, warm and cold. The warm air rises, the cool air moving northward and climbing over the cold air, and is then elevated and cooled. Consequently its water vapor is condensed and there is widespread cloudiness and rain. As the warm air moves through the cold air, it will freeze if the underlying cold air is cold enough, and then sleet is formed.

FLAG IS DRAPED ON VACANT DESK BY MR. CHALLIES

Records Fail to Reveal Parallel Incident in Ontario History

MOVE FOR RETURN

Henry Refused to Second Motion Calling Scene Disgraceful

Toronto, March 26 (CP)—Forcible ejection of Leopold Macaulay, Conservative member for York South, from the Ontario Legislature chamber today sent parliamentary following into the records in search of a parallel incident in Canadian Legislative history.

The flag-draped seat of the fiery member remains vacant as the Legislature reached adjournment early this morning. Even Premier Mitchell Hepburn, moved to tears, the Speaker permit his return failed to bring back Mr. Macaulay.

He defied the ruling last night after Premier Hepburn wound up the debate on the Conservative bill to repeal the Separate Tax Act Amendment, the apportioning corporation taxes among Separate and Public School boards. The amendments were passed by the Legislature last-June.

The Bill passed last night was entitled "An Act to amend the Assessment Act, Statutes of Ontario, 1936." Last year's legislation gave Roman Catholic corporation shareholders the right to notify directors they wished their share of corporation taxes to go to Separate schools.

Behind the whole issue of division of taxes between Separate and Public schools were controversies which started in 1855.

The 1936 amendments made it mandatory for corporations to direct taxes to Separate schools after Separate school shareholders filed the notices. Previously corporations were not compelled to do so.

There was also provision in the amendments regarding corporations whose head offices were not in Ontario and whose wide distribution of shares made it impossible to ascertain the religious affiliation of shareholders. In such cases the Bill provided that provided for division of school assessment on the basis of assessments in the municipalities so affected.

It was the first time in Ontario taxes could go to Separate schools when the law defaulted. Taxes thus diverted such taxes were paid on shares held by Protestants. With adoption of the Repeal Bill the system in use before 1936 or abandonment was restored.

HOPES OF SPRINGLIKE EASTER DASHED BY SNOW AND WIND

Late March Gales Sweep Across Ontario And Temperature Drops to Eleven Above Zero

Heavy snow in the teeth of bitter March gales lashed Ontario and Central and Western Ontario reported the springtime Easter weather St. Catharines reported the heaviest snowfall of the season had blocked some township roads, while in Western Ontario howling winds lashed heavy snow across ice and highways, rendering motor traffic hazardous.

Dashed hopes for a colorful Easter parade hit Ontario retailers who feared sales of hats and other finery would suffer. Toronto merchants estimated their expected losses in thousands of dollars and explained post-Easter sales would but partly retrieve this loss.

11 Degree Drop.

Typical of Western Ontario weather was that in Stratford district where the mercury slipped 21 points from Wednesday noon. Early morning report was 11 above servo; a cold snap of mid-winter severity. Two feet of snow, whipped by north east wind, drifted over roads, but highways department said it was not yet deep enough for ploughs.

The storm seemed headed toward the northeastern section of Ontario with Ottawa reporting cloudy weather, threat of snow in the air and temperature of 19 above. Scattered snowfalls were predicted by the government's weatherman for Georgian Bay region, Northern Ontario was expected to add cold weather tonight and Friday.

Near Midland an automobile crashed into the side of a Michigan Central flyer when a blinding blizzard obscured the wig wag signal. Ben Barnhart and two companions escaped with a shaking up.

BILL THAT IS NOW FAMOUS

Toronto, March 25—(CP)—The Conservative Bill, which authorizes the Separate schools in the Ontario Legislature last night, repeals amendments to the School Assessment Act which re-apportioned corporation taxes among Public and Separate schools. The amendments were passed by the Legislature last June.

The Bill passed last night was entitled "An Act to amend the Assessment Act, Statutes of Ontario, 1936." Last year's legislation gave Roman Catholic corporation shareholders the right to notify directors they wished their share of corporation taxes to go to Separate schools.

BOY UNHARMED SAYS INSPECTOR

Police Claim Hubert Stewart Tied Self And Framed Story

Hamilton, Ont., March 25 (CP)—Mystery surrounding the eight-hour disappearance Monday night of 13-year-old Hubert Stewart of Bartonville, was cleared up today with an announcement by Inspector W. T. Moore, head of the branch here of the Provincial police.

"Nobody did the boy any harm," he said "and whatever was done to him he did himself, Inspector Moore.

There was no explanation given regarding the story told by the youngster when he was finally located early Tuesday after having been missing since leaving school on the previous afternoon.

The boy told of having been set upon by two men, who dragged and walk a considerable distance to a lonely deserted barn, overpowered, and then pushed part way down an embankment with his feet bound with his own tie.

Earth Tremors Rock Los Angeles Without Damage

Los Angeles, March 26 (AP)—A heavy earthquake shook Los Angeles at 8.44 a.m. PST.

It was a double shock, felt strongly throughout a 200 mile area in Southern California, but no damage was reported.

Buildings shook in downtown Los Angeles, Glendale, Santa Monica and Beaches reported the strong tremor immediately, but police and fire chiefs moved to cause damage in those areas.

The first shock lasted 10 seconds, these. But pups will do it the worst seconds. Please do not send brush wolves, as these bluffs already nobody, not even a Toronto editor.

"The editor knows that in this crisis the dog is man's companion, coureurs de bois, voyageurs, prospectors, trappers, mushers and so on—who have pulled him out of a hole so often in the past—will not now let him down. The true story, or otherwise, of the capture should accompany the animal if possible. Anyway let's hear from everybody.

"Pups will be available all over Algoma by the middle of May. Readers who want to take advantage of this offer should apply to Algoma Dog Depot's name will be given Wolf if desired".

MISSING CHILD ASLEEP IN BOX

Wandered From Home in Search of His Dog "Rover"

Mount Brydges, Ont., Mar. 25 (CP)—Little Donald Keith Wilton was safe at home today after precipitating one of the largest manhunts in Middlesex County's history. Wandering away from home yesterday in search of his dog "Rover", the lad had been missing 13 hours during a blinding snowstorm when found by Alex Collins and Ross Butler of Strathroy.

Some five miles from his experience, Keith was discovered asleep in the bottom of a stable on Iron Hill farm about a mile from the Wilton home. About 200 persons took part in the widespread search before the boy's safety was learned.

Will Carry On Say Catholics

Campaign to Inform General Public is Promised by Quinn

Toronto, Mar. 25 (CP)—Martin J. Quinn, chairman of the Catholic Taxpayers' Association of Ontario, which yesterday repealed to have the Henry and Hepburn Governments investigated, announced today it would continue its publicity campaign to present its views and information on them to the general public.

Mr. Quinn said Premier Hepburn had made an effort to meet the Association's demands when he said: "Unfortunately a political situation was created and had to be dealt with." He added that the bill to repeal by the Ontario government last night of the Separate school part of the separate schools a larger share in corporation taxes.

"A weakness of the case for separate schools was lack of information on the part of the general public as to the facts," said Mr. Quinn. "We will make it our business from time to correct the situation and explain that although there are evils, it is our duty to do so."

Toronto Prosecutes Sunday Sales Alone Among the Larger Cities

(By The Canadian Press)

While hardly standing in splendid isolation, Toronto is still one of the Canadian cities remained today to enforce strict observance of Sunday purchases. A coast-to-coast survey failed to uncover any campaign similar to that in Ontario's capital.

Although in all Ontario a 92-year-old Puritanical statute says Sunday purchases are illegal and likewise forbids citizens to go fishing or hunting, Toronto alone has announced certain drug stores could remain open on Sundays, grocers, fruit store owners and confectioners challenged their stand. After summonses were issued proceedings were stayed and it was decided to allow fruit stores and confectioners to continue Sunday business.

Grocery sales remained open.

Not Issue in Montreal

Likewise, Ottawa allows its restaurants and fruit stores to remain open, but they are not supposed to sell anything which cannot be consumed on the premises. In Montreal, Halifax or Saint John, N.B., have no Sunday prosecutions because for Sunday buying. In Montreal it is not an issue.

In Western Canada there have been attempts to halt the sale only of groceries and tobacco. Regina has "no prosecutions, in two years," while Vancouver has ordered one subject to the sale of cigarettes or confectionery.

Toronto police have run into a tartar in their latest case of prosecution of a former Vancouverite, Captain Archibald Prither. Prither, who has been selling tobacco, was caught buying tobacco on Sunday and fined $2. He refused to pay and intends to go to jail for a day instead. He has expressed loudly his opinion Toronto is narrow minded and he doesn't mind going to jail to illustrate the fact.

In the current Toronto campaign several grocers, fruit store owners also been fined for selling tobacco, cigarettes and candies on the Sabbath.

L. MACAULAY IS EJECTED BY HOUSE SERGT.

Capt. Rutherford, V.C., Removes Him From Speaker Hipel's Order

Protests Closure

Premier Moves, That Member be Allowed to Again Take Seat

Toronto, March 25 (CP)—Ontario Legislature today moved toward prorogation after probably the most turbulent sitting the House has ever seen.

Adjournment of the wild night session that brought repeal of school tax legislation by unanimous vote and forcible ejection from the chamber of Leopold Macaulay, Conservative member for York South, was not reached until 10 a.m. Prorogation is set for five o'clock today.

When the Speaker's ruling on the fate of a drama-filled speech there was an almost ominous silence. With scarcely a sound the House had heard him announce abandonment of the 1936 legislation that apportioned corporation taxes between Separate and Public schools.

Members and gallery spectators hung on his words as he said the House: "It is the responsibility forestall at whatever cost the possible of a religious war in this province."

The premier said bluntly he accepted a compromise with Roman Catholic separate legislation, and then startled the listeners with a move that meant closure in Ontario's legislature.

Suddenly lifting a piece of paper from his desk, the Premier read: "I'm going to move, seconded by Mr. Nixon (Provincial Secretary) the question now be put."

Motion Breaks Storm

The storm broke as he finished. Charges, epithets and recriminations were hurled at him and there was confused battle of words across the House.

Mr. Macaulay leaped to his feet in the fray amidst the uproar he continued shouting, defying Speaker Hipel, who tried vainly to bring about order.

"I appeal to the Prime Minister to cut out this dirty business," shouted the York South member. "He is the one who has the rule in the middle of the game. It is a dirty, rotten trick. You may be a dictator, but you can't muzzle me in the name of democracy."

"Undemocratic, you British," "a dirty trick," came from Conservative benches under Henry's leadership.

Mr. Macaulay then left his seat on the steamship Morris S. Tremaine, Mr. Thomas, Threshold, Simpson, Mr. Saunders. Guest organist, Mr. Jack Gordon. Director, Hope Bell.

JOHN DRINKWATER DRAMATIST, DIES

Succumbs in His Sleep to Heart Attack at His London Home

London, Mar. 25 (AP) — John Drinkwater, noted dramatist, died suddenly today of a heart attack while asleep at his London home.

The playwright, whose dramatizations of British and American historical characters were among his best known works, went to bed yesterday apparently in good health after attending the Oxford-Cambridge boat race and later spending the evening at the University Club with friends.

His widow, Daisy Kennedy, the Australian violinist, was injured on March 14 when the automobile in which she and Drinkwater were riding in a party after the concert was in a collision.

"He was very happy all day yesterday." Mrs. Drinkwater said.

His last words written in an article on the coronation were 'happy and glorious'."

Tall, erect and picturesque in appearance, Drinkwater was an insurance broker before and after his success as a schoolmaster who turned actor.

HOUSE DELAYED FOR 10 MINUTES WAITS QUORUM

Hon. L. Macaulay Returns to Seat After Hectic Night Debate

Refers to the Premier

Hepburn is Called 'Hit-and-Run Speaker' by Macaulay

Toronto, Ont., March 26 (CP)—Leopold Macaulay (Conservative, York South), resumed his place today in the Ontario Legislature from which he was ejected last night for defiance of Speaker Norman Hipel's rulings but the only remarks on what he termed a matter of "personal" privilege, were soon forthcoming.

Speaker Norman Hipel declared last night's incident was closed but the House refused to adjourn today, and to let Mr. Macaulay answer Premier Hepburn's charges in the House.

Mr. Macaulay, the former Minister of Agriculture, failed to return to his seat even though Premier Mitchell Hepburn moved he have him reinstated. Mr. Macaulay's election followed his refusal to comply with a ruling of the Speaker and he was escorted from the Chamber by Sergeant-at-Arms Drew.

Moves Toward Prorogation

The Legislature moved toward prorogation after last night's hectic session when the House was delayed ten minutes before it could be called to order. Highlight was repeal by unanimous vote after Premier Hepburn admitted the 1936 amendments failed to achieve their purposes of a more equitable division of Corporation taxes between Public and Separate Schools.

Stage appearance was also delayed 10 minutes when it was necessary, to scout the corridors to get enough members to make the quorum of 20. The seats filled rapidly however, when Mr. Macaulay rose to a question of privilege.

He observe that last-run speaker, the Prime Minister of the Province, is not in his seat," said Mr. Macaulay, his client (Continued on page ten)

POLICE BLOTTER

The only arrests that were recorded in Belleville during the past 24 hours were necessary when 2 inebriates were apprehended disturbing the peace late last night. The offenders were lodged in the cell block at the police station last night and today appeared before H. R. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace, to be remanded for trial until Saturday. No serious crime was reported by the police department, however, but owing to the sudden drop in the temperature an influx of irascibles were seen in Belleville last night, when 15 weary knights of the road sought shelter at the police station. The night snow fall and sudden freezing temperature made highway motor travel slippery in certain points, but all curves and hills were sanded by Motorcycle Patrolman Jack Irvine announced. "The sudden change in the weather conditions will naturally re-act upon the Easter motor traffic and undoubtedly diminish to a noticeable degree," predicted the Traffic Officer.

March is the harvest month in Egypt, Tripoli, Algeria and Tunis, while in April crops are harvested in Persia, Mesopotamia, Arabia, Asia Minor, Syria, Cyprus and Mexico.

ming, told Hon. George S. Henry, Leader of the Opposition, that he was prepared to accept his motion for repeal. The Conservatives banged their desks for a solid minute over the Premier Minister's admission, but were halted in short order when the latter rebuked them sharply for their part in the recent Earl Hastings by-election, where he charged they had "opened up religious and racial sores which will not heal in the lifetime of this country."

Commends Laurier's Stand

He commended to Conservative House Leader Hon. George S. Henry Sir Wilfrid Laurier's refusal to accept the door to office with the "bloody key" of religious animosity, and accused Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative chieftain, and Colonel George A. Drew of "threatening bloodshed" over the issue in the Hastings campaign.

"I say Mr. Speaker," continued the Prime Minister, in tones which faintly electrified the crowded galleries, "that it is my responsibility now to forestall at whatever cost, the possibility of a religious war in this Province. I am man enough to stand up in this Legislature and swallow what is a very bitter pill. I want in this connection to commend the Toronto Star for its fairness. At least it has been manifestly fair, and I think I should even go out of my way to commend The Globe and Mail for pointing out the dangers of religious warfare in Ontario."

Flatly stating, as Mr. Henry insisted, said the Premier, may have had something to do with the lady's inability to function as anticipated, but the real reason why he had not "remedied the grievances" that had been set for it was the extraordinary financial structure of the present time."

In delivering his one-hour carefully prepared commentary of new government policy Mr. Hepburn carefully reviewed the many angles of the controversial question, and laid particular stress on the Earl Hastings campaign, where he accused Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative Provincial Leader, and his chief organizer, Colonel G. A. Drew, of inciting the intelligence of the people, and "of not only threatening bloodshed, but complete elimination of the separate school system itself."

"No Religious Bias."

Mr. Hepburn said that former Premier Ferguson of Ontario had shown sympathy toward the minority cause and had plainly intimated during the 1929 Provincial election that something would be done subsequently to provide a greater measure of equality for separate schools than had obtained up to that time. But Mr. Ferguson's appointment as High Commissioner to Britain had intervened, and under the reign of his successor in office, Mr. Henry, nothing had come of the original plan, although Mr. Henry, on the eve of the 1934 election, had announced his intention to submit the whole question to the Privy Council for decision.

"I have no religious bias in my soul," declared Mr. Hepburn amid the plaudits of his supporters, "and consequently with the political sagacity which would permit me to view this question in the eyes of a religious bigot."

"My Unfortunate Lot."

"It seems to be my unfortunate lot on many occasions to be in a position not envied by any one," said Mr. Hepburn at the outset, "it is with a certain amount of trepidation, therefore, that I regret that I do so. It is my concern that I am unable to discuss purely economic problems because of the fact that the Opposition, through the press and on the platform, have decided to make of it a religious controversy.

"I want to state that I have not canvassed the members of my party or asked any member to follow me with regard to the Bill of my conscience or against the leader of the Opposition," continued the Prime Minister, "I feel no obligation in the discussion of the events leading up to what has become a bitter religious controversy.

"After the 1934 general election, two delegations waited upon me. The first represented themselves as delegations from the public schools of the Province. They took the position of wanting to hold on to everything they had. The second delegation represented the separate schools. They told their side and before us and to me, they seemed to be reasonable. One point which stands out clearly in my mind was their statement that they did not desire to seek any part of Protestant funds for support of separate schools.

"It made sufficient impression on me at the time to authorize study to be made of the whole school situation."

Serious Oversight.

The Prime Minister then reviewed the history of the separate school movement in Ontario and Quebec. He declared that the Act of 1863 which brought the Protestant minority of Quebec and the Catholic minority of Ontario, into agreement on the school question paved the way for the Act of Confederation in 1867.

"I am on safe grounds in saying that, had it not been for the splendid agreement that was then had by religious minorities, Confederation would probably not have been," said Mr. Hepburn.

There was a serious oversight in the drafting of the legislation which permitted the separate school supporter in either Province to deposite his taxes to the school where he sent his children, the Prime Minister emphasized.

Similar Axle In West

No provision was made for distribution of corporation taxes. "There were few corporations at the time. Two years later Quebec remedied the oversight and passed an act which provided that corporation taxes would go into a separate account and be used for the support or both school systems in proportion to the school population. At that time ago the Director of Protestant Education, Dr. Scrimger expressed himself as being entirely satisfied with the situation.

"Our opponents and detractors would have the public believe that we are the only ones to take action of this kind," went on the Premier. "In Saskatchewan and Alberta there appears an act which is very similar to the one my honorable friend is asking us to repeal. These Provinces have provided for it in settling this controversial question. In Ontario for seventy years repeated representations have been made by the Roman Catholics that they have not been fairly treated with respect to taxes for school purposes.

Appeal for Catholics

"The only change made in the Orlando law was in 1886, when it was made permissible for a director of a company to indicate to separate schools that portion of his taxes he considered in the separate field.

"In 1920 the member who now represents Prescott and Russell appealed upon on behalf of the Roman Catholic minority, to the then Premier, the late Minister, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, at least showing interest in the speech, and encouraged the member to make more specific requests. It is only fair to generally conceded that after the next election Mr. Ferguson would fairly treated with respect to taxes for school purposes.

Before Mr. Ferguson went to England as Canadian High Commissioner and left the matter in the hands of the Provincial Treasurer.

"But his successor in office, the Leader of the Opposition, made a gesture when he said during the 1934 election that he would refer this whole matter to the Privy Council."

School Grants Increase

Under the circumstances which had developed, the Provincial Treasurer had become the balance-wheel between the two schools and their financial needs, continued the Premier. "The question of whether there was to be or not to be separate schools was not debatable in this House. Those rights are granted under the British North America Act and no legislation in this House could affect them."

Since 1934 the amount of grants to separate schools has increased from $1,056,000, while in the same year 8.9 per cent., or $2,600,000 went to separate schools. Throughout the years to 1935 there had been a steady increase in the amount given to separate schools, and the increase in the latter year was based on need, he declared. There had been a steady increase in grants to public schools, but he realized, he said, that a Government had to be limited in its generosity. In 1935 the situation was that $1.74 per cent. of the grants was given to public schools and 18.36 per cent. was given to separate schools. The separate school grants had increased from $296,000 to $455,000, he said.

Old Act Altered

"That, then, was the situation in 1935 when we enacted the legislation which we are now asked to repeal," he said. "I am not criticizing the Government, I realize it as the obligation of the Government, regardless of its political affiliations."

His Administration had made two changes in the old act, he reminded the House. The first was to change the bill from permissible to compulsory legislation. He then quoted the hypothetical case of a rural village which opened a store assessed as personal property. He sent his children to separate schools. Under the old law he could say that he wanted all his taxes allocated to separate school support. But nothing, said the Prime Minister, that a chain store wanted to buy out a little merchant, and he decided to sell rather than battle stiff competition. He was given shares in the new company and remained as manager of the store. Under the old act he could not say that his portion of the taxes paid by the company could go to separate schools, but his children remained to attend those schools, although the institutions were deprived of taxation. His Government had tried to correct that "obviously unjust" situation, he said.

The second change was to try to remedy the situation where it was not possible to determine the religious complexion of the shareholders. In this instance, the legislation provided that the assessment be made on the home in the municipalities.

That was the fairest way of determining the school population he had found. He quoted an instance, the City of Cornwall, where 831 children attended public schools and only 2,330 attended separate schools. About 6.5 per cent. of the assessment was given to public schools and about 12.5 per cent. of the assessment was given to separate schools. The separate school children outnumbered the public school children by three to one, but the assessment distribution was two to one.

There were many municipalities in which this perplexing problem was presented, he said. In his own county of Elgin there was only one separate school.

Under the old act, the general taxation of this Province had to be used to settle local problems, he said.

"I must confess that I did not anticipate the violent opposition we have met in Conservative Party and the Conservative press," he said. He himself had no political prejudice and he had not put himself in the position of viewing the situation from a political point of view, he declared, and added: "In my opinion the honor in the Metropolitan Cabinet than his could not be found, he said, referring to the members of his Council on his right. Hon. Harry Nixon was a United Empire Loyalist descendant; Hon. Peter Heenan was "a son of the Province"; Hon. Paul Leduc was "a scion of that great French-Canadian family"; Hon. Peter Bowman was "an immigrant boy who came here from Russia."

"Certainly," called a member of the Opposition.

Refers to By-Election

"From those men he could not have received bad political advice," he declared.

"My eyes were not opened until the East Hastings by-election. Then I did take seriously the remarks made from the other side of this House, por in the Toronto Telegram," declared Mr. Hepburn.

He had had some hope when he had gone down to East Hastings, he said. His Government had been a friend of the man on the back concession, he said. No people had enjoyed such benefits of lowered taxation as his Government had given, he said. "I went down there to tell them of our fight with the power barons, which resulted in reduced hydro rates to them," he said, "and to tell them of our taking over the whole cost of highways in that section and of how men were finding gainful employment through the Government's policy of expending pulp products."

He had told them he had hoped to improve their standard of living and make their lives a little more happy. He was not taking them to do it, he pointed out, the reverse of the various departments was increasing, especially the Forestry Department and the Succession Duties Department. "I was able to do something for them because of the efficiency of our Succession Duties Office. Again, I say, I levied no taxation on them. We recovered from estates closed and clearances given by the former administration $7,100,000. We disbursed that for the benefit of the taxpayers."

East Hastings Campaign

It was not the economic situation which counted in the East Hastings campaign, declared Mr. Hepburn, but it was the kind of campaign carried on by his political opponents. They did not discuss economics or the school problem in their speeches from the hustings. They "pointed dire pictures". They had "gone beyond lucifer" and had "intimidated the small Catholic minority so much that they were afraid to vote," he said.

Rev. T. T. Shields of Toronto, had played no little part in the campaign, had questioned the loyalty of devout Catholics, charged that they could not be loyal to the Government of Ontario. "I deprecate such statements. There is not a man in this House Catholics as there are loyal Protestants," declared Mr. Hepburn, and that if Catholics operated as a political group the agreements of 1863 were violated and that he (Colonel Drew) was already to fight to the bitter end," declared Mr. Hepburn, that political campaigning as this had aroused religious prejudice, he said.

There will be no election this year, the Prime Minister told the House. The Opposition feel that there is an election in the offing. I must disillusion them on that point," said Mr. Hepburn. "This was his only reference to the question of going to the people.

The Premier stressed the danger of religious warfare and he laid responsibility for inciting trouble on the doorstep of the Conservative Party. He quoted Earl Rowe, Conservative Leader, as saying that his Government would not provide "arcane long-dormant antagonisms the which our grandchildren will feed."

"They threatened us with this kind of stuff," said Mr. Hepburn. "That they did not discuss the question on its merits. They were content to stir up religious feeling and prejudice.

"The greatest economists and financiers could not have told how our legislation would work out. My honorable friends possible and the failure of the legislation was due to the fact that it was not fair. Even though we engaged the best brains available, the fact remains that it is keen disappointment is because of our peculiar financial structure which exists today.

"Great Disappointment."

"I find the legislation is a very great disappointment," went on the Premier, "but I cannot, for the life of me, see how it is discriminatory. Can any one to tell us where we erred. True we have made a mistake, and to which we submit, but with which I do not agree. I say the act had been fair, that it has been a much more sincere than myself (applause) and I agree to this House a year ago and introduced the measure which I thought would bring a greater degree of equity to a religious minority.

"However, I find the act as it stands is not workable," declared Mr. Hepburn. "It is not workable under present-day conditions. I am going to suggest the repeal of my honorable friend the Leader of the Opposition."

To Replace Section 65.

"We are not only going to repeal the act, but we are going to re-insert Section 65, which brings the act back to where it was in 1863," went on Mr. Hepburn.

"I am even greater responsibility than bringing justice to a religious minority rests on the Government. It is the responsibility of maintaining peace and harmony. (Applause) I know my honorable friends opposite will applaud just as heartily when I say that every child, irrespective of religion, is entitled to proper education. That is the responsibility to all our citizens. Protestant and Roman Catholic alike.

"Canada's history has been a story of progress and development. I am not going to allow the Opposition to mar that record to inject a religious issue to satisfy their own lust for office and their own political ambitions. They opened sores in East Hastings that will not be closed in a generation. There is nothing in Confederation that we have one idea," said the Prime Minister. "We are the heirs of a man for whom I have the greatest respect and admiration and whose picture stands on my desk. It is Laurier. In 1911, when the Conservatives were making rapid progress in the general election, advisers came to Laurier and said he could win the election if he made the racial appeal to the people of Quebec.

"Laurier said, and I commend his words to the Opposition, the Conservative Leader-at-large and the Secretary of the Conservative party, Colonel George Drew, these words "I do not want to open the door of power with a bloody key."

Denounces Conservatives

There was a prolonged period of desk-banging from the Liberals at these historic words. It was not the first time the Conservatives had resorted to the basest type of campaign to obtain their own ends, charged the Premier. He denounced those "who would stir hate, sneer over the bowed heads of those who would afterwards be ashamed of their part in a religious battle."

The amicable relations now existing between the Province of Ontario and Quebec were referred to by the Premier who dealt at length with the necessity of maintaining accord with the sister Province for the benefit of both.

"It is my responsibility to forestall the possibility of a religious war in this Province," declared Mr. Hepburn, amid applause. "I am man enough to stand up and take it on the chin for what is for me a bitter pill. I wish to commend the Toronto Star for its fairness, and I feel I should go out of my way to commend The Globe and Mail for pointing out the dangers of religious warfare in Ontario."

Flatly stating, as Mr. Henry insisted, said the Premier, may have had something to do with the lady's inability to function as anticipated, but the real reason why he had not "remedied the grievances" that had been set for it was the extraordinary financial structure of the present time."

Those rights are granted under the British North America Act and no legislation in this House could affect them."

Since 1934 the amount of grants to separate schools has increased from $1,056,000, while in the same year 8.9 per cent., or $2,600,000 went to separate schools. Throughout the years to 1935 there had been a steady increase in the amount given to separate schools, and the increase in the latter year was based on need, he declared. There had been a steady increase in grants to public schools, but he realized, he said, that a Government had to be limited in its generosity. In 1935 the situation was that $1.74 per cent. of the grants was given to public schools and 18.36 per cent. was given to separate schools. The separate school grants had increased from $296,000 to $455,000, he said.

Old Act Altered

"That, then, was the situation in 1935 when we enacted the legislation which we are now asked to repeal," he said. "I am not criticizing the Government, I realize it as the obligation of the Government, regardless of its political affiliations."

His Administration had made two changes in the old act, he reminded the House. The first was to change the bill from permissible to compulsory legislation. He then quoted the hypothetical case of a rural village which opened a store assessed as personal property. He sent his children to separate schools. Under the old law he could say that he wanted all his taxes allocated to separate school support. But nothing, said the Prime Minister, that a chain store wanted to buy out a little merchant, and he decided to sell rather than battle stiff competition. He was given shares in the new company and remained as manager of the store. Under the old act he could not say that his portion of the taxes paid by the company could go to separate schools, but his children remained to attend those schools, although the institutions were deprived of taxation. His Government had tried to correct that "obviously unjust" situation, he said.

The second change was to try to remedy the situation where it was not possible to determine the religious complexion of the shareholders. In this instance, the legislation provided that the assessment be made on the home in the municipalities.

That was the fairest way of determining the school population he had found. He quoted an instance, the City of Cornwall, where 831 children attended public schools and only 2,330 attended separate schools. About 6.5 per cent. of the assessment was given to public schools and about 12.5 per cent. of the assessment was given to separate schools. The separate school children outnumbered the public school children by three to one, but the assessment distribution was two to one.

There were many municipalities in which this perplexing problem was presented, he said. In his own county of Elgin there was only one separate school.

Under the old act, the general taxation of this Province had to be used to settle local problems, he said.

"I must confess that I did not anticipate the violent opposition we have met in Conservative Party and the Conservative press," he said. He himself had no political prejudice and he had not put himself in the position of viewing the situation from a political point of view, he declared, and added: "In my opinion the honor in the Metropolitan Cabinet than his could not be found, he said, referring to the members of his Council on his right. Hon. Harry Nixon was a United Empire Loyalist descendant; Hon. Peter Heenan was "a son of the Province"; Hon. Paul Leduc was "a scion of that great French-Canadian family"; Hon. Peter Bowman was "an immigrant boy who came here from Russia."

"Certainly," called a member of the Opposition.

Refers to By-Election

"From those men he could not have received bad political advice," he declared.

"My eyes were not opened until the East Hastings by-election. Then I did take seriously the remarks made from the other side of this House, por in the Toronto Telegram," declared Mr. Hepburn.

He had had some hope when he had gone down to East Hastings, he said. His Government had been a friend of the man on the back concession, he said. No people had enjoyed such benefits of lowered taxation as his Government had given, he said. "I went down there to tell them of our fight with the power barons, which resulted in reduced hydro rates to them," he said, "and to tell them of our taking over the whole cost of highways in that section and of how men were finding gainful employment through the Government's policy of expending pulp products."

He had told them he had hoped to improve their standard of living and make their lives a little more happy. He was not taking them to do it, he pointed out, the reverse of the various departments was increasing, especially the Forestry Department and the Succession Duties Department. "I was able to do something for them because of the efficiency of our Succession Duties Office. Again, I say, I levied no taxation on them. We recovered from estates closed and clearances given by the former administration $7,100,000. We disbursed that for the benefit of the taxpayers."

East Hastings Campaign

It was not the economic situation which counted in the East Hastings campaign, declared Mr. Hepburn, but it was the kind of campaign carried on by his political opponents. They did not discuss economics or the school problem in their speeches from the hustings. They "painted dire pictures". They had "gone beyond lucifer" and had "intimidated the small Catholic minority so much that they were afraid to vote," he said.

Rev. T. T. Shields of Toronto, had played no little part in the campaign, had questioned the loyalty of devout Catholics, charged that they could not be loyal to the Government of Ontario. "I deprecate such statements. There is not a man in this House Catholics as there are loyal Protestants," declared Mr. Hepburn, and that if Catholics operated as a political group the agreements of 1863 were violated and that he (Colonel Drew) was already to fight to the bitter end," declared Mr. Hepburn, that political campaigning as this had aroused religious prejudice, he said.

There will be no election this year, the Prime Minister told the House. The Opposition feel that there is an election in the offing. I must disillusion them on that point," said Mr. Hepburn. "This was his only reference to the question of going to the people.

The Premier stressed the danger of religious warfare and he laid responsibility for inciting trouble on the doorstep of the Conservative Party. He quoted Earl Rowe, Conservative Leader, as saying that his Government would provide "arcane long-dormant antagonisms the which our grandchildren will feed."

"They threatened us with this kind of stuff," said Mr. Hepburn. "That they did not discuss the question on its merits. They were content to stir up religious feeling and prejudice.

"The greatest economists and financiers could not have told how our legislation would work out. My honorable friends possible and the failure of the legislation was due to the fact that it was not fair. Even though we engaged the best brains available, the fact remains that it is keen disappointment is because of our peculiar financial structure which exists today.

"Great Disappointment."

"I find the legislation is a very great disappointment," went on the Premier, "but I cannot, for the life of me, see how it is discriminatory. Can any one to tell us where we erred. True we have made a mistake, and to which we submit, but with which I do not agree. I say the act had been fair, that it has been a much more sincere than myself (applause) and I agree to this House a year ago and introduced the measure which I thought would bring a greater degree of equity to a religious minority.

"However, I find the act as it stands is not workable," declared Mr. Hepburn. "It is not workable under present-day conditions. I am going to suggest the repeal of my honorable friend the Leader of the Opposition."

To Replace Section 65.

"We are not only going to repeal the act, but we are going to re-insert Section 65, which brings the act back to where it was in 1863," went on Mr. Hepburn.

"I am even greater responsibility than bringing justice to a religious minority rests on the Government. It is the responsibility of maintaining peace and harmony. (Applause) I know my honorable friends opposite will applaud just as heartily when I say that every child, irrespective of religion, is entitled to proper education. That is the responsibility to all our citizens, Protestant and Roman Catholic alike.

"Canada's history has been a story of progress and development. I am not going to allow the Opposition to mar that record to inject a religious issue to satisfy their own lust for office and their own political ambitions. They opened sores in East Hastings that will not be closed in a generation. There is nothing in Confederation that we have one idea," said the Prime Minister. "We are the heirs of a man for whom I have the greatest respect and admiration and whose picture stands on my desk. It is Laurier. In 1911, when the Conservatives were making rapid progress in the general election, advisers came to Laurier and said he could win the election if he made the racial appeal to the people of Quebec.

"Laurier said, and I commend his words to the Opposition, the Conservative Leader-at-large and the Secretary of the Conservative party, Colonel George Drew, these words "I do not want to open the door of power with a bloody key."

Denounces Conservatives

There was a prolonged period of desk-banging from the Liberals at these historic words. It was not the first time the Conservatives had resorted to the basest type of campaign to obtain their own ends, charged the Premier. He denounced those "who would stir hate, sneer over the bowed heads of those who would afterwards be ashamed of their part in a religious battle."

The amicable relations now existing between the Province of Ontario and Quebec were referred to by the Premier who dealt at length with the necessity of maintaining accord with the sister Province for the benefit of both.

"It is my responsibility to forestall the possibility of a religious war in this Province," declared Mr. Hepburn, amid applause. "I am man enough to stand up and take it on the chin for what is for me a bitter pill. I wish to commend the Toronto Star for its fairness, and I feel I should go out of my way to commend The Globe and Mail for pointing out the danger of a religious war in Ontario.

"No doubt my friends on the opposite side of the House will have ample opportunity to glow over the situation. But I am not worried, because so long as the Liberal Party follows Liberal policies in devotion to the cause of the common people, so long will Hi Leaders be vilified," the Prime Minister asserted. "We are prepared to give at all costs economic justice to those who have earned it. I want to give the definite assurance to the Catholic minority of Ontario that the Liberal Party will give justice and equity to all people, regardless of race or religion."

GOOD FRIDAY

Good Friday is observed throughout the Christian world as one of the most solemn of occasions, marking the event which took place on Calvary a little over nineteen centuries ago. St. Paul, whose conversion dates from a few years after the crucifixion and whose missionary journeys began some years later to various parts of the Christian world mentions this event again and again as the cornerstone of the work of Christ, showing that from the time of the first Good Friday to Paul's day there was an unbroken link of faith and fellowship of followers of the Nazarene, and that from the first Good Friday has been observed in every place where Christians dwell and meet.

Its influence upon the world no one can measure for it has moulded the private life, it has touched the lives of millions as generation after generation comes upon the scene and as the influence of the character and life of Christ spreads to the farthest places of earth. Today a great share of even the non-Christian world has heard of Him as they have heard of no other.

Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, speaking at Riverside Church, New York City, declared that His obedience to unenforceable laws is the very essence of the spirit and teaching of Jesus. "What Jesus did when He went to the cross was something no one could have required of Him. No laws could be passed that a man should sacrifice himself like that, and were such laws passed, they could not be enforced. During those final days leading up to the Cross, Jesus was taking on himself something that could not have been demanded of Him, that no one had any right to expect of Him. He was moving, that is, in the great realm of unenforceable obligation. People fall into three general class. First lawless folk; second law-abiding folk, whose standard of conduct comes mainly from codes, customs and requirements of society; third, those other folk who get their criterion of character and standard of behaviour mainly from within our. They have an inner Sinai, greater than the outer one. They move in the realm of unenforceable obligation, and in Shakespeare's fine phrase about Desdemona, they hold it a vice in their goodness not to do more than is requested."

It is this thought with the blamelessness of that noble life which gave this day its place in the Christian year.

Next to the festival of Christianity with Judaism has a link in the date of the festival of the Passover with the Christian fast of Good Friday and the Easter festival. On Friday evening at sunset the great Jewish Passover begins. This festival commemorates the providential escape of the Hebrews in Egypt, when the first born of the Egyptians were slain and the houses of the Israelites marked with the blood of the paschal lamb were passed over. It is celebrated on the first full moon of the spring from the 14th to the 21st of Nisan, the first month of the sacred year. During the days of the feast the Israelites were permitted to eat only unleavened bread, hence the Passover was called the "feast of the unleavened bread". At the service on the eve of Passover, the history of the deliverance of the Jews is read by the head of the house, special dishes are prepared symbolizing the affliction and burden of their forefathers in Egypt, and psalms and songs of thanksgiving are sung in praise of their miraculous deliverance.

By the first Christians Easter was regarded as continuing the feast of the Passover, at which the paschal lamb, a symbol of Christ, was sacrificed. There was a long dispute in the Christian church as to the proper time for holding Easter, the Christians of the East celebrating it on the same day as that on which the Jewish Passover fell, while the majority of the Church celebrated it on the Sunday next after this day. The controversy was settled by the Council of Nice in 325 which fixed Easter on the first Sunday after the full moon which happens upon or next after March 21st. If the full moon happens on a Sunday, Easter is the Sunday after.

In the old city of Jerusalem which is looked upon as the central point of Judaism and Christianity, these days are the greatest of days in the religious life of the people.

To the Christian world the tragedy of Good Friday becomes two days later, the paean of hope, praise and realization of immortality of the individual soul.

SPARE A DIME?

"Say Mister, can you help a guy?
A dime is all I need;
A loaf of bread with what we've got
Will give us all a feed."

The stranger stopped, he drew his glove
His dollars were but few,
And from his pocket drew the dime
And said, "Good luck to you."

"I thank you, stranger, very much,"
In grateful tone he said,
Then, to his pals in the flop-house
Announced, "I'll get the bread."

There was honesty in his eye,
Gratitude in his heart.
He had respect for fellowmen,
He'd like to do his part.

As the stranger kept on walking,
Then, to himself he thought.
"These fellows all are mothers' sons,
They have been loved and taught."

"Why don't these fellows go to work
And own a home some day,
They're just a good-for-nothing lot,"
Many are heard to say.

Like the ostrich on the desert
That hides its head in sand;
They hide their heads in religion
And heed not His command.

When, on one horse, two men must ride,
They fail to grasp in mind,
Why two men should sit side by side,
Why one must ride behind.

To ride in front is not a sin,
Behind is no disgrace;
But, no job for a hungry man—
The problem we must face.

MAUNDY THURSDAY IS AN INTERESTING CUSTOM, started in England in 1363 when it was established by Edward III in commemoration of Jesus washing His Disciples feet. The rite at first required the king to wash poor men's feet as well as make them gifts. Queen Elizabeth, it is said, varied the procedure by having the favored feet washed and scented in the royal laundry. William III delegated the feet washing to his Almoner and in 1754 George II stopped the foot washing altogether. The custom fell into disuse until five years ago when it was revived by King George V, who watched in Westminster Abbey while his Almoner distributed doeskin purses of scarlet and white thongs to 67 hand picked old men and 67 old women, in token of the 67th year of His Majesty's age. Maundy Pence are specially minted and as a coin collector's item are worth $1 each. They also get $12.50 per man and $8.75 per woman in lieu of a gift of clothing. Last Year King Edward announced that since he would be forty-two at his next birthday he would give Maundy Money to 42 old men and women and to 58 more besides to equal number of poor who would have got the pence had his father continued to live.

FROM OTTAWA COMES THE ANNOUNCEMENT that loans made under the Home Improvement Plan now total $1,806,955. Finance Minister Dunning stated that during the second half of February loans were made to the amount of $131,857. From Quebec comes a burst of optimism in an address by Paul MacFarlane, H.I.P. Chairman for Quebec Province, who said that by the time the $10,000,000 loan limit was reached, over $200,000,000 would have been spent in Canada for rural and urban home rehabilitation. He based his estimate figures from records of the Federal Housing Administration in the United States which showed $3 spent by home owners for every dollar borrowed under the Housing Act.

Agonizing Death of Hunters Revealed by Scribbled Diary

Became Lost in Snow-Choked Wilds of North Quebec

FAREWELLS WRITTEN

HAVRE St. Pierre, Que., March 25 (CP)—Pages of a sodden diary told today of the agonizing death from cold and starvation of two youthful hunters lost in the snow-choked wilderness of Northern Quebec.

Death, encroaching slowly for days, halted the scrawled record that told graphically of the last days of 22-year-old Willie Collin and his brother Edgar, three years his junior, prevented by hunger and storms from returning to their home at Longue, Point De Mingnan which they left last August.

How the youths spent their time in the woods from the middle of summer until near Christmas time was not disclosed in the diary in which both youths wrote of illness, cold, hunger and thirst. In their last days of painful starvation the brothers, almost too weak to write, scribbled messages of farewell to their relatives, and told how they had implored aid from the Blessed Virgin and Saint Anne.

"My very dear parents, before I become too weak to write any more, I want to tell you that the data that is not entered in my book will show we could move no longer, neither one nor the other. Before losing consciousness, I will write more, for what else can we do? Our souls are in the hands of God."

Bodies Found by Trappers

That was one of the entries found by Dr. E. B. Pinet, sent by the Attorney-General's department to investigate the death of the brothers, whose frozen bodies were found by trappers passing an abandoned cabin about three weeks ago.

The bodies, one in an old bunk, the other on the floor, were found by trappers who hailed to peer through a window of the old shack which the youths apparently made into a camp to wait for a raging storm to abate. Then Willie cut his leg while chopping wood and was unable to walk. Meanwhile, new storms buried the bushlands and they were unable to make their way through the heavy snow. Supplies were meagre.

Word of their death filtered through to the Attorney-General's department, and Dr. Pinet, who acts as Coroner in the district, took 500 miles east of Quebec, and 150 miles north of the St. Lawrence River, investigated. Near the bodies, almost skeletons, he found the diary.

Diary Tells of Misery

From day to day the entries told of misery from hunger and illness and cold. On Jan. 13 they told how weak they were but said they were praying and expressed the hope of getting back to civilization. Grandiose hopes dwindled. Pain and hunger became more acute. Suffering increased. The pathetic note from Edgar on Jan. 26 recorded his brother's death during the previous night.

In that entry, the brother wrote:

"Jan. 26: My very dear parents and friends, it is Edgar whose sad duty it is to tell you that the good Blessed Virgin came from heaven last night to take away my dear brother, Willie, about 11 o'clock.

"Dear God, I don't know what to do, with myself, I can't sleep now. I have eaten only once in three days. I can hardly cut wood because I'm just able to lift the axe. Oh God, maybe in a few days the Blessed Virgin will come for me, too. Do not fear for us, dear parents. We have gone through too much not to be saved.

"I wish you goodnight now. I no longer can see the date on the page. Whatever date is missing from this notebook will be the day good Sainte Anne came for me. I'm saying my rosary. I cry and sigh, and am trembling with cold, Edgar."

First Entry December 24

That was the last he wrote. On the floor beside the crumbled body they found the book, its first entry dated Dec. 24. It told of a little party the brothers staged for two trappers, "Joe et Jean," who dropped in on them that day.

"Together we had a little party. We had a rabbit."

On Christmas Day the diary recorded "heavy snowstorm. Very cold."

Less than a week later, while repairing their lobsterpots, Willie "ended this unlucky year by cutting my foot. It's not very painful, but it's deemed annoying."

Days of raging storms dragged by. Food became more scarce. On Jan. 11 they prepared to go home. But two days later:

"We weren't able to leave. Strong winds are blowing and it is cold. . . it is hard to move about...Willie has got sore legs, and I am sick to my stomach...the way it is now we can't eat anymore...it is hard to get wood."

Almost a week later: "Still snowing. . . we are getting weaker every day...Oh God, how miserable life is to us...we can't tell on paper all our sufferings and trouble. . . It could not carry them...for two days we have eaten only (flour and water) cakes...how long and lonely the days are...we are very weak."

Another week passed: "...We couldn't even drag ourselves out to get wood today...Oh God, we would be happy to see our dear ones and good relatives...We haven't heard from them for five months..."

Made Something to Drink

"We made something to drink...I sealed some spruce in water. It will protect our stomachs...We are despairing day by day...If only help would come...Jesus, Mary, Joseph pray for us..."

"Jan. 21: What a sad sight we are, Willie especially. He is almost dead...Haven't eaten for two days...I can still move my fingers a little a few times. . . My eyes are very unlucky..."

"I turned Willie over in bed today so he could write...I can hardly move my fingers...My body is as if it were paralyzed. . . "

"Another day and no one came to our rescue...who would have said that it would be the last time I was to kiss you, mother, when we left home five months ago...There were tears in your eyes..."

"My dear brother can't [illegible] self...He is very weak. hasn't eaten for days...for two days I threw...We grow weaker every day and have hardly any flesh on our bones...We think only of death..."

So sad and so miserable...At night we cannot perish from cold...I am sore with only one eye . . .

"Jan. 25:...I don't think Willie will live through the night..."

"Jan. 26: ....Willie is dead...Oh God, maybe in a few days the Blessed Virgin will come for me, too."

The rest of the book was blank.

London, March 25.—(CP-Havas)—Ernest Simpson's slander suit against Mrs. Joan Sutherland, London Society woman has been formally docketed for hearing before King's Bench Division jury, it was announced yesterday.

With the case slated for the Easter term, there was speculation as to whether it would come to trial before Mrs. Wallis Simpson's decree nisi becomes final on April 27, after which she intends to marry the Duke of Windsor. IMPROVEMENT PLAN FOR HOMES UNDERTAKEN

Belleville Committee is Organized to Carry on Scheme Here

DETAILS GIVEN

Belleville's committee on the Home Improvement plan, headed by Mr. J. O. Herity, secretary and manager of the Chamber of Commerce, got away to a good start at the organization meeting held in the Chamber office on Front Street last evening, at which the preliminary arrangements of the past few days spent in organization, showed results. Most of the representatives of the various bodies and industries and trade groups were present and short addresses were delivered by the chairman and by Mr. J. E. Jones, district representative of the Ontario Advisory Committee of the Home Improvement Plan. It was made very clear that the Home Improvement plan is quite distinct from the Dominion Housing Plan.

Tonight at 10.30 to 10.45 o'clock Mr. A. B. Purvis, chairman of the National Employment Commission of Canada, will deliver an address over a coast-to-coast hook-up of Canadian stations, including CKCT, in explanation of the aims of the Home Improvement Plan which has been sponsored by the commission. The local committee's action for the time in discussing various phases of the work, such as further intensive campaign of publicity by such means as motion pictures, showing the benefits of improvement to old homes and by a show-window and other schemes. The members were very optimistic as a result of the meeting and encouraged by the outlook for impressive results in Belleville.

Plan Is Explained

Mr. J. O. Herity, chairman of the local committee, explained that one year ago the Dominion Housing Act was put into force but the results were not as expected as loans could not be made through the insurance companies for the type of houses those interested in improving would like to build, that is, houses at a low first cost. Whereas last year the minimum value of the contemplated house on which a loan was made had to be $4,000, this year the insurance companies are willing to take loans on $2,500 houses. Numbers of those who would like to build could not afford this outlay on a home, it was thought.

The Home Improvement Plan is entirely distinct, Mr. Herity said and is every way an entirely different sort of undertaking. He stated that he had been asked to take the chairmanship of the local committee only in the past two weeks have been spent in organizing group for terest.

"I feel greatly enthused about the possibilities of this plan," said the chairman. The work I took into it, the more I see that there has been formed a means of stimulating business and relieving of the unemployment situation, so as to reduce relief bills as much as desired.

More than four thousand loans have been made under the Home Improvement plan in the first couple of weeks. It was pointed out, accounting for $1,800,000 in loans.

Season Just Ahead

"And we have not yet reached the season of the year when this new kind actually begins. By June it is hoped to have the entire $50,000,000 devoted to this work loaned. It is generally believed that for every dollar expended in the Home Improvement Plan there will be three dollars spent by others on their own initiative, as a result of the example set, so there is a reasonable possibility of $150,000,000 additional being spent in improvements all throughout Canada, this year by private enterprise. It requires little imagination to realize the results of such a movement. If you have a plan, you have a friend in the United States, and it has been a great benefit." In Philadelphia,

CHAPTER 4
Night Raid

It was a new, and very unpleasant, experience for John Talbot to find himself with his arm about the slight figure that leaned against him so confidently in the taxicab. The soft fluff of Judy's silken hair touched his brown cheek and the sweep of her dark lashes marked deep shadows where suffering had left its mark yet no lines were etched.

Judy, who had suffered so long, had tried to fight her own battle against cold and hunger and the agonizing search for work, was not conscious that this was a rich and powerful man, or that he was still young and strong. She leaned her head on his shoulder because she was too tired to hold it up.

She was scarcely conscious of the kindly carpeted lobby of the apartment house to which they drew up. She saw herself in the mirrored walls of the elevator, as though she were another person.

It was only when they were—in the drawing room where priceless paintings looked down upon her and the paths of old woods and velvets gave off their perfume that she seemed to realize what a great distance she had come from the cold little room with the gas-jet.

She reached her chilled fingers out to the blazing fire in the Tudor hearth. She wriggled her toes in her clamp shoes and drew out of the thin coat, carefully removing the gardenias which had become a symbol to her.

It was a hotel apartment and Talbot's elegant servant was out there, so it was Talbot himself who fetched a basket and prepared a bowl of milk. He were mingled emotions in which pity, happiness and wonder played equal parts.

He had ordered diamonds and sables, but the block of stock in six figures for Hildegarde yet he had never done more than hold the title to her. He tried to picture Hildegarde's head as it would rest against his shoulder. He tried to image her in a dependent role. That was the way he had always wished he yet Hildegarde was . . . Hildegarde was "magnificent and fearless little thing . . . this half-starved Judy was like a little child to them.

She turned to him eagerly and taking the bowl in both hands lifted it to her mouth. She sipped the milk slowly, stopping to smile at him or to close her eyes for a moment.

Presently:

"Mmm . . . this is nice . . . mind if I slip off my shoes?"

"Please." The tone held all contrition. "Why they're wet! Look here, it's dangerous for you to keep on those damp shoes. You'll have pneumonia, I'll . . . that is . . . you must take off those shoes at once but . . . but there are a pair of my pajamas . . . a dressing gown . . . and that." This was new to him and his embarrassment was painful.

Judy looked at him with a minute and then smiling, walked to the door. "Where shall I go?" she indicated.

Gleaming tiles beckoned from the bathroom beyond. Would she dare she asked herself? Talbot thought she would. She filled the tub with steaming water and lay back in it for a long time. She thought of her self-consciousness with Talbot and of her own dirty clothes and wrinkled skin. She seemed genuinely kind—not "one of those men."

Oh how lovely it was in that tub; how lovely to shut off her suffering and forget! It was . . . it was . . . it was . . . Judy, she dried herself, wound one towel about her head, slipped her own dress over the rose-red pajamas. The robe trailed about her. She rolled the sleeves of the pajamas back over the sleeves of the robe and rolled the trousers about her ankles. Then she opened the door leading to the drawing-room.

Three blocks away Maud Ferguson was in a fever of excitement waiting for her number in a telephone booth in the Hot Plate. She had news!

Hildegarde Talbot reached a snowy arm glittering with diamond bracelets for the telephone and lifting the ivory instrument to her hear languidly answered:

"Hello . . . hello, Maud . . . nothing very special. Tito is here. Can't you come in for a cup of tea? . . . What!" She sat up on the lounge on which she had been reclining. As the voice on the other end of the wire went on her breath came faster and her eyes opened wide. She spoke. She wet her lips:

"Are you sure Maud? . . . you . . . please go on . . . oh . . . how clever of you!" she shot a glance of triumph at the sleek-haired man sitting beside the tea-table. "You are positive . . . you . . . I know . . . I'll do exactly that."

Returning the telephone to its stand. Hildegarde Talbot gathered her chiffon tea-gown about her, looked coolly at her watch and picked up a slender glass, then raising it to the man:

"To us, darling!"

He took the glass from her hand.

"My darling, what does this mean?"

"It means, Tito, that I shall have my divorce immediately and without collusion."

The man shrugged his shoulders but at her next statement, a thunderlight came in his eyes.

"It means that John Talbot will have to give me at least one million dollars!"

"Will my girl be quiet and tell me all about this?"

"We shall have to hurry. Tito, leaning forward to meet his downstairs. Tell him to have the witnesses and the photographers. There is a woman in my husband's apartment alone with him. Maud saw him and followed him home with her. She said that she saw them in a taxi and John was making love to her. I'll bloxon John Talbot's name all over New York and what I'll do to hers."

Tito rubbed his wrist and turned it cruelly:

"You still love him," he accused. "Darling, I don't," she brushed his hand with her lips.

"Why do you want to do this?"

"Tito", she almost pleaded with him. "You know we must have money now that Judy has gone. I said he was willing to give me a divorce but he said he wouldn't buy it so he wouldn't have to . . . prince for me."

"No," he said coldly, "you feel that you have to buy me?"

"Dear, dear, no not but we both know that we must have . . . well the things to which we are accustomed. Tito don't let's argue about that now. We'll have it. Telephonedarling, I must change my dress," her voice faded and like an elusive fire the diamonds lay on the air.

More than a million dollars for this!

Judy had cast off the robe and lay on the deep sofa where the firelight played. Her eyes were shut, three animated shadows on her face. She had been through a sea of trouble and had listened raptly to her sweetly husky voice as she told him of worlds he had never known.

He could see the little farmhouse she had left. The kittens and the dog. He could see the mother she adored, the mother with the sad eyes because her Judy was coming to New York to be famous.

And then she told him about those weeks of looking for work and finding none. She told him of show they had seen. She told him of the men who had insulted her when she lost her job and the men who had offered to help her.

"But why didn't you let them?" he asked.

"Don't you understand?" At the blinding flash in her eyes she hurried to explain. "Those men didn't want to help me, they wanted me. And I don't want anything that way. I despise girls . . . you see I'm a small-town girl and we . . . well, to be good, to be decent . . . you know . . . I mean your reputation is the only thing you have . . . I mean . . . your reputation as far as the world is concerned . . . as far as you are concerned yourself. It was best enough for me to come away and go on the stage. Lots of people left home think even that is wrong. I guess that they aren't just sure at that."

"I see." John Talbot studied the little hand in his own and the slender throat. "You won't have to worry about doing wrong. No one will ever believe anything bad about me. Why don't you get that in?" there someone there?"

"I don't know," she said lazily. "I don't know whether I'm in love with him. I guess I must be though.

"Steady there. Take my arm," a him.

strong, deep voice came to Judy's ears from far, far away. An arm was about her and she was moving —floating—she was on the brink of unconsciousness but she only knew that there was a man beside her. She couldn't see him through the wavering shadows but she turned the ling beside her in the theatre.

"Drink this," the voice said and something biting and warm touched her lips. Judy swallowed and the mist cleared away. She opened her eyes and looked about her. She was in a taxicab and the man with her was the man who had been sitting beside her in the theatre.

"I'm sorry," she murmured.

"What is there to be sorry about?" John Talbot asked and his eyes filled with pity as they rested on her delicate white face and guessed that hunger had caused her to fall against him half-fainting with weakness.

"I don't like to . . . to bother you," Judy answered him and, as tears welled up her in eyes, she wanted so much to see all the reasons . . . it was . . . I thought . . . something coming like the flowers out of nowhere."

Unconsciously, Talbot's arm tightened about the girl protectively. He could find no words. He wanted to help her but he didn't know what to do about it. Finally:

"I think that you need some dry clothes and warm food, and if you don't mind I think it would be best to go to my place."

Almost sleepily Judy answered him, "thank you very much."

And then, hesitatingly. "After that—"

"After that," Judy said as she laid her head confidently on his shoulder, "I guess you'll have to figure it out."

At that moment the long, sleek car that slowed up beside their taxi showed for a moment the startled face of a woman who raised a jeweled lorgnette excitingly before turning to her companion:

"John, did you see what I saw?" Maud Ferguson demanded of her husband, who knew better than to answer. "It was John Talbot!" And then to the chauffeur:

"Three blocks away Maud Ferguson was in a fever of excitement waiting for her number in a telephone booth in the Hot Plate. She had news!

Hildegarde Talbot reached a snowy arm glittering with diamond bracelets for the telephone and lifting the ivory instrument to her hear languidly answered:

I opened my door one morning,
The sky was clouded even,
It had snowed; the ground was snowy
And the rain began to pour.

The prospect ahead looked gloomy,
A drinking rainy day,
When a voice called out so sweetly,
From a tree across the way.

"Cheer up!" Look up and be happy!
The sun will shine again,
Fire, the refreshing showers,
Then sunshine after rain.

The voice of the first spring robin,
Was welcome to his summer home,
And he to his mate was singing,
Singing of home sweet home.

Joy filled my heart when I saw him,
Bold as a knight was he,
And I thrilled to hear him sing:
A beautiful, cheering message
That bird was carolling.

He cared not that it was raining
He cared not for the snow
The Father above would care for him
Through cold and rain and snow.

O, ye restless human beings,
Why worry, and fret and stew
Feed God thro' faith as the robins
Is able to care for you.

—Maude Fox.

It's been practically all my life. He used to mend my toys when I was little, took me to all the school dances and . . . oh, I don't know. He was always there and he's pretty nice to me. He's the favorite most of the boys out there, too. All his brothers are growing up to be farmers—Larry is the oldest—but John is different. He's doing articulation and wants to get a pilot's license sometime. His ambition is to be a mail flyer. Can you think that's wonderful?"

Talbot thought it was and what a lucky fellow Larry was.

"Why don't you go back and marry him?" he asked her.

"Larry hasn't asked me. I know he doesn't love to marry me," Judy answered quickly, "but things out in the West are changing. Maybe it's getting very well. It's farm country you know, and Larry has to do perhaps his whole family. I guess he can't afford a wife yet."

"Perhaps I might be able to do something if he is so anxious to fly," Talbot said. "I'll think it over."

Judy going to order dinner for us and then we're going to talk about it."

Her hand was still in his. Now, she leaned toward him and looked deep into his eyes.

"You're sweet," she said to him and Talbot's head suddenly laid her cheek against his.

And then it happened!

The knob had turned so quickly. The door burst open. There was a blinding flash. Then chaos reigned.

The men with the cameras. The woman in sables who screamed at them. Then Judy standing at once. John Talbot with cold fury turning his face to them. What did it mean? What had happened?

Timidly, Judy touched him on the arm.

Wordlessly he picked up the robe and handed it about her drooping clad figure. The fury gave way to pity as he spoke to her.

"I'm sorry, Judy. I didn't know."

NO MAINTENANCE FOR CHORLEY PARK AFTER NEXT FALL

Toronto, Mar. 25 (CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn early today informed the Ontario Legislature the government would not provide for maintenance of Chorley Park, official residence of the Lieutenant-Governor, after Mr. H. A. Bruce's term expires this Fall. He said he would so advise the Dominion government when the present Lieutenant-governor's term ended.

George Henry, Conservative House leader, questioned Mr. Hepburn at an election promise to do away with the provincial expenditure on maintenance of Government House. Mr. Henry Mr. Hepburn was coming to appreciate his value and doubted if he would carry out his intention.

"Is Bruce to one of the finest gentlemen I've ever known," said Mr. Hepburn. "He has graced the position and added dignity to it. If the position could be justified, he'd be the man to do it."

"I'm sorry, Judy, I didn't know."

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Green Light"

A best-seller for two years, Lloyd C. Douglas' novel, "Green Light" has been translated in the screen, retaining all of its original strength and beauty and brought to life by a cast that competent and by the production "Green Light," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre and remains until Friday night with matinee Good Friday.

Errol Flynn, whose first big picture was "Captain Blood" and "Charge of the Light Brigade," proclaimed him one of the screen's greatest "finds" of recent years, adds stature to his already splendid reputation with his handling of the role of Newell Paige, the young surgeon, who sacrifices his own professional integrity to cover the mistake of an older doctor. In considering the blame he incurs the hatred of Phyllis Dexter (played by the lovely Beverly Lenay) whose mother's death was caused by the fatal mistake.

To justify his life, and to prove to Phyllis whom he loves, that he is trying to make up for the tragic mistake she believes he has made, he goes to an obscure laboratory in the Rocky Mountains and risks his life trying to find a vaccine that will prevent the dread spotted fever.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who was knighted by King George for his magnificent work on the stage, is superb in the role of Dean Monmouth, the minister whose advice and philosophy shape the lives of the other characters, and Beulah Bondi, famous as Frances Ogilvie, who loves Paige but has to give him up, gives a convincing and sympathetic performance as does Henry O'Neill, as the loyal surgeon who is the cause of Flynn's martyrdom. Walter Abel fills completely into the role of Paige's friend and colleague.

"Green Light" has been produced with the same fidelity to the novel's mess that marks a Cosmopolitan picture released by First National and it was directed by Frank Borzage, skill always shown by Frank Borzage, famous among others for "Seventh Heaven," "Bad Girl," "Little Man, What Now," "Lucky Devil" and "Hearts Divided."

The novel has been followed closely in the screen play written by Milton Krims.

A combination of great story and great cast is one that is destined to tell—and that's what "Green Light" has.

— Added Shorts —

The latest "Capitol News Events," a musical short with "Geo. Hall's Orchestra" and an all star comedy featuring Nella Gwen in "Spring is Here," complete this splendid two hour show. Last complete show today and Friday at 2.05.

Saturday

The glory and mysticism of great painted desert, its lost towns, its ancient Indians still living in archaic half savage fashion, buried treasures and many romances that provide the most novel and exciting background for featuring the dashing Don Juans of the West, "The Three Mesquiteers."

"The Riders of the Whistling Skull," being the fourth of the series, co-featuring Bob Livingston, Ray "Crash" Corrigan and Max Terhune comes to the Capitol for one day only Saturday matinee and evening, with "Crash" in a series of thrilling stunts reminiscent of his Tarzan days; Livingston in a series of hair-raising as well as romantic incidents and Max Terhune outdoing himself in begetting laughs from a hilarious audience.

THREE BURN IN HOME

Rexton, N.B., Mar. 25 (CP)—Three lives were lost here early today when fire destroyed the home of Vital Robichaud, trapping members of the family in their beds. Flames lit fifty miles north of Moncton.

AT THE BELLE

"On The Avenue"

Roly Young photoplay critic of The Toronto Globe and Mail, in an open letter to Jack Arthur, manager of the Uptown theatre, Toronto, speaks in the following glowing terms of that grand musical "On The Avenue."

"Just a line to tell you I think "On The Avenue" is right up the alley. The first time I saw it I knew I must have to suppress my enthusiasm and went up and saw "On The Avenue" again, and I like it even better than the first time. That guy Berlin sure can turn out tunes, and Dick Powell and Alice Faye can sell 'em. I'm seriously thinking of buying me a gramophone and getting records of "This Year's Kisses" and "The Girl on the Police Gazette" and playing them until I get enough of them for the records wear out. Those two keep running through my head so much I even sing 'em in the office. Another reason I'm glad the picture is holding over is that I expect to work in another spare evening and see it again."—Roly Young.

Swinging merrily along to the tune of such songs ever written by the greatest writer of songs in the world—Irving Berlin—represented in "On The Avenue," the musical comedy which opened yesterday at the Belle for a week's engagement, is a show that is full of tuneful melodies, gay repartee, and bubbling good spirits.

With Dick Powell and Madeleine Carroll making a new and romantic twosome of musical comedy, the Ritz Brothers, George Barbier and Alice Faye, the show is a full evening of entertainment.

Madeleine Carroll, noted hitherto for straight dramatic roles, makes her musical comedy debut in Dick Powell. The beginning of "On The Avenue" finds her, as a "walkout girl" in a department store in love with her father, George Barbier and an explorer, Gene Morgan, at the moment that Dick Powell, Alice Faye and the Ritz Brothers are engaged in a hilarious take-off on the boom days of wealth and glitz in the world."

Complicated, Madeleine stalks from the theatre, threatens the manager with suit, and then decides to go to the doorman to snatch Alice's wig from her hand and to dash into her room of Dick's dressing room before she is forcibly ejected.

Recitals later, Madeleine apologizes for being a poor sport, and Dick Powell, a new singing star's love with her, Dick promises to resign the skit, and invites her to the next performance. At this, however, Alice, Dick's partner, horrifies him by adding even more caustic lines to the skit.

Madeleine takes her revenge on Dick for the public humiliation, both in a surprising scene, in which the music by Irving Berlin plays a novel part, Dick finds a way to clear up the misunderstandings that have parted them, and to bring a thrilling conclusion to the film.

Worthy of a separate note are the distinctive and lovely melodies Irving Berlin composed for this film. "This Year's Kisses," "You're Laughing at Me," "Slumming on the Avenue," "I've Got My Love to Keep Me Warm," "The Girl on the Police Gazette," and a novelty number written for the Ritz Brothers, entitled "He Ain't Got Rhythm."

"On The Avenue" begins daily shows at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.10. Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.10.

A very funny multiple-reel Star Personality Comedy, and Paramount Pictorial with its intimate delights of people and events.

5th Day For "Wings"

Annabella, the lovely and exciting actress with the unusual name, is appearing at the Belle tonight for the last times, concluding a highly successful five days engagement in "Wings of the Morning," produced in the new perfected technicolor and featuring Henry Fonda and the world famous tenor John McCormack. Three matinee and short treats precede the feature. Complete show start at 7.10 and 9.10 p.m.

Copper Cliff Drawn Against Montreal Jrs.

Ottawa, March 25 — (CP) — A switch in the Memorial Cup Play, downs throwing Copper Cliff against Montreal Victorias was announced early yesterday by Cecil Duncan, President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Duncan's statement said:

"The C.A.H.A. Junior champions will go to Toronto for the first two games of the Memorial Cup, starting Saturday night, March 27, and Copper Cliff will then go to Montreal for the next game on Monday, March 29. Winners of that series will meet the winners of the Ottawa Rideaus-Port Amherst-St. Pat's in the Eastern finals, dates for which will be announced later. Montreal Victorias were originally drawn to meet the winners of the Rideau-Amherst series, but on the swift termination of the Copper Cliff-St. Mike's series it was found possible to move the Montrealers up.

to Mr. Macaulay's side, spoke a word in his ear and put his hand on his shoulder. Mr. MacAulay shook free. The sergeant-at-arms moved quickly. His right hand went to the back of Mr. Macaulay's coat collar, his left beneath the back of the member's coat.

Thus guarding at his side, Captain Rutherford pushed the still protesting member down the centre aisle, out and out the door. The whips rounded up the members for division, first on the motion that about off debate. It was carried 65-15.

Second reading of the bill then carried, all 90 members in the House at that moment voting in its favor.

The House then took up debate on a Conservative motion asking that a special committee inquire into the administration of Ontario's liquor laws. On a straight party division the motion was defeated 39.14, and the House turned to consideration of various matters of various departments in a drab discussion.

Premier Makes Admission

"I'm man enough to stand up and take it on the chin and swallow my pride, so me is a very bitter pill," Premier Hepburn told the members, adding he was "taking this act out of the picture as a personal matter."

He commended to the Conservative opposition the words of Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "I do not want to open the door to power with a back key."

The premier made it clear the responsibility for the decision was his. He had not consulted his Liberal party in caucus, adding that "so long as the Liberal party follows the Liberal principles in devotion to the cause of the common people as long will its leaders be vilified."

In the early morning hours before adjournment Mr. Hepburn told the House he regretted the flare of temper and the incident that brought about Mr. Macaulay's departure. He shout Mr. Macaulay would second a motion to have Mr. Macaulay returned. No such motion or leader resulted "in view of the disgraceful nature of the incident."

With Provincial Secretary Nixon as seconder the premier then moved to adjourn. Mr. Macaulay returned to his seat. The Speaker accepted the motion and there was no opposition on an oral vote.

Leafs and Bruins on Spot As They Must Take Rangers And Maroons to Stay in Race

Dit Clapper May be an Absentee From Boston Lineup

TROTTIER HURT

Leafs Expect to Even Series in New York To-night.

By A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs will be strictly on the spot tonight as Stanley Cup warfare resumed in Detroit, Boston and New York. They are the only teams, who must win to stay in the hunt for the world hockey title.

Montreal Canadiens can lose another game to Detroit Red Wings and still have an outside chance for the National Hockey League title and the Stanley mug. Theirs is a three-of-five series.

But if Bruins bow again to Montreal Maroons they can hang up their sticks and start golf. The same fate awaits Toronto Maple Leafs unless they can produce not a victory over New York Rangers.

If Bruins play back to the form of Tuesday night both Boston and Toronto should be eliminated but played games have a way of seldom working out along dope lines. There will be little surprise if both manage to tie up their two-of-three series.

Even Red Wings admit that Canadiens may take tonight's battle in Detroit. Jack Adams and his men consider themselves pretty lucky to have won 4-0 from the Habitants Tuesday and expect at least a closer score tonight.

Canadiens will have to give everything in an effort to tie the series before they return to Montreal for the remaining games.

Clapper Is Absent

Boston may go into the second game of the series between teams finishing second in the N.H.L. without Dit Clapper, their big left wing who was pinched Referee Clarence Campbell in Montreal. Clapper is to be ajd d at the case to League President Frank Calder in New York today and may be hustled back to Boston in time for the game unless Calder decides to suspend him.

Maroons' manager, Tommy Gorman, is indecisive about whether Dave Trottier tonight. His right arm was badly cut in an encounter with Clapper, that preceded the attack on Campbell. It is likely, however, that the winger will see at least some action tonight.

Rangers remain in New York today and did their best to carry out Lester Patrick's orders to forget to-night's battle. Leafs made no pretence of forgetting it. Satisfied they were outplayed by referees Smith and Bill Stewart in Toronto Tuesday, they are confident in swearing to reverse the 3-0 score tonight. They don't entirely disregard defence they may just do that.

TENNIS CAPTAIN

Taking things easy in the south is Sidney Hermant of Toronto, captain of the University of Toronto tennis team and a Canadian representative in the annual Bermuda tennis championships.

REDMEN HOPE TO WIN TITLE FROM THOROLD SQUAD

First Intermediate Final to be Played Here in 21 Years on Friday

ICE PERFECT

Games And Not Goals Will Count in The Final Round

Seldom is a city the size of Belleville blessed with two intermediate final series in one season as will be the case when the Belleville Redmen take to the ice versus the Thorold green-clad Mountaineers on Friday night in the first of the best two in three series for the intermediate "B" championship of the O.H.A. Already Belleville and district fans have cheered the W.C.A.H. to an intermediate "A" title but on Friday night will have the opportunity to exercise their vocal cords and cheer a Belleville team to possible victory.

Great interest is being manifested throughout the whole of the Bay of Quinte district in this first intermediate O.H.A. final game to be played in Belleville in the past 21 years. The Redmen defeated the Belleville Arena on Tuesday night and again last night the players reporting in fine fettle and the ice in splendid condition.

Bing Thorold "Mountaineers" boast of a quartette of veteran puckster, in Irvin Longman, Clint Warner, Doug Horne and Chuck Patterson, all of whom have been playing hockey in the peninsula for some years past. Joe Colucci, speed wing player and Rusty Ross are newcomers having played their early hockey in Port Colborne, however, "Lick" McGregor, who starred in the Allan Cup Kenmania's ers against the Clinton Colts in the semi-finals, will have to be good to stop Murray Jackson and Tompkins, Murphy, Whitton, St. Louis and Burley, all of Redmen, who are looking forward with anticipation to the bringing to Belleville of the first O.H.A. championship ever enjoyed by a Belleville hockey club.

The line-ups and respective numbers for the final game to be played for the first game of the intermediate "B" finals in the O.H.A. to open at the Belleville Arena on Friday night will probably be as follows:

Thorold	Position	Belleville
McGregor 1	goal	Tompkins
Payne 2	def.	Murphy
Thompson 16		Bentley
Turner 3	centre	W. Jackson
Ross 10	wing	Tompkins
Colucci 8		C. Jackson
Weller 4	Sub.	St. Louis
W. Lounsbury 7		Morgan
Patterson 5		Whitton
Horne 14		Burley
L. Lounsbury 12		Hartley
Sherman 1		McCully

G. Pepper, Motorcycle Champ Wants Opportunity to Compete In Isle of Man Race in June

Most Dangerous Course in The World And Best Riders Compete

TO GET NEW MACHINE

Expected Belleville Citizens to Co-operate With Local Rider

Featured as a front page story on the Isle of Man Examiner, published at Douglas, on that Island, appeared a special news article in the publication of that newspaper of March 5th featuring George Pepper, Belleville motorcycle rider and Canadian champion. Complete in every detail including a two column cut on the upper right hand corner of the front page showing a motorcycle rider being pictured, while negotiating one of the more dangerous curves on the Isle of Man course, which George Pepper hopes to ride upon next June. Already a group of interested Belleville business men are negotiating to help George compete in the great Isle of Man Grand Prix motorcycle race to be held on the Isle of Man, this summer.

Under the heading of "Champ filmed for Canada's champion" is the following news story published in the Isle of Man Examiner, and the above film has been taken by Mr. George Pepper of Belleville, Ontario, winner of the Canadian 200 miles championship last September.

He also was second in last year's United States championship races, being only 2 seconds behind the winner.

His first ice race through his filler cap coming off with the result that he had to make many unexpected pit-stops to fill up with petrol. In the corresponding event in 1935 he was fifth.

Experienced Racer

He is a very experienced road racer and is well-known to the Northern Motor Cycle Club, and he comounts he used in his three major performances in 1936 he averaged nearly 95 m.p.h. at Daytona Beach on a Norton, which was standard in every respect. He was at the Beach in company with Sir Malcolm Campbell.

This week's filming of the course has been taken in the Belleville Spence, of Detroit, U.S.A. and Manchester, England, who is Pepper's mechanic.

Such is only an excerpt, from the lengthy report carried in the Isle of Man Examiner, and regarding George Pepper, Belleville's own champion. The Mr. Spence referred to in the article was George's mechanic at Daytona Beach and in Belleville last fall when he won the championship of Canada. Mr. Spence thinks George's possibilities are above average as an outstanding motorcycle rider and to such an extent that he has personally recommended the local rider to the Norton Motors and also to the British Motorcycle Association as one of the finest riders in the colonies.

CRONIN UP

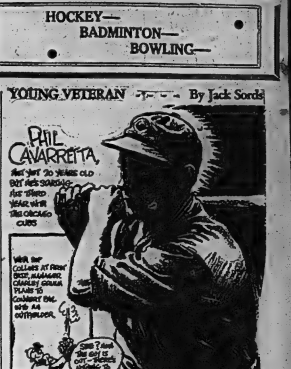
Company to Give Machine

Mr. Spence recently informed George Pepper, that providing he made the trip to the Isle of Man and entered the race the Norton Motorcycle people would furnish him with a new machine, gratis, and that is guaranteed to travel at a maximum speed of 120 m.p.h. It is a racing machine Mr. Spence also has completed arrangements to have an experienced motorcycle mechanic, who, incidentally finished sixth in the Isle of Man Grand Prix race last year, act as Mr. Pepper's pitman, so keenly interested are the British authorities into encouraging Belleville's champion into competing in this annual international event.

The course over which the Manx Grand Prix is raced on the Isle of Man is recognized as one of the most treacherous and dangerous courses in the world, with hazardous hair-pin turns, mountainous climbs and other natural hazards. The course on the Isle of Man is open to contestants to practice on every morning from 4.00 until 8.00 a.m. for three weeks prior to the race and it is during this period strange and unaccustomed riders acquaint themselves with the dangers of the track.

Anxious to Compete



George Pepper is naturally anxious to compete in the Isle of Man Grand Prix, at which all of the better class rides in the world enter, and represent Canada as the Canadian champion from Belleville. Already the city has received some valuable advertising in the British newspapers through the fact that George Pepper is the Canadian motorcycle riding champion, a sport that is held in high esteem in the Old Country. Denoting a fitting and proper that George Pepper should be given an opportunity to advance in his chosen realm of the sporting world, a group of local citizens are endeavouring to finance George upon this venture. A campaign to assist in this manner has been planned as a medium of assuring the George Pepper with an opportunity to match his riding ability against the best in the world. A victory for Pepper would bring no end of prides and honor not only to the champion but to his native city.

The Thorold intermediates are known as the "Mountaineers". Well, they may be mountain-climbers but in the Niagara Peninsula, but on their own home ice has accomplished in the intermediate "B" play-downs that being when Sutton won 3-2 over the local intermediates, who were playing a purely defensive game at that time. According to advance notices the Thorold "Mountaineers' battle front Coach Dukie Trainor has a number of real live wire players, many who are aged boys, however, but they have got their star goalie, literally saved them from elimination in the Hamilton series with his miraculous like saves, according to reports from the battle front. Youth and age are combined on the defence with Norm Payne and Jack Weston Chuck Thompson, while the Thorold front line of Chuck Turner at centre, flanked by Rusty Ross and Joe Colluccl, is the best bet for scoring honors with Clint Warner Allan. The alternates are mostly members of several years in the O.H.A.

x x x

Incidentally the Thorold squad was organized on the roster that makes the Redmen see "red", Richard Turner, Belleville senior star, last night's most-welcome drop in the temperature was just what the doctor ordered for the local intermediate team for a full advantage of the ice conditions in this city. It will get behind them and assist vocally in helping to make Belleville the first O.H.A. title.

x x x

With the ice in good shape and the Redmen rested up nicely after their Sutton series, a real championship battle was looked for last night. The boys are all in fine fettle and there will be no alibis, simply because I didn't get a chance to shine. They are all set for a championship team. The boys are clicking well together and have developed in the ranks, which goes a long and towards winning a title. We are worrying about the second game yet, but are trying to win them as they come, and the Redmen have eliminated two good clubs in Whitby and Sutton, both of whom are reported to be as strong as Thorold. Fully confident that they can get into the finals they didn't arrive there by accident and should be a great series, but I think the locals will arrive at their zenith and show the fans some really good hockey Friday night," predicted Manager Eddie Thomas today.

It has been a long time to wait, 21 years to be exact, since a Belleville hockey team was in the intermediate O.H.A. finals before. Once since, in 1930, however, the Belleville Senior "B" club was nominated in the senior finals. The last time a local team was in the finals they gained a nine goal lead and lost. Nuff sed. If the Redmen can gain just 50 per cent. of that lead in 1937 you can get ready to hear "Hail the Conquering Heroes Come." Skipper Thomas will see the same team that eliminated Sutton and previously Whitby, to say nothing of Norwood.

"Tools" Hadway says the West Coast is the place to live. "Those people out there are really living," stated Tools with a twinkle in his eye. Tools, before leaving Seattle was tendered a proposal regarding his return to Seattle next season, but he would not commit himself. Personally we believe Tools would like to remain home, hang up his hockey stick and spend his spare time during winter in coaching a junior hockey club here, which should be acceptable knowing his hockey background of over 13 seasons in professional hockey, including one year with the Stanley Cup winning Maroons. It might be a great boon to the minor league hockey in Belleville to have Tools Hadway engaged as the coach of the younger players. He is a likeable chap, loves children and would take a personal interest in their up-bringing as well as coaching them in the finer art of hockey playing.

There are efforts being put forward to re-organize the old Bay of Quinte Intermediate baseball loop, it is rumored. Trenton may be asked to join the group along with other clubs, who previously functioned in the loop, including Picton.

Tonight the local softball moguls leave for Simcoe, where they will attend the annual meeting of the O.A.S.A. tomorrow. Chas. Haworth, Barry Rollins, Harry Knott and Homer Tompkins will represent the local "muskhell" interests. A very large number are also expected will be discussed at the O.A.S.A. meeting, among the proposed industrial or commercial series to be thrashed out. The Association is planning to run one of the province according to the population of the communities which will participate.

Intermediate "A"—Between 10,000 and 50,000.

Intermediate "B"—Between 3,500 and 10,000.

Intermediate "C"—Rural sections and municipalities under 3,500 population.

Junior "B"—Under 3,500 population.

A group of interested citizens and business men are seriously thinking of assisting George Pepper in his efforts to compete in the Manx Grand Prix motorcycle races on the Isle of Man next June. As Canadian champion, Pepper is the logical rider to represent Canada and Belleville.

The old Ontario pucksters ran into an abrupt snag at the hands of the New Ontario rubber-chasers when the Copper Cliff juniors eliminated Dr. Mike's in the Memorial Cup, while the Toronto Dominions lost to Sudbury 4-3 in the Allan Cup play-downs last night.

Hamilton has failed to Marmora, thus putting the Hastings County representatives over the final play-downs. They carry the good hopes and well wishes of all this part of the province with them.

MOTION IN EFFECT MEANT CLOSURE

Clerk of The House, Major Lewis Gives This Opinion

Toronto, March 25—(CP)—Premier Hepburn's motion "that the question now be put," coming suddenly at the end of his speech announcing his willingness to repeal separate school tax legislation caused comment last night about the Legislative buildings on the operation of closure in the Ontario House.

Major Alex Lewis, clerk of the Legislative Assembly, said the motion was in effect closure and might be called such. He explained that rules of the Ontario House do not provide for formal closure motions as used in the Dominion Parliament.

"Closure is entirely different as Ottawa," said Major Lewis. "There it is a government prerogative, on private members' days, to make the closure motion. Closure in the Federal Parliament is a notice from the government, that as a certain time only so much more time will be given to the debate on the question before the House."

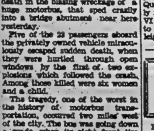
Queried on the point, speaker Norman Rhpel said: "You can call it closure if you like."

"The usual term for the practice is 'moving the previous question,' he added. "It has frequently been used in the Ontario Legislature. In committee it can't be used. It certainly terminates a debate as effectively as it can be done."

It was pointed out that rules governing debate in the Ontario Legislature are generally more elastic than those in the Federal Parliament.

Nineteen Members of Roller-Skating Troupe Burned in Motor-Bus

Salem, Ill. March 25—(AP)—Nineteen members of a professional roller-skating troupe died a horrible death in the blazing wreckage of a huge motorbus, that sped crashly into a bridge abutment near here yesterday.



Five of the 23 passengers aboard the privately owned vehicle miraculously escaped sudden death, when they were hurtled through open windows by the first of two explosions which followed the crash. Among those killed were six women and a child.

The tragedy, one of the worst in the history of motorbus transportation, occurred ten miles west of the city. The bus was going down a grade, when its right tire threw out. The heavy machine was hurtled on its side across the highway and burst into flames, when the gasoline tank exploded.

Flames leaped 40 feet in the air, turning the bus into a funeral pyre for its trapped victims.

State's Attorney Ward Hoit said he had "contacted a partial investigation" of the accident "which clearly indicated its cause to be the blowout of the right front tire."

Identification of bodies was made by Victor Rasputin and Irvine Wayne, representatives of a roller-skating derby now in its second week at St. Louis. Six of the dead and one of the injured skated there during the first week.

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

Their Majesties, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth and the New Royal Cipher

On the twelfth day of May in this historic year, the British Empire gathers in its capital city to crown a new King and Queen. The eyes of the world will be focussed on London that day, to watch not only the pomp and ceremony with which the greatest empire of all time hails its new monarchs, but to see another page of history turned.

Since over a year ago, beloved King George V passed away to close a reign during which the love and loyalty of the British Empire's peoples toward their King and Queen swelled to a new high. Hardly five months before King George VI, came to his throne, was proclaimed to be acclaimed as the people's liege lord, he stepped to the throne under staggering circumstances and shouldered manfully a burden that he had not been reared to bear.

In those five months, the man whom the world knew and respected as Prince Albert, Duke of York, has earned a new measure of love and admiration from his people for his courageous facing of the burden of kingship. With his popular consort, Elizabeth, he goes to the coronation to stand in the pitiless glare of the world spotlight in what will be one of the most gorgeous and glittering spectacles of all time.

They come to the coronation; this king and queen, perhaps somewhat less known than had the floodlight of royalty been upon them, to plight their lives as probable occupants of the throne, but his passing has garnered in his 42 years of life, a firm and understanding grasp of empire and world affairs, more acute by reason of his flair for observance and analysis. Their majesties' road to coronation has not been trod with the glare of public interest that now surrounds them, but it has been trod wisely and well. The story that the day-by-day presentation of this coronation year series of pictures will tell, will be the story of a man and woman raised with British family ideals before them, and carrying out their allotted tasks in life honorably and well.

To-day's pictures show them as they are to-day and as they will appear to a loyal empire on May 12th.

Picton and District

Picton, March 25—Only a small gathering of ladies, representing the I.O.D.E., the C.W.L. and the H. and S. Club gathered to hear Dr. H. H. Thompson, of the Ontario Hygiene Council, speak on "Dental Health" in the County Building on Tuesday evening, but those present appreciated the very instructive address, so interestingly given. The Hygiene Council is a layman's association, supported by grants from the Ministers of Health and Education and from Life Insurance groups. "Diseased teeth cause disease in other parts of the body," said Dr. Thompson. "Tuberculosis, typhoid fever and diphtheria have been greatly reduced by education of the public, and the council hopes to accomplish the same results by educating the people in dental health. Prevention rather than cure is urged. We can prevent abscesses by preventing tooth decay. It has been ascertained that 97 percent of Anglo Saxon people suffer from tooth decay, as compared with 34 percent in Central Europe, 1 percent among the wild tribes of New Zealand and 3 percent among the Eskimos. In Central Europe and New Zealand more fruit and vegetables are eaten, and raw meat and raw fish are eaten by the Eskimos. 94 percent of Anglo Saxon people are born with breaks and crevices in the crown of the tooth, where bacteria may enter. The crown of "baby teeth" develop during the third month, and of permanent teeth, during the eighth month of prenatal life. Expectant mothers need foods rich in minerals, that the child may not be born with imperfect enamel. Necessary foods are raw and cooked vegetables, raw and cooked fruit, whole grain cereals and bread, and dairy products. In order not to loose their valuable mineral content, vegetables should be baked, or boiled in a very small amount of water, which should be served with the vegetable. A balanced diet is also of the utmost importance to adolescent boys and girls from 11 to 18 years of age as at that time their bodies need four times the amount of calcium that is ordinarily required.

The doctor recommended simple tooth pastes, saying that pigments cannot be cured by a tooth paste, and that medicine lowers the vitality of healthy tissues. Pyhorrea is a disease of the tissues, and is rarely found in a tooth with a cavity. It responds to early treatment. When it reaches the stage when pus surrounds the root of the tooth it is a definite source of infection. We must provide the right food every day in order to keep teeth sound all through a lifetime. Cod liver oil is necessary from August 15th to May 1st, as some minerals are not assimilated by the body except in the presence of Vitamin D, which is plentifully supplied by the sun only in the summer.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Gerald Allison, Regent I.O.D.E. Mrs. E. Ward, President of the H. and S. Club moved the vote of thanks which was seconded by Miss A. Bradley, President of C.W.L.

Frankford and District

Frankford—The largest congregation in years attended Frankford United Church on the evening of Palm Sunday. The service was opened with the singing of several of the old familiar hymns accompanied with illustrated slides. The "Oberammergau Passion Play" was then presented on the screen with Rev. J. F. Lane reading the manuscript. The singing of the massed choir of over forty voices, being the combined choirs of Elon, Stockdale and Frankford under the direction of Gerald Snider with Mrs. Walter Morrow, A.T.C.M., pianist, will long be remembered. The numbers given, were—Anthem "The Psalms" by Faure; cornet solo "Low in the Grave He Lay" by Lowry, given by Mr. Floyd Ketchenon; Anthem "Blow ye the Trumpet" by Cromwell with cornet obligato given by Mr. Ketchenon. Miss Ethel Mayhee in excellent voice sang "The Holy City" and Mr. Grant Rainbun of Trenton, contributed a solo "The Lord is My Shepherd" which was thoroughly enjoyed.

At the close of the service, the choir members and their friends, were entertained by the church officials and their wives who served dainty refreshments.

SPEEDY PROGRESS ON TRADE PACT

Dominion House Likely to Prorogue on April 10th

Ottawa, March 25. — (CP) — Speedy progress in the House of Commons including passage yesterday of the committee stage of the Canada-United Kingdom Trade Agreement has strengthened the belief that prorogation may be reached by April 10. This will provide a breathing space before the Canadian delegations depart for the Coronation and Imperial Conference in London.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King has promised to inform the House today what additional legislation will be brought forward in addition to that already on the order paper. He said yesterday only a few minor bills will be added to the government's program.

In addition to adoption of the agreement resolutions and introduction of the Bill based upon them, the House yesterday dealt with a large number of Budget Tariff changes, passed a large block of supplementary estimates, and dealt with several government measures.

Answering a question as to the government's attitude toward "sit-down strikes", Justice Minister Lapointe said it would be the policy to place all the resources of the Dominion in opposition to the progress of this illegal mode of procedure in Canada.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

After showing some hesitation in the last ten days as a result of the uncertainty and weakness prevailing in Wall Street, the local market has resumed its upward tendencies under the leadership of the pulp and paper securities. The base metals are also showing signs of recovery, with International Nickel, Noranda and Consolidated Smelters coming in for considered demand.

Dominion Bridge owns approximately 62 percent of the 125,000 outstanding shares of Dominion Engineering, or about 77,500 shares. In 1930 and 1931, Dominion Engineering paid $4.00 a share in dividends although the last payment was made April 15, 1931 and amounted to 60 cents a share. Assuming that "Engineering" resumed dividend payments on a $2.00 annual basis, it would mean an annual cereque of $155,000 to "Bridge", equivalent to about 30 cents a share on the 513,061 shares of Dominion Bridge outstanding.

Many people who should know are forecasting a much better mining market in April. Recent nervousness over a downward revision in the price of gold has been dispelled.

The Trader in Barron's points out that on Friday last week, Europe—which is now officially known to have been a huge buyer for three months running and is to have been very active in the first week of March—was a substantial seller. A firm which has wide foreign connections and is a director of Bethlehem Steel and a fall-down-and-worship customer, and another house of the same calibre liquidated 4,000 New York Central. It was almost the first time this year that foreigners outside of arbitraging operations had been conspicuous on the selling side. As a corollary to the selling, may be noted the inexplicable buying of Commonwealth and Southern.

Ford of Canada.
Assessment of Ford Motor Company of Canada in 1936 in shares of subsidiary companies rose $2.3 millions to $8.5 millions. Of this amount, $1.8 millions represented subscription of the necessary capital of Ford Motor Co. of New Zealand, Incorporated Jan. 8, 1936. There was a further investment of $730,345 in shares of Ford Motor Co. of South Africa. The latter amount was required to provide that company with adequate working capital and the investment now totals $2,204,345.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, March 25 (CP)—Industrial stocks lacked buying steam, presumably because of the long holiday, and volume was comparatively small with price barely firm. The Interlisted leaders were slightly at noon, influenced by a stronger opening period in New York but later in afternoon was marked by a generally weak display.

McColl-Frontenac Common sagged to around 10 on news that the company's Montreal oil operations were not going well. The prices later recovered 1-2 where it was still down about 1 1-2 points. Other oils were steady to slightly lower. Ford was unchanged at 36 1-4 bid point and C.P.R. and Brazilian were steady.

Paper, steel, implement and distillery issues were irregularly high-er.

WALL STREET

New York, March 25—(AP)—Signing of the Chrysler strike arbitration was followed by an early upturn in today's stock market but the trend was reversed in many instances in later dealings. Trades were a bit timid in view of tomorrow's holiday observing Good Friday.

Canadian Pacific, Distillers-Corp. Seagrams and International Nickel were slightly higher in quiet dealings. Dominion government 4s held unchanged. Canadian funds were even at 100.15 5-8 cents. On the curb, Lake Shore Mines was inactive.

Reflecting expanding demand for its products, U. S. Steel led the advance at the beat. Both Chrysler and Motors with a gain of about 3 points General Motors, however, lost most of their morning's improvement.

On top the greater part of the time were Bethlehem, Republic, Vanadium, Gulf States Steel, Briggs Mfg. and U. S. Rubber.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Mar. 25 (CP)—The mining section of Toronto Exchange, replenished some wide adjustments, particularly in the western oils and golds. Bidcadona featured the golds with an advance of 30 cents to around 2.33 in heavy trading and other golds gaining substantial amounts were Lave Cap, Pickle Crow, and Lynx-Canada and losses appeared for Macassa, Central Patricia and Lake Shore.

In the early trade Calgary-Edmonton dipped to 3.15 and by early afternoon had recovered to 3.20 where it was down 40 cents for the day. Dalhousie, Postalta, Calmont, Foundation and other oils dipped and were recovering some of the losses in the afternoon session, Base Metals continued steady.

HOUSE

from the government benches began.

Mr. Macaulay said the Premier had done a sort of debate last night after spending an hour "in vilification of his opponents". He had been packed full of insults against Conservative leaders here, against Premier Hepburn, against Geo. Drew and others to show the courage the Globe talks about today on the front page—the courage to shut off all debate.

"Without Precedent"

"It was an unprecedented action the Prime Minister took—an action without precedent in the annals of the British Empire, in any democratic government" declared Mr. Macaulay.

"God help Ontario if the action here last night was a precedent from which we'll proceed to political discussions in the future," he said, after quoting Tennyson's lines Freedom slowly broadens down from precedent to precedent."

"I do not long to understand how the Prime Minister and his cabinet make a distinction between the sentiment of his vexed questions by the highhanded, tyrannical and unworthy method in last night" he said. "I do not want to use language not warranted by the circumstances."

"Political Retreat"

"Last night the Prime Minister conducted the greatest political retreat in history—the retreat of Napoleon from Moscow was not a circumstance to it" Mr. Macaulay continued.

"To cover up this retreat he had to throw out the personal gas of innuendo and unfair criticism of me, the Drew, Rowe and others—he went on till stopped when the Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon, leading the House in the Premier's absence, rose. "In the point of privilege" demanded Mr. Nixon of the Speaker, "Where is the point of privilege in which the speaker is addressing himself."

John Lee's Reply

"I did not object to the member making a brief statement but condemning all the circumstances it should be very brief" said Speaker Lee.

"This Legislature as a whole has passed on the question before us, and as I'm concerned, the incident is closed: If you have a very brief statement, you may make it."

"I stand here today not by any reason of the Prime Minister, F. D. Hepburn," declared Mr. Macaulay.

Lifting his right arm, he continued: "I stand here as a member of this assembly, as the representative of a constituency, as the people interested in seeing fairness in this assembly."

Mr. Macaulay declared he represented constituents seeking "debate is not stifled here as it was by Mussolini in Italy."

"I object" interjected Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck.

"The objection is correct" said the speaker.

Point of Order Called

"Send for the Prime Minister" called Premier Hepburn (Cons., Kingston.)

"Order" called the Speaker. "I must reprimand the honorable member for Kingston. Has he a point of order or privilege."

"Will the Honorable Speaker permit me to ask a question?" persisted Mr. Kidd. He wasn't stopped as he went on.

"Where is the leader of the government" he asked. "Are you afraid? Know? Why isn't he in his seat? Why doesn't he lead the House?"

Mr. O. MacBride (Lib. Brantford) was next to his feet with a point of privilege.

"I am anxious for prepared debate on all issues," he declared.

Flag Brandished

"We are all prone to become excited at times. But there is one point I consider it my duty to emphasize. The honorable member is here not only as representing South York but as representing the whole Province of Ontario, a province in which people uphold constitutional British authority."

"Order, order," called the Conservative.

"I saw the spectacle of the good old British flag dragged on the floor here," went on Mr. MacBride.

"What's this point of privilege," demanded Mr. Henry. "The member for Brantford is not connected with this at all."

"Yes, he," ruled the speaker.

MARRIAGE NOTICE

JENKINSON—EDSON—Mrs. Grace Edson, 37 Victoria Avenue, announces the marriage of her youngest daughter, Vera Maude Edson, to Clifford Albert Jenkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jenkinson, on October 12th, 1935. Rev. G. O. Wright officiated.

"He is a member of the assembly."

"My object is to get an end to unnecessary ill-will and bitterness," declared Mr. MacBride. "It has been generated here. What I object to is the defiance of the speaker's ruling, thereby bringing under attack the whole provincial constitution."

Mr. Henry was on his feet again. The speaker asked him if he wished to make a statement.

"No," said Mr. Henry, throwing up his hands and sitting down.

"I did not defy constituted authority," declared Mr. Macaulay. "The arrangement was made here on the floor of the House the Prime Minister was to follow Mr. Henry in the debate. The Prime Minister asked us if we had anything to say.

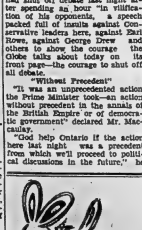
CHOSEN TO HEAD ORGANIZATION

The executive appointed by the Chamber of Commerce at their recent monthly meeting, to go ahead with the formation of a Belleville Property Owners' Association, met last night, when officers were elected and standing committees of the past year were left, by reason of their limited interest. The present group however, is composed of some of the leading citizens and prominent property owners, and the association is already affiliated with the Ontario Property Owners' Association.

It is not part of the scheme to take up petty local grievances, the main issue being to bring enough weight to bear on the various governmental bodies concerned, so that the combined weight of taxation on the property owner will be lightened, if it was pointed out.

The executives appointed turned out to be members of the. They were Mayor Arnott representing the City Council, Jamieson Bone, K.C., Lloyd Fred H. Houston, Stewart Lister, J. C. McCarthy, J. A. McIntosh, J. D. O'Flynn, Dr. Ross Ketcheson and L. B. Riggs. Messrs. H. W. Ackerman, W. B. Deacon and H. E. Hartwell could not attend as they are still on holiday in the South.



Discussion centred around the fact that real property pays the entire cost of maintaining the government, including hospital, library and education, etc., whereas the original intention was that property should bear the cost of police protection, sewers, pavements and such other services as directly benefit property. The property has, however, is easy to collect, and during the past twenty years all sorts of costs have been saddled on property, until the owner's equity in a great many cases has been jeopardized and in an alarming number of cases has been entirely wiped out, it was said. If real property fails, as it is now doing, the financial credit and business life of the province must be seriously affected. There is no incentive with present conditions to own one's home or invest in property, and one of the chief reasons of unemployment is lack of building, and its effect on the many allied trade. Its building boom can possibly materialize until conditions change so that owning property is a safe and sane investment.

Some of the remedies suggested were that the Federal Government should bear the entire cost of relief, social services and secondary education, and that the profits from gasoline, motor licenses, liquor and amusements should accrue to the municipalities concerned.

Jamieson Bone was appointed President, and Leo B. Riggs, Secretary and it was decided amongst other things, to hold a public meeting April 20th and invite all property owners to join in the fight for the protection of real property, the encouragement of home-owning and rejuvenation of ancient properties where years out of date. Real estate tax reform has been effected in England, the United States and most civilized countries with widespread beneficial results to the communities concerned, members of the executive said.

Winter Quarters

—by—

H. Hopkins Gunning

Every winter for fifteen years Tommy Cambrai had come to Florida. He was one of the luck ones; he was compelled to go. As driver of varyo 60, for the first time on earth, he was sure of getting his eighty dollars a month and cross-ocean expenses every other trip, and the balance of the year in Sarasota. That might sound like the life of Reilly, but it happens to be the life of the sweetest driver of an eight-horse team who ever crossed a circus lot.

Florida in December had never before failed to erect a very special sign at welcome for Tommy. Its design had never changed—blue background, grass-green letters and a border as white and fluffy as June clouds. But something had happened to the sign. The metal ground was now the color of rotted snow; the letters reminded one of decayed leaves; the border was a dusky mess, looked as though one storm clouds came to compete. "Florida had lost its figure."

When the show had taken to the road in the spring Tommy was sure that the world go on as usual. By the time they played Toledo in July, Florida seemed like a fading. When they reached Detroit for a three days' stand, it had faded.

In winter quarters at the close of the season, the clown was failed to drive away the cold fear that clutched his heart. It found him disgusted with life in general circuses in particular and all red-haired women.

Love symptoms, these. And to add to his misery, Tommy discovered a couple of flies in his butter. One of these flies was no other than Pete Gardin. The other was Beth Harrastead.

Beth Harrastead couldn't exactly be called fly number two unless the older meaning of the phrase could still be applied. She had golden hair and magnificent gray eyes of great size. They always looked at one in a way that made you say, "Really, you ought to know me!"

And if she slipped up on that message she was quite capable of the electric shock in her bandanas. It was, maybe in terms of intelligence, that made one seek a place to sit back and think; but what a person with whom to chat the hours away! She also wore an independent air. Tommy had the receipt for its purchase.

Beth lived in Miami with her mother. For the last five years she had driven south in the winter to stay with her married sister, Mrs. Ralph Randall, in Detroit.

And if she slipped up on that message she also practiced the electric shock in her bandanas. It was, maybe in terms of intelligence, that made one seek a place to sit back and think; but what a person with whom to chat the hours away! She also wore an independent air. Tommy had the receipt for its purchase.

Beth lived in Miami with her mother. For the last five years she had driven south in the winter to stay with her married sister, Mrs. Ralph Randall, in Detroit.

In March, 1924, Beth wasn't there. He'd waited a day, worried. He suffered. Should he go to Detroit? Call on the local police? Ask Pete Gardin?

He phoned Beth and Pete Gardin together somewhere. Beth was standing with Pete's arm. Pete made two brown bands, one across her dress and the other one over the shoulder.

But a meeting between Pete and Beth was, therefore, not considered, impossible. A saner mood assured him that Pete was, for the rest of the circus season in Indiana. He was not to worry. Then he got a letter from him that was but three days old. And Beth had never been out of Florida. She had told him that.

On the morning of the third day Beth arrived. She drove up in a new, cream-colored roadster. Tommy cut before it had stopped to three tiger cubs that were Pete and Tommy's neck. She sneaked with delight. Tommy felt like squeezing her. He grumbled instead.

"Where you been, Honey?" he asked.

"Jacksonville," she replied. "Remember Mrs. Randall and I started day 'fore yesterday and I was bridesmaid."

"Oh!" Tommy sighed. "I'm glad you were in Jacksonville." He squeezed her hand. "I was worried. Worried? 'Cause I didn't show up?"

"Yep! Listen, Beth, let's get hitched—you know, double harness!"

"You mean married, Tommy?" she asked.

"Absolutely!" he replied. "I'm getting sick and tired of worrying myself to death about you. I'm pretty bad here, but oh, it's bad! It's awful, Beth! Honest! Every day I had to go over to Indiana for a week before we opened here and I couldn't eat or sleep. Why, I even took long walks at night trying to walk that fine-tooth comb right between Peru and Wabash just to make me sleep."

Beth's eyes opened wide. "It's further than that from Peru and Wabash," she said. "Aw, Honey, you're joshing. There was never so much time worrying about me. Come on, tell me where there's a justice of the peace."

Tommy straightened. "We won't need a justice of the peace."

"Huh? What do you mean, Tommy?"

"I mean we aren't going to have any wedding—"

"No wedding!" she cried, amazed.

"No," he answered. "For a girl that knows how to drive out of Florida you know too darn much about road hitchhikers in Indiana!"

When I feel like doing anything, I do it, and it's a pretty sewing wench to help a bit. Get that straight and don't bother me no more."

He hung up the receiver with a resounding crash and strode to his table. His cereals viewed him in awe. Finally one gulped a bit and said:

"What was it, Jake? Some dirty business?"

The waterfront lion flushed a deep crimson and glared.

"Nuts!" he said at last. "Just an old dame."

He stopped for a moment and thought. He was Tough Jake, was he? Let 'em! They expected him to be tough. He roared loudly and pounded a mighty fist on the table before him. They started about all the old dames before they got to the bawdy stage. That stood all day. Shoot 'em.

And Mrs. Edgar Randall, the middle-aged couple who had been sitting in the corner of Pete's Tap, cast one hurried glance at Johnny Hartigan and scurried for the door. Mr. Randall was a hicker and lean shark and fired in the respectable section of the city. Johnny Hartigan had broken down near the waterfront. Mr. Randall had chosen the tap room as the only place to sit and wait until the necessary repairs were made. It was good to get away.

"I like it dreadful," said Mrs. Randall indignantly, "a beast like that living in our city."

"Yes," Mr. Randall agreed, with a careful glance about him, "it's speak to the mayor personally about these slums."

The sparsely populated section outside the city limits an old woman sat, rocking and gruntling contentedly brightly in her eyes hung up a shop sign: Pete's Place and Lunch. She was over eighty and alone in the world. She knelt near the window and looked out without rising. Then she smiled wanly towards the room and said, "Thanks be to God."

"Dear God," she said, "please forgive Pete Pirolo! I'm worrying about his soul. I thank you dear God, and please bless the young man from Mr. Randall. May he never forget that Johnny paid my mortgage and saved me a thing I hadn't left."

She rose and straightened her bent frame. With a look of defiance at her face she said:

"Mr. Randall, to be sure. Bad ones to 'em."

I say he was tough? Sure, that's him. Tough Jake."

Last season we left Santa Anita with plenty of cherries in our pockets. We figured all the way back to the East to the coast in a new seven-lined Spanish Eighteen. We ought to see something besides a racetrack for once in our life.

"Why don't we drop down and across the border," Mudder McMorg suggested, "and see if we can find ourselves a couple of long shots which can win us some more dough?"

"Hey, listen," says Beezer Bertle, "we had all of us taken the solemn oath that we will lay off the races until we get to New York so we will be sure to arrive at home plus our bankrolls. And now already you want to break up a gentlemen's agreement, and before you have even crossed the backbone than a jellyfish.

"It recent that crack!: chirps Mudder. But that is as far as it goes because Bertie weighs 310 in the bathtub while Mudder can't tip the scales at 125 except after a very heavy meal.

We are bowling along covering the California sunshine like a flea in miracle we run right smack into as pretty a half-mile racing track as a horse ever dreamed about.

"How is it," says Harry the Pinhead with much surprise, "that we have never heard of this here track before?"

"Search me," I says. "But it looks like Mudder here wished it on us."

Of course there is no use of trying to stop my old pal Mudder in the big cuff of the bus and investigating this mysterious matter.

Everything at this track looks beautiful; there are many lovely bungalows and well-groomed lovely babies to suit Mudder McMort. There is also a line of flivvers in front of the clubhouse and they are collecting a dime apiece to inspect the main event is about ready to go.

"This must be a big futurity or something," Mudder says. "Why I don't see no one around since the last time I robbed a bank."

But we have to persuade Mudder a poke. "Hello, dearie," she says, "Want a good time?"

"Why not?" says Mudder.

"Then lay your pennies on Pinhead which is sure to win this race positively."

"Listen, dope," Beezer Bertie interrupts, "there is something netter about this here place. I to not like the looks of it at all. You had better keep your cherries in your pockets rather than throw them away on a crazy hunch."

But we have to holding Mudder now. "What is the odds on this Pinhead Pirolo?" I says to the old soul. I thank you dear God, and please bless the young man from Mr. Randall. May he never forget that Johnny paid my mortgage and saved me a thing I hadn't left."

Tough Jake

—by—

James F. Greene

He's tough. That Johnny Hartigan, I mean. That's what he is all right. Plenty tough.

He weighed about two hundred and fifty pounds. Maybe more. But he's never out of condition, really. His hamlike fists, broad shoulders, thick bull-like neck, narrow mean looking eyes, red bulging nose and mountainous mouth set in a large shaggy head took good care of that enormous individual.

If the appearance of Johnny Hartigan alone didn't scare you, you'd do well to look into his record. At twenty-five he a contender for the heavyweight boxing crown. At twenty-six he was a bouncer in a bootlegger. He was known as a fearless shooter. In the course of his many of his rivals learned that it is best to be on the level with Johnny.

Though "Jake" they called him. He liked the name and the code of rowdies. It was his home, there by the waterfront, and it was to it he came during the golden era of prohibition, when booze and dames ruled Chicago. He isn't rich now for you don't make a fortune as a bouncer and, you see, Johnny is taking bets on the gallows. He is making a living, though, and a fairly good one at that.

He operated at Pete's Tap. There were only six customers at the time and Johnny was buying beer for four of them, including himself. Johnny Hartigan never drank alone in his own place. "Drinks for the house" when he showed up at Pete's Tap. The bartender, a tall, lean, dark man, with an aura of respectability that belied their appearance at the beer stube, sat in one corner aloof. He never drank and never ate. Tough Jake did not condescend to speak to them.

Outside the telephone rang Johnny Hartigan stirred a bit and glanced towards the bar. Pete was on the phone. Often his customers called him at the Tap in the evenings. Pete sometimes there was a cute little trick on the wire making a touch or asking for a date. He was not disappointed, for the barkeep motioned to him. He lifted his portly carcass and frame and staggered to the phone.

"Hello," he fairly yelled at the mouthpiece. "Who? I didn't get the—the. Speak up now. Speak up. Oh it's you, is it? What?"

Pete scratched his glasses nervously, and in wiping the mahogany counter with his sleeve and his coat tail managed to clear the room. Everyone was on edge, for it was evident that Tough Jake was disgusted. A slight sound might set him off on a rampage, and no one knew it better than Pete behind the counter. There was a look of flaky coldness in his eyes, and Pete had seen it before. There was a look of flaky coldness in his eyes, and Pete had seen it before. DAILY SHORT STORY

Joe's Faith

By Corona Remington

She was only a little maid in a big hotel and he the chef, but he had fascinations of chefs behind him and hers was a family of the highest type of maids. One aunt had been the Delpozi family for twenty-five years, and at one time her first cousin had been employed in the White House.

When Joe Porter had first mentioned marriage to Cornelia Allen she had hesitated although she did love him.

"Well, I'll never marry anybody else," he vowed. "You're as pretty as a little picture and your folks are all honest and fine people, and I love you and I believe you love me, too. Isn't that reason enough why we should get married?"

Cornelia said nothing for a moment, she merely permitted him to keep his arm around her, which was a sort of consent, he considered, since she never had done that before. She did love him, she knew she did.

"But Joe, I wanted to go up in my work—get to be ladies' maid to somebody big in society," she protested, and her dark eyes so close to his looked troubled, almost tragic.

"That don't matter," he answered. "They'll never love you like I do honey, so you'd better take me."

It was a wrench to give up her ambition, but at last she consented and once done she gave herself up entirely to her new plans in life and as the days sped by she grew happier and happier.

It was in the middle of doing her work on the fifth floor one day when she received a summons to go to the office of Mr. Williams, the manager, at once. Puzzled, she hurried down and found her employer talking to a stranger whom she supposed to be a guest. He seemed disturbed about something and would scarcely let Mr. Williams speak, but with a gesture of the hand the manager silenced him and addressed the maid himself.

"Cornelia, did you clean up 316 this morning?" he asked.

"Yes," answered the girl, her face suddenly paling. "Why? What's the matter?"

"You know what's the matter," broke in the guest.

"I don't!" protested the girl on the verge of tears.

"Did you let anyone else in the room while you were cleaning it? I mean, did any of the other maids come in?" continued the manager.

"No, sir, I was the only one in and I locked the door as soon as I had finished it."

"Well, you have my wallet, then, with $118 in it," broke in the guest angrily, "because I left it under my pillow and forgot to take it downtown when I left this morning. As soon as I missed it I rushed back to my room and it was gone. You may look come up and look."

Together the three took the elevator to the fifth floor and hurried down the long red-carpeted corridor to room 316. After a thorough search they were forced to give it up. The wallet was not under the mattress nor on the floor beneath the bed. In fact, it was apparently nowhere.

"Go on to the servants' quarters," ordered the manager harshly, and Cornelia fled out of the room. But she did not go to the servants quarters, instead she sought out Joe and told him of her undeserved disgrace.

"Kid, you never did it," he declared, holding her close. "And I'll break anybody's face who comes here saying you did."

"I'm so glad you still b-believe in me," Cornelia said, clinging to him.

"You're the only one that b-does. I'll be ashamed to look at anybody around here after it gets out because none of 'em'll think I did steal it—going to be married and everything, they'll think I wanted it to buy clothes with, and Joe, I'm so wretched." And again she burst into tears. "You'll be disgraced if you marry me because there's lots'll always believe I did it."

"They'll not either. They know you too well."

But Joe was wrong. By noon the news had seeped out and at lunch Cornelia could not eat, for the malicious glances that were shot in her direction and whispered remarks that went on among the servants.

The next morning the manager sent for her again and she was horrified to see the same guest sitting there at the side of the desk. This time Mr. Williams let the other man do the talking.

"Here's a twenty for you," he said. "I found my wallet. I'd slipped it inside the inner pillow slip when I thought I was putting it under my pillow. As soon as I lay down last night I felt it under my head. Sorry it happened."

"I don't want your twenty dollars," said Cornelia, with the dignity of a princess, "but I'm glad you found your purse. All I want is that you or Mr. Williams tell the servants at dinner today that I did not take it."

"Be glad to," said the manager, warmly.

Once out of the office, she shed her dignity like a cloak and rushed on to find the chef. After she had told him she gave him a little sudden.

"I'll always l-love you a little more for believing in me so hard," she said.

"Then it was lucky for me it happened," he laughed, and because she was so happy she had a little glad cry on his shoulder.

TARZAN'S QUEST

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Slowly the Waziri recovered consciousness and found themselves prisoners. "I know these Bukosa," Muviro sighed; they will kill us and eat our hearts. We Waziri do not fear death, but it is dreadful to die now when the Big Bwana counts on our help!"

Meanwhile, swiftly through the jungle night, the Big Bwana bore Naika, daughter of Guptagu, whom he had saved from the Kavuru. The frightened girl marvelled at his ability to travel so surely and so bravely through the darkness. He must be a demon!

"Who are you?" she asked in quavering voice. "I am the man your father served from Usalo." Then you, too, are a Kavuru!" "No, I am Tarzan of the Apes, from the land of the Waziri. Tell your people I saved you from the Kavuru, and they must be my friends."

Next day, they came to the edge of the clearing that encircled her village. Tarzan sat her down and turned back once more to the forest. It only he had known that in that village ten of his beloved Waziri were imprisoned, awaiting horrible death!

FATE OF CONFLICT WITH VOLUNTEERS BELIEF IN ITALY

Belief Held Volunteers Will Not Be Withdrawn

HYPOCRISY CHARGED

Mussolini Tells Blackshirts Preparation is Order of Day

London, Mar. 24 (CP)—The cabinet was called into session today to discuss a formal protest from the Italian government stating Premier Mussolini's objection to steps delivered by the British press at the "Italian defeat" in Spain.

The protest, based on press comments on the insurgent Spanish army's defeat in Guadalajara province where the Spanish government charged 30,000 Italian troops were fighting, was handed in Rome yesterday to the British ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond, who forwarded the note to London.

Rome, Mar. 24 (AP)—The newspaper La Tribuna proclaimed in a front-page editorial today that the outcome of Spanish civil war now depends on the "Italian volunteers" fighting in it.

Other papers gave prominence to London reports that the Italian ambassador, Count Grandi, had stated Italian volunteers would remain in Spain until General Francisco Franco's insurgents win victorious.

Fate With Volunteers.

"The fate of the Spanish war," La Tribuna said, "is now given to those medici of volunteers — yes, Italian and Fascist volunteers — who have proved themselves worthy of the heroic traditions of Spain, not for adventure inspired by material gain but with a consciousness of fighting a strenuous fight in defence of civilization."

Referring to Great Britain, the newspaper continued:

"It is just at this moment that the patron saint of non-intervention, who permitted an influx to the Red ranks of all the refuse of society, has proposed withdrawal of those contingents which without doubt would produce the collapse of the so-called Valencia government."

Hypocrisy Charged.

Premier Mussolini acclaimed by his black-shirted followers on the eighteenth anniversary of the Fascist party's founding, hurled a charge of "hypocrisy" at English Church leaders yesterday.

Standing on a balcony of the Palazzo Venezia, Mussolini told a Fascist throng criticism by Anglican Churchmen of the Italian suppression of an Ethiopian outbreak was "hysterical, hypocritical oratory".

Attack on "Humanity".

(The Archbishops of Canterbury and York recently attacked what they called the "general massacre" in Ethiopia after Ethiopians had tried unsuccessfully to kill Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, Italian viceroy).

PREMIER BLUM WINS MANDATE

Cool And Dignified Leader Authorized to Clean up Clichy Riot

Paris, March 24.—(AP)—Premier Blum, cool and dignified in a tumult raised by furious Communist and Rightist Legislators, won a mandate today in the Chamber of Deputies to carry on his government and clean up the aftermath of the Clichy riot.

After an all-night struggle, which at times verged on violence, his popular front government won a 362-315 vote of confidence.

The motion of support expressed confidence the Premier and his cabinet would "assure liberty for all and respect for the law as necessary to internal peace and the normal conduct of Democratic institutions."

Rivalries Pent-up.

The trouble arose from the Left-ist-Rightist riot in Clichy, the workers' suburb, March 16 when five persons were killed and about 200 injured during a battle in which police fired on crowds of Communists.

Pent-up rivalries of the Right and Left burst open just before the vote of confidence when Communist Deputy Maurice Honel of Clichy mounted the rostrum to speak.

He was saluted with cries of "there is the provocateur assassin!" as he tried to talk above the uproar. Communist Deputies rushed toward the Right side of the Chamber but were blocked by husky ushers.

INTERNAL FIGHT AMONG ITALIANS CAUSES REMOVAL

Sources Said Enormous Number of Corpse Found

SHOT IN LINES

Transfer of Troops to Other Fronts is Expected

Valencia, Spain, March 27 —(AP)— Internal fighting among 30,000 Italian volunteers on the Guadalajara front, official Spanish government sources said yesterday, has caused their removal from the ranks of General Francisco Franco's insurgents.

Deserters coming across the battle lines confirmed government pilots' reports yesterday the Italians had been withdrawn from the front lines in the Guadalajara sector.

Government sources said an "enormous number" of corpses had been found in "certain places, indicating those in the front line had been shot by others behind them."

Transfer of the Italians to other fronts was expected here. Spaniards have moved into the positions vacated by the Italians, it was said.

SUGGESTION TURNED DOWN

Scarborough, England, Mar. 27 (CP-Reuter)—A resolution urging that the British Co-operative Party —the political affiliate of the Co-operative trading Societies—work to overthrow the National Government was voted down by the National Executive of the party here today. Such action had been urged by a spokesman for the Labor Party in addressing the meeting.

EIGHT INJURED AT NIGGER HILL

Cars Collide Ten Miles West of Kingston And 2 Critically Hurt

Kingston, March 27 (CP)—Eight persons were injured, two critically, when two autos collided on Nigger Hill, several miles west of Odessa, early Friday. Odessa is about ten miles west of Kingston.

The injured: W. H. Hall, Lyndhurst; Miss Betsy Cooley, 80, Lyndhurst; Hall's 7-year-old daughter, Shirley; Miss Clara McQuillan, Kingston; S. Jessop, Toronto; Miss Alice Sloan, Toronto; Jack Bell, Toronto; Miss Audrey Cornell, Toronto. All were taken to Kingston General Hospital.

Mr. Bell and Miss Cooley are in critical condition. Bell last night had not regained consciousness. He is suffering from concussion and other injuries. Miss Cooley suffered a fractured leg, fractured arm, fractured leg and fractured rib.

Miss Cornell suffered concussion, while the others were cut and bruised but none of them was considered in serious condition.

Hall was driving west on the highway when a car in front slowed down at Nigger Hill. Hall in trying to slacken his pace found his car sliding partly over to the left. An eastbound machine driven by Jessop crashed into the Hall car.

In Hall's machine were Miss Cooley, his housekeeper, his young daughter and Miss McQuillan. Jessop's car contained Miss Sloan, Bell and Cornell.

Troopers were unable to give a coherent story of the crash because of shock. Traffic Officer Fillings of Napanee investigated.

POLICE SEEKING HAMMER BANDIT

Storekeeper Attacked But Able to Rout His Assailant

London, Ont., March 27 (CP)—A hammer bandit was sought by London District police today for his attack on Joseph Quigley, middle-aged Irish storekeeper during an attempted robbery. The bandit was described as of medium height and between 35 and 40 years old.

Struck on the head when his back was turned, Quigley, despite the fact he suffered a deep scalp wound, snatched up a sharp-edged hunting knife and routed his assailant. The attack took place last night.

The bandit entered Quigley's small store on Ridout Street in South London and asked for cigarettes. When Quigley turned to a shelf behind him to fill the order, he pushed a counter over a basket mer for his pocket and struck him.

Hearing the movement, Quigley turned and attempted to ward off the blow. The hammer struck him on the side of the head, opening a gaping wound.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

The Gulf Stream: The influence of the Gulf Stream on our weather and climate is greatly overrated. The Gulf Stream is a warm current flowing northward from the equatorial belt northward along our eastern coast. Ocean currents only affect land weather when the winds blow from them to the land. As the prevailing winds are westerly, the effect of the Gulf Stream in the Pacific coast states, decreases from Halifax in the Atlantic states only when the wind is easterly. The Gulf Stream can not, therefore, greatly affect the weather of the interior of the East, in fact, on the eastern coast, the effect of the continent on the weather is dominant and it is carried out to sea for a considerable distance.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, March 27 — Pressure is high over the Mackenzie River valley and from Manitoba eastward to the Gulf of Mexico and relatively low over the Pacific coast. Local rains or snows have occurred in most districts and has been cold throughout the Dominion. Fair to local warmer tomorrow and Sunday with showers or flurries here occurred in the districts of the Great Lakes eastward.

Forecasts: Superior—Moderate to fresh northerly winds; fair today and Sunday; cold tonight.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta — Fair today and Sunday; not much change in temperature.

Italy Assures Great Britain?

Rome Mar. 27 (AP)—Informed Italian sources said today Count Dino Grandi, Rome's Ambassador to London, has assured Great Britain that Italy does not intend to send more volunteers to the Spanish civil war.

The authoritative statement was qualified in government circles to embrace this statement: "Unless the situation alters to send more volunteers again."

In Glenale D'Italia, in a dispatch from London relating to conversations between British diplomats and French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos said:

"It seems Delbos took a heroic decision to brandish the sword after learning from Grandi himself that the British government considered as very grave the situation created by Grandi's declaration that no Italian volunteers would be withdrawn from Spain until victory.

"Had Delbos consulted the British Ambassador in London he would have been informed that tranquilizing assurances had already been received from Rome."

(Delbos and Sir George Russell Clerk, British Ambassador to Paris, earlier had agreed their countries should prevent any further landing of Italian recruits in Spain and threatened—but without action—the possibility of an Anglo-French naval blockade of Spain to function apart from the neutrality committee's sea patrol.)

Four Months Babe Weighs a Half Pound

New York, March 27—A four months baby, weighing only eight ounces and less than a foot long, was born at United Israel Zion Hospital yesterday and continued to live to the amazement of doctors. A steady stream of oxygen flowed through a small rubber funnel over the infant's head as doctors fought to keep the child alive.

The child born after only four months of gestation has ever lived, according to available records. But the perfectly formed infant, a boy breathed on, displaying the "submotion relex" of an almost normal child. He swallowed readily drops of water placed on his lips. Doctors were amazed at the steady breathing.

The child was born to Mrs. Salvatore Vita, wife of a Brooklyn wholesale fruit dealer.

Bells of Easter Ring Out In World of Armaments, Strife of Arms, Religion

Phrase of "Wars And Rumors of Wars" Used by Christ on Way to Calvary of Particular Import in Present Day Churches in many Lands Face Troubles.

(By the Associated Press)

Church bells throughout the Christian world pealed today the joyous tidings of the Risen Christ —but to a world torn by wars, the shouts of war and by religious conflict.

Christ, on the way to His death on the cross, spoke to His disciples of "wars and rumors of wars," of brother that "shall betray the brother," of censure for the church.

And today:

Nations everywhere speeded the tempo of armaments.

Civil conflict gripped Spain, brother against brother.

Pope Pius XI. issued an encyclical to the Roman Catholics of Mexico, beseeching them to hold fast to the faith in the face of conflict dating back to the conquistadores of Cortes in the 16th. century.

GREATER DEMAND FOR FARM LABOR

Prevailing Wages Will Likely be Around $20 Per Month

(By The Canadian Press)

Increased purchasing power of farmers due to higher prices for products and livestock has resulted in a much greater demand throughout Ontario for farm help, and higher wages than has been offered for several years, H. G. Hudson, Superintendent of the Employment Bureau of the Ontario Department of Labor said today.

"In many centres the demand for farm help is as great or greater than the labor supply, a most unusual condition at this time of the year," said Mr. Hudson. "The height of the demand will be delayed three or four days by the heavy snowfall, but now at this time of year is considered highly beneficial to the land.

TIMES REFERS TO RAID POSSIBILITY

London, Mar. 27 (CP) — Unlike their morning newspapers, the Times today devoted its leading editorial not to an Easter message of cheer but to the grim possibilities of article discussed the likelihood of gas air raids in time of war.

In a cold, matter-of-fact way, the Times pointed out that an attack is not possible on the civilian population. "The main object of an attack is not possibility on munitions factories, nor to disorganize transport, but to undermine the nation's will to victory by creating panic."

19TH LEGISLATURE IS PROROGUED

One of The Stormiest Sessions Ever Witnessed at Queen's Park

Toronto, Mar. 27 (CP)—Ontario's nineteenth legislature left for legislative history today a story of one of the stormiest sessions ever witnessed at Queen's Park.

The legislature was prorogued at 6:45 o'clock Thursday evening after a turbulent session. Before prorogation an important change was made in the conservative motion accepted by the government, for repeal of School Tax Act amendments which re-apportioned corporation taxes among public and separate schools.

Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck moved an amendment which the House approved. Under this amendment school taxes in 1937 would not be affected by the repeal legislation.

If the repeal legislation affected the 1937 taxes, said the attorney-general, assessments made and tax notices served would be valueless, causing chaos in municipalities.

ICE IS BLAMED FOR PLANE CRASH

Frozen Ailerons Cause Airliner to go Into Vertical Bank

Pittsburgh, March 27—Ice deposits which crippled the ailerons were blamed for the crash of a TWA Douglas airliner which carried nine men and four women to death on a lonely hillside within sight of Allegheny County Airport Thursday night. This was the explanation advanced by TWA officials one of four investigating groups which began sifting the shattered remains of the once proud transport plane almost before the broken bodies of the 13 passengers and three members of the crew had been removed to the morgue, twelve miles from the scene of the crash.

Federal, State and County investigators continued their inspection of the crushed motor and instrument board in an effort to discover other possible causes of the tragedy—the third major air disaster in the Pittsburg area since last April, when the two transport Sun Hazer, crashed into a mountain near Uniontown, Pa. Twelve persons were killed. Last September a sightseeing ship crashed at County Airport, killing nine passengers and the pilot.

Public hearing into the night's catastrophe will be held in Pittsburg, probably Monday, the Federal Bureau of Air Commerce announced.

The ailerons are hinged panels slotted on the rear edge of the wings. They control lateral balance. When these stabilizers were coated with ice, TWA officials said, the ship was literally frozen into a vertical bank, from which Captain Lawrence Bohnet, veteran pilot, was unable to wrest it. The airline officials, headed by Col. Thos. Rafferty Region Superintendent, pointed out that all modern transport planes carry "de-icing" equipment for "every part of the plane on which ice formations have been encountered." Never before, in tests by Schedule flying, has ice formed on the ailerons to an extent which interfered with normal flight, they said.

The session began Jan. 19, passed three weeks while Premier Hepburn regained his health in the south, and came to an end five hours short of Good Friday.

Out of the main sprout of the legislature mill came:

Repeal of legislation that allotted to separate schools a greater share of corporation taxes.

Minimum Wage Act for male workers.

Bill holating Ontario's speed limit from 35 to 50 miles an hour.

Legislation to prevent court action against the Ontario Hydro Commission as a result of cancellation of power contracts.

Wider powers for the Ontario Securities Commission to undertake inquiries.

Appointment of Percy D. Wilson, Ontario's Official Guardian of Minors, to the Board of Guardians for the Dionne quintuplets. He replaced Hon. David A. Croll, Minister of Labor and Welfare, who resigned from the board.

ALLEGED THEFT OF ELECTRIC POWER

Police Investigate 'Tapping' And Give Report to Hydro

The alleged theft of electric power in Belleville was investigated by local police yesterday with the result that a hydro line was found tapped leading from the Pringle & Son residence to another by P. C. Evans. According to stories furnished by police, the hydro power had been diverted the residence of March 3rd for the non-payment of power used.

Investigations by P. C. Evans revealed that the resident in question had allegedly gone into an adjacent vacant house and there "tapped" the hydro electric wiring and carried the power into his own home on a make-shift wire line. The matter was reported to Hydro officials for further investigation.

A few moments after reporting her power had been stolen, Mrs. Milligan, Newburg, was again in possession of her purse, containing $58.00 on Thursday afternoon, which had been apparently dropped per purse in a Somerville department store. Where it was later turned over to the police, after the finder had discovered her loss and reported the incident to the authorities. It was an agreeable surprise, Mrs. Milligan said, its contents were returned to its owner.

Oshawa police reported the theft of a 1936 model green colored Chevrolet coach last night. The vehicle was equipped with Ontario license plate numbers of 31 Canada.

Twenty five transients were housed in the local jail at the police station over the holiday, ten on Thursday night and 15 last night, it was stated. Five of major portance were reported on local highways.

Dr. C. E. Dougan Inducted Into Pastorate at Trenton

Rev. W. J. Walker of Belleville, Moderator, Performed Ceremony

H.I.P. COMMITTEE

Trenton, March 27 (Special)—Many attended the services on Thursday night, when Dr. Charles E. Dougan, Ph.D., from Clinton, Ontario, became a member of Kingston Presbytery on his induction into the pastoral charge of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Trenton. Something ago Dr. Dougan was summoned from Clinton after being unanimously selected by the elders of the church. Presiding moderator, Rev. W. J. Walker, M.A., B.D., of St. Andrew's Church at Belleville, performed the induction ceremonies, after which Rev. W. A. Hunter, B.D., of St. Peter's Church, Madoc, eloquently addressed the inducted minister. A very instructive address was given to the congregation by the Rev. S. M. Scott, B.A., of St. Andrew's Church, Picton.

Public worship service was conducted by the Rev. J. A. McMillan, Dorchester Church, Seymour Township, and the Benediction concluded the service. Music was rendered by the choir under the direction of Mrs. D. A. Wilson (Marjorie) and beautifully given. Dr. and Mrs. Dougan and their daughter and son Joyce and Kenneth were separately introduced to all present and the gathering moved to the parlors of the church where a reception was held. The evening proceeded prettily and a lunch was enjoyed. Ladies of the church were the hostesses. Members of the local ministry present were: Rev. A. K. Rolmond of Kilmarnock Church and Rev. Rev. G. D. Campbell of Grace United Church, Trenton, Smith and Rev. F. A. Smith, of St. George's Anglican Church, and Capt. A. H. Rawlins and Lieutenant D. Church of the Salvation Army. The Trenton Male Choir rendered anthems with Miss Doris Powers on West Street, will occupy the home as soon as one has been located.

ONT. M.P.P. ELECTED

House Improvement

C. M. Bowden was elected chairman of a committee, promoting the Home Improvement Plan in Trenton, at a meeting on Thursday morning. The committee includes, Mrs. (Dr.) P. S. Reid, Mrs. C. A. Northworthy, Mr. R. L. Fraser, Mr. Jerome Hotchkiss. Additional members will be chosen to act on the board at a later date. The committee's work consists of advising the activities of the plan and instructing interested persons. Advantages of the plan are that the working class can get money from the banks to remodel their homes and buildings at an interest rate of 3½% discount and repay the loan in monthly instalments. The Canadian Government guarantees 15% of the aggregate loaned by the banks, up to $10,000.00. Mayor W. B. Jones, representative from Toronto outlined the campaign for the local committee. Further plans will be made at a meeting of the executive on Tuesday evening next.

Pupils Hosts to Parents

Over a year the parents of pupils attending Trenton High School, are invited to attend the school and be the guests of their children. On Friday night the annual party was given and in the neighborhood of five hundred fathers and mothers gathered in the auditorium of the school to enjoy a well arranged versatile concert. Later the elders inspected the rooms in the building which were beautifully decorated in educational designs, each representing workings of the students. Old and young crowded in the gym to witness a thrilling basketball tilt between a smart little Napanee juvenile squad and a well organized homester quintette. The Napanee invaders were defeated 33-15 by the locals who featured a swift passing attack. Mr. George Spencer B.A., principal of the institution officiated as chairman of the entertainment, acting in his usual congenial manner.

The programme opened with a classical piano selection by Mary Beale. Several students gowned in colors representing various nations of the world, provided Songs of Nations that received tremendous applause from the capacity packed hall. Those taking part were: Douglas Reid, Jean Fitton, W. Hewson, Audrey Manlle, Jack Clegg, Jean Rogers, Jennie Lecznarowicz, Misses Shirley Bonter and Marjorie Northworthy clad in gold and black portrayed Trenton High School while five girls from first form were dressed like the famous Dionne Quintuplets of Callander. Sylvia Weaver delivered a reading, "The Convocation" and a string quartette comprising Tony Grosselito, Reginald Batchelor, Reginald Berry and Cyril Smith, rendered a medley of Hawaiian numbers.

Mr. Spencer waved the baton as the entire body sang community songs, including When Irish Eyes Are Smiling, My Wild Irish Rose, Did Your Mother Come From Ireland. The school orchestra supplied the music for the singing. "Mixed Prescriptions", a humorous reading was given by Marjorie Northerworthy and "Down on the Farm" was beautifully played by Mary Gerrard on a piano accordion. Eight well-known first form lads, boys, Howell, E. Jackson, D. Reid, M. Dixon, W. Spencer, G. Curry, L. Murphy, R. Wilkins, demonstrated correct-ive exercises. Following a violin solo, "Back to Nature" by Walter Chapman, an interval of pepp singing by the audience intervened. An accordion selection was provided when a modern scene from "The Merchant of Venice" was presented. Cast composed Leonard McGeagh-ey, Helen Minaker, Helen Fradelk, Helen McKibbon, Jean Rogers, Eleanor Saylor. A local band of swingsters provided tunes for an hour's dancing. Lunch was served during the evening with the school girls acting as hostesses.

Two Chimney Fires

During the past week the fire department have answered calls to two chimney fires. On each occasions the reels was on the scene in near record time. On Sunday the brigade were summoned to the T.C.A.Y. station. The blaze was well under control when the firemen arrived, and the same condition was experienced by the firemen when they answered a call to Clarence McIntyre's home on Dundas Street east Thursday night. The source of the blaze originated in the chimney fire, by crawling up on the roof and pouring a pail of water down the flue.

Correction

A charge of speeding the sum of $10.00 from H. Hutchinson was quashed against George Lee, in the local police court on Tuesday. The charge was dismissed by Mr. Thurnday's edition of the paper.

Transport in Ditch

A Motor Transport left the highway during the blizzard on Thursday morning, Toward seven ton load it was carrying over the bank at the south end of the few paces east of Davey John White's store at Smithfield. The transport's two drivers cast and emlerged a four foot ditch. The driver and assistant were unhurt, when the vehicle rolled over on its side. Spilling contents were picked up and little damage was done to any of them. Graham's wrecking truck wkrred two hours restoring the partially damaged transport to the roadway. No. 3 highway traffic was slackened while recovery operations were being carried on. Provincial Police constable Fred Bincher of Colborne investigated.

Closely Weather Here

Traditional Good Friday weather prevailed over Trenton and district yesterday. Most of the day snow fell lightly, from the cloud skies overhead. A chilly northwest wind did not help the situation any and the mercury in the thermometer under the police station canopy hovered around 22 above during the daytime, touching lower levels after the sun went down.

Tricycle Recovered

Jackie Cavanagh, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Crawford, Dufferin Ave, reported that his tricycle was stolen in Trenton yesterday, when searching everywhere his recently purchased tricycle. The cycle was reported stolen to police, when Jackie failed to find it on emerging from the St. Peter's Catholic Church morning service. Many enquiries throughout the town but failed to find any trace of the cycle. Constable Scott Mr. Crawford took up the search for the lost considerable time located the tricycle in the rear of the Mr. William's boarding house on Dundas Street. Mrs. Williams, mother of little church goer was attracted by Jackie's shouts of rejoicing in that and borrowed it for a brief jaunt.

Receiving Warm Easter

Gathering from the amount of business that the local clothing merchants are doing residents are expecting a warm Easter Sunday, Trenton's main street will be the setting for the annual fashion parade if the signs appear and the recent warm spell returns.

No Occasion Trip

It was announced on Thursday that Sergt. Angus Duffy of Trenton, connected with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will not be among the contingent of Canadian soldiers that are attending the coronation this May in London, England. Sergt. Duffy was in order for the trip but recent arrangements cancelled his chance. It is doubtful whether Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be represented at the crowning of our Sovereign.

BELLS OF EASTER

cause of Fascism or Monarchism gathered in insurgent Seville to worship. In Madrid and in the loyal country to the north, those who support the Republican regime gathered also to give thanks for the resurrection.

Some churches throughout the countryside were scarred by shells. Some, under government command, were stripped of furnishings and used for other purposes.

Church Becomes Inns

Per the church has become an inns in the war—the insurgents professing to be her protector; the government conscripting some church property and charging Catholic priests are fighting against Madrid.

Pope Pius has inferred his favor for the insurgents, fearing the government will crush Communism against which he long has been an outspoken opponents.

The Pontiff, preparing to participate in coronation festivities at St. Peter's Cathedral after long illness, within the past two weeks has sent his Easter salutation against communism which he feels is an enemy of every religion and the welfare of nations.

Attack on Nazi Government

He followed it quickly with an attack upon the Nazi government of Germany which he charged had taken steps to put a stop to religious education of youth. He warned, without naming him, that the leader of the Nazi regime was regarded as a "senseless prophet of absurdity" in a decision by the second spiritual head of the German state.

For four years the German bishops have disputed with the Nazi regime, fearing conscription of church land and property would mined to retain the right of religious instruction for Catholic youth. German youth movements, the church claims, have made this task most difficult.

Lutheran Church's Attitude

Protestants, too, differ with Hitler over administration of the German evangelical church. Last week Hitler aides sought a truce, but Protestant leaders declared they were determined to continue the fight to keep the government out of church affairs.

The papal message to Mexican worshippers today went to a nation where church conflict has long existed—since the churchmen who came with Cortes to the new nation were churchmen who came to conquer as well as to convert.

Of recent years the conflict had been more decided with the closing of churches and the confiscation of the number of priests, even bloodshed. This year the situation has eased somewhat, with authorities permitting a number of churches to reopen under control of local boards.

Strikes in Poland

Strikes, directed against Jewish employers in many cases, shocked Poland. Latest decree in Germany was one banning Jews from labor service advantages.

"Godless Russia" showed signs of a return in some measure to the church. The church, taking advantage of the new constitution and the new constitution, has increased its influence and membership recent-ly.

News Reel Thrills To be Seen Here

Automotive Service Men to be Guests of Garage Supply Company on Wed.

Automotive service men from a radius of fifty miles will meet Wednesday night at the Hotel Quinte, Belleville, as guests of the Garage Supply Co. Ltd. local accessory distributors. At the meeting motion picture films will demonstrate the latest machine shop equipment and repair methods for improving service to the motoring public.

An entertaining feature of the program will be a sound picture "Drama of Motordom" which shows the romantic as well as practical roles the motor engine plays in the modern world. Much of the film is made of news reel strips selected from the libraries of large film concerns. It was produced by Thomson Productions Inc. Cleveland, automobile and airplane parts manufacturers. Interesting scenes include automobile and airplane crashes, military tanks and submarines in action, motorized fire fighting units, police in pursuit of gangsters and quelling riots, and other scenes of news camera men. Many of the strips have never been released for public showing. Peter DePaolo, retired national A.A.A. automobile racing champion, is in the picture as commentator.

F. S. Douglas, Vice-President of Garage Supply Co. Ltd., estimates that over three hundred customers will use the tickets that have been distributed for the meeting. The program will mark the twenty-fifth year the company has been in business. The firm operates a large machine shop specializing in automotive service work and has branch stores in Toronto and Hamilton.

AN EARLY EASTER

'An early Easter is usually claimed as the sign of an early spring, however weather conditions may seem to discourage this notion. This year weather may threaten with snow and severe cold but the belief persists. Three years from now Easter will be still earlier, namely on March 24th, but next year it will be about three weeks later than it is this year, namely on April 17, and in 1939 on April 9th. Last year it was on April 12th and the year before on April 21st.

The variability of the date naturally accounts for a great difference in weather conditions. Of course even on the same date from year to year the weather varies, but no doubt a settled date would give more assurance of weather stability.

The roving nature of the Easter date will probably be one of the factors that there should come calendar reform, which is much to the front for the past few years with two main schemes proposed, the twelve-month equal-quarter year and the thirteen-month year of four weeks a month. Business inclines, it is said, to a standard date for Easter and it is known that even the churches are inclined in that direction.

The present season offers a contrast from some Easter seasons of late. March which opened mild became more severe as it wore along this year and brought right on to the last few days a touch of real winter.

Though the season is early, Easter will in practically all respects retain all the wealth of interest it has had in any time in its history. Its main interest is within, so it will fill the churches with worshippers, to whom the word and thought of Easter mean more than words can tell. It will inspire through its flowers, even though they be grown under special care, guarded from cold. It will inspire with the music which has been written in all generations for many hundreds of years and which the great of that event which is recorded so sublimely in the Four Gospels, known as the Resurrection. The Easter festival and the great Christmas feast are the most moving in the year. Happily known none more inspiring.

WELFARE RELIEF COST DOWN

For several good reasons the people of Belleville can take heart as they are told that the cost of welfare relief has been reduced for the second month of this year. One of the problems remaining to cause concern to those in authority in municipalities and to the provinces and to Parliament is this problem of the unemployed. The February 1937 total was given as $7,956.75 at the city council meeting on Monday as against the total of $11,356.28 for the same month one year ago.

The very apparent reasons are—that the load upon the taxpayers is becoming lightened and that those who were on the list one year ago have been able to find sufficient employment to warrant the removal of their names from the list. The number of families receiving relief has been reduced from 409 to 286 and the number of dependents from 1,192 to 876.

Conditions of course have to go a long way yet, though the signs of progress are very encouraging.

IN THE LONG AGO

How did Belleville look four hundred million years ago? No one knows. Scientists could work out a chart to indicate what it was like but it would mean a great deal of delving by geologists and other followers of the sciences.

But this is what has been done in Chicago for the Chicagoans. That city is now one hundred years a city and at the Field Museum of Natural History there has been placed a large mural painting of Chicago as it was 400,000,000 years ago. It was bounded by a coral reef in a tropical sea, the Arctic Ocean covering the region. Another paining shows a gigantic North American mastodon or they elephant which once flourished in Chicago region. Another painting shows a gigantic sand years ago.

Chicago has had a peaceful geological history without volcanic eruptions and dire geological forces or variation in the level of the sea. The rocks under the city still lie nearly as horizontal as they were when they were deposited and have undergone few changes.

How far Chicago conditions have duplicated in this Bay of Quinte area there is no record except such as can be delved out of the rocks. Chicago was in a tropical sea, favorable to the growth of coral rocks. In that age man had not appeared on the scene and only a few primitive living things were in that equivalent to a South Sea paradise.

SPRING CAME TO NEW YORK CITY LAST WEEK in the first appearance of the circus, independent of the weather. Clyde Beatty and Cole Bros. Circus rushed the circus season by opening in the Hippodrome recently, a very appropriate place with memories of Will Power's trained elephants, head-liners there some years ago, one of Belleville's contributions to the entertainment world. One of the publicity stunts put on by Clyde Beatty in his metropolitan premiere with his own circus was a remote control test via radio, when he gave his commands to the beasts in the performing cage from Radio City, while the reaction of the beasts was noted. Outside of getting newspaper mention valuable to the circus box office the radio stunt proved nothing. Evidently the Clyde Beatty, Cole Bros. Circus is coming to Belleville this season for the press agent has forwarded marked copies of all the New York daily papers which spoke very highly of the 1937 model of this circus in word and picture, indicating that the show is bigger and better than ever, and that instead of one Big Show, Greatest Show on Earth, etc, there will be two big shows this season—Dexter Fellowes still to be heard from to the contrary, or otherwise, notwithstanding. However, it is to be noted that the Cole Bros.-Clyde - Beatty show does not depend for interest upon bigness alone, but mostly upon its feature acts which consist of nearly every number on the program, where one act only is performed at a time in the centre of the tent, and all other circus activities cease so as not to detract attention from really meritorious and four-star performances. Reports from New York also state that this circus has developed new clown technique, so clever that even those of long experience on Broadway hot spots have been so shaken with laughter that they shimmied like muscle dancers.

ONE OF THE STRANGEST CASES IN MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE is reported by the Virginia Medical Monthly, which tells of a woman of sixty-one who gradually became younger to all intents and purposes until she became a helpless baby, unable to care for herself or talk. She was called the "Regressive Lady", and continued to regress until she was four months of age when she left the sanitorium where she had been under treatment, "much to our regret for this infant had become the pet of nurses and doctors," according to the Virginia Medical Monthly. She died shortly thereafter.

'AN ARMY IS BEING MOBILIZED IN THE UNITED STATES TO FIGHT CANCER, and none too soon for this stealthy and malignant murderer has been having virtually free run for so long that the toll of his victim is ever increasing. As with other malignant diseases the greatest weapon the anti-cancer army will use will be publicity. When the people generally know the danger and results, symptoms and precautions, the first line of defense will have been completed, and with as much scientific attention directed at the causes and cure of cancer discoveries will be made which will surely lead to this horrible spectre being laid.

PROFESSIONAL HOCKEY IN TORONTO GIVES A COMPLETE SHOW FOR THE MONEY. When the players tire knocking the rubber around the ice they start knocking each other around, and how the fans howl and shower the contestants with programs, and fruit, not bananas. The puck chasers certainly put on a good show, at fisticuffs—seeing they are all on skates—fists and hockey sticks beat tatoos on opponents' faces and heads,—but when the smoke is cleared away no serious injuries are disclosed. Does this indicate that the hockey punches are pulled? Well the professional hockey show is a good one even though some people are beginning to hae their doots.

Stray Bits

FANHANDLER'S TECHNIQUE—

A new "fan guide as an actor" technique in panhandling has driven the mumbling, stubble-bearded "Buddy, can you spare a dime" derelict of the streets of New York.

Along the Bowery, in the gloomier flop-houses, the old timers among the professional beggars are complaining bitterly. "Snoky joe" who has been panning mining silver in Manhattan canyons for a round quarter of a century was one of them.

"It used to be when a man was a bum—and no pretence about it," he said. "You asked for a dime for a cup o' coffee and got it, or you didn't".

"They that's all changed. Now you gotta dress up and spiel a sob story."

"You gotta," said old Joe, in deep disgust, "be an actor!"

The veteran sidewalk campaigner warmed his hands over the glowing iron stove in the lobby of Uncle Otto's flop house.

"There's no more honest moochin'. Old Joe went on. "Not gotta be smooth. Why, you ought to see some of these young fellows all spiv up, polish their shoes and even shave, in the hotels and upstairs before they go making the rounds. They'll be wearing top hats and spats next! Even Bean Brummels of the flop house!"

"I'm tough on the old timers, thought, Joe continued. "We're too old to change. I ain't shaved since I can remember, and the last clean collar I had was during the Coolidge administration. I'll never do now is go on relief, instead of earning an honest living."

There was a sudden silence as a dapper youth in a neat, pressed overcoat, sat down downstairs.

In the street he explained the new technique.

"You've got to use psychology" he said. "The hard luck story and the down and out clothes went over during the depression, but not now. Times are better. You're still hard to find, but people like to think everything is 'getting better'."

WRITING THE MEMBER—

Apparently back in the sticks they write the member of Parliament every time they get a notion or the kids get tonsilitis. One B.C. member showed me a letter from a lady who very protested that he had been courting the post master's daughter for two years and he wouldn't have him, and could the member do something right away about a post master whose daughter was refusing to co-operate with the Grand Old Party.—H. H. in the Victoria Times.

THE VILLAGE SMITHY—

The anvil chorus may be growing fainter throughout the country, but as long as there are horses to be shod the blacksmith will find work to do. An automobile in front of a service station is a more common sight these days than a team standing more or less patiently in the blacksmith's yard but in the smaller centres the blacksmith is still a person of importance.

One enterprising blacksmith has deserted his forge and anvil "under the spreading chestnut tree" and now travels from farm to farm in an automobile, the carries his necessary equipment with him. This feature of the ancient and the modern is evidently satisfactory all around, and the veteran worker finds that he has found a condition that might have proved disastrous to his special trade.

The horse still holds an important place in Waterloo county. Many of the Mennonite farmers still employ faithful old Dobbin in place of more modern means of tilling the land. In consequence, the blacksmith still has a real part in community life and in some villages even two of the smithies manage to make a good living. The smithy's is a cheerful place and we should be sorry to see the trade driven by modern ways of living. Mechanical transportation has, to some extent, ousted the old-time occupation, but there is a long time to before the honored institution has entirely disappeared. Horses must have shoes and the village blacksmith, brawn, strength, skill and kindness. Where would we be without them?—Kitchener Record.

A GIRL WITH CHARM—

At the Cosmopolitan hotel a young lady of very fine looks had a very well-developed figure and a very pleasing manner. She was making evening dining room guests and to a companion she said that Rumania was the girl's attraction, and particularly on her clear English and soft, well modulated voice. "You will be surprised", said he in reply, "to learn that this young woman's parents came to Blairmore from Rumania not many years ago and that neither of them or one of them could speak a word of English and have a hard job to learn any of it yet."—Calgary Albertan.

Parliament Hill Hears

By Wilfrid Eggleston

W. K. (Billy) Ealing, member for Kootenay West, B. C. is one of the most popular members of the House. Although his eyesight has so failed him that he finds it difficult to read, he manages to carry on the work of his riding quite as well as his colleagues, better, in fact, than many. But even so pleasant and industrious a man cannot always suit everybody as the following incident shows.

Just before the last election, one of his party workers was going through Alberta. Mr. Ealing's home town, and decided to drop in and see how the Conservative campaign was in the home of one of Mr. Ealing's former supporters.

To his surprise, he found it decidedly chilly.

"Are you going to support Mr. Ealing this time then?" he asked.

"No, I'm not," said the voter flatly.

"Surely you're not going to vote for one of those other fellows?" the canvasser continued.

"I don't think I'll vote at all. I've known Mr. Ealing for years, and I gave him my vote last election. But never again. Last summer, when I wanted to go to Kingland, he refused to lend me his horse."

Every member knows what it is to get pathetic letters from people in distress. J. S. Woodsworth, as a veteran Labor leader, receives a good deal of the most touching—and most rebellious.

The other day he found in his House mail a pathetic package which had come by parcel post from Alberta. Opening it he found a desperate pair of old shoes, tied up with binder twine. He received the same day a letter from Lac Ste. Anne—one of the centres of the spiritual revivalism of the past three or four years, explaining the consignment.

The sender, an Alberta farmer, had read that Mr. Mackenzie King had made a promise to the Queen as a Coronation gift, and had concluded that these shoes, the last of the cast-off shoes to Mr. Mackenzie King, to make the point that while costly presents were being bought for the Queen Canadians were almost barefoot.

"These shoes," writes the former, "I have mended, I have a genuine case.... They cost $1.50 in the Lac Ste. Anne district. I sometimes wear them all the following winter. During the winter of 1936-37, the wife had to wear them, as she had no others, and the husband had to go to the trade where he could come; and had to be out from 8 to 10 hours every day looking after stock. There isn't a pair of overshoes on the place."

Leonard W. Brockington, K.C., chairman of the Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, has a fund of wit. He makes the most of local Ottawa stories, like the following.

In southern Alberta, for instance, some of the people are rather proud of the fact that bankrupt farmers near Monarch originated a new type of farming in long distance ploughing. Starting in the south, to overcome the ravages of soil drifting and 'Black Blizzards'.

"You fellows," said Mr. Brockington to Southern Albertans the other day, "think that it was the Hollanders near Monarch that developed 'strip farming.'"

The small loan companies, seeking legislation in Ottawa, have provided parliament with much controversy and even a little comedy. In the said Senate, at that. For example:

Senator P. B. Casgrain: "These loan companies are no longer in business. They employ agents to solicit persons in need of money. Suppose a man like a brain-storm goes into a loan office and says he wants to give her a diamond ring. That lady is not his wife.

Some Hon. Senators: "Oh, oh."

Hon. Mr. Casgrain: "He gets the money from a loan company. Or course, he is not going to say anything about it at home.

An Hon. Senator: "Why not?"

Hon Mr. Casgrain: "But he has to provide for repayment of the loan. He has to pay a high rate of interest, and while he is clearing off the loan his wife on Saturday nights will probably demand, 'Where are your wages?' We have lately seen persons occupying very high positions indulge in brain-storms."

Hon. C. H. Cahan, former Secretary of State, has a number of otherwise pretty dull debate the other day a couple of interesting reminiscences or his own early days:

"I am old enough to remember our boys in western Nova Scotia coming back from the civil war in the United States in a condition much worse than those who came back from the war in Europe. Anaesthetics were not known or used at that time. In western Nova Scotia, where I was born and bred, the young men went out and enlisted in the northern army, while the sailors along the shore served in ships which were running and evading the blockade against southern ports. Those ships were carrying cotton to England, where it was sold in the textile markets at enhanced prices.

"In a war of any kind there is bound to be a decided division of domestic sentiment. I can remember how as a lad I used to go to the post office every night and wait until nine , ten or eleven o'clock to get the latest daily paper which came in by coach in order to see the progress of the Franco-German war. We were watching the progress at Gravelotte, and Sedan and were interested in what the Communists were doing in Paris. The whole community was divided in sentiment."

One of the greatest honors that can come to a member of his craft, was the lot of old German Hartnell (above), British dress designer, when he was chosen to design the wardrobe for Queen Elizabeth's coronation and subsequent court functions. Hartnell has received a royal order for 40 dresses, evening, court, day and tea gowns from her majesty. He believes he was brought to the attention of the Duchess of Gloucester, for whom he designed some dresses when she married the duke, brother to King George.

Eyes and Efficiency

Our eyes are great factors in our efficiency. Nature abets each organ of the human machine a certain proportion of energy. When eyes that are defective demand more than their share of this nerve energy it must, of necessity, lessen the normal nerve supply of the other organs, and quite naturally this extra nerve force is taken from weaker organs.

The result is reflected in headaches, often attributed to stomach trouble, drowsiness, and irritability. The wasting of this nervous energy directly diminishes human efficiency.

The possibility of conserving human energy by correcting eye defects is greater than by any other means. Your eyes may be normal or nearly so, but the wise course is to know and not merely think you know by coming to us for an occasional examination.

These rehearsals involve the king's bodyguard and the ancient warders. Warders who will guard the crown jewels while they are on display in the abbey, before and after the coronation, are receiving instruction in their duties.

All warders are being instructed in the handling of the ancient weapons they will carry while forming the guard at the west entrance to the abbey, by which the royal procession will enter.

Artillerymen are preparing for no less than 364 salutes that will boom from the grey walls of the tower on coronation day.

Coronation visitors to the tower will have opportunity to see, through excavations now under way, some of the old, outer defences of the tower; defences built during the reign of Henry III and demolished in 1833. What remains of the Lion Tower, Casuewray, and old Drawbridge will be revealed and some of the old defences replaced.

London subway trains will provide an all-night service—for the first time in history—as part of the transportation facilities to be provided for the coronation.

This shattering of rules and precedent will take place the night of May 11-12, when hundreds of thousands of Londoners will be piling into the coronation procession area to find vantage points as spectators.

It will be the largest transportation problem London has had to deal with, with plans being made to handle 12,000,000 "passenger journeys".

How London will look May 12, in a spectacular tribute to the historic ceremony of crowning a king, has been revealed by the Westminster City Council.

Decoration schemes for nearly 4½ miles of London streets, including most of the coronation procession route, have been approved by the council, to cost approximately $115,000.

Torches on pylons, flowers, bunting, ensigns, flags and floodlighting are a part of the program. Private decorations, by office buildings and stores, will be in keeping with the general plan.

The first contingents of overseas visitors to the coronation are now arriving. Before May 12, it is expected more than seventy liners, including the Duke of Windsor's, will reach Britain's ports from the Dominions and India.

Weddings

ROACH—TWEEDIE

A marriage ceremony, in which the bride and bridegroom were both deaf and dumb, took place on Thursday morning in the Toronto Evangel Temple, which was beautifully decorated with palms and Easter lilies.

The happy people, both of whom attended the Ontario School for the Deaf, Belleville, were Lorena Tweedie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Tweedie, and Mr. Lawrence Roach, son of Mrs. Roach and the late Mr. Roach. The ceremony was performed by Charles E. Prak, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Mills, Miss Mae Rintoul interpreting by sign language. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a white satin gown and long tulle veil and carried Sunset Rose buds and Sweetheart roses. She was matron of honor, was in gold satin with black hat, and carried Ophelia roses. Mr. Lloyd McHaffie was the best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Roach will make their home in Toronto.

VANDERVEER—WMS.

The March meeting of the W.M.S. Group No. 1 met at the home of Mrs. Hopkins, South Park Street.

Prayer was offered by Mrs. Marvin. Scripture verses were given by Mrs. Horton, Mrs. Hogle, Mrs. Lent and Scripture lesson by Mrs. Burgess. Mrs. Martin gave reading "In the Steps of the Master". Mrs. Horton led in prayer.

Roll Call was answered by a verse from each member.

Mrs. Fisher's and Mrs. Bell's birthdays were also celebrated, twenty-one members present. Collection taken was $2.70. Business was discussed. Mrs. Roman gave a reading regarding St. Patrick's Holiday. Mrs. Frase and Mrs. Gerow gave a duet. Mrs. Burgess gave a reading on Temperance, which was followed by a solo. Mrs. Rose gave a reading. Mrs. Martin gave a reading "What Does Easter Mean to Us". Mrs. Gerow gave a few business remarks. Mrs. Horton sang a song. Meeting closed with the Benediction. Mrs. Gerow served a dainty lunch.

Chicago, March 27 (AP)—"Pal", a long-eared police dog, was everything his name and breed implied.

Hearing the muffled cries of his mistress, Mrs. Minnie Rabenstein, 56, as three robbers started to bind her wrists last night, "Pal" seized one of the thugs with his teeth.

Another robber fired two shots but "Pal" clung to the man. Three more shots rang out, and "Pal" the faithful dog fought his grip and fell dead. The robbers fled.

'PASSION' MUSIC IS HEARD HERE IN CRUCIFIXION

Meditation by Stainer is Impressively Sung at St. Andrew's Church

"Crucifixion" by Sir John Stainer, one of the best known compositions dealing with the theme of the Passion, was sung at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Good Friday evening before a large congregation. The full choir and the soloists gave a presentation which stands out as local musical history as an achievement which will long linger in the memory and in the hearts of the people.

Stainer's work, which is also one of the most popular compositions is one which is very easy for a congregation to understand. The story is brief, being condensed into the most dramatic and pathetic passages dealing with the events which led up to the scene on Calvary. It contains many brilliant passages, brilliant in their simplicity, and in their rhythm, and its musical expression is perfect. There are some passages of intense dramatic power wherein the choir and soloists have heavy tasks laid upon them and they do it, these which stink deep in their very simplicity of expression, that the congregation approach this in the ability to stir the hearts of the congregation.

Mr. John M. Hodgins, organist of St. Andrew's Church and choir leader, directed, while Miss Helen Hopkins, P.G.O.C., of Toronto, played the organ. The choral effects attained by the director were marked in every number. The cantata from the first bars of "And they came to a place called Gethsemane to the final "And He bowed His head and gave up the ghost," the singers at all times showed the fine results of the direction. Particularly effective was the portion "God so Loved the World," sung by the entire choir and the congregation were stirred by the nobility of the music and of the singing and the audience was practically felt the emotions which the music and words inspired. The Appeal of the Crucified" near the close of the work was sung with all the poignancy of feeling required for this great musical scene. Here the direction of Mr. Hodgins was at its best results. "Fling Wide the Gates," was also sung in the outstanding portions of the work.

The soloists were entirely for bass and tenor voices. Mr. James Bankier sang the tenor role of the work with those rich qualities of depth of feeling and deep appreciation of the subject matter. Mr. C. H. Tilley took one of the bass roles with fine effects and Mr. Arnold Thomson also as bass had many of the heavy, but effective passages rendered in volume and clearness of expression. Mr. Morley Anderson, bass, sang his solo with the choir and Mr. Ben Williamson rendered the brief portion assigned to him effectively.

To the male chorus in this work was given many passages which call tests of perfection in tone. These were sung with a unity of expression and a smoothness of tone which was the full meaning of these passages. Soloists with the male chorus were Bankier and Mr. Thomson was impressively effective.

The singing of this meditation on the Passion of the Redeemer reflects much credit upon the choir and director. The work of Miss Hopkins at the organ was also highly commendable. There are some effective solo passages on the organ and Miss Hopkins rendered with all the necessary potency of expression.

Mr. Hodgins directed the congregation slings a number of hymns, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," "Rock of Ages," "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," "Hanell's Cross of Jesus," and "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," along with the choir.

Rev. W. J. Walker, Minister of St. Andrew's Church, pronounced the Gospel story of the Good Friday and spoke briefly of the meaning of the cross of Christ. It must be more than merely sentimental, he said, but something vital in the heart, he said. The Rev. Mr. Walker also pronounced form of execution, reserved for slaves and aliens, not for Roman citizens, and emphasized how the badge of shame, even more than the physical suffering, was the cross sent to that form of death. Yet Paul looked on it as the highest honor because Christ had sanctified it. Considered as a means of putting sin and to Christ's influence, it really had the opposite effect. To-day Jesus reigns from the cross as the emblem of valor; it is used as a sign of victory and is seen on the Red Cross and the Blue Cross. To the true believer it is the greatest friend in life. It represents the final challenge to a better life, not through mere sentiment but through a changed outlook.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"On the Avenue"

With songs by Irving Berlin carrying it to new heights of swanky modern sophistication, Twentieth Century Fox, sparkling musical production, opened to three large audiences at the Belle Theatre yesterday with a stellar cast of entertainers and the added hit by Dan Ameche whose music most of the world makes love.

In this realistic romance of New York's gay and glamorous as the town itself, Dick Powell and Madeleine Carroll, a combination new to musical comedy, make a handsome, romantic team ably surrounded by such masters of mirth and melody as Alice Faye, the Ritz Brothers and Ameche himself.

"On the Avenue" gets off to a hilarious start when Madeleine Carroll, as a wealthy debutante, George Bartlett, as her father, and Alan Mowbray, as her suitor, enter a theatre just as Dick Powell and Alice Faye, as Delia Brewster, actress are going into a farcical burlesque of the home life of "the richest girl in the world."

As the infuriated family stalks from the theatre Dick makes his first damage suite to the manager, Madeleine beat him to the stage entrance and, brushing past the doorman, snatches Alice's wig off and starts to wreck Dick's dressing room before she is ejected.

In a comic moment, Madeleine regrets her ill-tempered rampage, and apologizing, Dick and Alice remain. Falling in love with her, Dick promises to revise the skit for their benefit but Alice, who is insanely jealous but mostly as a lark, Dick's character, refuses his plea, by adding even more caustic lines to the burlesque.

To revenge herself on Dick for the humiliation, Madeleine not only agrees to marry Mowbray but actually takes over the show and fills the audience with delight as she sits on him when he starts his song, "You're Laughing at Me." Columbia Records have just released this specifically that "now they're howling at me."

An exciting conclusion in which Alice Faye, Berlin's songbird, plays a novel and important part, brings the pair to a thrilling romantic and tuneful solution of their difficulties, winding up one of the best pictures of the season, especially as that the screen has presented.

The six song hits Berlin wrote for "On the Avenue" are "This Year's Kisses", "You're Laughing at Me", "I've Got My Love to Keep Me Warm", "Slumming on Park Avenue", "I've Got My Love to Keep Me Warm", and "He Ain't Got Rhythm".

"On the Avenue" will be repeated this afternoon, tonight, tomorrow and evening. It is super-entertainment that will please the joy of living, and delights young and old in its every phase—especially the Belle World News Events, and funny multiple-reel Edgar Kennedy comedy preceded the feature attraction.

Sunday Midnight Show

Sunday night brings together mantic comedy "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" to receive a preview presentation at the Belle Theatre. Sunday midnight, brings together for the first time the three stars who, singly have recently contributed to the screen three of the most successful and outstanding pictures.

Joan Crawford, direct from "The Gorgeous Hussy"; William Powell, from "After the Thin Man"; Robert Montgomery, whose "Piccadilly Jim" still remains one of the highspots of 1936 screen entertainment. To this triple-star cast Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer also has added an outstanding supporting cast that includes Frank Morgan, Jessie Ralph, Nigel Bruce, Benita Hume, Ralph Forbes and Aileen Pringle.

Two other short treats will be presented on the same bill—Pete Smith's Specialty and Ballet Variety.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Mississippi" and "Little Miss Marker"

Again the Capitol brings back two marvellous hits of days gone by, starting with a preview showing on Sunday continuing on Monday and Tuesday, two of the great hits brought back to the many who missed these never to be forgotten hits are "Mississippi" and "Little Miss Marker."

As the "biggest liar on the river" and the champion calling player of seven continents, W. C. Fields, dean of film comedians, plays his starring role in "Mississippi" across several hit No. 1.

This story of song and entertainment, centering about Fields, the picture stars the famous coeds Joan Bennett and Gail Patrick and Ben Bernie.

Comedy plays the part of a Yankee youth in the old South of crinoline days who fails into disgrace and loses his sweetheart because of his unwillingness to duel with every hot-headed Southerner.

The Old Commodore takes Crosby to the river boat where they soon establish a reputation for the boy as the "Singing Kid" in the most dangerous man with the sweetest voice on the father of the river. Crosby sings a spiritual, this time with a girl who abhors spirituals, and Bernie, Fields and Crosby are forced to unravel reputations.

One of the largest production numbers of "Mississippi" is written around the Crosby rendition of that favorite of all river songs—"Swanee River." Bart, famous songwriting team, composed four tunes which are featured in the picture. They include "Soon" and "It's Easy to Remember."

"Little Miss Marker" is another from an adaptation of the play by Damon Runyon. Adolphe Menjou and Shirley Temple are featured, with Lynne Overman, Frank McGlynn, Sr., and Sam Hardy.

"Little Miss Marker" is a story of hard-boiled racing followers in the Runyon manner. Menjou, who adopted a shell of would-be hardness to cover up his real sentimentality, Shirley, who plays the role of "collateral," deposited by her father as security for a bet, and Dean orphaned when he shoots himself, after his horse loses.

Shirley is "adopted" by Menjou, the shabby, penniless book-maker, who soon finds her growing into his heart. She fails in love with Dean, whose role is that of picturing them as the romantic Knights of King Arthur and Round Table. When the child begins to acquire their crude mannerisms, they attempt to restore her faith in fairy tales by a "Round Table" masquerade, in which they appear as the characters the lunatics hope to be. It is right after this hilarious episode that the story almost comes to a tragic close, but the "tough guys", realizing that Shirley needs them tremendously, rally round to bring everything to a happy ending.

Starts Today Only.

Speed—action—thrills—ride with the "Three Musketeers" when they ride the bullet riddled trail to solve the mystery that baffled science in "The Ridges of Whistling Skull" shown at the Capitol today only.

Mirth and arming. Hits, latest news, cartoon, comedy, musical comedy and specialty complete this splendid bill.

BANCROFT WINS EXHIBITION TILT

Tryon on Defence For Winners Turned in Smart Game

Madoc—(Special)—Madoc Intermediates playing their first game in two years, defeated the highly expected loss when they were defeated at the local arena on Wednesday night by Bancroft by the score of 6-5. The homesters outscored their rivals in the first period 3-1, but were unable to hold their lead in the second when they scored 4-1 and down on the game 5-4. Going into the last frame the losers pressed hard in an effort to garner only one tally, while Bancrofters added one more. Tryon of the winners turned in as nice a game on defence as has been seen here this season. McAlpine was their big scorer, accounting for five goals. Madoc's first team worked well and were responsible for four goals. Willis, the only local High School's first line was the scoring combination in the game and while they lacked some experience gave a good account of themselves. Referee Goodwin and the weather provided good ice and the game was fast and clean only three penalties being given out.

Bancroft—Goal—Tryon; defence, Tryon and Mumro; centre, Tryon; wings, Vance and McAlpine; Subs —Young, Cook, Hall, Hall.

Madoc—Goal— Nickle; defence, Gordon and Hallsworth; centre, Smith; Wings, Akey and Keller; Subs—Wellman, Munro, Parks, and Mount.

CHIPS from the SPORT BLOCK
OLD and NEW

By George H. Carver.

Sixty minutes from the Intermediate "B" title—and the Belleville Redmen are sitting pretty over their goalie's shoulder over the Queensbrited boys from the mountains of Tweed last night in three games by virtue of their speed and opportunism grabbed a first-half-lead on the championship.... In our humble opinion unless the Mountaineers unloose a different brand of fire in the winter pastime than they invoked last night they will go down in the records as the 1937 runners-up.... Not that we have a soft spot in our head the pewters hanging on to their seats at times when the fortune of the red and green went through some queer hockey calisthenics.... Summarizing the game the locals held a distinct edge on the visitors in the stop department and if they were not as effective behind the blue lines as they might have been. We may be all wet, but we pick the Redmen to win the series in two straights. No paper chasing for us.

Highlights .... The "sensational" performance of Watt in the Redmen's net.... Life as the most underrated and overweighted goalie in the loop.... Some skating speed of the Belleville kid line, going and coming and the general effectiveness of the balance of the team.... The hunk of disapproval for the "280 pounder" in the beautiful Belleville arena" at some of Hedges' decisions.... The intolerance of the goal-judge in the second period in the first flight on, and his subsequent dismissal from the game.... The manner in which that puck was well over the line.... The baseball calisthenics of Mc-Intyre in the second overtime eyed when he dropped his stick to clutch at the puck a couple of over his head.... "He pulls another hard one from the corner and announces Stimer.... The wisecracking fan near the mike, who yelled "Start the game" when the referee asked the query" who is the best player for the Intermediates.... That's a surprised look on Weller's face in the second period when Hall just flashed on, after he let go his shot from centre ice.... And the ditto look on the faces of nearly two thousand fans.... Sea Scout Hagarty, Niagara Falls, was led by the veteran puckisters— Nora Johnson and Bob Dunsmore. Carrying Place hockeyists who always be a couple of champeenship scalps hanging to their belts when so stranglehold on their third title on Thursday night when they defeated Picton Kiwanis, Picton and Trenton rink champions by a 5-4 score in the county town arena, Carrying Place who won the Wellington and District loop and likewise the Trenton league, will play Picton again for the Bruce Dorward County title in the Wellington arena tonight. If they win, Harry Moore's benchmen will hang up another set of scalps in the district hockey circles by annexing three titles in one season.

Along the Main Stem .... Bill Cook and some of the lads who saw semi-finalist Trenton Golf Club the other twilightling see as how Horner's Corner of Shillington is not laid by bed as it was painted.... The Oshawa sports scribe comes out with "It was the most deliberate dirty piece of checking we have seen this season".... And there you have it.... Mebbe it depends on which side you have the shekels. If any, which way you look at it.... Exeter is for the grand old game—to be replaced by the annual chocolate bunny after it had fallen from hibernation and mounted on the shelves.... And a couple of cauliflower ears and a broken nose within who relieved the kid of the second rabbit foot scored a goal for the "Good Samaritan" had turned away.... Bowls of glee arose from a sidewalk marshal when Bill Cook, one of the greybaired gent produced a flock of allergys and "sat in" on the game.... But their glee turned to disappointment and near tears when the old looks won the stakes, put them in his pocket and walked away.... Hockey long distance hockey fans who made the trek to Toronto to see the Leafs and Rangers in slowing terms of the Copper Cliff kids.... "The gang that lasts them will win the title," opined one.

MARMORA LOSES TO LONDON 14-4

Loveless Scores Two And Kouri And O'Neill Other Pair

London, Ont., Mar. 27 (CP)—Ottawa Technical School will defend its Ontario Interscholastic Senior Hockey title against London Central Collegiate Institute here tonight as a result of an overtime 5-3 victory over North Bay Collegiate last night in the junior provincial tourney.

Central qualified for the final by defeating Marmora in an earlier game.

After a scoreless first period, the rival marksmen found a target and Marmora opened the second period running up in the second period. The Ontario players broke with a brace in the third period to deadlock the game but in the overtime session Central clinch the verdict.

Walter Kinsella with two, Clayton Baldwin, Russ Potter and Gerald Kinsella with one each were the Ottawa scorers.

BELLEVILLE REDMEN HOLD EDGE IN INTERMEDIATE "B" FINAL

Thorold "Mountaineers" Easily Defeated by Redmen In Cleanly Played Game 5-2

Kid Line Responsible For Four of The Five Counters

GAME BROADCAST

Return Game to be Played in Niagara Falls on Wednesday

One game out of the Intermediate "B" O.H.A. championship is in the position the Belleville Redmen are in today after soundly trouncing the Thorold "Mountaineers" 5 to 2 in a most decisive way in the last game of the Intermediate O.H.A. finals for the "B" group provincial championship at the Belleville Arena last night before nearly 2,000 satisfied patrons of the game. Unless a practical mistake happens the Redmen should easily triumph in the return hockey tilt's two straight games, using last night's tussle as a criterion of the team requirements of the two contesting clubs. The Redmen were much superior to the visiting "Mounts" in practically every department as testified by period scores 1-0 and 4-2.

Steaming into town, heralded as the greatest hockey machine to come out of the Niagara Peninsula in years, the Thorold "Mountaineers" were accompanied by a stirdy band of supporting fans and their Skinner, well-known, Mr. Claibarries radio announcer, to comment blow by blow upon the game over the air-waves from radio station CKTB at St. Catharines. Broadcast was good, coast efficiently from the Belleville Arena by Jack Wilson, announcer was quite clean, few penalties being handed out in the first frame, one in the second and none in the last stanza, the boys settling down strictly to the business of playing hockey. The ice was in splendid condition and the rink full.

No Individual Stars

There were no individual stars gleaming on the horizon of Eddie Trenaman's hockey machine during his bit towards a contract game, that he hoped to bring to Belleville the O.H.A. title that ever boasted of by this city, Ken Wells, Jackie Hall and Bill Hicks were scored against him, was nothing short of ridiculous as those many of his saves being of the spectacular effort. He was given splendid protection by Fred Bentley and Ken Murphy, while Harry Ingram and Jerry Orrith Jones, who incidentally was always dangerous, while on the offensive, were the leading numerous dangerous drives into the Mounts' territory. For the Redmen's starting line, "Speedy" Joe Louis stood out with Thorpe Whitton, going well on the offensive, while Carl Morgan's backchecking was near-perfect. As in former games this season, however, the Redmen's Clayton Jackson kids and Tompkins was the pick the best liked by the fans, per Thomas, this line figuring in on four of the Redmen's five counters. Tompkins with Clayton Jackson on his brace and Carl Morgan were the others. The Redmen "Big" men were much too fast and too clever for the Mounts and undoubtedly should have won by a larger score than during the game, Referee Bert Hedges disallowed Belleville goals, one in the initial frame, when Carl Morgan of Louis had clearly beaten McGregor on a penalty shot and again in the middle stanza, when Clayt Jackson scored, each goal being given despite indicated a score, the official thinking the puck had crossed when the puck did not cross the goal line.

Redmen Outshot

The "Mountaineers" out-shot the Redmen, Belleville 37 to 27 on last night's play. By period Walt skooped 10; 14 and 13, while Harrington booted out 12, 10 and 4 respectively, Belleville's shooting was spread in color in the initial stanza, however, as they repeatedly missed scoring chances, but in the second and last work of its two goalkeepers stood out as the outstanding feature of the battle, however. The return game will be played at the Niagara Falls Arena next Wednesday.

For the visiting team from the Niagara Peninsula McGregor played good hockey and kept the score down with his clever backchecking efforts. Payne and Thompson bore the brunt of the defence work with Payne being the more effective on the offensive. Chuck Turner at centre and Collucci along the left boards carried well, but as a whole the visitors were weak around their opponents' blue line. "Baldy" Walker, who had been expected to out as the best alternates tossed over the boards for Coach Duke Allan. As a team the Mountaineers could not cope with the speed and general hockey ability of the Redmen last night, although in fairness to the visitors it must be said that they never quit trying and battled in vain to the last to the lasting credit.

The Scoring

The Belleville Municipal Band played the National Anthem and the game opened with both teams feeling the other out cautiously.

Motorized police actually shoot-ing it out with gangsters, bank robbers and submarines in action, auto and airplane crashes and other thrills are in the news reel film "Drama of Motordom", the latest in the Universal series men will see on Wednesday night, March 31st at the Hotel Quinte, Belleville. The series men will be guests of Garage Supply Co, Ltd. Inset is Peter DePaolo, retired international automobile racing champion, who appears in the film as commentator.

Carl Morgan had the first direct shot on net, but McGregor saved with ease, a return play saw Bentley break away only behind the Mounts' goal and pass out to Bunney, who missed a golden opportunity to score. The ice was fast when Turner went in to take Wall out, and make a fine save. The checking was close and kerrid the second to as the players stuck to their checks like grim death. Bentley, Tompkins and Wall Jackson raced in on McGregor to test without results, Clayton Jackson grabbing the rebound and going around the net to pass out to Tompkins, who was parked in front of the Mounts' net and promptly rifled home the hard lead for the initial score. Five penalties were meted out this period, during which power play were applied by the Redmen, the Mounts not taking advantage, when the goals were short-handed, however. Both goalies played good hockey as the game progressed, but the cross-ice speed and hockey ability of the Redmen was quite marked. Collucci drew a penalty this period for tripping Tompkins who was going in to shoot and a penalty shot was awarded, St. Louis took the shot and appeared to score, as the puck deflected off McGregor's skate and seemed to go into the upper right-hand corner of the net, but the goal light was shown and Referee Hedges stated "no goal, the puck hit the goal post."

Second Period.

Play was ragged at the opening of the middle stanza, both teams being short-handed owing to penalties received when Whitton followed Collucci to the "boxes-go", Lefty G. Wall took a pass from Thorpe Whitton and went in to clearly beat McGregor as he poked the rubber into the lower right hand corner, but Referee Hedges pointed out that the puck did not cross the goal line and ejected the goal umpire who flashed the red light significant he was of the opinion the goal had scored. It was not however with the ruling that Referee Hedges came in for a burst of the well-known "Bronx cheering" as the fans of New York were thwarted by Walt on a close play, when suddenly with Harry Ingram in the penalty box from centre ice that bounced in front of Wall and between his feet for a soft and fluky goal that tied the score. Whitton and McGregor battled in the heights to outguess them, Lounsbury and Collucci battling Bentley and Jackson, Whitton and McGregor in the corner right hand corner, but Referee Hedges ordered play to be called on the goal he

Lloyd George Asks Britain To Stand Up to Mussolini

Deplores Massacre at Addis Ababa in Ethiopia

HOUSE SILENT

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, March 27.—(CP Cable)—David Lloyd George, Welsh Radical, if I was not too late to save the Free Nations of Abyssinia, the Ras too late to save the lives of thousands brutally butchered, but it is not too late to save the lives of perhaps hundreds of thousands of men and women in the months to come."

Some Tensely Silent

In a House tensely silent, the former Prime Minister described the massacre of the Ethiopian Christmas Day. Deeds, as a thing without comparison, certainly in modern history.

"I am not sure," he declared "that there is a comparison in ancient history. Here is a gallant leader, his people fighting for the independence of a country which we still recognize. Fifty nations have recognized Ethiopia as an independent land within the League of Nations.

"He stands for a country independent for 2,000 or 3,000 years—fights for it—and is shot like a dog for doing so—and not a word of protest from the leading countries in the League".

Had British, Lloyd George demanded, taken any steps at all to move the League with a view to asserting a great international protest against the most horrible massacre in modern times, certainly in the last 50 years?"

Government Silent

Were the Government doing nothing to earn some respect for Britain? He urged that the government "stand up" to Mussolini. "He is no fool", Lloyd George declared. "He knows with whom he is dealing

HOLDS LIBERAL SEAT

Pierre Emile Cote successfully carried the Quebec riding of Rimouski in the Federal by-election. He was the Liberal candidate. Cote, former Quebec minister of highways, succeeds Hon. Charles Marcil, who held the federal seat for the Liberals party from 1900 until his death last month.

If he had been dealing with men who spoke in the name of Britain, with the might of Britain behind them, he would not have talked like that. If he were the time will come when we shall talk in straightforward, fearless manner. There would be no man who would respect us more than Mussolini if we did it. Let us do it now."

It was essential for the government to make up its mind and take the country into its confidence. He wanted to ask Anthony Eden "where he stands in reference to Locarno". He did not believe the country knew, nor Chancellor Hitler knew, nor indeed that the Government knew just yet, what the vital issue.

He urged the Government reach an understanding with Hitler as far as Hitler was prepared to go, and he understood Hitler was prepared to sign a military non-aggression pact concerning the west.

"If we could come to a working understanding with the four great powers a new atmosphere would be created, Lloyd George declared. "The continued influence of the British Empire in the Councils of the world depends on the action we take."

Agricultural Notes

Modern Miracle of Animal By-Products

To the ordinary person unversed in the modern production of food and commodities a steer or a pig represents merely a bedsteal of pork or bacon, but there is very much more to it than that. Ever since the introduction of chemistry into business, particularly during the past 30 years, the development in by-products in basic industries has been phenomenal. In no instance, perhaps, has this been more apparent than in the meat packing industry. In Canada alone by-products of cattle and pigs—heads, hoofs, skin, hair and horn—formerly discarded as waste and as such constituting a problem in addition, now represent millions of dollars of additional income to the live stock industry and an amazing array of products regarded as essential to present-day civilization.

For example, an idea of what a hog supplies in the way of by-products, as turned out by the meat packing industry, may be gained by a simple recapitulation of its contributions to the various utilities, apart altogether from meat and edible by-products such as tongue, heart, liver, kidneys, tripe, sweetmeats and other "fancy meats."

From skins come bristles, pig-skin, glue, sausage, gelatin, gloves, belts, straps, pocket books, shoe containers hair, curled hair, upholstering plaster retargent and felting. Pig-tails are obtained leaf fat, lard, neutral lard, oleomargarine, hydrogenated lard, compound, cracklings, poultry feeds, animal feeds, greases, oil, stearine, cutting fats, tankage, fertilizer, soap, tallow, grease oil, lubricants, medicine oil, glycerin, candles, glycerine, red oil, wool finishers, fatty acid, stearic acid, candle grease, pole polish, and tar for roofing and paving purposes.

Many pharmaceutical products come from live stock, such as heparinized lard and pepsin and other medical tablets from pigs, and sodium serum, thyroid, insulin from steers. From the casings of hogs, sausage containers are made, chitterling (cooked) are obtained, but to mention a few, while from the head there are canned tongue sausage, lard, glue, grease, fresh and pickled ears, cheek and head meat, sausage, tongue, fertilizer, and animal feeds. From the blood, dried blood, fertilizer, blood meal, and stock feed are obtained.

Likewise from the steer there are the by-products of leather and leather belting, hair for plaster, glycerin, leather dressing, fertilizers, neat-bandaging bone, gold beater's skin, putty containers, harness, animal feeds, fertilizer, harness dubbin upholstery, furniture upholstery, mattress stuffing, felt coverings, glue, soap, bone handles, buttons, brushes, combs, parchment, isinglass, perfume and charms from gall stones, shortening, oleomargarine, gelatin, sausage casings, textile sizing, boots, shoes, felt hats, gloves and so on. There are two very interesting facts in connection with this advance in industry, one, the range of the consumer is enlarged to wonderful degree, and two, the cash returns to the producer are definitely affected and enhanced by the by-product values.

The Choice of Birds For the Breeding Pen

A great deal has been said and written about preparation for a successful poultry hatching season. Considerable progress has been made in recent years, but as there is still room for improvement, there are a few considerations from the stand-point of the birds themselves and their qualifications which should be emphasized once more for the benefit of those who are about to mate up their breeding pens. Among the important considerations vigour should come first. This applies as well to the male birds as to the hen. Too often, poultrymen let males run away by the outstanding records of some of their birds and give too little weight to other factors.

When it is considered that the average yearly production of farm hens is in the neighborhood of one hundred eggs or lower and that in selected flocks the average is twice that number in many instances it seems apparent that this question of vigour is vitally important. Not only is it necessary to mate vigorous and heavy producing hens to healthy and well developed cockerels, but the eggs to be set must be considered. This statement applies to all breeds, although some strains are heavy producers the size of the eggs is often below the standard. It is therefore most important that cockerels, which are often bought at high prices, be well qualified: that is, that the chicks and grandchicks on both sides should have laid many and large eggs. A number of additions are required from the male birds to less scrupple about the shown when selecting the hens. Hens are mentioned intentionally because results for a number of fifteen years at the Cap Rouge Station, P.Q., show that it takes fewer eggs per chick when wing banded (three weeks old) from hens than from pullets.

With dual purpose breeds, matings should also be made with a view to improving the conformation of the birds. Many thousands of dollars are lost each year when these birds are greated, either for local or export markets, because too little attention was paid at mating time to the subtlety of the breeding birds for meat purposes. It would appear that satisfactory body conformation is not incompatible with high production. While it may be true that those interested in breeding for egg production are less interested in profits which can be made from poultry meat, yet they may control this situation to a large degree since they are the ones who supply the young chicks.

The full development of each and every important point to consider at mating time is not possible in this short article. It should be emphasized in closing, however, that to further improve the poultry situation, only birds which are vigorous, well developed, of good type for the breed, and high producers of normal size eggs, should receive consideration for the breeding pens.

Wintry Holiday Prevents Parade Of Easter Styles

Any attempts on the part of milady to stage a pre-Easter parade of her new Spring finery were promptly thwarted by the weather-man yesterday as in place of the expected warm Spring zephyrs and sunshine an intermittent fall of snow out of dull leaden-colored skies during the afternoon. The snow, commonly termed by the farmer as being of the "sap" variety melted as soon as it struck the earth. It was sufficient however, to forestall any attempts of the new straw head creation of the ladies, with the consequence that afternoon pedestrians and church goers, with the exception of a few brave ones, were the reliable cold weather apparel.

Youth, of the masculine type, however, was not so easily denied. A few new topcoats and suits were seen on the main streets with a few of the new "Coronation" blue snap brimmed hats putting a baptism of snow. The majority of Belleville stylists were forced to be content to wait until Easter Sunday when no doubt the usual parade will be held.

SYRUP PLENTIFUL AT CITY MART

Pussy Willows Add Spring Touch—Eggs at 20 Cents

Young pigs, pussy willows, bird houses and the first real supply of maple syrup gave the city market a real spring-like appearance today.

Week-old syrup sold generally at $2.25 to the gallon and 60 cents the quart, although a few vendors charged $2.35 which included the container. Maple sugar in oblong squares and round cakes sold well at five cents each.

Eggs, the legendary food of Easter, were plentiful and sold at prices ranging from 16c to 21c for "A" selects and 15c to 17c for the mediums. Pullet eggs were offered at 15c.

Chickens were fairly plentiful but not as numerous as was expected on a pre-holiday market. Choice bird sold from 80 cents to $1.50 each with a few hens going at from 50c up.

Farmers' butter held firm at all season prices, selling at 30c the pound with a few offering two pound rolls at 59c.

Hothouse rhubarb and celery was offered at ten cents the bunch. One of the finest displays of home-made cooking seen on the local market this winter was in evidence today, with many fair shoppers taking advantage of good prices to stock the larder for the holiday. Sauerkraut maintained its former popularity with Saturday marketers and moved well at 10c the quart.

A good display of winter vegetables and fruits dominated the outside market with potatoes remaining fairly steady to a slow buying market. The ninety pound containers were offered at $1.80 per bag but the majority of cases with the 75-pound containers selling at $1.60. Some vendors, however, offered their stock at $1.75 for the larger quantities and $1.50 for the smaller ones. This commodity was not plentiful and vendors prophesied a sharp rise in prices in the next few days.

Carrots, beets, turnips and onions sold at all winter prices with a few bunches of hothouse carrots demanding a slightly higher price.

Northern Spy and McIntosh Red apples still maintained their popular hamper price with cooking apples selling slowly at $1.50 per bushel. Making their first appearance of the season five weeks old pigs were offered from $2.50 to $4 each.

Bunches of Pussy Willows breaking out in a fluffy bloom added a touch of color, while a gaily painted two-storey bird house drew the admiration of a group of small boys.

LOYALISTS OPINE TIDE HAS TURNED

Stage Drive on Important Stronghold of Avila

Madrid, Mar. 27 (AP)—Insurgent air raiders bombed Alcala De Henares, twenty miles east of here today. The city is a strategic point on the road to the northeastern Guadalajara front.

First reports of the attack were brought to Madrid by witnesses unable to give the extent of casualties or damage. Communication with the city were cut off.

The attack was staged as government guns were reported blasting at Navalperal De Pinares in a drive on the important insurgent stronghold of Avila, 50 miles west of Madrid and slightly north.

The bombs struck an off-chong for Madrid's scraps of military news on recent successes in Guadalajara Province and near Pozoblanco on the southern front.

The populace felt the tide of war had turned. Joyful "Viva Negrin lanes", their nondescript uniforms still smeared with trench mud, sang and danced a joyous refrain in the city's bars and cafes—on Easter leave —while their comrades on the eastern front were reported to have established defensive outposts in the drive toward Avila.

The government force reached a point near Navalperal De Pinares, fifteen miles east of General Franco's strategic base at Avila, which is about fifty miles west of Madrid and slightly north.

Newspapers blazoned claims that France's long weeks of arming and its government overthrowal at Pombalance, 150 miles south of Madrid, had been principal factors in rout of his troops.

The press reports said government artillery was battering insurgent concentrations at Navalperal De Pinares in the drive toward Avila. Government outposts were on the fringe of the town.

Quintin Boyd, Reid Street, Sustains Painful But Peculiar Injury

Quinton Boyd, 16 Reid street, well known Canadian National Railways engineer, and at the time acting as fireman, was the victim of a painful and mysterious accident while performing his duties on Thursday when a stone broke the window of the cab of the engine he was riding, the flying glass striking him in the eye, resulting in several severe lacerations. Mr. Boyd had taken passage on C.N.R. train No. 5 at Brighton as Belleville and was proceeding west when his train met a freight train proceeding easterly. As the two engines passed, it is believed the concussion caused the stone to be picked up and hurled through the cab window of the engine. He was badly cut about the chin, five stitches being required to close the wound. Mr. Boyd continued his duties and the passenger train went into Toronto where medical attention was received. Other slighter cuts were also sustained. Mr. Boyd returned home yesterday.

RAILWAY HEADS, UNION CONFER

Montreal, Mar. 27 (CP)—Railway heads and representatives of 117,000 railway workers resumed negotiations today in regard to restoration of the 10-per-cent pay cut. Labor Minister Rogers conferred with both groups yesterday after they had announced breaking of the deadlock which disrupted negotiations last Wednesday. S. J. Hungerford, Canadian National Railway representative, and Edward Beatty, Canadian Pacific Railway president, met vice-president of arrestment unions today. The men's general committee will convene here Tuesday.

In Ottawa at invitation of the Labor Minister, the two railway groups also conferred with him shortly after his interview with union heads. Following the talk with Mr. Rogers, Hungerford and Sir Edward, union men would be summoned immediately with Mr. Rogers for a half hour. It was announced immediately negotiations would be resumed here today.

Mr. Rogers' statement following the talk with the ministers on Wednesday of negotiations between the railway companies and the employee organizations in the pending wage dispute, the representatives of the employee organizations and the presidents of the railway companies were requested to confer with the Minister of Labor today.

"As a result of this conference it has been arranged that direct negotiations will be resumed promptly."

Woman Enjoys Life in Arctic

Edmonton, March 25 (CP)—Starting to keep house farther north than any other white woman on the North American continent was not an difficult one many would suppose, according to Mrs. Ray Rose, who lived for several months at Read Island, about 1,500 miles north of Edmonton, where her husband is a fur trader.

"Well," she told a reporter, "I knew you would like me to tell you I live in an igloo up there; but I don't. I live in a frame house and very comfortably too. And I live like any other housekeeper would. The trading post is about a quarter of a block away from the house."

For entertainment, residents of the post 900 miles north of the Arctic Circle, play cards and listen to music in the evening. She said Eskimos like rummy and contract.

Unexpected company for persons at the post has been the crew of the Fort James, Hudson Bay Company supply boat, Mrs. Rose said. The boat was caught by the freeze-up and had to be stopped in the ice "just a short walk back" from Read Island.

"They all live on the boat," she added, "and they seem to have no mind being marooned at such an isolated spot."

Members of the crew are: Chief Engineer Larry White; Captain Ralph Simmons; Mate Bill Starker and the native boatman.

Asked whether she wore mukluks and parka, Canada's farthest north woman replied she wore khaouk and artigen—reindeer boots and parka respectively.

"And don't spell khouuk as kouk, because kouuk in Eskimo means knee," she laughed.

POLICE COURT

Andrew Mortimer, Montreal transient, was sentenced to serve two months in the common jail, after pleading guilty to the theft of ten pair of socks from a local department store, when he appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court.

"I must be guilty, but I was drunk and don't remember a thing," pleaded Mortimer. Chief Sidi presented the accused man's record which included over 40 charges, all of a minor nature and dating back as early as 1906.

"I just came out of Kingston penitentiary last week and got a little drunk. Would you give me a half an hour to get out of the city?" pleaded John Ryan, after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication.

"I can't help you. The L. C. A. calls for a fine or jail term following a conviction under that act. It's a case of ten dollars or ten days."

"May I ask to have my sentence date from the day of my arrest?" asked Ryan, "Alright," replied His Worship.

Lack of the identification of goods allegedly stolen from a local department store resulted in a charge of the theft of a shirt and six pair of shoe laces being dismissed against John Conley.

"I was drunk and thought I bought the goods in a pool room for a half a bottle of wine," pleaded Conley. The department store manager stated he could not identify the goods, but the shirt was similar to a line carried by his store.

"If you can't prove the ownership of the goods, I'll have to dismiss the case," pointed out the Bench as he informed Conley there were strong suspicions against him, however.

"But the fact he was hiding the goods beneath his coat and they were not wrapped surely means the accused was concealing something," suggested Acting Crown Attorney S. L. Howell.

Bernard Boomhower, Belleville, pleaded guilty to charges of the theft of two batteries, Boomhower was arrested by Plainclothes Constable Fred Izard and was remanded for one week for sentence.

PROCLAMATION DELAYED

Toronto, March 27 (CP)—Proclamation of amendments to the Division and County Courts Act, increasing amounts of claims which could be made in those courts, has been halted pending a conference between the law society of Ontario Canada and Crown officials, Attorney-General Hoobord said today.

DAILY SHORT STORY

WET SPELL

By Edward A. Lawrence

The little frame farmhouse looked as if it had been tossed into a sea of mud. It had certainly been untidy for over forty days and forty nights, and it was still raining as if it would rain on for forty more.

Jonas Smith, agricultural, standing at the kitchen door, looked at what he could see of his sixty-four-acre ancestral acres and grunted.

"If a plow was put in her, she'd brooded, "it would go to China."

His turned and stared mortifyin' at his wife, Martha, a brisk, fair-haired, blue-eyed wisp of a woman of uncertain age, who rolled biscuit dough on a square oak table and hummed tunelessly. Arkansas Traveler" and "Turkey in the Straw" seemed to be her favorite tunes, for a cool thousand years.

"Martha," he croaked, "if this yere rain keeps up another week, we'll be ruint."

Martha determinedly rolled biscuit dough, but the humming ceased abruptly.

"You said that before, and it didn't stop, and you hain't ruint'n'or are you?" Her voice blew over coldly. "You said in the summer of thirty of it didn't rain you'd be ruint—so go on out to the barn. Jonas. You tired of lookin' at yore ma' lender'n listenin' to you."

The barn was a gloomy cavern, dranght and damp; it smelled of cows, sheep, horses, and kindred odors. At the far end the hired boy, Sam, leaned on a pitchfork and lethargically contemplated a pile of hay.

A short unlighted cobpipe sagged from his loose mouth.

Jonas' dull countenance brightened. He stamped up, looked skyward, spat.

"She had been humming 'The Arkansas Traveler' it seemed to Jonas, for a cool thousand years.

"Martha," he croaked, "if this yere rain keeps another week we'll be ruint."

Martha determinedly rolled biscuit dough, but the humming ceased abruptly.

"You said that before, and it didn't stop, and you hain't ruint'n'or are you?" Her voice blew over coldly. "You said in the summer of thirty of it didn't rain you'd be ruint—go on out to the barn, Jonas. You tired of lookin' at yore ma' lender'n listenin' to you."

The barn was a gloomy cavern, dranght and damp; it smelled of cows, sheep, horses, and kindred odors. At the far end the hired boy, Sam, leaned on a pitchfork and lethargically contemplated a pile of hay.

A short unlighted cobpipe sagged from his loose mouth.

Jonas' dull countenance brightened. He stamped up, looked skyward, spat.

"This yere rain keeps up another hour," he said abruptly, "I'm ruint, too."

"Them people out West yonder," Sam replied, "air a-prayin' for rain."

"Pray an' be damned!" Jonas rasped. "Well, I didn't mean that, exactly." He chewed vigorously. Suddenly, he stiffened. "Where's Bannie?"

Sam removed his pipe and pointed with it toward a V-shaped, white weasled edifice, about which a few chickens pecked and cackled fiercely.

"Critz' them there trap nests O Jim'n. I keep a-tellin' him his chickens would get drowned, fiercely.

In the chicken house a sixteen-year-old counterpart of himself was tinkering with an incubator that looked like a death house cell in miniature.

"Well, Son, uh—"

"Ma's pet rooster got at up by a possum or somethin' last night. I found his an' buried his an' put a rock on his. I buried his near the rose bush by the hedge."

"If this yere rain," Jonas exploded, "don't stop mighty slap damn quick, I'm a ruint man, Ranie. I'm a ruint man."

Ranzie hammered.

Jonas invited me to her birthday party tonight, Pop. Can I borrow the car?" He quickly added: "This rain shore is fierce, ain't it?"

But even as Ranzie looked, the door became suddenly empty.

Jonas, fuming and muttering started back toward the barn saw Sam, and veered away.

The head of a spotted grey horse rose over the hedge. Jonas and Ol' Tom exchanged a long and understanding look. The head disappeared, and Jonas heard the sound of grass being torn up and masticated. He turned toward the house.

The kitchen was warm and cozy. Martha banged the stove lid down and threw a left over stick of wood in the box. Jonas sat down in the splint-bottom chair and put his feet against the bright nickel rim of the stove. The rain rattled on the window and blased as it ran down the pipe into the fire. He shifted about uneasily, looked somberly out of the window at the barn and farmhouse and also jumping about like a mingy.

"I tell you, if this yere rain—" said pat a letter from Mr. Joe Vrooman, President of Presbytery Young People in which it was stated that the worship service conducted by the Young People at the Young People's Rally on Canniffon last autumn was so well remdred that it only lacked a few points of being perfect.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—The Young People's meeting was held in the church on Tuesday evening with an attendance of 45. Bill Doran occupied the chair and Arthur Carleton took the minutes. Mrs. Arthur Hall conducted the worship service. The minister gave a talk on worship and read part of a letter from Mr. Joe Vrooman, President of Presbytery Young People in which it was stated that the worship service conducted by the Young People at the Young People's Rally on Canniffon last autumn was so well remdred that it only lacked a few points of being perfect.

While Usalo was dooming he Waziri, Nkima swung in frantic pursuit of Tarzan. "Since the Waziri had been captured, the little monkey had lingered, shivering and trembling, in a tree near the village, fearful that Sheeta the leopard would come to devour him.

But when he overtook the ape-man, Nkima began to boast how he had beaten Sheeta with a stick and driven him away. Then he went on to other tales of his marvelous exploits. And in his enthusiasm he forgot the plight of the Waziri, so short was his memory.

The two friends, man and monkey, had travelled for whom Tarzan said casually: "Soon the Waziri will join us, then Nkima will have many friends to help him." For a moment the little monkey was silent, gathering his thoughts. Then he began to leap and scream.

"Tarzan, the Waziri, the Waziri!" Quickly, as best he could, Nkima related what had happened to the Waziri in the village of Usalo. The ape-man turned swiftly and sped toward that village. He gamble his own life for the lives of his beloved warriors.

CHAPTER 5

An Intimate Talk

Judy stood with the palms of her hands flattened against the closed door behind her. Vaguely she knew what had happened but her thoughts were a welter of confusion. She tried to picture through the kaleidoscopic pictures that crowded her memory of that awful few minutes ago.

She hadn't time to reason: to think about what it was. It had come so suddenly and passed so quickly. There had been crowds—she thought—bursting through the door, hide-bound quiet room! The woman almost screaming in fury rage, the photographers and Talbot's face. His face so terrible in its wrath, yet instantly tender when he turned to her.

It was his face that stayed longest in her memory. The kindest—and this was an afterthought—the most handsome face she had ever seen. He was in trouble, yet he had thought of her in that moment.

Judy's path in life had been a narrow, lonely and troubled one but she was not unwieldy and suddenly she knew what that look of sorrow in his face meant: when he had turned to her and thrown the robe over her pajama-clad figure.

It was a divorce raid and she was the girl!

Her slight figure shook with terrible tremors. There had been pictures. Desperately, Judy tried to recapture and bite down on panic. Had the photographer's flash come exactly at his moment? Had Talbot leaned over impulsively to kiss him when he had only told her what had he would help Larry who wanted to be a flyer? She couldn't remember but she knew that no matter what the moment had been, the evidence would be damning.

"Judy, come out, there is no one here." Talbot's voice called in low from the other room.

He was standing before the fireplace, head was sunk and as he raised it she was shocked at the change in him. The last few minutes had sliced lines deeply in his face and he looked many years older than his 38 years.

"I don't know what it is all about yet," he Talbot, but if I've brought any trouble on you, I'm terribly sorry."

The lines seemed less deep as John Talbot's eyes rested on his face. She did not answer her immediately but turning her hand under his arm he led her to the sofa where a few cushions were tossed back into an comfortably and told him about herself.

"Sit down, child, and don't tremble so!" Judy's teeth chattered but she was not thinking of herself.

"I'm going to order the dinner that was unpleasantly disturbed and then I'm going to talk to you."

"My clothes are dry now and I must get the package—"

"I am going to ask you to stay for my sake—" Judy settled back—"Judy, I want you to believe that I brought you here not knowing what was to happen."

"I do believe you," she said.

Talbot knew by the calmness with which she discussed what had happened to them until he had ordered dinner, that was a tremendous test but little enjoyed by the mill lionaire and secretary-assistant girl. With one remembering what had gone before and the other realizing what was ahead they had little appetite for the dinner that had started so happily.

Now they were alone again and Judy asked quietly:

"It was a raid . . . a divorce raid, wasn't it?"

Talbot's voice was very low when he answered:

"I'd like to tell you the whole story and I'll try to make up to you for this accident."

"What accident?" she asked.

"That it was you, I don't know how Hildegarde could have been so stupid as to—well no, matter it is done now."

"Perhaps you'd rather not tell me about it," she said.

"My dear girl, you certainly have a right to know . . . cigarette?"

She shook her head and watched him light a cigar with a hand that was not quite steady before he resumed:

"The lady in the sable coat, you remember her?"

Judy remembered the sable coat, the flashing diamonds and the woman's handsome face distorted with ugly achievement. She wouldn't have called her a lady if she had shook her head in affirmation.

"That was my wife. She still is my wife but she no longer desires to be," Slowly his hand clenched and unclenched in a gesture that spoke his struggle with his emotion.

Judy broke the silence with "Please go on."

"Well, you see in New York, the laws are such that in cases such as this, a divorce must . . . be arranged. When Mrs. Talbot and I talked this over I agreed to arrange one. Do you understand?"

"Yes I do understand" she smiled at him, "I learned a great many things in the chorus. That seems to be hard for you, Mr. Talbot, why don't you speak freely? I won't tell anyone what you tell me and the side confession is good for the soul." She was striving to know how she came in the picture.

"Why Hildegarde should have done this when I promised her that I would arrange matters I do not know. However," he went on puzzled by the new problem his words had brought to mind, "it was for that reason that I went to Kendall this morning and on the theatre this afternoon."

"Kendall?" You mentioned him before." Now he would explain some of the mystery.

Talbot did. He told how he had called on his friend and lawyer to arrange the divorce, how Kendall had arranged for the flowers and single theatre box ticket to be sent to another girl, how he, Talbot, was to go to the theatre simply to see what she looked like.

The puzzle was less puzzling now. Judy told him how she had been the name at the florists' when she applied for a job and the mystery of Judy's appearance at "Princess Fernanda" was explained.

"Poor youngster, you didn't know what you were getting into."

"I don't think I'll be very bad. You see no one knows me and Larry thinks I'm a wonder." Talbot—you and Mrs. Talbot had planned something like this anyway it will be all right, won't it?"

"No," he answered slowly, "Now, she had no intention of suing me for this surprise. It will be necessary for you to disappear. Just because I'm afraid the newspapers are going to be very unpleasant."

There were newspapers waiting in Mrs. Talbot's Hills surprise party, Judy knew now and I believe that she does not think of the family you have and your Larry. Undoubtedly there will be newspapermen waiting downstairs. You'll have to slip out a private entrance. Obviously I can't go with you but I'm a little afraid of you."

"Unfortunately I haven't much money on me but you take this card"—he scribbled hastily—"to Kendall. It instructs him to get you a job and to keep in touch with you. Now mind, my dear, if anyone offers you money you leave, do not answer or allow them to find you. I don't let you go out of my sight and remember that when things have cleared up we will think of your Larry."

Judy left by a servant's entrance. Softly she opened the door and peered into the street. She could see no one and stepping quickly out into the shadows she walked almost ran—east to the subway that would take her home to her tenement room. Here now because she could pay the rent.

If relief could be called happiness Judy was happy.

She did not see the figure that came out of the shadows of the building she had left. It was not an unattractive figure of a man with hands plunged deep in coat pockets with collar turned up and brim pulled low, with a hat that sat at a rakish angle above eyes that twinkled.

But there was relentlessness in his very shadow and his nonchalant pace kept with hers.

Chapter 6

TRAILED

The old innement house which was Judy's home seemed to hold forth welcoming arms as she approached it winding her way through groups of children still playing in the dirty, narrow street.

It was for refuge, her throat said she felt almost affection for it when she realized that she had been away only less than the ten dollars Talbot had thrust into her purse. But the mental recollection it instruct Kendall to give her considerable more on the morrow.

How rosy the future looked!

Here was money for room rent, Money for food and car-fare and Talbot had told her that Kendall would arrange for her to get work.

Slay McGuinee' mother had been very firm—accompanying advice with a shout or two—about not accepting candy or loitering with white lilies but she offered her money she would have grabbed it and ran. As it was she simply ran.

"Trusting little creatures, children!" Terry mused, remembering and after trying the question on Terry Hildegarde's mind gave up hope in that direction. However, he was here to get information and what a story!

There were no names on the broken mail boxes in the hall. He rapped at the first door. When it opened he asked politely, "Can you tell me, please . . ."

A stream of voluble Italian greeted him.

Once more on the street he was greeted by the dog with the bobbed but in their shrill voices he caught references to the wanted girl. He listened for a minute and then made hasty strides toward the corner store at the intersection where a shopkeeper cry ringing in his ear.

"There goes Judy's feller! There goes Judy's feller!"

Chapter 7

A jingling bell brought the frowzy proprietress of the store to her feet when Terry opened the door. She bustled about waiting on him when he ordered cigarettes, tobacco and then a sickly soda, served in the best manner she knew. He lingered over the drink and discussed the weather with his hostess. Then:

"I suppose you know most of the people in this neighborhood."

She admitted modestly that she did only know her neighbors but with a great deal about them.

"Well"—he drank soda—"a very much interested in what he was saying—"down the street in the third house there's an awful pretty girl. Her name's Judy."

She nodded her head; she knew Judy.

"She's a stenographer, isn't she?"

"Judy James?"—she did not see the gleam that came in her eye—"Indeed she's not. She's an actress. I starred thing is a chorus girl. At least I should say but from what she says when she comes in here to use the telephone I guess she ain't working now. Would you be having a job for her?"

"No, that's why I'm here." She had given Terry a lead. "I wonder if Judy James, is a Vassar girl?"

"As far as I know she hasn't got a father, but only rooms at 63."

"Oh, I remember, I was supposed to be talking just to make conversation," sat up and took notice, but I can't remember the name of the girl I was supposed to see.

"O, along with you," she answered playfully, "no business don't allow me to go to the theatre but I've heard her talk about the show the movie star's in."

What a gold mine this woman was!

"Let's see now. Mary Bates is in a show." Jerry tried on her.

"No, that ain't the one. Sure you know who it is."

Terry didn't but he hastily grabbed a newspaper from the stand and turned to the theatre page. His eye travelled down the notices. There it was!

"Claiber . . . Shaw present Gloria Frayne in Princess Perdita." Tensely he asked her "Was it Gloria Frayne?"

"Let me see now"—she was maddeningly slow—"Sure that's the one . . . wait a minute, young fellow. . . your change, you forgot it and running off for...besides Judy ain't in it anyway....."

She wasted her words. There was no nonchalance in the speed with which Terry Shannon was moving in the general direction of Clawber and Shaw, rumors, not the least of his newspaper office.

Again it was the intoxicating odor of coffee that woke Judy the next morning. She jumped gaily from her bed, ran to the window to see that the day was bright and, dressing, made her plan for the day. She must have a newspaper at once to scan Mr. Help Wanted column.

Yesterday's snow was melted, the air was cold and crisp. Judy threw back her head and breathed deeply and walked briskly, unsteadily through the early morning traffic of the Adam street until she came to the paper stand.

She was opening her purse when her eyes fell on the headlines!

The words that met her startled gaze were like blows that beat down upon her. Numb, she stood, nerved moving her horror-stricken eyes from words that glared up at her!

Chapter 7

Headline

It was her own name that stared up at Judy James from the front pages of the newspapers!

Her mind in screaming black heading lines and on the first page of the Daily Tab, Queen of scandal sheets there was a picture of her in the dancing costume she had worn in "Princess Perdita."

She bought all the papers and hurried back to the privacy of her room to scan them to learn from the newspapers more than she knew about herself or John Talbot.

WIFE WILL SUE MILLIONAIRE

TALBOT

Judy read every line and learned that John Talbot was one of the most powerful bankers in the country, that his beautiful wife who had been Hildegarde Van Deusen was "under the care of physicians and is not able to discuss the case with the press. Her lawyers had, however, issued a statement that they would sue her husband for divorce on the grounds of infidelity with an unknown woman who is "to take a prominent part in the suit."

An unknown woman! And that the way Talbot told her it would be, but here in the Daily Tab naming her! Judy's eyes ran ahead she could scarcely make out the letters they read:

CHORINE FOUND IN TALBOT LOVE NEST

SOCIAL REGISTRITE WIFE TO SUE

"Hildegarde Talbot, wife of John (Wall Street tycoon) Talbot, paid a surprise visit to her philandering husband at his Park Avenue snuggery last night and found him with a pulchritudinous lady James, well known along the Main Stem (Broadway) as a member of the chorus of "Princess Perdita."

Mrs. Talbot was attended by her lawyers, witnesses and others who will testify in the divorce suit, which is expected today, that clothes undress. . ."

Judy read no further. She tore the hateful sheet into crumbled bits and threw them in the fireplace, watched how and when and where the Tab had discovered who she was.

The hand that held the clue as Talbot had instructed her. "Well-known along the main street." The phrase danced before her eyes.

Only a few persons known along Broadway!It was news to her who had tramped days and weary weeks in the mart of the theatrical district trying to get a job. If that was the Tab's only clue the well-known ones she wondered what happened to the unknowns.

How . . . how . . . how had they found her and that picture of her in the costume of a courtesan, costing mostly of a bit of shawl and a feather and garment.

It was done now and what would happen next? What would happen to John Talbot who had taken her to his home only out of the kindness of his heart? Judy felt a sudden, hopeless pitiful, starving condition?

Hunger. It was the same sometimes before the import of the scandal to herself struck her and when it did Judy felt as though the earth had dropped out of the world.

Then she would have a good name was all the riches one had. Judy's name was gone. She was a tragedy, where life was finished once its mark had been branded on a girl.

It mattered nothing to Judy what Mrs. Talbot thought—it was the breath of scandal. She was not a part of the life that Mrs. Talbot breathed. If she was a small town girl and she wanted to go back to it proudly and hold her head high and to shame.

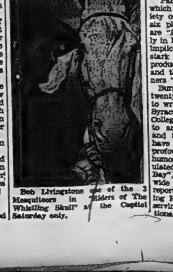
She had come to New York to earn money, to dance her way to the top, to be able to provide the comforts for her mother for her dear family who had so little on their meagre farm.

Now what would she ever do? John Talbot, whose name was like a talisman to Larry and Terry hated she knew that the scandal would be the breath of life to the latter and that it would reach into every nook and corner where there were newspapers.

She would write her mother at once. Her dear mother for Judy and Larry. . .

Suddenly. Of course he would believe in her and protect her. A disquieting thought came like a cloud into Judy's face. She knew those people she had been born among and Larry was typical of them. He was good, he loved her but was quiet, slow-thinking and stubborn.

She remembered when she was but a little girl how Larry had once had gotten in trouble. Larry's father had come home to dinner and Larry driven.....well made it impossible for her to stay in the village. Where they couldn't, do that to her when she was innocent. She would show them. She'd get a job and save her money and then she would go home and everything would be all right.



Getting the job immediately was the most important because she had very few dollars. Setting her mind against the front page news, Judy scanned the Help Wanted columns and marking several items set out on her search for work. Somehow what happened she would not go to Kendall. She would never mention John Talbot again by appearing—even remotely—in the circle of his wife.

Library Corner

A new book from the pen of Peter Fleming is always an event and "News from Tartary" is no exception. Always interestingly truthful, Mr. Fleming begins by telling how he expanded from Peking to Kashmir with Ella Maillart, Swiss explorer and Parisian paper, offered nothing to the world's store of knowledge. "Much as we would have liked to justify our existence by bringing back material of value to science, we had not learned men buzzing with confusion and ignorance." Instead of that we decided to do so. We measured no glaciers, we took no readings, we would not have known how." But readers of this refreshing volume about the part it has played in added a great deal to the world's enjoyment. Mr. Fleming was a reporter for this 3,500 miles of treacherous China and Soviet Russia appeared as a correspondent for the London Times, hoped to gather information as to the political portents of these regions. The adventurous journey around "the least known corner of the world," where China, India, Afghanistan, and Soviet Russia approach, each other was one of danger and hardship. The account, however, with the rashness of youth, has not taken himself or his adventures too seriously. Only a few of the greatest names in explorations are mentioned with the route they took. The photographs of rare Tartary and views from the roof of the world reveal a mastery of the camera as well.

"Famous Plays of 1936", is a book which combines the interesting variety of entertainment. Among the six plays included in the volume is "Tovarich" which played until recently in London because of its political implications, "Idiot's Delight", the stark indictment of war, recently produced at the Royal Alexandra, and the satire of Hollywood manners "Boy Meets Girl".

Burgess Johnson for the past twenty years has devoted himself to writing and teaching at Vassar, Syracuse University and Union College and therefore feels qualified to answer politicians, legislators and the man in the street, who have been hailing professors. His profound and at the same time humorous observations are assimilated in his book "Professor at Play". The scope for his pen is wide for his career has included reporting on the New York Evening Post, editing a magazine and serving with the American Expeditionary Force. His writings, among other things of "New Malecticians with Fred" great revival "Little Theatre" in the Capitol Sunday Monday, Monday and Tuesday.

HINTS ON HOME IMPROVEMENT

Furniture

Think how elated you are when you put out a perfectly grand dinner for six in only an hour's time. But just think how proud you'll be of making a comfortable chair or a rocking chair in only an hour's time. The dinner is a great satisfaction to the cook but once it's eaten it's gone except for the memory and that comfortable feeling. However, that new chair will last and last and last . . . a visible example of your ingenuity and skill.

And how to go about it? Suppose you have a set of kitchen chairs that look just too awful to be around any longer. Don't throw them out—get to work on them. With a little patience and but willingness to follow directions on case you can refinish them beautifully. Wash the surface clean, do any needed mending, the finish until it looks dull and smooth. Then paint the right tint, the painting itself. With a good enough paint brush and any one of a couple dozen grand shades of enamel. You can match up odds and ends of unmatched tables, chairs, unmated pieces of bedroom furniture, porch furniture, toys, bookracks . . . and on and on and on. As a matter of fact, I highly recommend these splashes of color in every room in the house. It's an inexpensive way of getting that gay charm into your home and let me assure you it's great again a — color makes the home.

Why the Weather?

Science Service Meteorologist

Climates and zones! In the old geographies the climates of the world were classified as one torrid, two temperate and two frigid zones. Now we all, based on latitude or the amount of moisture needed to be received. Sepan in his scheme, has 25 climatic provinces based on temperature, rain and wind. Other noted classifications are based on vegetation, temperature and humidity, temperature and rainfall seasons, land configuration and vegetation. The fact is that the climates of the world are so various and there may be so many subdivisions, it would require a climatologist to keep them straight.

POPE SUFFERS SLIGHT RELAPSE

Shortness of Breath Requires His Holiness to Take to Bed

Vatican City, March 26 (AP)— Pope Pius suffered a brief period of shortness of breath today and went back to bed.

His condition after a short rest was described as "normal."

The Pontiff spent the morning in audiences with visitors and in reading some of the many congratulatory telegrams which hailed his appearance before the throngs in St. Peter's Basilica and Square.

Tired just enough over his participation in the Easter ceremonies, the Holy Father received a heart attack last during the night, while two nurses remained on duty in his papal chambers until morning.

The aging Pope rested on urgent orders from his physician, Dr. Amico Milani.

As was the case after the Pontiff's Christmas broadcast, the ill effects of his exertion seemed materially counter-balanced by the good effect on his morale produced by the knowledge he had carried out a thrilling yesterday's services without faltering.

Appearing on the balcony of St. Peter's, the Holy Father pronounced his blessing on the great throngs massed in the square below and in scattered all Catholic world he is still active head of the Roman Catholic Church.

Before his outdoor appearance, the Pope took part in the traditional Easter Mass, the most brilliant since the holy year of 1933, in St. Peter's Cathedral.

The mass, attended by 27 Cardinals, was celebrated by the dean of the Sacred College, Cardinal Pignatelli di Belmonte.

INTERNATIONAL RADIO CONFERENCE PLANNED FOR NOV.

Will Attempt to Relieve Chaotic Condition Now Present

BROADCASTS CLASH

Hope to Get an Equitable Division of Frequencies Between Nations

Havana, Mar. 29 (AP)—Definite steps to bring order to the radio airways of North America have been taken by the four-nation Radio Conference, including representatives of Canada, Mexico, Cuba and the United States, A. N. Curtis, chairman of the United States Federal Radio Commission, announced yesterday.

Pointing out the conference in session here for the last ten days is of a technical character, Curtis declared the co-operation shown thus far indicated that the conference next November would probably produce an international agreement to relieve the chaotic condition of the western hemisphere broadcasting band.

Twenty-three American stations, including Canada, the United States and Newfoundland, are expected to participate in the later conference.

Seven Recommendations.

Craven said accomplishments of the present conference were:

1. Definition, for the first time, of the phrase "objectionable interference" as regards the clash of broadcasts between nations.

2. A recommendation that the number of channels in the standard broadcast band be increased from 96 to 107 by the addition of channels from 1,500 to 1,600 kilocycles—to run from 540 to 1,600 kilocycles.

3. Reservation of amateur channels by changing the band from 1,715-2,000 kilocycles to 1,750-2,000.

4. Establishment of an international agreement for radio work in crime prevention and detection.

5. Establishment of an agreement giving nations airlines in disasters, such as hurricanes or earthquakes, special broadcast rights during the emergencies.

6. Quick agreement on division of frequencies based on the various kinds of stations, by an agreement on specific frequencies between nations. The agreement provides that no station may be confined to local frequencies, and regional stations may be assigned frequencies by agreement concerning high-powered stations was effected.

7. International station list showwave channels be used for international programs by Canada and wave for national programs.

Scarborough, England, Mar. 29 (CP, F.)—A proposal by the Glasgow delegation, declaring opposition to the hereditary monarchy and aristocracy and pledging the party in favor of a republic, was indignantly shouted down at the Co-operative Party Conference today.

Cries of "vote business!" greeted the resolution, which by a large majority was tabled without debate.

Herbert Green, Labor M.P., addressing the conference, said "it has been one of our failings in the Labor movement that we have been far too ready to promise all sorts of things and if we get into power find we are unable to implement those promises. We have got to be a little more careful."

NEWEST AID TO ARTIFICIAL FEVER TREAT DISEASE

Raising Temperature of Body to 105 Degrees Involves No Danger

USE RADIO WAVES

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, March 29 (AP)—A dress sparkling new line of artificial fever, to treat more than 25 diseases, was reported to the first International Symposium on Fever Therapy which began today.

Artificial fever is the raising of all or any part of the body's temperature. It has been used for many years and has, it is the oldest remedy known to man.

Today's conference deals with mysteries mostly of the last two years. Artificial fever is making fevers made by two new devices, radio and machine and that are boons of 160 degrees Fahrenheit.

Artificial temperatures up to about 105 degrees, it was explained by Professor Pierre Brami, of the University of Paris, are helpful in a variety of dangerous bacteria just as human blood is, but not when it becomes dangerous to human life.

Fever therapy is not new, people say, and cures with scarcely any raising of temperature. Two kinds of fever seem to be involved: shock, which sometimes helps to cure insanity, and the body's cleansing effect of fever.

There are two completely distinct methods of inducing artificial fever, he went on.

One is vaccination, with proteins like milk or beer yeast, even with typhoid vaccine, or vaccine made with Malarial fever. The other is heating the body by radio waves, hot air, electricity or water.

Malarial fever and Malarial said, accompany the first type of treatment. The second method produces no "fever" in the ordinary sense.

"It is a remarkable fact, Dr. Abrami said, that the two methods are different in nature can give similar therapeutic problems.

25 Diseases Can Be Treated

The diseases which the participants relief have been reported with use of artificial fever, nearly always one of an old form of other treatment, include rheumatic fever, gonorrhea, syphilis, St. Vitus dance, multiple sclerosis which is softening of certain brain and spinal cord tissues and several skin diseases.

Also shaking palsy, sciatica, inflammation of the inner coating of the heart, chronic arthritis, high blood pressure.

Several eye troubles have been relieved, along with shingles, endocrine disorders, inflammation of brain linings, neuritis in some forms, lupus, paralysis, skin ulcers, neurophages, sclerotis a form of gland inflammation, and tuberculosis, diphtheria and broncho-pneumonia.

POLICE BELIEVE SLAYING WORK OF SEX MANIAC

Man Known Only as 'Louis' or 'Frenchy' Held by Authorities

WHISKED AWAY

Body of Daughter Nude When Found And Lying on Bed

New York, Mar. 29 (AP)—Police Inspectors Thomas Tunney and Rudolph McLaughlin, investigating the Easter triple slaying of pretty Verginica Gedeon, 20-year-old artists' model, her mother, and a man roomer, Frank Byrnes, took into custody for questioning today a man identified by them as 'Louis' or 'Frenchy'.

Tunney, a brother of Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, said the man was taken in a tenement house directly across the street from where Miss Gedeon's mother, Mrs. Mary Gedeon, 54, operated a furnished rooming house until last December.

"The man was taken by the officers to a police station, and was described as being about five feet, five inches tall and short and stocky. Shortly after the arrival a squad of officers took him away in a car to an unannounced destination.

The triple murder was discovered by Mrs. Gedeon's estranged husband, Joseph Gedeon, who found his daughter, Mrs. Ethel Kudner, and her husband, Joseph Kudner, dead in the artists' studio apartment for an Easter dinner.

Body Nude When Found.

They saw the nude body of Verginica lying on the bed, the partly clothed body of her mother crumpled on a bed beneath the bed, and the dead Byrnes on the bed in his own room. Byrnes was dressed only in his underwear.

Police remarked on the shrill screaming of a Pekinese at the entrance of strangers. Neighbors said they had heard the dog bark once during the night.

Inspector Francis J. Kear, one of the police officials in charge of the investigation case, said: "It would look at present like the work of a sex maniac."

"Ronnie" Gedeon, as the model was known to dozens of artists and photographers, had a great number of friends. Police said her father thought she had too many—that his daughter's friendly fact led to her separation of himself and his wife.

With Verginica Gedeon, Ronnie was something of a favorite as a nude and "scanties" model. She has been pictured in many advertisements acutally draped in towels, in her bathing suits, weighing machines, and in underwear.

Leccione said he volunteered for the Spanish war along with most of the other officers and men of the Littorio division with which he served in Ethiopia.

During 1936 and 1936, the Italian lived in New York where he was a leader of Italian fascists. Before going there he had been employed by Italian interests in Egypt.

REV. GEEN PROVIDES HOME INMATES WITH A CANDY TREAT

While the glad message of Easter was brought to them throughout the morning service of worship, a more tangible expression of the spirit of thankfulness and joy was brought home to them through the whole-hearted generosity of the Rev. A. L. Geen.

For this kind-hearted gentleman, with the thought of the well-being of his fellow men ever uppermost in his mind, provided each inmate with a box of chocolates and Easter rabbits, with the wish that Easter would be the forerunner of happier things to come.

The staff of the institution and the inmates are exceedingly grateful to Mr. Geen for his remembrance at this sight and generosity in the presentation of the gifts.

FISHERMEN REACH MAIN DUCK ISLANDS

Delayed by more than three weeks by unfavorable ice and weather conditions, Messrs Claude Switzer and Garnet Cole, the first of commercial fishermen at Prince Edward County, reached the Main Ducks Islands on Thursday.

The fifteen mile expanse of water had a minimum of floe ice, although at times currents gave a lukewarm touch to the journey.

Other fishermen have also commenced operations, and with milder weather in the offing, expect to get under "full way" within the next few days.

FARMER'S CAT KILLS AND RETRIEVES MICE IN OWNER'S VERANDA

Whatever the feasts of "Tom" a large black cat belonging to an Ameliasburg farmer, may be, hoarding of mice and "failure to bring home the bacon" cannot be held among them.

Imagine the surprise of the lady of the house, at her home recently when she opened the door leading to the verandah in the nineteen field mice lying in scattered formation on the floor of the veranda. "Thomas" had been on a far-flung expedition, had unearthed nests of field mice, and despatched them in a truly feline manner, brought home his booty in the form of a rodent mouse corpse.

NEW SPEED LAW IN EFFECT MAY 24TH

"Motorists should not be deceived by the headlines that have appeared in the press regarding the increasing the 50 mile per hour speed law passed by the Ontario Government prior last week. This law does not come into effect for thirty days or more," May 24th after the official passing of the law", explained Motorcycle Policeman Jack Cole, who is starting to local motorists today. The old speed laws of from 35 to 35 miles per hour on Government highways and 30 miles per hour inside of incorporated municipalities, is still very much in effect.

POLICE BLOTTER

Today being a legal holiday no session of police court was held in Belleville before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. Local police court will be held Tuesday.

Although numerous arrests were made and investigations necessary over the week end no charges of any nature were reported by local police today. "An unusually large number of drunks were apprehended on Saturday, all of whom were permitted to sober home Sunday, however," stated the police official today.

A general outbreak of fisticuffs in a local pool room on Saturday night culminated with a charge of assault being laid by the defendant today, the case to be presented in court next Friday. Two local truckers were apprehended overloading their trucks today. The trucks were taken to the city weigh scales, where it was discovered one was over-loaded some 2,500 pounds, while the other carried a load of 1,900 pounds in excess to the regulation poundage permitted under the H.T.A. Charges will result. Although no major motor accidents were reported on adjacent highways leading out of Belleville over the holiday, Traffic Officer Sam Ervine was called upon to assist Constable Jillings in patrolling the highway east of Deseronto, where two hit and run drivers, one an alleged drunk in charge, were apprehended last night. Charges in cases will be presented in a Napanee court.

OLD AND MODERN HYMNS ARE SUNG

Communion Service is Conducted by Bishop Marshall

Ancient and modern hymns and anthems formed the musical background of an early Easter Day service held yesterday at Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church when Right Rev. Bishop George Marshall preached appropriate sermons to large congregations throughout the day and evening.

While the morning service which brought out the largest congregation of the day saw a large number of communicants partake of the Resurrection of our Lord, the evening service was also well attended.

Bishop Marshall gave a stirring sermon at the morning gathering taking as his text, the Angels' message to Mary at the Tomb, "He is not here, He is risen, as He said."

Of special interest at all the services was the musical interpretation by the choir of the ancient hymns and anthems, while rendditions of "Christ is Risen Again", "Awake up, My Glory" and "Christ is Risen" were sung at the morning and evening services.

EASTER PARADERS IN WINTER ATTIRE

Cold Wind Calls For Fur Coats Instead of New Smart Suits

Dame Fashion and the Weather Man failed to collaborate yesterday when cold raw winds sweeping over the east put more or less of a quietus on the annual Easter Day parade, dear to the hearts of all the youth of the country and to the milady in general, irrespective of age.

But while the large crowds which attended the various church services throughout the city yesterday afternoon, relied mainly on winter apparel for warmth and style, the mercury which registered zero weather in the afternoon brought out a number of venturesome misses garbed in the early days of their new Spring toggery.

Shades of brown was apparently the new taste of the men's side of the parade, but not a few sported the new Coronation Blues. Smart snap brim hats worn at a rakish angle were the largest outfits and they strut "it in all their immaculate finery. A few of the hardier variety of the local Beau Brummels, sacrificed a lot of comfort to display the new topcoats, in light brown checks, with a smattering of greys and mixed colors.

But milady's styles as exemplified in the latest creations and colors of the 1937 Spring chapeaus, are not nearly so conservative, there appearing tight-fitting little creations, in plain colors with a dash of vivid color in the shape of floral designs, feathers and what-not, featured the initial appearance of what will be worn under the sun shines down in all its glory. A few feminine suits put in an appearance with short jackets having a hint of masculinity, seeming to find favor in the eyes of the fair sex.

Generally speaking, Dame Fashion and the Weather Man did not get a good opportunity to show their wares, and the curious ones who are holding off to get a better idea of the general trend of the Spring styles are forced to wait until more Springlike weather conditions are in evidence.

FORM COMMITTEE TO HANDLE FUNDS

Hope Donations Will Afford George Pepper a Race on Isle of Man

An effort to assist George Pepper, Canadian motorcycle champion of this city, in the matter of raising finances to transport him to the Isle of Man, where he proposes to compete in the world-renowned Manx Grand Prix motorcycle race next June, six civic-minded citizens and business men of Belleville met at a meeting in the city over the week end and formed a committee to decide upon ways and means of raising funds to assist Belleville's only Canadian champion, George Pepper, upon his venture.

The six men to assume the burden of raising a necessary $350.00 needed by Pepper are His Worship Mayor Arnott, P. C. MacLaurin, Alderman Wm. G. A. Morden, M. P. Duff and Jack McIntosh. Each of the above-mentioned was delegated to solicit subscriptions from citizens or others interested in the project of assisting Mr. Pepper to enter the world's championship motorcycle race on the Isle of Man. The committee as a whole named Dr. G. A. Morton as treasurer to whom all mailed contributions will be received at the Ontario Intelligencer office, but each member of the committee will accept any money that might be donated for the fund.

The committee formed feels that George Pepper is deserving of an opportunity to represent Belleville and Canada in the Isle of Man race for the world title, especially after his splendid riding when he won the Canadian championship last Labor Day. In having Mr. Pepper ride under the Canadian banner and representing Belleville it is hoped also that every fine advertising would be afforded the city, as George Pepper is a credit to his country and more especially to the community in which he lives.

A subscription list has already been opened and the amount will not be too small. The committee feel George Pepper, if he is to race on the Isle of Man, should carry the banner of Belleville in a fitting manner and be assisted in doing so with a cash donation coming from the home-citizens. Mr. Pepper has been offered a new Norton motorcycle for the Manx Grand Prix event, the Canadian Motorcycle Association will assist in the matter of providing the machine for the race. It is hoped this appeal will be met with a generous response by the advertising medium, aside from great honour that will right be brought to Belleville in a possible victory.

SPIRIT OF JOY MARKS SERVICES

Easter Messages and Music And Large Congregations at Tabernacle

The spirit of joy and gladness permeated the services at Tabernacle United Church on Easter Day. The altar was beautifully decorated with ferns and Easter lilies and with an illuminated cross as a background. The minister, the Rev. T. B. Naylor gave two messages in keeping with the spirit of Eastertide, his morning theme being, "He appeareth another form" and his evening subject, "He is Risen." Large crowds attended both services.

Recently the Tabernacle Church interior has been redecorated, the work having just been completed. The improvement is marked.

Music in the morning included the anthem, "Christ is Risen is the Sting" (Turner), and a solo "Easter Bells" (Gerald Lane), by Mrs. J. W. Bradley. Three anthems were sung in the evening, "Christ is Risen" (Shaw), "Christ is Risen" (Stainer), a chorale "Resurrection" (Tours), and "Jesus the Name of the People" (Kopp-Dicks) with the solo part taken by Mrs. Hector Peak.

At the Sunday School session Special Easter music was sung and the superintendent, J. E. Walmsley gave an interesting talk on the Easter spiritual meaning of Resurrection. He feelingly referred to the fact that next Sunday would be his last Sunday as active superintendent, but he hoped still to take an interest in the Sunday School as superintendent emeritus.

MIXED DRINKING IN ONT HOTELS TO BE CURBED

Two Separate And Distinct Rooms Must be Provided

CHANGE APRIL 1st

Municipalities Given Right to Set Closing Hours by By-law

Toronto, March 29—New and far-reaching Liquor Control Board regulations which require all Ontario hotels with authorities to operate two separate and distinct beverage rooms—one for men only, and the other as ladies' or women, except where attended by waitresses—and were announced Sunday night by Liquor Control Board of Ontario, to become effective from April 1.

These regulations, which have been designed as far as possible "mixed drinking" with its attendant abuses of which there have been considerable complaint of late, have been moulded for some time. Actual notification of their preparation has been for some weeks in the hands of hotel proprietors.

"They all have had ample warning for what is about to do," said Mr. Odette last night, "and if on April 1, they have not altered their premises to conform with our requirement there will be no renewal of their authorities for the forthcoming year."

May Set Closing Hour.

A second set of regulations which also come into operation on April 1 vests in the municipalities the right to declare by by-law whether the beverage rooms in the hotel shall be closed before 12 o'clock midnight, the hour presently set by Provincial legislation.

"There will be no closing of beverages rooms before 10 o'clock as night," said Mr. Odette, "but if any municipality feels that they should be shut by 10.30 or 11, or 11.30, say, all they have to do is pass a by-law and submit it to the Liquor Control Board and they will do their will. A municipality, for instance, might desire an earlier than 12 o'clock closing on some particular night. That's all right with us. From the first of the month they have the authority to go about getting it."

Inspection Tightened Up

In view of the fact that there were no amendments to the Liquor Control Act lastly at the recent Legislature session, Mr. Odette is taking regulatory action to tighten up on the inspection and other angles of the board's administration.

"Things are working very smoothly now," he said last night, "and our inspectors are keeping a very close check on conditions, but at present time they are looking over the hotels, listing what has been made no move to meet our April 1 demands."

DOES HIGHLAND FLING AT 72

Old Lady Tells Secret of Her Vigor

The writer of the following letter once suffered from rheumatism, headaches, and depression. Then one day a vigorous old lady told her the secret of good health. And now that former sufferer writes to tell others how she obtained relief through Kruschen:—

"Kruschen was recommended to me by an old lady of seventy-two who can dance the Highland Fling—thanks to Kruschen, which she has used for thirty years. She told me to take Kruschen Salts to try and relieve a dull heavy headache from which I suffered nearly every morning on wakening. I was also troubled with rheumatism in both shoulders. Kruschen turned the trick. The headache disappeared and so did the rheumatism. I have continued taking Kruschen and intend to keep it up."—(Mrs.) F.B.W.

Kruschen is a combination of mineral salts which assist in stimulating your liver, kidneys and digestive tract to healthy, regular activity. They ensure internal cleanliness, and thus help to keep the blood-stream pure.

Warble Flies Cause Farmers Huge Losses

Losses in livestock in Canada from all causes attributable to warble flies have been estimated from $7,000,000 to $14,000,000 every year, according to information compiled by Dr. Arthur Gibson, Dominion Entomologist and C. B. Twiss, Dominion Biological Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture. There are two species of these flies and their life histories and injurious habits are similar. The flies lay eggs during sunny days on the legs and lower parts of livestock, particularly cattle. About 40 eggs are laid by each female fly. These eggs usually hatch in a few days, penetrate the skin, migrate through the tissues and in some cases congregate in the region of the gullet, where they remain until late winter. Then they migrate to the skin of the back, which they perforate to make breathing holes, and after about two months, force their way through the hole, drop to the ground, and change into pupae. From the latter the flies emerge in the spring and summer, mate, and lay their eggs on the legs of the cattle. The flies live only a few days, but are continually replaced by the emergence of new individuals throughout the summer. And so the cycle is continued year by year.

Apart from the damage they do by perforating the hides, the flies are injurious to cattle in several ways. When laying their eggs their buzzing frightens the cattle, causing them to run around the fields. This reduces the yield of milk and also of about loss of flesh and condition. The animals become nervous and do not gain satisfactorily when the grubs are numerous, and the hides, which are very valuable meat is wasted, necessitated by the butchering of badly bitte cut off "faked beef" from the best parts of the carcass where the grubs have been.

Measure of Control

Control is effected by removing or killing the grubs while they are exposed in the backs of the animals. The simplest and most effective method consists of applying a wash made from standardized derris powder (1 lb.), soaf soap (1-4 lb.) and water (1 gallon). The soft soap is boiled in a quart of water and when somewhat cooled is poured into a bucket containing the derris powder and mixed with it into a paste. Cold water is added slowly, while stirring, to make up one gallon; the mixture is then ready for use. Standardized derris warble fly powders ready for use are sold commercially. The cost of materials for four dressings is from 4 to 6 cents per animal. The date for the first application, varying in different parts of the Dominion, is in early spring when the swellings in the backs of the animals caused by the grubs first become conspicuous.

In the interior of British Columbia this treatment is given in mid-winter; in the Prairie Provinces and Eastern Canada, about the third week in March. The second and third applications are made about a month and six weeks after the fourth after a further interval of about 36 days. Each grub is killed by pressing to the backs of the animals with a finger at the spots wherever the grubs are present. Only sufficient wash for immediate application should be prepared, and it should be stirred frequently.

The effectiveness of these control measures against warbles has been demonstrated in other parts of the world as well as in Canada. In Great Britain an order of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, entitled "Warble Fly (Dressing of Cattle) Order of 1927, 1928 and January 31, 1936, requires that every occupier of cattle (owner or holder of land) having in his possession, or in his charge, any cattle on which are visibly found with the maggot of the warble fly, shall take prescribed measures consisting of either applying a derris dressing at proper intervals or of squeezing out the grubs or killing the grubs.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture is co-operating with the British Government in connection with the above Order by treating cattle exported from Montreal to Great Britain during the months of February to June with a standardized derris wash, as recommended by the British Government, under the supervision of inspectors of the Health of Animals Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

A copy of "Warble Flies and Their Control in Canada" may be obtained by writing the Publicity Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

SETTLEMENT OF WAGE DISPUTE SEEMS NEARER

Direct Negotiations Will be Continued in Montreal Today

NO STATEMENT

Try to Bridge Gap of What Railway Offers And Men Demand

Montreal, March 29 (Special).—Hope gained ground here today that a settlement in the railway wage cut dispute might be reached when direct negotiations between the roads and the unions resume today.

Saturday, fresh from their interview with Labor Minister Norman Rogers at Ottawa, Vice-Chairman of the seventeen running trades unions, held a brief discussion at their hotel, then went into conference with Sir Edward Beatty and S. J. Hungerford, Presidents of the C.P.R. and C.N.R. respectively, in the board room of the Canadian Pacific head office. No statement was issued when the parley broke two hours later, but it was understood a certain amount of progress had been made toward bridging the deadlock that was reached last Wednesday. Railway officials said the meeting had been adjourned to Monday morning.

Compromise Is Suggested

An unconfirmed rumor was current here today that the purpose of Friday's meeting with Mr. Rogers at Ottawa was to report an impasse and find out whether the Government would be willing to compromise enough to bridge the gap between the maximum the railways declared they could afford and the minimum the men were willing to accept. According to this story, the Government indicated willingness to co-operate to a certain extent, and did not go far enough to meet the demands of the situation as it stood. The disputants were advised to go back and revise their requests in the light of the Federal offer, which they did.

It is understood the disputants are now agreed, or nearly so, as to the amount of the eventual reduction. The railways, it is said, are willing to meet the men's minimum of thirty as allowed sixty-six time, but they want to delay the increase longer than the unions are ready to wait.

Whether or not today's conferences is successful, it is regarded as unlikely its result will be announced before Tuesday. The unions' joint conference has a general session scheduled for that date, and it is expected the result of the week-end negotiations will be reported to that meeting before being made public.

Four Months Babe Weighs a Half Pound

New York, March 27—A four-months baby, weighing only eight ounces and less than a foot long, was born at United Israel Zion Hospital yesterday and somehow to live to the amusement of doctors and nurses. A steady stream of oxygen flowed through a small rubber funnel over the infant's head as doctors fought to keep the child alive.

No child born after only four months of gestation has ever lived, according to available records. But the perfectly formed infant, a boy breathed on, displaying the "suction reflex" of an almost normal child. He swallowed readily drops of water placed on his lips. Doctors considered that a good sign of development, the Associated Press reported.

The report said the Long Island baby would need 7,000 horsepower, expected to jump to 13,000 horsepower, in the Beauharnois Building of high-tension transmission lines and power lines connecting with mines accounted for most of the $1,413,364 spent on Northern Ontario properties in the 1936 fiscal year.

Before Nov. 1 the Commission expects to announce reduction in hydro-electric power rates, said the report which noted savings made through cancellation of contracts for Gatineau power sold with Quebec power firms and their revision.

Power Costs Reduced

Under the old contracts power costs for the year ending Oct. 31, 1936, amounted to $7,963,923. Under the revised contracts the charges for the year ending Oct. 31, 1935, amounted to $7,062,222. Under the revised contracts costs in the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1936, amounted to $2,824,402.

Reserves set up for depreciation, contingencies, debt retention of rates, sinking fund and insurance purposes; co-operative investments, $82,344,402; Northern Ontario properties $2,130,913; Insurance, Railways $185,359; Superannuation and staff Workmen's Compensation and staff pensions $2,357,602; total, Oct. 31, 1936, $89,598,115.

After noting credits of $548,724 to Niagara System municipalities, the report said: "There is not a single debt 17th bill against any municipality in the Eastern Ontario System and rebates have been made totalling $268,000.

The King-to-be with his sister, now the Princess Royal, and his brother (RIGHT)

Though the Boer War raged to disrupt the peace of empire and the great queen died to a nation's grief, early years for the young Prince Albert and his brother and sister were comparatively unperturbed. The young to feel the tragedy of strife or of grief, the royal children were growing up in hundreds of thousands of sturdy British children do. Their father and mother, realizing the responsibilities that would some day rest upon them, planned their lives so that early tutoring would built in the youngsters an appreciation of their duties.

But there was gayety and laughter in the royal household. There were happy weeks at Sandringham when the court of King Edward VII was in residence and Yuletide and at Balmoral, in Scotland, here Prince Albert would one day find his bride, King Edward and Queen Alexandra were indulgent grandparents to the royal youngsters and gladly supervised their welfare and their happiness while the father and mother were absent on many a royal task.

Plentiful are the stories still told in the royal family of practical jokes and escapades played in those carefree years and if King George VI is a kindly and indulgent father today, perhaps it has been a happy boyhood must the credit be given.

Sports became a popular part of the schedule. Prince Albert learned golf and tennis and is still the best player at both these games in the royal family. Squash racquets and football, and the national game, cricket, also earned his attention before 1900 saw the breaking up of the family group and his own start in Osborne naval training school.

Eastern Ontario System of Hydro in Excellent Shape

Not Single Debt 13th Bill Against Any Municipality

REBATES ANNOUNCED

Toronto, March 29 (CP)—Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission's present fiscal year program calls for reductions to farm, commercial, industrial and domestic consumers, the mileage and reductions in wholesale cost of power.

The report for the fiscal year, ending October 31, 1936, carries plans for:

Construction of more than 1,500 miles of rural primary lines to meet 10,000 new applications for power, mission expects will be forthcoming.

A new unit at the Alexander plant on the Mupigon River to meet Lac Gold field power demands.

Erection of a storage dam on the Prederickhouse River to increase the water supply for new power developments in the Ahtibi River.

The report said the Long Lac Gold field would need 7,000 horsepower, expected to jump to 13,000 horsepower. The Hydro-Electric Building of high-tension transmission lines and power lines connecting with mines accounted for most of the $1,413,364 spent on Northern Ontario properties in the 1936 fiscal year.

SIT-DOWN STRIKE

The sit-down striker who has occupied industrial plants in the U. S. has given a point. Mr. Lewis has agreed to consent to evacuate plants at the end of the campaign without asking for a settlement on the issues of the strike itself.

In Canada it has been made clear that the sit-down strike is at enmity with the law, for it amounts to holding the plant of the employing company at ransom until a satisfactory settlement is reached. Canadians will endorse the stand of those who have declined against the sit-down form of strike.

Canadians have so placed the sit-down strike out of bounds.

The New York Times referring to the possibilities in this form of strike says that there is no telling where new sit-down strikes may occur and that there is a threat of lawlessness in the sense of plain disregard of the statutes forbidding the seizure of property and also that there are laws on the statute books of every state which make such strikes illegal. A suggestion is that the U. S. government should undertake a closer regulation of industrial relations.

THE EASTER DATE

The thirty-five day variation of Easter from March 22nd. to April 25th. arouses one writer, P. W. Wilson, in his "Romance of the Calendar" to say that "what Easter is to the Christian and Passover to the Jew", cannot be regarded as a "universal" festival since it affects few of the vast populations of Asia. Yet cumulatively when they fall together, they become more than doubly significant and impressive, especially in communities where there is a large Hebrew population as in some of the great cities of this country. The romance of the calendar is heightened by its memories of such days and the new hopes with which it inspires the race.

In the British Parliament passed a permissive statute "to bring Easter within the orderly scope of a solar measurement of time determining provisionally that Easter should be on the first Sunday after the second Saturday in April." This would reduce the variation from thirty-five to six days. This change was however subject to international consent which has not yet been obtained.

Some writers say that those who saw the moon on nights of the past week would almost agree to let the date remain as it is, set for "the first Sunday after the full moon which happens upon or next after the twenty-first day of March" and if the full moon happens upon a Sunday, Easter Day is the Sunday after." In this there is a triple complication of solar equinox, lunar month and seven-day week.

A settled date for Easter may be one of the first decisions to be reached as regards the changes proposed in the calendar, some of which are so unusual as no doubt to provoke opposition.

JOHN DRINKWATER

John Drinkwater, son of Yorkshire farmers, became one of England's greatest present-day poets and playwrights and was selected by King George Fifth in the capacity of arranging a picture dealing with King George's Jubilee and has just finished a motion picture called "King's People" which he did not live to see, this latter to be released at the time of the coronation of King George Sixth.

Drinkwater whose dramatic rules were freer than those of the old school wrote a great play, "Abraham Lincoln," in 1918 which stirred the world. The place he allows Lincoln in world history is one which pleases fellow-countrymen of the martyred president.

Drinkwater, had he lived, might have become poet laureate of England.

In Drinkwater, there is the sign of genius. Born of generations of countrymen, he went to university, turned to insurance and gave it up for literature. At Oxford his studies do not seem to have affected his career. He did however leave a junior broad jump record which stood for thirty years.

Scotsmen will not forget Drinkwater as the man who wrote plays on their national poet, Robert Burns and on "Mary Stuart," their tragic queen.

A man of many literary gifts, as poet, essayist and dramatist, Drinkwater never sought popularity as some writers do.

He had the face and voice of one who would have been a great actor. He is said to have had a great quality for friendship. Life would be much duller than it is were it not for him.

I never knew an early-rising, hard-working, prudent man, careful of his earnings and strictly honest, who complained of bad luck. A good character, good habits, and iron industry are impregnable to the assaults of all the ill-luck that fools ever dreamed of.—Addison.

THAT INTEREST IN THE COMING CORONATION of Britain's King is world-wide is indicated by the fact that 50,000 copies of the official.. Souvenir.. Coronation.. Program have been received in the United States to be sold at fifty cents each. It is expected that this number will not nearly fill the demand. The program consists of thirty-two pages, printed in black with a red border on glossy 8½ x 11¼ inch pages... These programs will be released all over the world April 23. Sir William Wiseman, a partner of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., financiers, New York City, has charge of the distribution of the official souvenir program in the United States and has already received orders for 60,000 from business firms who purpose to distribute them to customers free. Proceeds from the sale of the program throughout the world will go to King George's Jubilee Trust, organized in 1935 to benefit the youth of Great Britain. Embossed on the cover is the Royal Coat of Arms in red, gold, blue and black. Under it, printed in seven block type, is the title: "The Coronation of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth; Official Souvenir Program."

DAYTON, OHIO, IN 1913 HAD A DISASTROUS FLOOD caused by the overflowing of Miami River, causing loss of life and property, damages running into many millions. Dayton business men said never again—and began right away to devise flood prevention works. The flood prevention slogan was "Remember what you were in the attic," a reference to flood days when Dayton citizens were driven to the attic and then to the roofs by the ever rising waters, when they swore if they survived to see that this horrible thing should never happen again. A fund of $2,000,000 was quickly raised which started the way for a tremendous undertaking which eventually cost more than thirty millions, all financed by citizens of Dayton without government help. While the flood prevention works were being constructed, much opposition developed, as generally happens to a real worth-while municipal movement, even with threats to dynamite the dams. Finally the work was completed and their worth was demonstrated in the recent floods which left Dayton high and dry while Cincinnati and Louisville, near-by communities, were shivering in the cold and facing the sullen flood waters with only that ermine fear which floods can inspire, wondering when even their lives would be spared. Dayton said NEVER AGAIN and REMEMBER WHAT WE SWORE IN THE ATTIC—and Dayton was spared the horrors of the worst flood the United States has ever seen

HOUSE TO HOUSE SALESMEN ARE MANY AND VARIED but it takes the well known brush salesman to show real technique when he hands the housewife a cute little brush as a free gift from his firm on the first visit and asks for the privilege of returning some time later to show samples of various kinds of brushes. This technique was fashioned and perfected in the land of Uncle Sam, where the profession of peddling was brought to the highest peak of perfection since the days of "Skinny the Tin Pedlar" who travelled with horse and wagon, to the nomads who sold tea and coffee, clothes, farm machinery, etc. It is eminently fitting therefore that the land of Uncle Sam should be the battleground for a war between the house-to-house pedlars and city and town merchants who object to the competition as unfair. "The ..... Brushman," best known of the peripatic salesmen, is appealing to the U.S. Supreme Court to reverse a conviction against an agent in Green River, Wyoming, three years ago. Green River has an ordinance which makes business solicitation of a private residence, without an invitation, a nuisance. Court tests have confirmed the Green River ordinance, and 250 other communities have followed suit thereby making a number of firms who rely upon house-to-house visitation very jittery and home merchants correspondingly happy. When the Brushman was first stopped in Green River the company devised a plan whereby a card was presented to the householder to sign inviting the solicitor to call again any time he was in town, which was in fact the next day. The brushman was again arrested and the trial court held that the invitation card trick was only a sham—so did the State Supreme Court, and confirmed by the Federal Supreme Court.

Article No. 1

Goodbye Belleville! Hello Toronto!

HELLO EVERYBODY! Here I am again, for two or three more articles, as my absence from my native business must again be brief, although I am striving to make certain changes in the numerous admirers of this column.

I left Belleville on number five on the afternoon before Good Friday, and found that in the station and in coaches were loaded to capacity, when it reached Belleville, four special coaches, slightly antiquated but comfortable, were attached, and one of these was immediately filled by Belleville passengers, while the other was required for those joining me at Toronto-bound, between Belleville and that city.

Everybody was happy and talking to new found friends, while a group of Albert College boys sang and made merry as only such lads can. It was the best way of spending part of better times that I have seen for a number of years on my travels. For a long time people have been very serious, and anxious, more given to grave meditation than to cheerful chatter. I note this fact now with emphasis because I deem it unusually important.

A Spectacular Journey.

But this delightful journey of a little over one hundred miles was quite unusual and spectacular in at least two other exciting particulars.

At Trenton, a passenger sharing my lady with club bag boarded the train. She was the only and adorable Booby-Soob, who, when last seen on screen with large, enchanting eyes, long swerving curves, and luscious Rosy cheeks and diminutive stature. In fact she was the cutest little bit of sweet, tiny Booby, and she wore the cutest little green hat with two wings to accentuate her cute appearance.

Booby came timidly down the aisle hugging her bag and with a quick glance told her that she must stand, or double up in my seat, somewhat similarly situated in my best attire and thin, trying to find the best possibilities of lesser magnitude. Booby came on, saw me, gave one glance, because from first to last she waved those wonderful eyelashes at the young man from the east, and he like any other silly lad away from home for the first time, stood up and his fate approaching his ivy form. Booby stepped at the proffered seat, rested that heavy bag on its arm for a moment apparently exhausted, and out of breath, displayed those eyelashes like streaks of lightning, kept those big, lustrous eyes on the absent-minded youth, and spoke just like a big, baby doll:

"Is this seat occupied."

That rude young man never looked at her, but shook his head coldly, and continued to study the sky and the landscape.

Nature's Way in Romance.

Booby somewhat abashed took the seat as close to the arm-rest as possible and placed her luggage at her feet. There was a wide space between these twain because he kept close to the window. How differently Nature works in the east and west to the rear!

I was feeling sorry for pretty, doll-like Booby as I watched her observing people all around her from the corners of her eyes, enjoying themselves. But soon I saw that Nature was going to take her in hand, and almost heroic. "Would you please tell me the time?" said one young lad, looking straight into that doomed young man's eyes.

An Ensberg Dimension.

A pink spot came to his cheek, as he reached for his watch, moved over surprisingly close to her, and gave her his fine new watch, as big almost as an alarm clock, at the same time, as he came gallantly:

"It's just four o'clock."

"Oh, thank you. I was really afraid I was going to be late reaching Danforth."

Then they made wonderfully rapid progress just as they do in Florida, California and even in Belleville under such favorable conditions.

"The train has stopped out in the country. I hope it is not a tire trouble, has there been an accident?" Booby looked out, but kept in look out of his window, no other, and he was visibly happy.

Nature's Way in Accident.

"Very likely it's just a hot-box," said the young man, who craved for time, much time, long. And then there was scandalized talk of a hot box on Booby's sake in case a real emergency should arise. Number five, by all accounting to Nature's rules since left Belleville, was due in at 7.30.

After twenty minutes our long, heavy train started again, and the conductor made his rounds.

"What caused that delay, conductor?" asked the old lady across the aisle, who injected so much bitterness in her words that I must conclude that she overheard Booby's anxious words, and the soothing, comforting reply, and that if possible she was determined to blight this innocent, happy romance. Nature grows weeds and mean persons like that.

"A serious, and very unusual accident," replied the conductor in that calm, official manner known only to train hottons the world over. "We met one of our fastest trains going in the same direction as the strong wind now blowing. These two powerful forces sent a stone nearly the size of my fist straight in the forehead of our fireman. He fell as if he were shot dead. The engineer stopped the train, I and my trainmen rushed to the engine to find out what had happened and how. We found the dead automobile, a doctor was luckily discovered in the train, first aid was given, and our fireman, though weak and dizzy, recovered sufficiently to continue our run.

The old lady with a sneer, and a tone of her head, indicated that Booby and her new found boy-friend were just guilty fools.

Booby's sympathetic heart had very differently. In a lovely, confiding manner she slipped her arm through his, and like an innocent dove looked into his face and inquired:

"Do you think our brave fireman will die?"

This and related topics gave ample food for conversation and confidence until a clear, strong voice announced:

"Danforth, next stop."

Was It a Date?

The two heads came very close together, he took out a little book and pencil, and wrote something in which she was much interested, then took the scrap, and the way to the door bareheaded carrying her club bag preceding him, he following meekly as a princess.

That is Nature's way, the best way, much superior in my humble opinion to the West's swagger, and suggestive chalet.

Toronto.

I am writing these lines in Toronto on Good Friday, final pieces of business completed, and I am in a secret rest while writing "Off you."

My son, and I for several years have brought exhibits of our five hundred educational publications to the Ontario Educational Association which meets in Toronto University here very early in every April.

We now rank in importance and circulation as the 4th or 5th of all the great publishers of Canada, as publishers we meet and greet the Big Four, Canada's great, friendly, happy brotherhood, and sell each others publications, and those of Canada as a nation owe more to its Educational Association than any one of the greatest educational parliaments in the world.

The Growth of Large Cities.

Recently I gave a lecture in Belleville on the rise and growth of Imperial Toronto. It was given a much interest, and favorable comment on this topic, that I shall now devote a few lines to it, for I find though anything like a complete discussion is impossible in the limited space available.

Why is Toronto larger than Ottawa but smaller than Montreal?

Indians and pioneers have selected the sites of nearly all our great cities, and the first determining factors were commercial availability. Such a chosen site is on a river, lake or sea with all the absence of internal roads and canals. Water is now a neglected, God-given highway. Future possibilities are greatest for an ocean port which reaches out to the whole world, than for a lake-port, while those directly interested fans a thrill, is to show an utter disregard for the rights and feelings of other people.

The writer is not alone in holding these views. He has spoken to eight other west hill residents and their reactions are given as follows:

"It is rotten to expect us to put up with it, but what can we do."

"I do not want to have to listen to that noise, if I can help it."

"Think of any more 100 per cent. to stop this race going past my door."

"I bet out a petition, I will willingly sign it."

"If this race is held again, I am not going out to town again."

"The council are certainly going against the wishes of a great many people, in allowing such a race."

"It is craziness to think of holding such a race in the middle of the city limits."

"If it draws a crowd and leaves some money in the city, it is all right, I hope that this race is over at it, but may be out of town, as I was last year."

The writer and all those to whom he has spoken, agree that those responsible should say to be congratulated on their efforts and wish them every success in arranging that race to this district, but dispute, most emphatically, their judgment in making the race track right inside the city limits and past homes where the inevitable accidents and disturbances are not wanted.

"If the people of this city have to be imposed upon in this way, why not give snobbery section a taste of it?" said one Bleecker Ave. hermit. If the east hill residents would tolerate such inconvenience they should.

"There is another serious aspect in regard to this race.

"Last year there was as much motorcycle travel and roar of exhaust on the day before as on the Monday. I am sure that all good drivers agree that Sunday should be a day of rest, with no undue disturbance. Then let there be rest and quietness while these machines go roaring by? Was there any last year?

"What is the use of trying to teach our children Sabbath observance, when there is a civic-sanctioned contradiction going past their home?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain,

"Yours very truly,

WILL REID, RESIDENT."

Protests Race Within City

Dear Mr. Editor: "I hope that you may see fit to allow me a space in your columns for a few comments regarding the proposed motorcycle road race to be held next week.

"I understand that the council has again given its permission for this race to be held on the west hill and I am also given to understand that when such permission has been granted, that there is nothing the west hill can do about it, but put up with it.

"If this is so and a sporting body, by permission from the council, can say to the west hill residents, that they must either leave their homes at a certain hour and stay away all day, or else put up with the noise of the motorcycles for two days, that their rest will be disturbed, that sick folk must bear the brunt of the day across as possible, that lawns and flowerbeds may be trampled, then there is no fairness in our civic administration.

"The argument that the city will gather in a lot of money from the proposed crowd, and that many local merchants greatly does not hold water. Outside of possibly one drug store and one soft drink stand, other business places will be closed. The only money spent by the visitors will be on what they eat and drink.

"To know a certain district one quarter of this city and subject the people living therein to disturbance and discomfort, just to satisfy the demands of a few merchants and give those directly interested fans a thrill, is to show an utter disregard for the rights and feelings of other people.

"The writer is not alone in holding these views. He has spoken to eight other west hill residents and their reactions are given as follows:

"It is rotten to expect us to put

EASTER FESTIVAL AT ST. THOMAS'

Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne Conducts Impressive Services

Alleluia! Alleluia! Alleluia!
O pride and daughters, let us sing!
The King of heaven, the glorious King,
O'er death today rose triumphing.
Alleluia.

Easter Day, the Queen of Festivals, was observed as the old parish church of St. Thomas yesterday in services of marked reverence and beauty. The altar banked with its many Easter lilies and was, indeed, beautiful to behold. Large congregations were present during the day and the music in keeping with the joyous festival was inspiring.

There were three celebrations of the Holy Communion; plain celebrations were said at 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. and at 11 a.m., the celebration was fully choral. The vicar of the parish, the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, was the celebrant at the three morning services and at the last celebration he was assisted by the Rev. C. T. Lewis. The large vested choir sang in his excellent manner the original Merbeck setting to the Communion Office which was taken from the prayer book of the year 1550. In the Agnus Dei solo parts were sung beautifully and impressively by Miss Helen Potter and Miss Adele Ouse. During the offertory the choir rendered very nicely the anthem "King of Kings, by Simper, the solo part was taken in fine voice by Mr. Harry Redbern. The organ accompaniment to the service by Mr. Ernest Wheatley, Mus. Bac., A.C.C.O., was of high degree and his playing of the opening voluntary "Fill o' Fillse," an old French Melody of the 17th. Century, French Melody of the 17th. Century, and the closing voluntary, the "Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel, were magnificently rendered.

The service was delivered by the vicar and his remarks were an inspiring Easter message based upon the words found in the 34th. verse of the 24th. chapter of St. Luke, "The Lord is risen indeed."

"Easter is not only a season of joy and thanksgiving for the resurrection of Christ, but an opportunity for mankind to start afresh and form a new determination to win the world for Christ," said the vicar.

"There is no part of the Christian faith more deep-seated in the heart of man than the attainment of the life hereafter," said the speaker, "and we shall realize that it is cowardly on the part of man to come out on Easter Day morning, unless he is sincere in his desire to start anew. We should not make this glorious festival one of singular appearance. We should be true to our profession, to ourselves and to Christ, and make a new effort to work in His service. What is past is past."

Such a feeling is in the heart of Christ on this happy and joyous day, continued the vicar. "And what a challenge it is to us. The Church of God needs everyone to uphold its standards and principles, and we must resign us that in the future, our new determination may yet win the world for Christ and find that peace of mind which is the peace of God which passeth all understanding."

"If you can, from this brief message, create a new determination to live, and to live a new desire to serve Him, then I say to you, from the bottom of my heart, 'A Happy and Joyous Easter'."

At 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon there was a children's service conducted in the church by the Vicar for the children of St. Thomas' and St. Paul's Sunday Schools. At this service the children deposited their Lenten mite boxes.

Choral Evensong was held at 7 p.m.

The observance of the great Easter Festival by the parishioners of the old and historic Church of St. Thomas was truly most happy.

"On the third morn He rose again,
Glorious in majesty to reign;
O let us swell the joyful strain.
Alleluia.

U. S. FREIGHTER WINNING FIGHT

Flow of Water in Hold Checked And All Still Aboard

San Francisco, Mar. 29 (AP)—The stricken U. S. freighter Volunteer with 39 aboard, apparently was winning its fight early today against a leaky hull and defective pumps, radio messages indicated.

MacKay radio reported a message from the Canadian liner Empress of Canada, saying the Volunteer was striving to make Kobe under its own power. The message said the British motor-ship Fresno City which sped 240 miles under forced draft to the aid of the Volunteer, had resumed its course to Los Angeles.

Globe wireless later intercepted another message from the Empress of Canada saying the Volunteer had checked the flow of water into the hold and all crew and passengers were still aboard.

When the Volunteer sent out its first SOS it was approximately 940 miles off the Japanese coast.

The Japanese freighter The Maru was reported standing by the Volunteer, which carried a crew of 37 and 2 passengers.

DUKE OF WINDSOR LEAVES CASTLE

Departs For St. Wolfgang in Lake Country of Upper Austria

Ernestehl, Austria, Mar. 29 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor, accompanied by a truckload of baggage and a police escort, departed today for St. Wolfgang in the lake country of Upper Austria.

A Vienna police official said he would remain at the new retreat until May 2. Then, the official said, he will depart for France where he has tentatively arranged to occupy a chateau outside Paris.

Three of the Duke's servants rode in the police escort for the journey to St. Wolfgang.

More than 600 residents of tiny Ernestel turned out in a torchlight procession to the castle last night to say farewell to their distinguished visitor.

The Duke, speaking German, bade the villagers "Auf Weidersehn."

The former king observed Easter by attending services in Vienna's Anglican church, and reading the lesson.

3 GREAT ENEMIES SAYS J. STALIN

Formidable And Lasting Barriers Must be Erected is Claim

Moscow, Mar. 29 (AP)—A warning from Joseph Stalin against Capitalism, "Trotskyism" and conceit as the three great enemies of Russia was delivered to the nation today.

Formidable and lasting barriers against these three evils was the task, told, must be erected through the political consolidation of the nation.

The warning was given by Stalin in a speech, Mar. 3 in the Kremlin before leaders and committees of the Communist party, of which he is secretary, and published last night.

He coined a new Communist slogan—"Bolshevists must master Bolshevism"—in the speech in which he warned the party against conceit, self praise, boastfulness and "blindness from success".

Stalin laid down a 12-point program for the liquidation of the enemies in which he declared the chief point must be concentration on the political education of the Bolsheviks.

"All success depends entirely upon a political foundation," he declared. Without it, which economic advances may appear to be built upon sand."

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, March 29. — (Special) — Lack of sun wasn't the reason why few Easter Sunday fashions were shown in Trenton yesterday. Old Sol beat down brightly over the town all day but a raw chilly wind held thermometers within striking distance of zero and therefore prevented elders and the younger set from displaying their new Spring togs. All church services were well attended both morning and evening sermons. And the majority of those present were the wiser overcoat, despite the challenge of annual dress-up day, to sport that new Spring attire.

Willing Workers Walk

A body of women members of the Willing Workers Organization formed in the market square yesterday and walked to the Salvation Army Hall on Eight street for Easter Sunday morning worship service. Major Edwin Brace, Woodstock, was the speaker.

Quinte Orchards Tops

Carrying Place Quinte Orchards took like the winners of Prince Edward County hockey championship, adding another laurel to their seasons wins the Orchardmen triumphed over Picton in Picton on Saturday night 8-1 in a contest that was all one-sided as the scoring indicates. The Carrying Place aggregation, managed by William Latour is the best commercial outfit assembled in these parts in many years and to date hold two cups. They knocked of the Trenton League trophy and also the Wellington loop honours. Another victory over Picton will give the Quinte the county awards for 1937 a feat never equalled by a Carrying Place organization before. Incidentally the Carrying Placers are spreading themselves to a big banquet in the Gilbert Hotel tonight thanks to Mr. George Hardy (well known Toronto sportsman) backer of the team. Harry Carey, members of the Trenton Police force, Reverend gentlemen and last but not least, the Press, had been invited to attend the function. Following the dinner presentations, an interesting illustrated lecture on the British Intelligence will be given.

Badminton Winners

The Badminton courts in the old film plant fairly hum with activities these nights as the regular playing season is steadily drawing to a close. The indoor racquette sport has soon to give way to the outside game, but before the change is made a number of important matches are to be staged by the bonesters. March winners of the mixed doubles tournaments were Phyllis Batchelor and Reginald Batchelor. This week the final this tournament and the Senior and Junior Clubs are taking part.

Hymns 112, 103 and 134 were used throughout the morning service. The responsive reading 783 was impressively carried out. The Gloria was sung and the junior choir joined in the anthem. "Open the Gates" Mr. J. W. Deacon, tenor, was soloist and the special music also included the anthem "Unfold Ye Portals Everlasting" (Gounod) and the Hallelujah Chorus from "The Messiah".

SUNRISE SERVICE ATTRACTS MANY

Easter Day's Services Are Opened With Worship at Dawn

Members of the congregation of Holloway Street United Church assembled in the 1937 Easter morning with a sunrise service held at seven o'clock, and which was featured by one of the largest congregations of the day.

Special music, appropriate of the joyous occasion, featured the Easter Day worship at services held at eleven a.m., seven p.m. and a special children's service held in the Sunday School rooms in the afternoon which took the form of an open session. Many of the elder members of the congregation took advantage of this opportunity to further celebrate the resurrection of our Lord.

While the sunrise service which was featured by the fine voice of Mr. Harry Matthews of Albert College in solo passages, was attended by a large number, the remaining services of the day were also taken advantage of by large congregations.

Splendid sermons dealing with the joyousness of the occasion were preached at all services by the Rev. R. E. Newman, minister of the church.

Windsor, England, March 29—(AP)—Far from the crowds that watch their comings and goings in London, King George and Queen Elizabeth yesterday attended Easter services at the tiny church which Queen Victoria built for the tenants of the Royal estate.

Dressed the the average young couple, the King and Queen strolled a few minutes together across the park to the church from the Royal Lodge.

SPRING SCENE

MARCH would be a dismal month indeed if man had no imagination. Fortunately, hope springs eternal, and each returning Spring sees new ideas, new aspirations brought once more to life.

"We'll do that in the Spring," is a familiar expression. Plans shelved during the Winter are dusted off. Now, the family talks about replacing the old car . . . buying new clothes . . . a new radio . . . dahlia bulbs . . . paint for the garage. A thousand things are needed . . . a thousand tasks must be done.

Here in the advertising pages of this paper is real Spring news. Articles you need, carefully selected and arranged, are paraded before your critical eyes. Read the advertisements thoughtfully . . . and so choose wisely. For advertisements, the maker's guide to good values, will be your guide to a happier, more cheerful Spring.

Clifton Forge, Va., March 29—(AP)—Streaker say many men in Clifton Forge who toss relief money to get drunk, and is caught at it, will have to wear upon his back a placard proclaiming:

Wheeler conceived the plan when his police court docket one morning showed four relief workers arrested on charges of drunkenness.

SIXTEEN SEA MEN RESCUED WHEN CAPTAIN'S HALTING WIRELESS SIGNALS BRING AID

"Amateurish" SOS calls, sent out by the youthful captain of the stricken Norwegian tramp steamer, Bjerrill, are credited with saving the crew of 16 when the ship foundered off the Nova Scotia coast. Rev. Canon Bedford officiating at the Grace United Church ceremony. Among the bride before her marriage was a member of the staff of the Department Staff at the City Hall. The couple were unattended. Mrs. Glenn Robinson and Albert Mulvey, both of Belleville, the groomsman and bridesmaid respectively. The bride looked most becoming in a Victory model of navy blue with a paisley blouse and black accessories. Her bridesmaid was gowned in navy blue and accessories of the same color. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for Toronto and returned to the city on Sunday, where they will reside.

On Sunday evening a luncheon was served at the home of the bride's friends of the contracting parties, 41 Murney Street and terminated the centre of the banquet table.

"Tickets For One"
— by —
Marie Blizard

But days passed and Judy found no trace in spite of her first belief that Look had given her another chance, there was no work for her. Inside the rounds again of department stores, factories, restaurants, offices, anywhere that she could find work but the answer was always the same . . . "Nothing to-day" and now "today" was eight days after that fateful night.

Her purse was empty again. Her stomach cried for food and her spirit for hope.

The card that Talbot had given Judy to take to his lawyer, Kendall, looked back at her tempting-ly. She had said that Kendall would find work for her. He told her to go to him that very next morning. The resolution never did go began to waver and finally, in desperation she sought his office.

Thick carpets muffled her timid footsteps as she walked to the desk to ask for him.

"Mr. Kendall, Mr. Warren Kendall please?" she asked a haughty girl who chewed gum next her.

"Mr. Kendall is not in," she answered carelessly.

"Could you tell me, please, when he will be in? I simply must see him for he wasn't any idea. Mr. Kendall went South on his yacht a few days ago. He may be back in three or four weeks," her tone was kindlier as she sensed Judy's troubled face.

"Why don't you telephone later for an appointment?"

Judy thanked her and walked out with feet that were leaden.

She remembered a conversation her sister chorines had engaged in during a wait in their mutual dressing room:

"When I get the indigoes," Maybelle had said, "I go round to Tony's and lots some gaze until I get in a good for dancing on the table."

Hazing was more elegant? "I doll myself up and take myself to the Ritz for tea," she considered.

There was no place for Judy to go in the world . . . no home and no one she went to find a visitor—and a surprise!

Seated at her bed as though he had nothing to do but wait for her was Talbot. The nerve of his handsome head, "Judy, you mustn't keep me waiting like this. I'm in a fever of impatience. I know that lunching at the Cafe de la Seine's heavy fare isn't by almost five."

"Oh . . . then are you?"

"Dear . . . I always forget the social amenities," and making her way to keep how, "Terence Joseph Patrick Shannon of the Daily Tab."

Judy's eyes lighted sparks of fire. Anger burned in her cheeks. She was beautiful in her moment.

"The Daily Tab!" . . . then:

"Get out of here! Get out of here this minute I tell you! Or before I do something desperate!"

Talbot somehow found out who the was and had blocked her path across the sheets of his yellow journal.

"Did you hear me?" he asked gently.

"I don't want to hear you. You have nothing to say to me and I've nothing more to say to you Mr. Terrence, Patrick . . ."

"Terrence Joseph Patrick," he corrected her and patted a chair invitingly. "Sit down, Judy . . . Shannon, and now will you get out before I . . ."

"Judy will you please look upon me as a kind messenger of hope and good?"

"How could I look upon you or anything to do with the Tab as being anything but . . . with."

A shudder shook her.

"Why, my dear child, how radically you speak," Shannon's tone was mocking. "I thought the Tab had her to go to him that very next morning. The resolution never did go began to waver and finally, in desperation she sought his office.

Thick carpets muffled her timid footsteps as she walked to the desk to ask for him.

"Mr. Kendall, Mr. Warren Kendall please?" she asked a haughty girl who chewed next her.

"Judy will you please look upon me as a kind messenger of hope and good?"

"How could I look upon you or anything to do with the Tab as being anything but . . . with."

A shudder shook her.

"Why, my dear child, how radically you speak," Shannon's tone was mocking. "I thought the Daily Tab was called the Chorus Girls' Friend. I thought it was served with the cricket's every morning.

"Did you?" she hurled back at him. "Yes, I'm a sone of my orchids and what do you think of my selection? . . . a snake! . . . while you're about it, you might tell me one . . . what do you think of this Park gown I'm wearing . . . now?"

"Anything you'd wear, you would grace . . ."

Judy had no attention to him. "Yes, stunning isn't it? Just what a millionaire would buy for a girl he kept in a Park Avenue flat, Cohen and Cohen at $4.95 two years ago."

Then she burst into tears.

"Judy . . . I . . . say . . . girl" She finished weakly.

Terry was silently fast trying to control the strange picture. There was no sarcasm, no guile in her voice, she spoke:

"Come on, sister, spill the story you've got."

"There . . . there . . . isn't any story! Judy's storm of tears was abating. "If there was any story to you suppose I'd be living here, doing like this and wishing I were a frankfurt and roll?"

"How many hot dogs could you buy for say ten wrand? 'Ten thousand and one dollar bills. Let's see . . . that's twenty to the dollar and . . ." Judy had ceased to be serious calculating how long she'd have to realize the sum.

"Ten thousand dollars!" she whispered.

Into a cent more, mind you," he held up a determined finger.

"What are you talking about?" the demanded.

"I told you I came to bring you fame and fortune. Now listen carefully. 'Ay rag will pay you 10,000 bone, maximum, bonis or cigarlars—in the Park Avenue parlance. See? That's the fortune part of it. All you have to do is to sign on The Inside Story of How I Won John Talbot and you can sign it, my gal, 'i, JUDY JAMES! That's the fame! What do you think of it?"

Judy almost choked when she told the story. Her clothes were all but ironically she ended:

"I'll do it, Mr. Shannon (forgot the confidkes . . . "

"Terrence," Judy was getting suspicious. "Do you usually eat corn on the cob? I'll be seeing you soon and a dozen oranges?"

"Always," he answered. "let's chalk some of this down because I've thought of a scheme that's going to knock you right off your little tootsies."

"Terrence . . ."

"Yeah, Judy, I'll have you earning ten thousand bucks a month or throw away!" He grasped her wrists until they hurt and there was almost physical pain in his eyes. "What Going?" she faltered.

"Yes . . . Terrence that boy but"—as her face set in stubborn determination—"before you answer me or listen to one line about yourself for six months I'll tell you."

Judy didn't but she shook her head in affirmation.

"Oke. The next step, lemme see, . . . Oh, yes, Judy, you're not going or touching his food Terry had disappeared and as he made for the stairs, Judy called after him in wonder:

"Judy, don't leave this house except to buy food. There are a couple of books in my chair . . . don't leave here until you hear from me."

He was gone.

CHAPTER 3
A Proposal

Terry Shannon was an incongruous figure seated in the midst of ten beautiful ladies occupied with a careful study of their own flawless faces reflected in vanity mirrors or darting into space with well-bred hauteur as if they were waiting merely to do a favor to a lesser person.

They watched them rearrange their furs cross and uncross their beautiful legs and drape irresistibly the hand chairs ranged about the outer room of Franklin Maxwell Play Producer's Inc. Terry was lost in reverie of what they'd look like with lounges and soft lights when the door marked "Private" opened.

Eleven pair of eyes turned like mechanical guns on Sadie Goldberg. She walked to the rail dividing her quarters from them and ten brilliant smiles of anticipation flashed into being.

Ignoring them, Miss Beancaire," Sadie's voice was terse. "Mr. Marshall is not casting now. Come back in a couple of weeks."

The last of them was gone. Sadie's eyes were kinder and her voice was gentler now that Terry was there.

"I couldn't you think they'd have something better to do with their time? They're here every day . . ."

"Never mind, my you wanted to see P.M. about?"

Terry smiled at her, "I didn't say, Sadie, I'd just called on knowing I just wanted to ask him about a play I've written. I thought maybe . . ."

"Listen," Sadie was confidential, "if you've got a play you'd better put on a show and if you ask me, this season his luck ain't so hot."

"Thanks, Sadie, I'll be very much surprised as though he hadn't anything to-day, however, of course now how Marshall's shows are going. I've been out of town and Fine Stuff, Arty stuff, Marshall could afford it. He was Broadway's very favorite producer. Associated with millions he'd made in the stock market and solely for the love of it.

Even a millionaire couldn't stand the depression forever, Terry reflected. Terry reflected hopefully, and if he could make him see what he, Terry, had to offer him . . .

A buzzer sounded on Sadie's desk. "He must have you say go in," she said to Terry.

Terry was familiar with the room. Expected office, with the exotic plants, the modern art and with the man who reached his hand severely across his eighteenth-century desk to take his own.

But Terry was unaware that Marshall looked tired and worried.

Sadie's small pad pencil and spectacles he would have had to work hard for a living.

He took one of the cigars from the humidor Marshall pushed to-ward him. "Well, young Mr. Frank?" Better to let Frank open the ball.

Marshall did not answer him. He leaned back in his chair and studied the ceiling. "Not as good, eh? I can remember when they were better . . . Terry leaned across the desk. "Times in the theatre are not so good, Marshall . . . 12 successes and five sell-outs are pretty good."

"Well Miss and Mr. Marshall to answer, "Your stuff is not a success. Your stuff is not a success. Your stuff is not a success.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

'Mississippi' and 'Little Miss Marker'

Now playing the Capitol, two great screen attractions of yesteryear brought back as revivals for those who missed them on previous showing. W. C. Fields in "Mississippi" and Shirley Temple in "Little Miss Marker."

The screen's leading exponents of song, comedy and beauty — Bing Crosby, W. C. Fields and Joan Bennett, respectively—vie for honors in Paramount's "Mississippi," the gala musical film now at the Capitol Theatre as fill No. 1 and come off in a glorious blaze that makes the picture a flood of mirth and melody.

"Mississippi" is a story of Dixie in the days when ladies were crinoline and the gentlemen didn't enjoy their morning coffee unless it had been preceded by a duel. Into this colorful and somewhat dangerous country comes Bing Crosby, a Yankee youth from Philadelphia, to claim the hand of his long pursued by Gail Patrick. He won't duel with his rivals for the lady's affection, not because he is afraid, but because he thinks the custom ridiculous.

Crosby is branded coward by the others and goes off with Fields, the captain of a river steamer in order to escape their taunts. Under the tutelage of the blustering old braggart, Crosby rapidly develops into a gun-fighting terror, billed all along the river as the singing terror.

The comedy climax of "Mississippi" occurs when Crosby discovers that he hasn't loved Gail Patrick but her little sister, Joan Bennett all along. And she despises anyone who duels! So Crosby and Fields have to go to work undoing his reputation all over again.

Crosby, who has shown definite talent as a comedian in his recent pictures, develops into superb partner for Fields, at the top of his form in "Mississippi". And Crosby's score, composed by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart, is just as chock-full of hits as "She Loves Me Not" and "Here is my heart" were. The highlight is Crosby's singing of that grand old Stephen Foster melody, "Swanee" with the assistance of a Negro chorus.

Queenie Smith, singing star of the Broadway stage, makes her debut in a supporting role in "Mississippi." Melodic diversion is furnished by the singing of the Cabin Kids, who are featured with Claude Gillingwater, John Miljan and Fred Kohler, appearing in the supporting dramatic roles.

"Little Miss Marker"

Playing the fifth role of "Little Miss Marker" down at the Capitol on No. 2, Shirley Temple, dimpled darling of the screen from the world over, proves again her right to the title of the most beloved star in the movies.

"Little Miss Marker" is a story about the "smart guys" and the diamond-crusted ladies of Broadway, and as little Shirley sets them there over the jumps by showing them that they're all got hearts, even though they've been buried there for a while.

With Adolphe Menjou playing the role of the shabby, penurious bookmaker whom Charles Bickford portraying the ruthless racketeer who has "muscled into" the racing game, Shirley enters the picture of the racing "mob" when per father deposits her with them as a "marker" His horse loses, and he kills himself. Menjou, at first indignant at having a child dropped into his lap, soon comes to love her, as does every other member of the racing friends, whom Shirley calls by the names she has learned from the stories about King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table.

When the mob decides to acquire their crude mannerisms, they attempt a "reformation" but their faith by a masquerade in which they portray the parts of the knights and ladies whom she has christened them. At the party, the story climaxes comes to a thrilling close, but in Shirley's hour of triumph, she has made nobility of the "mugs" comes to the surface, and the latter end happily.

The picture, which was based on a story by Damon Runyon, was directed by Alexander Hall.

Madrid, March 29 (AP)—Capt. Frank W. Canaday, retired U.S. army officer from East Radford, Va., reported today his bombshelling hose last 25 per cent of their boring capacity after a raid.

Capt. Canaday, voluntary attache at the Loyalist front, operated the chicken farm at Castilejas as a hobby, hoped the contraction in his daily egg collection from 50 to 35 dozen would be only temporary.

AT THE STRAND

Charlie Chan at the Opera and Jane Withers in "The Holy Terror"

His back to the wall, a knife at his throat, the world's slyest sleuth Charlie Chan, battles for his life in the most thrilling and exciting of the Twentieth Century-Fox adventures of the wily Chinese detective Charlie Chan at the Opera", coming to the Strand Theatre today and the Belle Theatre, matinee daily.

Warner Oland, of course, portrays the arch-enemy of crime, with Boris Karloff co-starred as the king of terror in what is promised as the most chilling and thrilling mystery Chan has ever encountered.

With Keye Luke, Charlotte Henry, Thomas Beck and Margaret Irving featured, the film starts off in a roar of high tension excitement that reaches a spine-chilling climax in a crescendo of thrilling events.

Karloff, a hopeless maniac, is confined on an island among asylum, guarding his time singing forgotten arias from the days when he was a famous opera star. The world believes that Karloff perished in the theatre fire.

His memory restored by the shock of seeing his wife's picture in a newspaper, but his mind still warped, Karloff, in a maniacal rage, overpowers his guard and escapes.

The grand dies from the attack and Chan is called into the case. The photograph in the newspaper provides a clue that leads Chan at the Opera, with his son, Keye Luke, accompanying him.

In an amazing series of terrifying adventures, Chan unmasks Karloff who has usurped the function's role of Mephistopheles, but not before two more atrocious murders are committed.

Faced with the task of capturing the criminal, Chan does so but not before encountering the most dangerous and exciting adventures of his career.

Jane Withers, Outstanding

A politicking whirlwind of mischief and impudence, Jane Withers impersonates Jane Wither romps merrily through the most hilarious situations of "The Holy Terror", the Twentieth Century Fox comedy hit announced as the second feature attraction on the same program.

In 10 laugh filled and gayest fun-fest of her career, involving her in hilarious doings with the fairy, the young mascot is ably supported by Anthony Martin, Leah Ray, Joel Davis, El Brendel and Ora Carew.

When "Ginger" Jane joins the theatrical troupe to baffle the abnormals while making herself solid with the midgets, the fun-filled course of events gets thrown for a riotous loop as the impish heroine finds her self into trouble, and then dances her way right out again.

How Jane escapes and, in a rickety old theatre, brings the fairy king and reunites Anthony and Leah, makes a hilarious climax to the picture during which the frolicsome young star has yet appears.

The Belle latest World News Review announced the exhibition on the same program.

"On the Avenue Leaving

Everything's that grand in musicals is revealed by Irving Berlin's smash musical hit "On the Avenue", that concludes a sensational three day engagement at the Belle tonight, featuring the Ritz Brothers, Alice Faye, Madeleine Carroll and Dick Powell. A funny Edgar Kennedy multiple-reel comedy and an interesting short complete a splendid program.

Canadiens More Confident As They Defeat Red Wings 3-1 And Smith on Injured List

Detroit Goalie Out For The Season With Torn Ligaments

SIEBERT A HERO

Scores Winning Goal Against Franks With Scorching Drive

By E. K. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, March 29 (CP)—New confidence gripped Montreal Canadiens today as they set themselves to meet the world champion Detroit Red Wings in tomorrow night in the fourth game of their three-of-five game series for the National Hockey League championship.

The Canadiens band not only on their great showing Saturday night when they defeated Wings 3 to 1 to make the series count 2-1 for the Detroiters but also on the absence of Norm Smith, Detroit defender, from his job.

Smith was injured Saturday night in the first period of the bruising game which 11,000 Canadian fans saw in the Habitants' sector. Babe Siebert's goal half way through the third period, a scorching drive that right arm was torn when Herb Lewis' Detroit wing, was all that a pileup before the Detroit goal.

Pittsburg Goalie Called

Earl Robertson, Pittsburg Hornets's reliable net, will take over Smith's post tomorrow night and may play tonight if Canadiens' fame in the series to five games. Jimmie Franks, rookie sensation, took Smith's place Saturday night, will go to Toronto, Detroit farm team, for today for them in their play-off series with Syracuse Stars.

The Smith goal gives Canadiens a real hope that they may win the N.H.L. title and Wings' hold last year and go into the Stanley Cup finals. They have the best record of 4-1 odds against that before Saturday's game but their win last night has shortened the chances against their winning three straight.

Babe Siebert, rugged Canadien defenceman, was the game for them when he beat Franks with a terrific shot from fast inside the blue line. The rubber bounced off Franks' pads but his force was spent by the time it found and the puck dropped over the goal line.

Goal Broke Deadlock

The goal broke a 1-1 deadlock and threw the Canadien supporters in the lobby of Forum into a frenzy. The rabid Habitant fans showered programs and coats on the ice and held up the game for five minutes with their celebration.

Later Johnny Gagnon got his second goal of the night to make victory sure. Gagnon's boom scored the second minute of the game to give Canadiens a lead they held until Marty Barry ripped a puck past Wilf Cude early in the third.

Smith was on when the second period was half over. He was infuriated with the minute of the first period to be played but seemed in good condition when he started the second. However, a fall to the ice convinced Referee Mike Rodden and linesman Art Adams to call Detroit manager Jack Adams to substitute Franks.

OLD and NEW

By George H. Carver.

A flock of the Throckd Mountainneers were doing a spot of practice in the Pen Pastorium Loop Friday evening following their 5-3 setback at the hands of the Redmen . . . .

And if those Mountties are discouraged as to the result of Wednesday's game in Niagara Falls then Coach Orvil Wint will be staged in the Exhibition grounds next week with the original cast. . . . For their spirits were higher than a kite and the lads were celebrating something. . . . Forgotten was their defeat, lacking as the hands of the Red Feiles . . . . That ancient history insofar as the Throckd publishers were concerned. . . . The real question was how many days were going to run in past Mickey Walker at the Falls igloo on Wednesday evening.

A bevy of the boys burst into the lobby of a hotel around midnight-ish . . . . Like a bunch of schoolgirls they chorused, "they even put chicken in in the new sandwiches, but it ain't allowed in it" . . . Up piped a local fan, "Yeah, I'll bet your glad. Yer tried hard bot yer ain't in our class" . . . . Seven Mountaineers groaned . . . . "Waaaaaa" . . . . And they growled . . . . "We'll take your team like Grace Richardson next Wednesday" . . . . "Oh Yeah" . . . . Seven backs in the local inn, outnumbered but undismayed. "Mebbe you'll take 'em like Franco took Hamilton, Ray Bowes tried for four months, and he's only scored twice" . . . .

A hand flashed down in a pocket and produced a crumpled dollar, fifteen simoleons. . . . "That ses we'll take Wednesday night", chirped a Mountaineer . . . . The local fan said shook his head and said there were oppose and three boys in his pocket . . . . "There just ain't no pockets" thought a brace of seven pounds who were listening in. "Here we'll take it right now" . . . . Mamma from the hockey heavens is threat under our coats and our credit ain't even good for a deuce" . . . .

"That 5-2 licking we got tonight" offered a visitor," was the worst thing we have had this season. And that includes the game we played with the Montreal Canadiens, and they are a top-rate senior club" . . . . "Yes" said the Throckd, "but one of our bad games out of our system, and on Wednesday evening we will be on the ice and all over our birds a taste of the same medicine they carry on the all" pipes up another local fan. . . .

"Goose pimples on show any hockey tonight, and I figure this series will be taken in two straight" . . . . "Yes" said the Throckd, "I might . . . Throckd may be beaten on Wednesday night, but we'll take the Redmen to do that little thing the hockey way and not with a gift from a beaten squad, when they take the ice in the special 'Y' sweater this week . . . . They are, or were, on Friday evening, after the game, when they failed to carry on the salesman entering a newly opened nudist camp.

The Mountaineers will be fighting for something else than the Intermediate 'Y' championship Wednesday night, want and want badly to cop the title for sentimental reasons. . . . Coach (Hi) Ide sent with the Boston Bruin headcoach and the grand old veteran of the squad, is hanging up the hockey and skates for the last time in the end of this season, and the Greenshirts are out to win that championship as a fitting finale to Alex "Mama" Throold and "Daddy" Throold . . . . So you can bet your bottom dollar, that the Mountaineers will be there to push, nail, eye and any dandruff on Wednesday, to pick that gruff out of the ice and then grab off the next one. . . .

All of which doesn't mean a thing to St. Louis, Tompkins, Jackson, Jackson and Wales Jr. . . . Such Sentiment doesn't mean a thing to Montreal . . . They also are determined to bring that title back to the city nesting on the shores of the St. Lawrence by hook or crook . . . and it is extremely doubtful that nothing short of Calcutta's Black Hole will stop them, let alone the Throold Horse.

Ottawa Rideau Wanderers have been one of the mainstays of the Throckd team during the past years, and it is a fine gesture on the part of his youthful, or younger team-mates to give everything they have to send the daddy of Throold hockey squads out of the game he loves so well with the satisfying thought that he brought a little tit for the old home town in the last season of his active service.

PROTEST UPHELD AS QUEBEC ACES DOWN VOLANTS

Game Will be Replayed After Official Strike it Out

UPSET SERIES

Fort William Wanderers Defeat North Battleford In Second Game

By the Canadian Press

The Dominion senior hockey mass would only be following its own strange sequence if Quebec Aces were to sweep through to the semi-finals in the Allan Cup contenders' ever was and it would be a fitting climax to a peculiar season if they went through.

One of six teams in the running, Aces were a step from the finish Saturday. They trailed 3-0 less than two minutes from the end of the second game of their best-of-three series with Hull Volants—and then won the opener 3-1.

Then things happened. Quebec shot three straight goals to win. Hull protested the first counter. Referee Hayes upheld the protest, the game was ordered replayed. Today Aces were in Hull and if Aces win there will be a fourth game tonight. If Hull wins Quebec should Volants win they will meet Fort William Wanderers in semi-finals for the eastern title and the right to enter Allen Cup finals against the winner of the Winnipeg play-off game tonight at Toronto.

Wanderers Leah Back

Happenings at Calgary, scene of the Western Canada senior hockey finals, were even more fantastic. Wanderers trailed, too, by already two goals in the first period when Quebec or what was left of it, took a dish with the similarity marked jerseys of the Fort William club.

Now the Lakehead City, bulwarked by Goalie Goldie Hacquoil who is the hero of the series so far, is in the semi-final, may earn the right to play Toronto Marlboros for the Sutherland Cup. Wanderers last year. Hacquoil has been sensational in goal and in Saturday's encounter, but he's been declared fit for the rubber game tonight.

Coast Clubs Out

Four provinces contain all today's cup survivors, six senior teams and Manitoba, Ontario and Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec. Outside remained when the hunters bowed out before Saskatoon Quakers and Trail Smoke Eaters, Alberta; Saturday, British Columbia and Nova Scotia lost their last representatives, Nova Scotia in the third area achieved in two straight games.

Saskatoon Quakers made the play-off round by defeating Trail Smoke Eaters 5-1 and 5-1. Archie Wilder was the star of the second engagement, scoring two goals and setting up another. Maurice MacOskey, Jim Wilson and Ken Wilson also scored. Other markers, Hank Smith saving Trail's shutout.

Saskatoon likely will oppose Winnipeg Monarchs in western finals. Monarchs, Allan Cup holders, meet likely Canada's strongest Junior team, Toronto Ottawa Rideaus, in Ottawa Saturday and won 6-2. Ottawa won the first game 7-5 and the Saskatoon series, which will be played in Winnipeg, by winning tonight.

Rideaus Show Superiority

Ambers went down gallantly at Ottawa, losing the second game 7-5, a score that hardly does it justice. The Maritime team lost by 5-4 Wed. night, Ottawa's superior skating and stick handling were the advantage. Nineteen Rideaus came from behind to score.

Brighton Lowther scored four times for St. Pats in another brilliant performance to be the leading scorer among the year's best juniors. Mc-Cabe and Gerard contributed two goals each for Rideaus.

At Toronto Copper Cliff Redmen defeated Montreal Victorias, Montreal Victorias, though they eased down after one period. Redmen won 4-1, nabbing three goals on an early rally. Redmen have displayed a big, fast team that couldn't capitalize on opportunities Saturday but the Montrealers may prove more of a money team but indications were Redmen would win again and enter the eastern finals.

ONTARIO MARKSMEN WIN

Montreal, March 28.—(CP)—Scoring 3,973 out of a possible 4,000, Ontario marksmen won a three-cornered small bore rifle match here Saturday beating out Ohio State and Quebec competitors.

Ohio came out second with total of 3,960. Quebec's point total was 3,948.

TORONTO ELIMINATED FRO M STANLEY CUP PLAYDOWNS

Here is an exciting action scene taken during the York Thistle-Rover-Maple Leaf hockey game at New York, when the Toronto team was defeated 3-1 and eliminated from the Stanley Cup play-offs. The lone Ranger player shown attempted to slip one through on Walker but the Toronto goalie proved equal to the task, finding himself tangling with two other Leaf players. The shot was blocked.

Sarasota, Fla., March 29—Boston Red Sox took things easy today after winning a fifteenth game yesterday from Washington Senators, 13 to 12. Jimmie Fox Cronin was the star performer with a home run and a triple, the latter with the bases loaded.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Boston Bees, after a 6-5 defeat at the hands of New York Yankees, lined up against St. Louis Cardinals today with high hopes of victory.

The Bees showed enough hitting strength yesterday to convince Manager Bill McKechnie, that they can win ball games. They collected ten safeties and had a 5 to 2 lead up to the fifth inning when they proceded to throw the game away.

The Cards began their game-a-day schedule in the Grapefruit League today in the game with the Bees. Warneke and Ryba were to do the pitching.

Lakeland, Fla.—Manager Mickey Cochrane, displeased with his Detroit Tigers' showing at the plate, ordered strenuous batting practice today as the squad enjoyed an open date. Grapefruit League season now marked by four straight victories.

Orlando, Fla.—Washington Nationals hoped to start a new winning streak today at the expense of host Montreal of the International League. After taking eight straight exhibition games, the Nationals were defeated 13-12 yesterday by Boston Red Sox.

BRADDOCK WILL ACCEPT SERVICE OF COURT PAPERS

Could May Reconsider Offer of Schmeling For German Bout

QUITE A MUDDLE

Whole Affair May Have to Be Settled in Courts

New York, March 29 (AP)—Whether or not heavyweight champion Jim Braddock carries out his announced program of appearing at his alcoving office at 9 o'clock today and accepting service of "them papers", it seems likely that the various factions in the fight muddle will finish their battle in a court room with John Law as referee.

The papers concern Madison Square Garden's effort to force Braddock to give up his bout with Joe Louis at Chicago June 22 and concentrate on a fight with Max Schmeling here June 18. There has been no end in the centre of the affair since it began with Uncle Mike Jacobs' announcement that he had signed all observers dizzy and hardly any of them have come back from the beclouding statements.

The latest development is that Garden officials have decided to be that Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, has defaulted on a $25,000 Schmeling guarantee of $250,000 for a bout in Berlin. Gould's position in the affair is on the side of the ocean opposite that of Mike Jacobs and various announcements that have come to light in the past two days.

The Garden, however, will accept service of the court order when it comes, Tex Rickard Jr. said then, requiring him to show cause why Max Schmeling should not be enjoined from going through with the Chicago bout.

Mr. Rickard, Reed Kilpatrick, Garden head, and U.S. Deputy Marshal Woodin, in charge of the service of the Newark office, maintained a conference in Rickard's office. N.Y., Saturday despite protests of "Private Property."

Offer Withdrawn

(By Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's U.S. manager, says Gould got in touch with Schmeling by shore-to-ship telephone a few days ago to talk over the Berlin offer, which was withdrawn before the German sailed, and that Schmeling said reopening would have to wait until he reached Germany.

(6) Gould asserts he talked with Schmeling "about a return match for the fight; he still wants $400,000.

(7) Braddock reportedly awaiting the outcome of the legal mixup as to whether he is legally bound to appear in passing a bill providing for a $10 cop for Louis-Braddock fight tickets. . . . Mr. Braddock, who already has announced there won't be a Chicago fight, is fishing.

Barring a sudden decision to take whatever money there is to be made in Germany or a compromise of the Sen. Kilpatrick says will not be considered, the only way to settle the matter seems to be to thresh it out in the courts, and there is already an academic matter when and where the much-discussed papers are delivered.

SYRACUSE STARS UP IN SERIES WITH PITTSBURG

New York, March 29 (AP)—While Syracuse Stars and Pittsburg Hornets continue a red-hot battle for International - American Hockey League playoffs, the top-ranking Springfield Indians and Providence Reds are ready to start a best-of-three series similar series in the Eastern sector. The ultimate winners will fight it out for the league title.

While the Stars and the Hornets were battling tonight in the second game to keep Syracuse on a game with the Hornets, Springfield and Providence will open their series in Springfield finished its preliminary round yesterday with a 3-2 victory in the third-place Providence Reds 5 to 4 Saturday night.

Meanwhile the Indians will begin another two-of-three playoff at Philadelphia Tuesday. Springfield nearly "blew" the deciding game against Philadelphia Saturday night, but managed to stave off a 5-5 tie and a result will go into the next round as the undercog.

Deacon Well Covered

Pittsburg, March 29 (AP)—The opening game at Syracuse, came back Saturday to trounce the Stars 4-1 on a flashy exhibition by Don Deacon and Bill Wells, who in the net covered last night, however, racked up a 3-0 victory as Murray Henderson and Ken Smith each scored twice in the second and third period rumble game. These teams clash again at Pittsburg Wednesday.

A free-for-all scrap in the final period of the fifth and last game of tonight's game. Starting when Jimmy Orlando and Normie Knox came to blows it involved most of the players on both sides. Eddie Convey and Red Doran joined the first pair in the penalty box and while both teams were short handed, the fans sewed up the game.

Armstrong, who had passed to Jack Howard for the opening tally, skated in for an unassisted goal and three minutes later Jack Markle banged home the final point on passes from Bummer Doran and Art Jackson.

OTTAWA SCHOOL DEFEATS LONDON

Marmora Swamped by North Bay in Consolation Contest

London, Ont., March 29—(CP)—With a late burst of power Ottawa Technical School defeated London Central Collige 6-3 here Saturday night to retain possession of the Canadian Secondary School Association hockey championship.

The crew from the capital repaid in three goals in the final 10 minutes to crush the challenge of the Londoners, who had tied the score with two quick counters early in the third period.

Ottawa's victory for quick scoring was evident in the semi-finals Friday when Tech. counted twice in seven seconds to defeat North Bay 5-3. North Bay defeated Marmora, fourth team in the tournament, 10-0, in a consolation game after the London-Ottawa tilt.

In the third period Fred Wright-on scored a goal for Central but'it was disallowed when the goal judge refused to flash the light. After a lengthy argument the goal judge relented.

The three set to one margin was the same by which Perry won in their first meeting last week in New York.

BRUISING CONTEST

Boston Goalie Injured And Loses His Effectiveness

(By Sydney Croxon)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Boston, March 29.—(CP)—Those championship-hungry Montreal Maroons with music of "the stars and bars now" nailed to their flag, stepped briskly into the Stanley Cup hockey semi-finals today, survivors of one of the toughest preliminary playdowns in years.

They marched into the semi-finals against the New York Rangers by defeating Boston Bruins 4-1 last night in the third game deciding game of the series. They came from the shadow of the hockey sabbath to win, and won because they matched up the "breaks".

It was the finish of a tough, bruising series between the teams so evenly matched that scores of 4-1, 4-0 and 4-1 were no indication of the closeness of play throughout the series. Maroons won the final game in Montreal 4-1, and Bruins the next one, 4-0, in Boston.

Breaks Decide Issue

There were the two unequal differences between the teams last night, Maroons snapping a "break" to win the score, went into the lead and got their last two goals on breakaways because Bruins were making desperate efforts to get an equalizer. The first game of the semi-finals will be played in New York Thursday night, Manager Tommy Gorman of Maroons, with the choice of where to play the first game, deciding on the away game first, then two, if necessary, at home.

Maroons, the opportunists seized on a penalty to Bob Gracie to force the "break" late in the second period.

Thompson Injured

Their slim centre came out of the penalty box as Bruins ganged in an effort to add to Dapper's early second period goal. He took a pass from Cy Wentworth then passed to Earl Robinson, who fired at the veteran Tiny Thompson.

Tiny, playing with a gashed finger that had to have three stitches taken in it in the first period, made the first of two mistakes then. He fumbled the clearing of Robinson's shot and let it trickle over the puck away, Wentworth raced in and batted it by the goal.

Russ Blinco got what proved to be the winning goal not four minutes later, backhanding a high shot over Thompson's right fighting free from the checking of Allan Shields.

Robinson and Dave Trottier scored the third-period goal that meant little for the game had been won and lost in those crucial four minutes of the previous period. It was Robinson's goal, that Thompson made his second mistake, starting too late to head off the Maroon centre's shot that went into the far corner. Trottier raced around him and banged the puck into an empty net.

Providing district hockey fans continue to show favour towards the chartering of special trains, the accompany the Belleville Redmen to Niagara Falls for the second game of the intermediate O.H.A. finals, it is highly possible a train will be chartered for Wednesday. Manager Thomas informs us the idea is to have the train leave No. 5 out of Belleville at about 1.30 p.m. arriving at the Falls in ample time to eat before the game. The train will probably be held after the game sufficiently long enough to have the Belleville delegation back in the city early enough by the illumination of Niagara Falls for the return trip. The round-trip rate there must be 150 guaranteed purchasers, the rate will be $2.00 per turn. A large number signified their intention of making the trip over the week-end when the tickets are being received hourly from outside points. Make a date with the old continued at Thomas' tobacco store and the O.H.A. finals will be over and part of Tuesday for those still undecided or taking advantage of the outing.

The Throckd "Mountaineers" are quite proud of their current season's record. They have played 24 games, played 22 games, including the one in Belleville Saturday night, won 20 six, including an exhibition game to the Toronto Goodyears, a senior organization, lost two, conceded that class of hockey in the Niagara district is showing deterioration vastly since the days of "Wart" Mayo, the late Gene Fraser et al.

After Friday night's game here we entered into a discussion of hockey with Jimmie White, of the St. Mary's Indians, former Belleville junior and Irv Loosmore of the Belleville Intermediates. Both of them "the peach Belt" were not discouraged, although they admitted the Boston Bruins were below par in Friday night's play Friday. "You'll have to see us play in Belleville or Toronto" close in Niagara Falls on Wednesday. We are arguing that we are not with you. It's this way. On the Niagara Falls artificial ice, which ain't as hot as Belleville's, Belleville will be somewhat weaker and I know we'll be 25 per cent. better, and there's room for 25 cent for you," served Manager Al-lan, who was also backed up by Irv Loosmore, who in the words of the Mounts were below form here. Irv, who is a former Belleville junior a club beaten by a superior team, but a team which will make the Mounts left town still kidding themselves that they are better than an even chance to yet win.

Why they were even so self-assured that they commenced to count the terms of the series and deciding game. "Assuming the Redmen stage a sit-down strike at Niagara Falls and there might be a chance of that, we'll be in Belleville on Friday, March 26, and we'll be confident we can take the game and series," said Manager Allan, who was backed up by Irv Loosmore, who in the words of the Mounts were below form here. Irv, who is a former Belleville junior a club beaten by a superior team, but a team which will make the Mounts left town still kidding themselves that they are better than an even chance to yet win.

Doug Horne, their veteran centre player, is retiring and the Throckd will only wait to win for Doug's sake.

The Redmen rested up over the week-end, but will practice at the Arena tonight. Eddie Thomas' charges came through Friday night's game in splendid condition, recovering the only injury of the game in Ken Ireland. Personally we are quite anxious to witness Belleville's first home game, Saturday night, go to town on the Niagara Falls aerial, that big ice surface should be right for the play. Continued steadiness on the defence and Wednesday night and they really should be nothing to worry about. There is the uncertainty of the game, that makes it popular.

Harry Linwood, who came to Belleville from Renfrew way back in December 1927, has been moved up to the Senior O.H.A. Clarkstons and will doubtlessly be seen in the line-up of the Belleville baseball club this summer. Linwood originally came to Belleville as a pitcher, but developed a batting. Finally found him cavorting about in the outfield and batting around .300 figures occasionally. A new broom always sweeps clean, and we no reason why Vinny shouldn't hold down his accustomed position or lead-off man for the Ellis tent summer, if we have any.

W. H. "Dinty" Moore, of Port Colborne, will be the referee for the second Intermediate O.H.A. game in Belleville, Wednesday night, at Niagara Falls Wednesday.

"Wasn't it about two years ago when Ross Bilnes went to camp and stuba went the Leafs? Well Bilnes, who was the first to be developing into the headlines. . especially in the Intermediate championship heights in the N.H.L. play-downs, has almost made it two straight over the Boston Bruins, and if he is a victory last night and meet the Rangers in the play-off series. On Saturday an inspired band of Canadiens will be out to avenge the N.H.L. losses, but small win Tuesday night is even the odds. Ives all-star defencemen, Leo Lamoureux is one of the best in the business, and his old tricks during spring training against the Giants in the Southern States will be among the missings of hulsa ball and whiffed by Terry.

THE SAME SAWING BEE

The day was bitter and along with snow,
The cold March wind from the north did blow,
But the men gathered wee see the job done,
For when it was over there was sure to be fun.

At eleven o'clock we started to work
And never a man ever tried to shirk
For they knew at the finish (and how!)
That food would (if they try).
They would partake of a dinner with all kinds of pie.

So the job was completed and a happy lot were these faces
They sounded the table, all in their places
Some glanced at the good things placed before them to eat:
Roast chicken delicious, and pie that was sweet.

Each one did justice to the salads and cake,
Along with the roast, and dressing, fried Heath; Tommy Solmes.

All the pie and the tarts that two alone ate,
Was too much for their poor stomach's sake.

And so at the end of this wonderful spread,
The tart eaters sat, each holding their head.
They had eaten too much, along with the crew,
But along came the chocolates and we ate them up, too.

Then the party broke up, and all did agree
Mrs. Laurence as hostess, did her best you will see.

MOTHERS WITH SICK CHILDREN

Read This Grateful Letter.

Mrs. J. C. St. Catherines, writes: "I have used Vin-Kelp for my children since birth and found it wonderful. My youngest son, age of six months, and last year was again for a bowel trouble following a former operation. She has been troubled with this for two years and was under the care of a doctor but never seemed to get any better. We decided to try Vin-Kelp and after using it for a month or two we noticed a very good change. She is now taking another bottle and we will be sending another in a day or so. We are so grateful to say something at last to help her."

The one regular source of Mineral Salts in Vin-Kelp is Kelp—Nature's richest source of Mineral elements. We use no substitutes. The Kelp Tablets contain the mineral salts and vitamins found in the natural product.

Remember Vin-Kelp is a food supplement, not a drug, not a medicine, its action is natural, safe and sure, and results usually surprising.

Take just 1 or 2 tablets before or after meals.

The Market Place of Industry

Domestic looms and local workshops supplied the simple needs of each community when the industries of Canada began. Customers were all friends or neighbours. The ability and integrity of every craftsman were well-known and created a demand for the commodities he made; his success was measured by the goodwill he enjoyed.

Communities grew and prospered; new settlements were established and thrived; the demand for manufactured products rapidly increased. Distant markets became accessible as transportation facilities improved. The scope of industry widened, goods were shipped farther and farther from every plant, and it became necessary to gain goodwill towards products and their makers in remote towns and villages where they were unknown.

The newspapers have provided this vital service to Canadian industry at every stage of its development. No other medium could ensure the frequent, friendly contacts with consumers, needed to establish confidence, or afford effective territorial control of merchandising activity, when local or national emergencies arose.

Today the manufacturing industries of Canada serve a national market; their products are on sale from coast to coast. Production has been centralized, distribution systems organized, but the success of every enterprise still depends on customer goodwill.

Therefore, progressive companies continue to use the local daily newspapers as an integral part of merchandising. Experience has proved that the daily Newspapers of Canada, bought and read by more than two million families every day, provide the most economical and effective means whereby any industry can create public confidence in its policies and profitable demand for its products.

WALL STREET

New York, Mar. 29 (AP)—While there were a few prominent stock market gainers today, trends were higher indefinite in exceptionally slow dealings.

Industrial news generally was cheering but most seasoned Wall house customers found comfort in the side-lines pending outcome of the Chrysler strike negotiations and clarification of other U.S. labor controversies.

Dome Mines and Distillers-Corporation-Seagrams moved a bit higher; while McIntyre and Hiram Walker sagged. International Nickel was steady. Canadian Government 4's were unchanged. Dominion funds held even with Monday's close. On the curb, Lake Shore Mines declined fractionally.

Shares polarizing higher the greater part of the session included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Westinghouse, International Paper and Power Preferred, Kennecott and U. S. Smelting.

The 5 to 4 decision was delivered by Chief Justice Hughes. Justice Sutherland delivered a dissenting opinion in which he was joined by Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds and Butler.

Hughes concluded his opinion by referring to a decision 14 years ago holding unconstitutional a minimum wage Act for women in the District of Columbia.

"Our conclusion," he said, "is that the case of Adkins vs. Children's Hospital should be, and it is, overruled. The judgment of the Supreme Court of the State of Washington is affirmed."

DAILY SHORT STORY

Miss Eppa

By Phyllis M. Gallagher

Miss Eppa held fourten pins between her teeth. Then she put the earbow with her conversation with Mrs. Stumbolt, on whose expansive hips she was fitting a skirt, that Miss Eppa could talk, no matter what she was doing.

"Miss Murphy brought me fifteen yards of white tape yesterday," Miss Eppa's colorless lips pressed on the pins and her pale eyes lifted to Mrs. Stumbolt's reflection in the mirror. "Does she'll marry Tyres after all?"

"You mean Warren Phelps, don't you?"

Miss Eppa bristled. "I mean Donald Tyres! I saw 'em at the hedge last night!" She nodded toward the window to designate which hedge. "She kissed him, too. Then she ran down the road a-kickin' up dust!

. . . all happy and hearty—like! But he didn't follow her, you can bet! No sir! Not that one! But if it's Warren Phelps she's marrying. Of course, Mrs. Stumbolt, when you go to Jake, you can tell him this afternoon, don't mention nothing about Warren being free, eh. . . ."

"Of course . . . not!"

But Miss Eppa knew by the positive nod that Mrs. Stumbolt would tell Mrs. Gayy and when Mrs. Gayy knew a thing, why, the whole town all Cemington would know!

Mrs. Stumbolt's skirt was finished and on the frosting board when Miss Eppa heard two short rings and one long. That was Mrs. Waverley's call. She glanced swiftly at the clock over her phone-nose, for Miss Eppa was near-sighted, and chuckled her tongue against her teeth. It was a satisfying sound for her teeth were false and a little loose. Three rings. It was for Mrs. Gayy that Mrs. Gayy was home from the cantaloupe.

Miss Eppa skipped across the room to the telephone for she was brisk now in her excitement and softly lifted the receiver from the hook. Mrs. Gayy was telling Mrs. Waverly that Hale Murphy had stood kissing Donald Tyres for an hour or more, right smack in front of Miss Eppa's door!

Miss Eppa had a mental "Tsk! Tsk!" She wanted to shout into the receiver: "No, dear, it's Gayy! The hedge!"

At the pause a bell pierced the silve silence of the bungalow and Miss Eppa nodded an exasperated head. Opposite the receiver carefully and tiptoed to the door.

Hale Murphy was no different. She trembled visibly on the fussy-brown welcome mat, her blue eyes dancing, her hair the burnt gold of the sunflowers that lined the pebble walk.

"I . . . came . . . about my dress." Hale always began belated in her speech, even when she wasn't startled. . . .

"Not today!" Miss Eppa's lips were tight enough to bend a pin.

Hale fingered the belt of the blue checkered gingham that Miss Eppa had made. "I'll . . . come . . . in the morning . . . Miss Eppa." Hesitantly, slowly, closing the door behind her she walked gaze behind her.

Mrs. Waverly had been in when Miss Eppa sneaked the receiver off the hook. But in a few minutes Mrs. Waverly, Mary and Mrs. Gayy Krunch and then to Mrs. Stumbolt and Mrs. Waverly. My seven o'clock her arms were so stiff that she gave up and went to bed. Fifteen cents per bed made, instead a sandwich, a pineapple salad and nibbled at a square of cheese. Then she sat and called it; all out of the ice-box without troubling herself to set the table. When the telephone shrilled like a long and a short, which was her own number, she scuttled, like a frightened doe, from the kitchen to the hall and answered.

Hale's mother, who didn't recognize Miss Eppa's muffled voice, started to bang up but Miss Eppa, who had competently mastticated the cheese, said quickly, "It's me, Mrs. Murphy!" A talk with Mrs. Murphy at this time could be mighty interesting! It was, too, for Mrs. Murphy began:

"It's about Hale, Miss Eppa. She won't be needin' that less dress. She and Warren Phelps . . . they've . . . quarreled. You know how children are."

That night Miss Eppa, a strange excitement on her pale, pinched features, sealed herself in the red plush chair by the table lamp and set quite rigid for a moment. She was deciding a problem between her thin forefinger, tapping on the chair-arm, was the only thing about her that moved.

Then she got up briskly and went to the hall telephone and rang two shorts and four longs. When Mrs. Phelps answered in a breathless voice, Miss Eppa began, "Mrs. Phelps, I hear Hale Murphy and Warren have broke off. We would, if it's about that Donald Tyres gossip . . . out in front of my hedge . . . it wasn't Hale Kissin' him but one of those common girls from over in the hollow.

Miss Eppa stood close by the sewing room window after that watching Mrs. Phelp's house and when the slim dark shadow of Hale ran darted out of the back door in a direct line for Murphy's house. Miss Eppa puckered her lips in a relieved, "Thank heavens for that!"

RISING GOLF STAR

One of the outstanding golf "finds" of the winter season is Sam Snead of Virginia. He is reported to have all the shots and some noted golfers are of the opinion he will become another Horton Smith of the links. So far this season Sam has won over $4,000 in tournament play. In the ABOVE picture Snead is seen reclining on the golf course during tournament play in the North and South open golf championship at Pinehurst, N.C.

IT'S NOT THE PICTURE YOU'VE SEEN BEFORE

Ever see this picture before? Well, you're wrong! It's not the historic photograph of the Hon. Donald A. Smith driving the last spike which marked completion of the first trans-continental line of the C. P. R. at Craigellachie, B.C., on Nov. 7, 1885, but it is a very good reproduction. This scene was made during filming of the Canadian screen epic "Silent Barriers" which tells the story of the railway achievement. Though characters on that historic occasion are played by screen actors, remainder of the scene is correct in detail. Driving the spike is the screenwriter playing the part of Smith, later Lord Strathcona, while other members of the group represent builders and statesmen who were present at the 1885 ceremony.

WARNS LEWIS AIDES AGAINST SIT-DOWN STRIKES

With announcement that Homer L. Martin, of Detroit, chief aide of John L. Lewis in the latter's drive for C.I.O. recognition in the General Motors Corp., factories in Michigan was travelling to Oshawa, Ont., to address General Motors employees in that city, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, federal minister of justice declared in the House of Commons that the Dominion government would mobilize all its resources to combat possibility of sit-down strikes in Canadian cities and to stamp out such strikes as illegal and leading to sabotage. It was indicated that no action would be taken to bar entry to Canada of Martin or other C.I.O. representatives but that deportation and possible imprisonment faced organizers who advocated sit-down strikes or other illegal forms of labor demonstrations. Activity of emissaries for the Lewis-led C.I.O. has been reported spreading in Canada in recent weeks. MASS EXECUTIONS REPORTED IN SOUTH SPAIN

Plot Against Insurgents Followed by Executions Of Fifty Conspirators

Dissatisfaction With Italian Influence Reported General

CENSORSHIP IMPOSED

Insurgent Headquarters Denies Executions at Tetuan Camp

Bayonne, France—Spanish Frontier, Mar 30 (AP)—Widespread executions were reported here today to have been ordered throughout insurgent-held Spain to repress bitter dissatisfaction with Italian influence.

Reports were spread here from shot as the result of abortive plots, no strong ban kept on the feeling against foreign influence in General Francisco Franco's armies, the report vehemently have produced a strict censorship said.

Imperialism Unpopular.

The information which which came from Basque quarters (supporters of the Madrid-Valencia government) said the importation of Italian soldiers here had been unpopular in the Spanish army but had been accepted as necessary to crush the Madrid government.

With the defeat of the insurgent armies, reported to have been routed by Italian divisions, on the Guadalajara front northeast of Madrid, this feeling was said to have been intensified, resulting, in some extreme cases, in definite plots.

Two Colonels Seized.

These, however, were not thought to have been directed at Franco specifically but against further Italian participation.

Two colonels in the insurgent army at Vergara were said to have committed suicide in protest because they were "not allowed to resign honorably."

Insurgent quarters in France denied the reports, declaring: "We are in close contact with all National Spain and we have no fear of information. These reports are fantastic."

Reprisals Reported.

Gibraltar, Mar. 30 (AP)—Mass executions in extreme southern Spain—including those of fifty conspirators against Premier Francisco Franco's insurgent regime and two hundred Communists—were reported today by refugees arriving here.

6-PUPIL SCHOOL IS "UNECONOMIC"

But Consolidation Will Not Be Forced, Says McArthur

Toronto, Mar. 30 (CP)—The rural school with six pupils or less is inefficient and uneconomic, Dr. Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education, told the Trustees and Ratepayers Department of the Ontario Educational Association today.

Dr. McArthur repeated an oft-given government assurance no move toward the consolidation of rural school units will be forced. All will be done with the consent and approval of those involved.

A determined effort has been made in the last three or four years to give town and city councils control over school estimates, he said. It would be fair also to legislate for school boards power over council estimates.

Relief of Strain Hoped For.

"A word of advice to boards of education is that insistence on the letter of the law may not be the best way of achieving your end," he said. "We are hopeful with the return of better economic conditions there will be less stress between Boards of Education and City Councils."

Dr. McArthur advocated the assigning of the powers of university matters to the public schools or to the first year in high schools as teachers. In this way, "parochial spirit" attitudes were determined and here the interest of a teacher's personality had its most powerful effect.

35 Scholar Classes.

Classes should have not more than thirty-five pupils if the "increment" of the teachers' personalities, more important than the curriculum, was not to be lost. He urged abandonment of large classes as rapidly as finances permit.

Public teachers' salaries were restored to pre-depression levels as quickly as possible, the general qualities of the teaching staff could not be maintained, he declared. Recently teaching has attracted capacities in law, the church, medicine and engineering, but this desirable group could not be held with the present salary level.

People To Be Consulted.

Applause met Dr. McArthur when, addressing particularly the rural section-

AIRTIGHT ALIBI IS OFFERED BY SUSPECTED MAN

George Gueret, 46, Questioned at Length by Homicide Squad

VERY FEW CLUES

Police Try to Piece Together Fragmentary Record

New York, Mar. 30 (AP)—Detectives pieced together today the fragmentary record of a grotesque melodrama known as the triple killing of Beekman Hill, and, for a public accustomed to glib third-act solutions, it did not make sense.

Three persons were slain in a crowded block where apartments cost fifty cents a day. Hundreds slept within hailing distance.

The clues: A few short, gray hairs and some infinitesimal bits of flesh.

In a small, stuffy room at police headquarters a heavyset, muscular man with a handy memory for sandwiches and answered questions hours on end as detectives sought to unravel the tighter the Easter morning murder of Veronica Golden, 19, the girl's mother, Mrs. Agnes Golden, and Mrs. Mary Gedeon, and the roomer, Frank Symes, were found in an apartment above a woman's shriek could have been heard by neighbors of most residents.

"We are concentrating on that."

Police Tight-Lipped.

The police have been tight-lipped since, flouting the investigation of the Nancy Evans Titterton murder, which occurred on Good Friday 1936, when two blocks away from the new killings—and the more recent murder and, Mary Ann Duggan, they announced dead ends in all their leads.

Mrs. Titterton's killer has been executed; Mrs. Case's is scheduled for death.

Joseph Gedeon, husband and father of the slain women, visited the police station briefly last night. Detectives found some fifty pictures of nudes found in Gedeon's pockets, Edward Mullins, in charge of detectives at the homicide squad, replied shortly, "He thought they were art."

'OF AND OR' IS CALLED BARBARISM, WELLS SAYS

Denver, March 30 (CP)—That legal jargon, "and or"—which flows from a lawyer's pen as easily as does love and dove from a song writer—isn't liked by Colorado's chief Justice, Hadsell P. Burke.

In a full page of and or criticism he described the phrase as (1) a pollution of the English language, (2) a barbarism, (3) a confusion of thought, (4) nonsensical, (5) a nameless thing, and (6) a monster.

And he said lawyers using it would only encourage the court's displeasure.

100 Army Horses Trained Walk Up and Down Stairs

Trumpets Blown in Ears of Horses And Banners Waved at Them So That They Won't be Surprised on Coronation Day

London, Mar. 30 (AP)—Scotland Yard is teaching 100 army horses to walk up and down stairs for the big day—May 12—when "all the king's horses and all the king's men" will turn out to crown King George VI.

Mounted Police will ride them.

The horses are having trumpets blown in their ears, banners waved at them, and are made to walk in front of loudly barking phonograph records and an ack-ack engine going full blast.

By the time of the procession the horses will be able to stand most anything in the way of possible noises and confusion. There is every indication that they'll need poise and confidence.

British Warships Ordered To Assist Merchant Ships Stopped by Spanish Parties

Interference With Legitimate Shipping Will Not be Tolerated From Belligerents—Annoyance Amodnts to Piracy—British Authorities Make Clear

London, Mar. 30 (CP)—British warships are under orders to go to the assistance of any British merchant ship stopped on the high seas by either General Francisco Franco or the Spanish government.

British authorities made clear today interference with British shipping engaged in legitimate business on the high seas cannot be tolerated. As belligerent rights have been accorded to neither side in the Spanish civil war, it amounts to an act of piracy which must be resisted.

Offers to Convoy War Supplies.

By international legislation, parliament has already made it an offense for any British ship to carry war material either to Spain or to Spanish Morocco. It is therefore considered extremely unlikely that any British ship owner would engage in running war material.

In the event of being ordered to hull up on the high seas by either the Spanish or by a Franco warship, the master of a British merchant vessel will continue on his course and if not interfered with will proceed to British warships in the neighborhood.

The reported shelling of the London steamship Magdalena by insurgent ships twenty miles off Santander and Gennan's navy's warning to British shipping have again raised the issue.

Magdalena Shelled.

The Magdalena, on her arrival at Bayonne, reported she had been shelled by insurgent ships. None of the shells hit. When she made known her identity the shelling ceased. General Franco is reported to have issued a warning to British vessels that they must promptly respond to signals to stop from warships.

The situation is complicated by the fact vessels of other countries are using the British flag as protection when in danger of being attacked. As such use of a neutral flag is recognized under international law it is considered advisable that British ships, whether on the high seas or in Spanish territorial waters should make their identity known at the earliest possible moment. But the use of the British flag on ships on the high seas is not recognized.

An urn containing his ashes will be buried in a rural church yard in Gloucestershire Thursday. Drinkwater died in his sleep last week.

The charge was laid by Chief of Police Ralph Paul of Timmins after a consultation with Crown Attorney S. G. Caldbick.

RAILWAYMEN GAIN CUT RESTORATION BY APRIL 1, 1938

Threat of General Strike Disappears With Settlement

ONCE DEADLOCKED

No Danger of The Agreement Not Being Accepted By General Committees

Montreal, Mar. 30 (CP) — The threat of a general railway strike in Canada disappeared today.

The representatives of 117,000 men, having gained full restoration of pre-depression wage scales by April 1 of next year, abandoned their proposal of a general strike which would have paralyzed the Dominion's rail transport.

Negotiations with the roads that ended late yesterday found the men almost sitting point they had fought for in months of battle for higher pay. All they conceded was three months in time.

WINDSOR'S ARMS LITTLE CHANGED

Crest, Shield and Supporters Much Like Those Borne as Prince

London, March 30—(CP)— The crest, shield and supporters of the Duke of Windsor's new coat of arms, approved by the King, differ little from those borne by the Duke when he was Prince of Wales.

To the Wales arms, which had a narrow band running across the shield with three short perpendicular extensions depending from it, a small imperial crown has been affixed to the centre extension.

It is believed to be the first time the crown has appeared on the label on the arms of a royal Duke and this department makes the armorial bearings of the Duke resemble those of the children of a King of England.

It is said to have been the custom since the time of Edward the Black Prince for the eldest son to carry the label plain.

Another deviation from custom is the fact that the velvet cap, turned up with ermine, around which the coronet of the Duke is placed, is on the heads of either the peasant or guardant lions.

Value of Italian Soldiery Studied by Germans in Spain

German Pilots Said to be Inferior to Russian Aviators

TANKS APPRAISED

London, March 30.—(CP-Havas) —Value of Italian troops is being studied by German and Italian military experts, following the course of events in Spain, the Manchester Guardian declared today.

"The movements of the Italians in Spain are being watched with interest by German observers, for Italy is regarded as a model army by many," the Liberal newspaper declared.

"The German expert opinion of the Italian (as a soldier) was always exceedingly low. Even the old Austrian soldier ranked higher in German eyes".

Spain is Training Ground

The Guardian asserted the German general staff and Air Ministry has been giving particular attention to the Spanish war from purely technical and strategic points of view. According to the Guardian, they have reached the following conclusions:

"German anti-aircraft has been through a thorough test in Spain, and according to the German view has been satisfactory.

"German airplanes have not stood the tests as well. German experts hold that Russian planes are superior in the quality of material and in build.

"Planes are contrasted

"Other German experts and some non-German experts with them think that the German planes are the best but that German pilots have always been inferior to the Russians.

"There seems to be general unanimity with regard to the value of German tanks. The German fleet in Spanish waters has disquieted the German naval command."

The Guardian concluded with the statement that the defence of Madrid has certainly proved the German general staff that a strongly fortified city or country under conditions of modern warfare is likely to be impregnable.

Equip and Train Youth To Earn Honest Living Is Problem for Leaders

His Excellency Tells O.E.A. of Efforts in Technical Education

HUMANITIES' PLACE

'Old Idea of Higher Education Cannot Apply Here'

Toronto, March 30.—(CP)—Educational authorities today faced the great problem of equipping youth for life's tasks and enabling members of every class to earn an honest living, Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General, told delegates to the 76th annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association.

Youth must receive a background of education which would provide almost perfect citizens and these then good citizens, said Lord Tweedsmuir in addressing the opening session last night. Educational leaders must face this problem squarely and provide a proper perception of realities.

Humanities, Technical Education

"I have been much cheered lately in visiting various technical and commercial schools in Ontario to find that an honest endeavor was being made throughout the technical training to preserve an element of

CELLAR NO PLACE FOR SHEEP, GOATS

Stephen Masula Must Find a Farm For Them or Sell Out

New York, Mar. 30 (CP)—Stephen Masula and his wife Mary, who for the last 15 years have been keeping two sheep and ten goats in their cellar over in Brooklyn, have until April 19 to find a farm to dispose of their livestock.

Mary appeared before Magistrate Nicholas Pinto yesterday in response to a summons to her husband for keeping the animals in the basement and told the court Stephen could not appear because he was searching for a farm.

It might be, she acknowledged, that some would think them overfond of the animals, but once they got on a farm their present livestock would be replaced with cows. It is cheaper, she said, to pick up livestock at bargain prices and then find the farm.

Magistrate Pinto nodded sympathetically and adjourned the case to April 19. Mrs. Masula departed beaming.

She had reason to beam for the magistrate overlooked only part of the Masula animal holdings. In addition to the ten goats and two sheep mentioned in the summons, Mrs. Masula cherished in backyard sheds and around the house, five cats, a puppy, one pony, one mule, three cats, and two chickens, a rooster and a partially tabulated because they are absent so much on business, pulling rigs and such work.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. R. Tilsonen Science Editor, Intelligencer

The Great Flood! The wonder is how and that we did fall in that famous fleet reported in the year 1700. The depth of the fleet waters may be taken as anything from 15 cubits, about 22 feet, at the top of Mount Ararat, 17,000 feet—and all in 40 days. One meteorologist figured that it would have to rain 24 hours an hour to fulfill the Mount Ararat requirements. The heavens then opened and 46 inches in 24 hours at Eastside Bellingham, July 3rd, 1911; 22.22 inches in 24 hours at Alstown, N.S., July 31st, 1918; 2.36 inches in 30 minutes at Cheboygan August 14, 1922; and 1.23 inches in one minute at Opal's Ranch, Calif., August 8, 1926. So, 15 cubits seems the better record

MYSTERY SHROUDS FINDING OF APRON

Dissecting a square shaped article lying on the grounds of St. Thomas Parish Hall, Ernest Mayhugh of 214 Church Street, inspected and found it to be a Masonic apron with the name H. Hill inscribed upon it.

Thinking the apron was the property of Ex-Mayor Harry Hill, Mr. Martin immediately got in touch with him. Mr. Hill investigated and discovered the apron to be his property. "I can't understand it" he told Mr. Martin, "the apron which was enclosed in a leather case was placed in a drawer in the hall of my home." The leather case is missing, and Mr. Hill is now wondering if any other of his property went the same way as his apron.

Madoc Volunteer Firemen Help to Save Adjacent Buildings

Fire in Home Causes Some Damage to Walls And Rooms

Fire thought to have started from spontaneous combustion originating in a pile of rubbish near the kitchen stove, resulted in considerable damage to the house of Mr. Lee Shorey at 13 Pine Street at 4.15 yesterday afternoon.

She had arrived recently from the Belleville General Hospital, where she had undergone an operation. Fireman James MacDonald entered the smoke filled bedroom and carried Mrs. Shorey out to the safety of the home of Mrs. George Naylor, a neighbour.

Merchants Disapprove Plan Parking Parallel to Walks

Send Recommendation to Council Embodying Objection

MEET AT "Y"

Following a lengthy discussion this morning in the Assembly Room of the Y.M.C.A. members of the Belleville Retail Merchants Association voted unanimously, that a letter be sent to the City Council asking, that no change be made from the present system of angular parking on the main thoroughfares of the city.

Many objections to the motion passed by the City Council recently recommending that a system of straight parking take the place of the present angular, were voiced by various members of the Association. The principle objection, it was stated was the difference in the number of cars, which angular parking accommodations under the proposed new system. The less space, allowed for cars, it was pointed out, made a difference of forty cars out of every one hundred.

Alderman Laurie Lewis the only representative of the City Council, who is a member of the association, and who was the only dissenting voice when the motion was passed by the Council, stated, that the farmer would not benefit by the proposed change. Out-of-town people have been accustomed to the present system, he said, and if they found parking space unavailable they would confine their business activities to other centres.

Alderman Lewis also cited other objections to parallel parking.

Members of the Association passed a motion agreeing to co-operate to the fullest with the city in the Coronation ceremonies to be held here on May 12th.

A resolution conveying congratulations to Alderman Laurie Lewis on his appointment by the Government of the Ontario Retail Merchants Association at a recent meeting of that body was also passed by the members present.

Russell Woodley occupied the chair.

DEAN O'RIORDAN BORNE TO GRAVE AT ST. CARTHAGH'S

Impressive Tribute Paid to Late Parish Priest of Tweed

ARCHBISHOP'S WORDS

Tweed March 30 (Special)—The funeral of Very Rev. Jeremiah Patrick O'Riordan V.P., Parish Priest of Tweed for the past nine years was held on Monday morning at nine o'clock from St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church. The sacred edifice was filled to its utmost capacity to accommodate the many associations gathered from the village and surrounding district to pay a last tribute of respect to only who in life had been a friend to all creeds, Catholic and Protestant alike, while here. To the former the loss of a pastor, friend and counsellor, who left an aching void which time cannot fill. To the latter the loss was a friend and fellow-townsman, whose many kindnesses and kindly benefactions will remain always as bright spots along the pathway of life. The funeral cortege to St. Carthagh's cemetery was formed of fifty-nine years ago Rev. Fr. J. P. O'Riordan received his early education at that place entering Lord Kenyon Seminary and St. Kieran's College at Ware England, to study for the Priesthood. He was ordained in Rome in 1878 by Pope Leo XIII, Propaganda College, Dublin, Shortly afterwards he came to Canada and was stationed at Madoc for many years. Later he succeeded Father Murtagh in Marmora and in 1926, Father Murphy in Tweed. In 1928 he was made a Dean in the Diocese of Belleville Church.

The funeral oration was delivered by Rev. Fr. Meagher of Madoc. "We are assembled in this season of the glorious resurrection of Jesus Christ, when a new day was born for mankind. To the Belleville Priests of the Roman Catholic Church has been given the authority exercised by St. Paul to carry on the work of the Redeemer, Jesus, Dean O'Riordan was held in high esteem by his parishioners and his magnificent record will remain with him throughout our lives. He gave up his native country to come to Canada to labour among the people. He was a devoted priest, member of the priesthood of the Archdiocese of Kingston and a vigorous worker in all fields of the great task. During his 59 years of Madoc it was his duty to say Mass every Sunday at Madoc and Queensborough and on holidays in that period did he miss. The call of duty was always first with him.

"You yourselves know what a great task Father O'Riordan undertook came to Tweed—to hear confessions every Saturday night and to say Mass on Sunday. It was his privilege and his desire to die in the harness. He was always interested in the welfare of everyone. Catholic and non-Catholic alike. In this he left with all a genuine feeling of appreciation. His hospitality was known from one end of the county to the other. All classes and creeds were welcome at the rectory here. His advice was always sought. His unselfishness in the home, his household word and his liberal hand to the poor, were always a pocket to help those in need.

"Dean O'Riordan's vigilance for his people was his greatest characteristic. He was a constant defender of the church and felt that everyone in it should have a high regard for its dignity. He always displayed the utmost zeal for his flock. He was ready to inquire when any was absent from the fold, any stepped into danger it was his concern that had not perished, by been warned by Fr. O'Riordan. He exalted character for many years to come the memory of Fr. O'Riordan will remain in this parish.

His Excellency M. J. O'Brien, D.D., co-adjutor Archbishop of Kingston speaking of Dean O'Riordan, said: "I have found a high esteem by reputation for many years before coming to this diocese. I have found him, when I came to this diocese, surrounded by the greatest. Since then it has been one friendship after another. Non-Catholic people also shared in his affections. He did not view things in a parochial way. He was a faithful shepherd in the affairs of the diocese and of the Province. Death is a sad farewell to those who are left but to the person passing who has lived a good life it is a great victory. It is a day of triumph for that person. Fr. O'Riordan was like the good shepherd to his flock of St. Carthagh's."

Funeral Mass was celebrated with Master of Ceremonies Rev. Father Sharp, Ernest Wilkie and Claude Sharp.

Deceased was a son of the late Charlotte Dundas and John Young of Wellman's and his only sister, Mrs. Johnson, of Mount Pleasant predeceased him three years ago. He was born on July 2nd, 1860 and resided in Rawdon all his life. He married Miss Margaret Simpson, who with one son, George, are left to mourn.

The beautiful floral tributes covered the casket in mute testimony to the esteem of the deceased. Interment was made in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

LATE MRS. EARL SPENCER (Picton)

Picton (Special)—Following a few days' illness with flu, followed by pneumonia, there passed away at her residence, Bloomfield Road, an esteemed member of the community in the person of Mrs. Earl Spencer. The deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stafford of Picton and had spent her entire life in or near Picton.

She was a member of Picton United Church, of the Women's Association, the W.M.S. and the I. O. D. E. She was an "active worker in all these organizations whose place will be hard to fill. tion, he declared "any change to be made in the educational system must be made with the consent and approval of the people."

The Department of Education has been criticized for its failure to build school boards even where the schools have been completely destroyed by attendance, he said. The department's policy in this respect was another satisfaction could be found.

The Prime Minister said he approached "a very delicate problem—that of providing a better organization for rural schools". Efficiency would be the consideration. Where present units could give sufficient service they should be left alone. Where they could not, they should be improved by grouping two, three or more of their pupils together.

Towns and cities attract the best teachers away from the rural schools, he said. The latter get the young and inexperienced.

"It is less a matter of salary than the kind of a job you give them," he said. "Five hundred dollars is enough in the rural schools and they'll do it. I suggest that is not a serious possible under present conditions. This is a rural education problem confronting the province.

Princess Elizabeth Has Lady-in-Waiting At the Coronation

By MOLLIE McGEE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

London, March 30 (CP)—Princess Elizabeth, 10-year-old heiress to the throne, will receive her first taste of the pomp and ceremony of her future status at the Coronation. It is understood she will have her own lady-in-waiting.

Exactly what part she and her sister, Princess Margaret, will take in the proceedings has not yet been made known but it is believed Princess Elizabeth will wear a similar "prince's" crown to that worn by the Princess Royal, when as Princess Mary, she attended the last Coronation. This would necessitate an attendant to carry the small crown and place it properly on the girl's curly head.

The understanding is that the two princesses will be dressed alike in long white dresses, white gloves, white shoes and pearl tiaras studded with gold bands from the shoulders and touching the waist.

On the way to the Abbey the young princess will drive in the same coach in which for the royal children and in which, one day, Princess Anne, when she is the youngest at that time, was put under the seal bearing the sovereign's effigy, and the reverse bearing the view of his older brothers. Lord Lieutenant.

Jewelled bandeaux or tiny tiaras will in all probability be worn by the princesses to keep up the custom time as Her Majesty is crowned. Princess Elizabeth will get on her coronet. It is not thought that Princess Margaret Rose will be included in this ceremony.

Children Guests of Rotary Entertain in Dance, Music

Sons And Daughters of Club Men Make Merry at Luncheon

OTHER ENTERTAINERS

Monday was Children's Day at Belleville Rotary Club and this annual event was as interesting as ever with the juveniles taking the leading part on the program and injecting the spirit of youth and gayety into the proceedings which made the event very enjoyable. There was a large attendance of Rotarians, their sons and daughters—and those not fortunate enough to have either, borrowed sons and daughters from their neighbors for the occasion—so everybody was happy.

President Joe Shortt presided in happy manner and was assisted by Sandy Morrow as song leader and Alec Gordon pianist.

O.S.D. Pupils' Program

The program was short, snappy, and full of interest, one of the outstanding features being the songs and dances presented by the pupils of the O.S.D., under direction of Alec Gordon, and introduced by Mr. William Morrison, superintendent of the school. The school band was a distinct novelty and played several numbers. The cleverness of these children, brought out by careful training, shows to splendid advantage in the various numbers presented.

Delineations of various amusing characters as presented by Miss Catharine Smith, created much laughter and revealed a refreshing difference that made her numbers very enjoyable. Douglas Browning was pleasing in numbers, with Prof. Perry Hunt as accompanist.

Dances by wee Misses

Lois Wilkins and Margaret Smith, charming wee misses, pleased all with their pretty and clever dancing.

Rev. Dr. Semple pronounced the invocation, and the guests were welcomed by Percy McGuire. Fred Deacon expressed Rotary appreciation for the fine presentations of those taking part in the program, and Blake Tree dispensed ginger ale and Easter candies were distributed by Ed. James, Ernie McCormack, Jim Boyle, Steve Flintoff and Sam Graham.

DUKE OF WINDSOR NOW IN NEW HOME

Cost of Living Will be Reduced by More Than $1,500 Monthly

St. Wolfgang, Austria, March 30—(AP) — The Duke of Windsor entered today upon a more frugal mode of life—one which his major domo said would slice more than $1,500 monthly from his previous cost of living at the Rothschild's Enzesfeld Castle.

The former monarch, his personal secretary, Sir Godfrey Thomas, and his adjutants went early to bed last night at Appesbach Villa a modest, secluded yellow house with green shutters which is his new retreat yesterday after a 134-mile motor trip from Enzesfeld.

Austrian detectives who are guarding him, as well as the Duke's major domo and cook, visited the local inn, where they proudly displayed cigarette cases and stickpins, which the Duke presented before leaving Enzesfeld.

It was then that the chief servant computed the prospective household costs here as covered with Bavarian expenses at the Enzesfeld chateau, which Baron Eugene de Rothschild had placed at his disposal.

The Duke had send word he would not arrive until today as St. Wolfgang's 1,700 inhabitants were unprepared to welcome him—which was as the Duke desired. Local Boy Scouts, however, sent a simple bouquet of heather and evergreen.

The 15-room house, where the Duke was expected to live until he leaves for France and his marriage with Mrs. Wallis Simpson in May stands on a promontory reaching into Wolfgang Lake. His personal suite faces the lake and includes a bedroom, a newly furnished bathroom and a dressing room.

what is called the humanities", said the Governor-General.

He considered this one road towards solving the problem, the other in the way technical training is conducted.

"If it is regarded not merely as the acquisition of a certain number of rules of thumb, but as a piece of serious mental training, then you are introducing the spirit of the humanities into the vocational side. You are producing not only technicians but men and women with minds."

Old Classical Curriculum

He expressed his liking for the "fine old fortifying classical curriculum of Oxford and Cambridge" but he found it had no place in Canadian education. The old idea of higher education where a youth engaged in "humane learning" until 21 and then acquired the particular technique for the work he chose could not apply here.

Canadian Educational leaders must be ready to go beyond the schools. The question of adult education has a special importance here. Many Canadians were unable to take advantage of the educational systems and in this connection he praised the work of the Frontier Colleges.

Prairie Teacher Praised

In lauding the work of the teachers and their important place in life, he mentioned the valiant struggle of the Prairie teachers, who despite slender salaries and the hardships of the drought-areas kept gallantly fulfilling their duties.

Teachers must do more than teach Canadian citizenship, said President H. J. Griffin in his address. They must build an international citizenship, a world brotherhood. Education and culture, he said, were the birthrights of every person.

RAILWAYMEN GAIN

They won their major objectives—complete return of the 10 per cent reductions that the roads put into effect all along the line when hard times struck a few years ago. They lost only in the matter of having the restoration finished by the end of this year.

Obstacles Ironed Out.

That was ironed out in the final negotiation meetings yesterday between the presidents of the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railways and the vice-presidents of the eighteen railway running trade unions who had been meeting here for eleven days. The railway conceded the men four months in the time of completing restoration.

Their concession came after the negotiations had been deadlocked on the point. Last Friday, the men were demanding restoration by the end of this year; the railways would give it to them only by August of 1938. At Ottawa, Labor Minister Rogers brought them together. And after more talks Saturday and yesterday, agreement finally was announced.

There was no dispute with the settlement from either side, according to the joint statement. It emphasized mutual satisfaction" and declared that good feeling between the roads and their employees had been "fully preserved".

Originally—a few weeks ago—the roads had been willing only to grant the men restoration of three per cent of their old decreases this year. This was in line with the majority finding of a conciliation board, which recommended this amount should be restored gradually by Nov. 1.

Strike Ballot Issued.

The men struck by the board's minority report, which found they should have full return of their cuts this year. A ballot circulated among them, from coast to coast, returned a finding from the majority that a general strike should be called unless the railways gave back the old wage scales.

The delegates meeting here were not bound to accept the verdict of the rank and file; their leaders said they could have voted either for or against a strike, regarding the system-wide ballot chiefly as a barometer of sentiment. But yesterday's agreement obviated the need of a choice.

Now, all that remains is for the agreement signed yesterday to be approved by the general committee in session here. This, union heads said, was a formality only. The vice-presidents who met with the railroads were empowered at a meeting earlier yesterday to sign the wage settlement. They signed it, and subscribed to the statement expressing satisfaction.

MOTHER HELPED BY KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

"I have suffered from terrible constipation since the birth of my first child. I tried everything. Very reluctantly, I tried your ALL-BRAN with no faith in it at all.

"Much to my surprise, I have not had to take any medicine since starting to use ALL-BRAN."—Mrs. Doris Eyre King (address on request).

Common constipation is usually due to meals low in "bulk." Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies this needed "bulk."

Within the body, this cereal absorbs twice its weight in water, forms a soft mass, gently sponges out the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood.

Enjoy this food instead of taking weakening pills and drugs. Serve as a cereal, with milk or fruits, or cook into recipes.

ALL-BRAN is sold by your grocer. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

HELPFUL MESSAGE GIVEN Y'S MEN

Eastertide Called God's Wonderful Window by Rev. A. G. Sinclair

"Eastertide" said Rev. Alex Sinclair of the Baptist Church, addressing the Y's Men's Club at their weekly supper last evening "is God's wonderful window, through which we are able to see the beautiful things and the truth of life, instead of the dim and sinful.

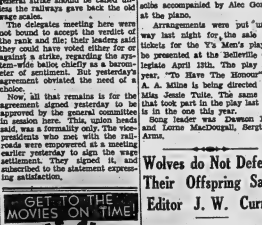
"We should seek out the truths of life courageously and get the best from life by helping others," Rev. Sinclair said, that it is a shame that there is such a thing as Christmas baskets. To think we live in a community where is necessitated, the giving of baskets at Christmas time or any other time.

Miss Athol Crosby, talented soprano, favored the Club with two solos accompanied by Alec Gordon at the piano.

Arrangements were put under way last night for the sale of tickets for the Y's Men's play to be presented at the Belleville Collegiate April 13th. The play this year, "To Have The Honour" by A. A. Milne is being directed by Miss Jessie Ponton. The same cast that took part in the play last year is in the cast this year.

Song leader was Dawson Boyd and Lorne MacDougall, Sergt.-at-Arms.

Wolves do Not Defend Their Offspring Says Editor J. W. Curran



Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Mar. 30 (CP)—Editor J. W. Curran, perhaps figuring a few Algoma people may retain a feeling of timidity of the presence of wolves, reminded his constituents yesterday that the wolf is one of the few wild animals which do not defend their young.

He was speaking about his campaign to have the Sault wolf den full of wolves again before the touring season rolls around. The old pack was broken up a couple of weeks ago when the wolves escaped. They were shot dead, one fatally injured itself escaping and the rest shot away.

That was a sad day for Editor Curran of the Sault Star, who loved those wolves as he does all others in Algoma. Last week he sent out a call for more. He urged Algoma citizens to rally to the cause and help fill the wolf den.

"I don't expect any returns before the first week in May," he said today. "We will have to wait till the lamb's crop are born, in all probability. If the appeal doesn't result in a full den I suppose I will have to go out and catch enough myself to go out and catch enough myself. But I am figuring Bob Beck, Lynn Hollingsworth, the Bonniesy boys, Bill Vedavahaw and the rest will do the job."

For those who are a little nervous at the prospect of having to "remember a wolf won't hurt a man".

FLIGHT HAILED A NEW MILESTONE

Pan-American Clipper Completes Trip From America to New Zealand

Auckland, N.Z., Mar. 30 (AP)—Australasia hailed the flight of the Pan-American Clipper today as bringing it within four days air travel of North America.

Captain Edwin C. Musick and his crew of six completed at dusk the 8,930-mile flight here from Alameda, Calif., exploring air ways that never had been known the sound of a plane's motor.

The trip was a survey of flying conditions preliminary to establishment of a commercial airline. The Clipper will return to Alameda by approximately the same route.

Captain Musick set down descriptions of quiet lagoons in the lee of some of the many coral islands of the South Pacific. He spotted them on the final leg of the flight today from Pago-Pago, American Samoa, 1,797 miles away. The trip, with detours, took him over the Tonga and Kermadec Islands, many never observed from the air before.

Mikado's Brother Feted at Vancouver

Vancouver, March 30—(CP)—Streets in Vancouver's Japanese colony were hung with thousands of flags, bunting and flowers today and its populace swalted a visit from Prince Yasuhito Chichibu, 35-year-old brother of the Mikado.

Japanese children dressed in white middies and black trousers and armed themselves with flags, ready to "die course of" the Prince's tour through their section of the city.

Some of them already had seen the Prince and his young Princess from the railing of the wharf where the motorship Hsian Maru docked yesterday, bringing the imperial suite to the first city of their trans-Canada journey.

The Prince and Princess, enroute to the coronation of Britain's King, will offer a full day of official functions to take up their time before they leave a special train for Ottawa tonight.

Parents in Favor Of Home Work

Toronto, Mar. 30 (CP)—Majority of parents favor teachers assigning homework to students, G. A. Frood, York Township, told the high school principals' meeting of the Ontario Educational Association today.

"The spasmodic outcries against the general advisability of homework do not represent the attitude of the big majority of those who send pupils to school," said Frood, who based his conclusions on the result of a questionnaire sent to parents in Toronto suburban area. He said 80 per cent of parents were "opposed to elimination of homework."

A Cross-Section of Canada

People in every walk of life—a cross-section of Canada—are interested directly or indirectly in the telephone business.

Nearly twenty thousand men and women of all ages and occupations have invested their savings in Bell Telephone stock.

Almost ten thousand men and women are Bell Telephone employees.

There are more than 710,000 telephones in Ontario and Quebec alone.

The lines of some 860 other telephone companies connect with Bell lines for interchange of service—adding another 140,000 additional telephones to those of the Bell Company to provide a unified service that touches the lives of virtually every citizen of this Dominion.

The Trans-Canada Telephone System — a co-operative enterprise uniting the nine telephone systems across the Dominion—provides a service from coast to coast that is available to practically any telephone user anywhere in the country. Canada's leadership in voice-communication is the logical result of the spirit of service which animates telephone workers.

WOMAN'S INTEREST INVOLVED

Home Improvement planners at Belleville have struck a note in their organization by giving no small place in the picture of what may be and is hoped to be, to the women's interests. The average woman's life is bounded very largely by the home for women in whatever walk of life give the home the first place. Improvements are naturally what the feminine intuitive mind and feminine experience find necessary. The betterment of the home is largely of woman's inspiration, for to her what she calls home is that portion of this earth which is to her the greatest treasure place.

It is natural that she should desire the home to be marked by the things which are practical in the performance of the duties of the household and that it should be natural that there should be a setting of beauty for the growing family, for the lovely home, even if it be simple, grows into the life of the child and inspires.

The women have in this scheme a great opportunity for using their influence in taking advantage of the opportunities provided by the Home Improvement Plan. They know what is needed, and knowing that they have a peculiar knack of getting what they want. The remark of Mr. J. O. Herity, the local chairman of the plan, that about seventy-five per cent of the work likely to be done will come directly through the interests of the women section of the community, is no doubt well within the actual figures realized under similar conditions.

THE COLLEGE IN THE CAMPS

Frontier College continues its work of companionship, instruction, Canadianization and leadership, a type of college and university serving that aspect of Canadian life on what may yet be called the frontier, the report of the recent annual meeting indicate a successful year.

The laborer-teacher way of instruction is working for the fourgold purpose noted above with fine results. University-trained men in dealing with the help fellowmen, move among the manual workers, taking their places at their side to bring them the best in Canadian education. One of the chief factors in the success of this method is the respect the laborers have for their teachers who work alongside them in a common task. There are 185 of these teachers—one of the finest tributes to the ability of university men to bring to outlying camps and to settlements what is most wholesome and constructive in Canadian life and education.

3,710 campmen enrolled in study classes, 11,000 others benefited from discussions on land settlement, hygiene, naturalization, thrift, and other topics; 105 daily newspapers in English and French were supplied for campmen; 56,000 magazines and books were provided by the Frontier College for these men. During the year 312 letters and notes of approval came to the college from men employed on isolated works.

The spirit that is in the laborer-teachers is indicated in this that among those who assist with contributions to the work are many former laborer-teachers, one even from the Arctic Circle, another from the Gold Coast of Africa, and a third from the borders of Thibet.

The letters from the campmen are a revelation of appreciation of service rendered by the Frontier College and the teachers.

Frontier College does not benefit from any community funds and its work is conducted on a modest revenue, contributed largely by public-spirited men and women.

One who gives a moment's thought to what noble purpose is served by this institution and to the kindly labors of teachers cannot but hold the highest opinion of the service this college is rendering men in the camps. These varsity men serving their fellows are the greatest idealists and the greatest practicalists. A man must be broad in his sympathies to enter this work, he must be practical as well as idealist, and one whom the men must respect. That they do is proven by the records of the school. But results can never be measured in mere records—there is the intangible something which can be estimated only in good citizenship.

Never have anything to do with an unlucky place or an unlucky man. I have seen many clever men, very clever men, who had not shoes to their feet. I never act with them. Their advice sounds very well, but they cannot get on themselves; and if they cannot do good to themselves, how can they do good to me?—Rothschild.

EASTER

"Because I live, ye shall live also."

Life, life renewed we see in all about us,
The grass grows green, the maple buds show red,
Hepaticas are blooming in the wild wood,
The world of nature is no longer dead.

And down across the years we catch the message,
The words of that far distant Easter Day,
"He is not here, the Lord indeed is risen.
Come, see the place where Christ the Saviour lay."

O weary heart, we, too, may catch the message
The word that Death no longer holds a sting.
For lo! He burst the bonds of Death forever,
And lives for aye, our risen Lord and King.

"Because I live," He said, "ye shall live also."
O blessed words to soothe life's pain and strife.
We need not fear to pass Death's dreaded portal;
Risen with Him, we'll enter into life.

POWER'S ELEPHANTS ARE GOING INTO PICTURES.

So comes the news from Europe where the Power's Performing Elephants have been touring for some years. The pictures are to be called "Hippodrome" and will review as many of the feature acts of the famous old show place in New York City as can be gathered together, or reproduced. Power's elephants will be the feature attraction of the old Hippodrome for eighteen consecutive seasons. The story of Will Power and his performing elephants is an interesting one. Will was brother of Tom Power, of Belleville, who performed the prodigious task of taking the Kiltie Band of Belleville around the world. Will was no less famous, but his talent ran to circuses, beginning as treasurer of a circus which folded up and left the treasurer with a bunch of elephants on his hands. He turned the elephants into money as the most famous troupe of trained elephants in the world, visiting many countries, with many notable engagements in Canada, Belle Park, Toronto, and an extended engagement in Belleville when the stage of the old Power Opera House was strengthened for the act, and the packing-case held receptions every day in the yard of the Queens Hotel, causing an acute peanut famine in the city. The Power elephants now belong to the widow of Will Power, and although the years have taken their toll of years their act is as good as ever—just as good as when it was rated "The Highest Priced Act in Vaudeville."

WHY SHE LAUGHED

Father: "Where's that young man who was calling on you?"

Daughter: "Oh, he left in a huff!"

Father: "A huff! A huff? They are getting so many new cars on the market now, a feller simply can't keep track of them."

Though laughter is looked upon by philosophers as the property of reason, the excess of it has always been considered the mark of folly.—Addison.

Many Bad Spellers

WHILE writing up my newspaper notes of Booby's romance on the train a few days ago from Belleville to Toronto, I guessed what I came to write "DIMINUTIVE" as applied to Booby's doll-like stature. I was not certain about the spelling, and I did not deem it worth while to interrupt the beautiful scene that Nature was unfolding before me. In my dilemma I cast a glance at the next seat to my rear, and discovered that it was occupied by two ladies, one much older than the other, and evidently strangers because I had never heard a word from that source. The older lady proclaimed to the world that she was an unsolved jewel by her clashing, flashing colors, numerous antique ornaments, and a vivacious sparkle in her eye, which forbid convincingly that she had the courage to tackle anything once. I decided to try her on spelling, because I have found the commonest way to become acquainted, and to study that most interesting of all studies, Human Nature. Invariably such tests prove to be an educational experience because you practically admit that they know more than you do, or you would ask for their information. They never fail to respond, though they are hardly ever correct.

"Excuse me, lady; I am writing some notes for our Belleville newspaper, and I find I am not certain about the spelling of the word 'DIMINUTIVE'." I whispered, stretching my head and neck around like a jumping-jack.

"Well, I might be right and might be wrong," she replied promptly and eagerly, as if a lottery prize depended on her answer.

"Shall it be spelt with DEM or DIM"? I suggested with equal enthusiasm.

"It begins with DEM because it's like the letter 'D' in any day," and she sank back in her seat prepared to let Nature take its course, because she had done everything that a modern, modest woman could do.

I thanked her kindly and then began to mind my own business again.

Cheerful Tweenie.

I have just completed a tour of the largest Toronto restaurants, and hasten to report some startling facts. As a student of human nature, I love to and so does a nation. The way people behave while eating is the surest barometer of human welfare that the world has ever known. For the past several years during this Easter week, Toronto has been rather normal noy happy. Its people in restaurants sat sullenly, and silently at their food, with the corners of the mouth turned sharply downward and with ominous frowns and wrinkled brows. Sometimes they seemed to bite their spoon or fork as if attacking an imaginary foe. There were no smiles, no cheerful chatter, and the supply of food would often not exceed twenty-five cents in value, often even less. But now this is all changed. The gloom has gone here again, and you feel happy to see others happy. But this is not all; this Easter the crowds are the greatest that have been known in Toronto for many years, and money is being spent very freely. It regained twenty-one special trains to take holiday visitors out of Toronto in one day, and as many more to bring visitors here. Who says that the cut on railwaymen's earnings has not been restored or that the teachers' salaries either?

The Opinions of Veterans.

The writer always comes to Toronto to read the opinions of Dominion Educational Association opens to have the exhibit of The James Press Motor Company. It is the exception ally busy days that it is in session. Only half a section of the hall is attended this great parliament of education by the wise and kinds. During that time he has come to know intimately many of Ontario's veteran teachers. The writer had met many of these honored teachers in former conventions in Toronto, and now gives you some of their opinions, which are being given in this newspaper, which prints all the news that is fit to be printed without prejudice. It is a pleasure to intelligencer is powerful and respected, because it is free to express honest opinions both for and against great public questions without necessarily agreeing with all or any of the opinions so expressed. It is the prerogative of the editorial writer to express them and thus only can great democracies continue to keep their freedom. The opinions that follow are given by men and women, who have borne the heat and burden of the day, who have unbounded faith in Canada, and her youth, and who are now enjoying that beautiful sunset of life which is the true and the loyal can ever know.

The world anywhere and everywhere knows only two great, compelling motives of human conduct, FAME and FORTUNE, and cannot understand why teachers alone are immune, because they rarely know much of either, and apparently care but little. That there is a greater and nobler motive, teachers well know, but they cannot make Avarice, Greed, Envy and Pride understand and hence rarely try to lay bare their hearts and souls."

2. "It makes me smile, when I hear people talk in a pessimistic way about our school system going to the dogs, and about the unhappy lot of teachers and students. As a matter of fact, we have gone a long, long way on the road to improvement and betterment since I began to teach 'way back in 1890. At the same rate another fifty years or less will bring us the millennium in education in educational affairs. Salaries now are better, schools are wonderfully improved, and teachers and country students are not now asked to calculate idiotically when boys—one and two the hands of a clock are exactly twenty minutes apart, or to write a composition on 'Virtue', and teachers are much trusted concerning examinations kept for the sake of economy, but there are still remnants of the barbaric age. The old theory prevades in my youth still survives that, if you want anything done, you must do it by an exasperating examinations. Moreover the public and newspaper seem much valuable time on their brief visits setting classes at writing and spelling, to ward off if possible the adverse criticism of the business world. This practice is a fine old institution, by-gone days. If inspectors spent their time in the form of visits lessons, instead of being startled detectives, in one hour, and as many more, and everywhere, they would be very glad to praise, another step forward, long overdue, would be taken."

3. "The opinion is held by many people of men, whose hoary heads are a sign of righteousness. Now two gifted lady teachers, also with silvery locks, speak from the depths of their experience.

"I can remember back quite clearly fifty years ago, when people would say that the educational trend has been from bad to worse, and so on ward. Sometimes we would seem to lose ground here or there, but there is always the unmistakable gain in other directions. From what I know of the public I have every reason to hope for the future. We shall always strive for the best perfection, and we shall always come nearer and nearer to them, but we shall never be satisfied until we stop in this world in anything."

4. "The restrictions have been changed little by little many times throughout my years of teaching, and a rule (with some minor exceptions) with better results. From my own personal experience and from published" remarks made recently by Canada's Governor-General's President, I must admit, though reluctantly, that English Composition is not what it should be, by far the weakest link in our Educational system. The President's remarks to the effect that written answers of his students were unbelievably poor from the standpoint of English Composition in any and every subject. From time to time these remarks of the Chief have been tied hand and foot (metaphorically speaking) and effectively gagged, and then told to go ahead in the classroom and do something impossible. For this reason very largely English Composition has suffered most of all subjects in our schools and the obvious remedy is to permit teachers to adopt their own methods, helps and texts (in other subjects as well) and thus utilize to the utmost every teacher's intelligence and initiative, the greatest need for the educational progress of Canada. Many were independent of Education in Ontario. Scrap immediately all red tape and petty regulations and trust the teachers; they seek neither fame nor Fortune and are above unworthy suspicion."

5. These educational opinions, garnered by teachers with full and handicaps, would be incomplete without a few words from one of Ontario's veteran and much revered urban trustees.

"As trustees and representatives of the people, we do not object to the payment high costs of education, providing the results are commensurate with our outlay. But I regret to say that in some important respects the results of our system of education are decidedly disappointing. The trustees of Ontario are doing their best to improve the conditions of the times, and I feel that the outlook is full of hope, but changes require much time and patience. The feeling is overwhelmingly strong against the union of several adjoining schools, because further financial burdens required for such amalgamations are out of the question just now quite regardless of the merits of the innovation. The present secondary schools must suffice, and students from outlying sections must be taken to and from such institutions daily. Perhaps at some future time, we may be able to finance more ideal conditions."

Easter Sunday in Toronto was cold and cloudy with a high wind. The usual greeting was, "Nice Christmas day", as people went about in their ordinary winter clothing. It was much too cold and windy for the usual Easter parades.

Have you noticed that women, even middle-aged women, stand these modern days in trains, buses and street cars for all sorts are occupied? Have you also noticed that in rare cases where a gallant youth surrenders his seat to feminine charm that a surprised look passes from face to face as if to say, "It isn't being done any more", I cannot help but wonder why there is lamentable change from the chivalrous days of my youth. Has man discovered that since women have the vote, smoke and wear men's clothes, and do him at his best jobs that she is no longer the weaker sex, and that she can stand or sit like men as chance affords? I put this unhappy thought; surely it is only a fleeting dream!

Best wishes to all.

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

The young prince on a visit to Balmoral; Her Majesty at Glamis Castle in 1909

Scotland early attracted Prince Albert the most still be called Prince Albert for until he becomes King George VI. the long common name was always used in the royal family. His grandfather, King Edward VI, spent as much time as the duties of kingship would allow at the lovely and historic estate of his mother, when George V came to the throne, Balmoral was even more popular as a gathering place for the royal family, and the Scottish moors often saw the monarch, one of the finest shots in his kingdom, on the hunt.

While at Balmoral, or indeed wherever the court had reason to visit Scotland it was, and still is, the custom to wear the typical Scottish garb. It was a tribute that Scotland deeply appreciated which has drawn the royal family even closer to the country. Today's picture shows Prince Albert on one of the Balmoral visits in the kilts and plaid of the district. Shown also is another picture, even more charming, of Queen Elizabeth at the age of nine.

She was Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon then, young daughter of the Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne and scion of one of the noblest lines in Scottish history. Tomorrow's family of 10, she too, lived a great part of her childhood in England, though for three months of each year she lived at Glamis Castle, the almost legendary pile that history says is the actual castle of gloomy Macbeth. To him it was there when these pictures were taken the Queen in a fancy period dress for a Glamis celebration) that some day the roads of this carefree boy and charming girl would cross. For this was near to the start of the journey that leads to Westminster on May 12.

Stirling and District

Stirling — Although the weather on Good Friday was anything but pleasant for driving, many came from all parts of the District motored to Campbellford in the afternoon of that day, to form a part of an audience of over four hundred that heard with great enjoyment the splendid rendition of the Sacred Cantata "Cross and Crown" presented by the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, which was assisted by the visiting and assisting artists, reached nearly fifty in number. Dr. Charles E. Allan organist and Choir leader, who is well known locally for his musical ability, directed the works which were presented in a faultless manner. The leading solo parts were taken by the following artists, tenor, Mr. George Lacy, baritone, Mr. G. T. Clute, soprano, Mrs. Orwell.

Recital by John Deacon Outstanding Success

Preceding the work of the fifty voiced choir which displayed the results of several months of faithful rehearsals, a recital featuring Mr. John Deacon, celebrated lyric tenor, Mr. Lennox, well-known Belleville violinist of outstanding ability, and Mr. Chas. A. Cragg, organist formed a most appropriate prelude to one of the most outstanding events of the season. Appearing in Campbellford for his first time Mr. John Deacon, whose ability as a lyric tenor soloist is recognized by musical authorities in all parts of the continent,- held his audience spellbound with his interpretation of the famous negro spiritual "Was You There When They Crucified My Lord". This number afforded Mr. Deacon an opportunity to reveal the range and quality of his voice to the superb manner, displaying effortless control in volume and a sweetness in subdued tones that was indeed quite unusual. He was accompanied by Mrs. Deacon, who is also an accomplished musician.

Mr. Lennox's group of violin solos included "Aw Maria" "Adoration" and "In a Will Irish Rose" with Mr. Allan providing the accompaniment. The first part of the Cantata 'The Cross' included "excellent solo work by Mrs. Orvell, soprano, Mr. George Lacy, tenor and Mr. G. T. L. Clute, baritone midway through this portion, the choir rendering the above mentioned artists was presented in a faultless fashion. The scenes in "Gethsemane" as depicted vocally by the male voices was also exceptionally well rendered. Dealing first with the agonies of passion the week and climaxing with the triumphant ascension in the closing chorus "The King of Glory" and "Fling Wide the Gates" the work which is embodied in simplicity was followed through with intense interest by the large audience. Among those from Stirling who assisted were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Eggleton, Mr. William Dermidy, Mr. George Tulloch, who assisted in the chorus work and Mr. G. L. Clute musical director of St. Paul's United church who was responsible for the baritone solo work and also for an excellent performance. The presentation was enjoyed by those present as equal to any works directed by Mr. Allan in the past. The church was tastefully decorated with flowers characteristic of the Easter season and Rev. Mr. Black minister of the congregation, welcomed those present and briefly outlined the story set forth in the excellent music. A brief social period and silent prayer served to close taking part in the program, in the choir were Mrs. Orwell, Mrs. Black and Mr. Allan each expressed words of appreciation for the co-operation displayed by all members of the church in making the evening's program a success.

Members of Stirling I.O.O.F. Entertain Ladies of Laurel Rebekah Lodge

A large number of guests expressed their delight in the splendid programme put on by the Committee of the Stirling I.O.O.F. at a social evening held in their lodge rooms on Wednesday evening. The ladies of the Laurel Rebekah lodge were the guests of honor and the hall was decorated as master of ceremonies for the evening and a brief address of welcome to those present was made by Mr. W. L. Anderson, Noble Grand. The first part of the programme included musical numbers in the following order, Banjo solo by Maurice Bell accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. W. Bishop; vocal solo by Bobbie Elliott with his mother, Mrs. H. Elliott playing the accompaniment. An instrumental selection by "Jimmie" Armstrong, playing the guitar and harmonica. The final musical number on the program was a tenor solo by Adrienne Vanderpool accompanied by Mrs. Arthur Fryer. At this time Flight-Sgt. Symons of the R.C.A.F. was introduced by the Chairman. Sgt. Symons who is at present stationed at the Trenton Airport, has gained considerable renown locally as an entertainer, and in making his second appearances before Stirling audience within the past few months displayed a further knowledge in the art of delight of hand. Many of his outstanding tricks proved not only entertaining but perplexing to the audience. Many of those present were given the opportunity of assisting the artist with Bobbie Elliot and Jimmie Armstrong his most important assistants throughout his performance. Luncheon consisting of sandwiches and cake and coffee was served by the luncheon committee at the end of the first program, and the remaining part of the evening spent in dancing to the fine music provided by Mrs. P. Hubbis and Mr. Norman Hoobsell.

BLAME ICE FORMATIONS FOR AIRLINER CRASH

An unusual close-up of the leading or front edge of the alerons of the giant passenger airliner, shortly after it had crashed near Pittsburg, Pa., carrying 13 persons to their deaths. Note the ice formed on the aeroplane's edge. Officials of the airline blamed this ice formation for the crash of the sky-liner. This ice formation, said the officials, was so heavy, it locked the alerons which controlled the lateral balance of the aeroplane and caused it to go completely out of control.

Steenburg of Cordova. The bride given in marriage by her father was very pretty in a gown of pink net over taffeta with matching accessories. She carried a lovely bouquet of Calla lilies. The bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Blakely of Toronto, was also charming in light blue taffeta gown with matching accessories. Miss Blakely carried red roses. Mr. Charles G. Paul of Marmora attended the groom. Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth was the officiating clergyman and the ceremony decorated with tulips and daffodils. During the signing of the register, Mrs. E. C. Prentice rendered a delightful solo, "O Love, Be True." After a short honeymoon the happy young newlyweds will reside in Buffalo.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was up in her room getting ready to go out and I was standing in her with a silly conscience on, admiring myself in front of pieces on of her box of candy differnt times in the last 3 days without asking her if I could have one. I was looking for not asking her on acount of her conscience bein too new at the times, and I said, Ma ma, where's your conscience? and she was fooling out without your diamond ring on, as yet.

O, thank you, here it is, I mean it was here, I was sure I put it in here on the bed when I came in, deer and I'm late as it is, ma said, and I said, I'm sorry, I'm late again, ma, and pop will have something to bear you about, I'll help you look, ma, what will you give me if I find it? I said.

Cant you do anything without a reward for land sakes? ma said, and I said, sure, ma, but I can do it better with one. Will you give me 5 cents of candy if I find it? I said.

Yes, yes, but find it" ma said, I remember distinctly taking it off my own finger and laying it down with my own hand, she said, and I said, Will you give me 4 pieces if I find it, ma?

Now look here, I'm not going to let you have any more candy for a blackmail plot, ma said. O deer, how is it the worst things have to happen to me, I said, I found it ma, said, and I said, Well I tell you what, ma, I'll tell you something that you compromise by giving me one piece instead of 4, I said.

All rite, but find it instead of taking about it, ma said, and I said, All rite I will, and here it is rite under this pin cushion, and you dont have to give me any candy for a week because I've had it all in advance because thats had been many pieces I took, ?.

Benny Potts did you deliberitly push that ring under that pin cushion? ma said.

Me hardly heering her on account of being half ways downstairs already.

"Tickets For One"
— by
Marie Blizard

"Let me think this over, old man . . . I'll let you know tomorrow. This is a radical thing for me . . ."

"Sorry." Terry picked up the hat. "You have to have it now for Claudette. He wants her back anyway."

"Crawber?" Marshall reached for his engagement pad. "I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll see her tomorrow at eleven. After all, you don't expect me to take her without seeing her."

"That will be all right but remember this, Marshall, one word of what I told you—to her—and the deal is off. She is not to know!"

"My dear fellow, how do you expect she will not know about it?" Marshall was beginning to doubt Terry's sanity.

"Because, she's a straight-shooting kid." Terry went on oblivious to Marshall's raised eyebrows "And because I have made her promises not to read one line in the newspapers or allow them to be read to her. If she has any ideas, she'll talk and tell me, but I don't think so, but I tell you, Marshall, if you'll let me run this thing, you'll have a star that will knock Broadway cold."

Over and over again in those two days Judy tried to remember everything about Terry that she could. She tried to remember his eyes, the changing expressions of his face, the words he had said. She researched her memory for things that might help her to find him again and his promise that he could do something for her.

The two days passed slowly. She dared not leave the room because Terry had told her he might come back. She read and reread the two books she owned. She washed her hair. She washed the window of her room. She felt like a prisoner and time was her penalty.

But at last he came bounding up the stairs and into her room. He was late and burst into her room.

She was so glad to see him almost threw her arms about him. Instead she greeted him shyly.

This was the first he had met only once before for a few minutes. "Hey, Hey, Sank Claus, I've a very good boy. I likes to drink and I likes to gamble a little but I'm good to my mother and all the dames, that's right, I know say I've like a brother to them."

"I'm sure you are," she said seriously.

He looked at her askance. "Pshaw! I'm getting all the dames I got to trust me and do exactly as Uncle Terrence says."

"But I have," Judy said.

"Yeah, I know, you haven't left this place. Now listen, kid, here's what you've got to trust me with and I come on, kid, get your packing done."

"Packing . . ."

"Lay away the clothes. If you haven't a suitcase well do them up in a bundle."

"Oh, please . . ." She looked at him strangely.

He sensed her suspicion and talked fast. "Listen, kid, you've got to. Look at me, Judy. Look in my face and maybe for once I'll look at me and look honest." Even then he could not keep the twinkle from his eyes.

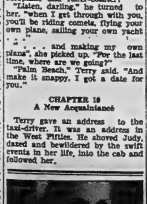
"I . . . I'm sure . . . it's all right but I don't know what . . ."

you tell me what it all means? This is my honor, my future, you have to make me by packing and move."

"Join Terry Shannon and see the world . . . Ah ha, I . . . you have a suitcase! Now let's get busy. Does this go in?" He fondled a frivolous little wet worn bedroom slipper.

"It would if I were going to and I won't move a step until you tell me to."

"You're going bye-bye on the bib choo-choo. Maybe you'll ride on the choo-choo too, now hurry, kid, hurry. He stopped his nonsense to whistle like a toy-horn.



Judy giggled. "How about an aeroplane, Terry? roller-coaster?"

"Listen, darling," he caught her, "when I get through with you, you'll be on the biggest ocean liner, plane, sailing your own yacht . . . I . . . and making my own plans, plans packed up. Over the last time, where are we going?"

"Palm Beach," Terry said. "And make it snappy. I got a date for you."

CHAPTER 19
A New Acquaintance

Terry gave an address to the taxi-driver. It was an address in the West Sixties. He glanced Judy's dazed and bewildered by the swift events in her life, into the cab and followed her.

"FEELING FINE"

"Let me give you a tip, I'm feeling fine. Headache and pains all gone. I never miss an engagement since I learned about Paradol. It's quick and never disappoints." 35 cents.

DR. CHASE'S
PARADOL

Perching his feet on her paper suitcase, Terry pushed his hat on the back of his head and sighed like a man who had done a very difficult job but he said nothing.

"Mr. Shannon . . ." Judy began.

"Don't 'Mr. Shannon' me, my child, or I'll feed you to the big bad wolf," he scolded.

"I've practically got the wolf licked. He knows me by my first name," Judy bandied.

"That's the good girl . . . getting pepped up, aren't you?"

"Terry, where are you taking me and why?"

"I'm taking you up to see a friend of mine out of the reclining gals I never fell in love with . . . believe it or not, her name is Dolly Lalley, Dolly's a good friend of mine and a good friend to any friend of mine. I don't like the way you keep inviting it and I think you need a friend and Dolly's the gal."

Judy felt better now that there was a woman in this puzzling picture.

"Honey," Terry broke the silence, "how'd you like to go on the stage and be a big star in a big musical show?"

"I'd like to find myself with a million dollars! If you're going to try to look out the window and enjoy the scenery."

"I'm serious because, listen, Judy, I've got a job for you in a show . . . and a real juicy part, too, for a gal."

"Oh, tell me about it . . . unless you're trying to kid me," she cautioned.

"What! Me kid? Me make a friend to the unwelkin' gal? Me kid you? Why, I'm not that mean!" Terry was mocking again and Judy knew she would have to wait luck until he said what he had to say when he was ready to tell her.

"Well you'll be pretty unkind of you." Her eyes almost filled with tears as she said it.

"Now, now, kid, I'd ever do anything unkind to you? I hope Joe Penner doesn't hear of this because I have your future at heart. You've got personality when you are rich and famous."

"What kind, famous I'll be lucky if I can get a job and earn enough to get back home."

Terry might have been hurt by that remark, but he only looked at her. "Now, now, kid, no more of that or there were . . . He looked sidewise at her and his fingers started to feel the soft silk of her curls. Judy's woman's heart eyes made him think of violets with the spring dew and her voice an echo of the violets . . . and very in a brook.

Dorothy Alley drew Judy into her arms and kissed her when Terry introduced them. Judy was a new type from the girls' face to his and noted there with question in her eyes.

Judy stood like Peg O' My Heart with her hands behind her back, hands and said nothing.

"Dot, I've brought the papers . . ." Terry's Dolly broke off warned by Terry's frantic gesture back of Judy's unsuspecting head.

"Terry wants you to stay with me for a little while, Dolly, I suppose you make yourself at home, Judy, I'll get something for you to eat and you'll find powder or anything you want in there."

It didn't take long for Judy to unpack her few belongings. There was only one dress, a tailored blue blouse, a cotton crepe blouse, her underclothes, a pair of pajamas and a few pieces of lingerie. She felt a little ashamed knowing that Terry wanted to speak.

She instinctively liked Dolly and remembering her, decided that Dolly Dot Dalley was beautiful. Dolly must be about 30 and unless Judy was mistaken, Dolly was in love with Terry.

Judy had followed Dolly into her little kitchen and while she made coffee and sandwiches he told her everything that had happened and his plan for Judy.

Judy had a lot of questions to ask you Terry, and one to ask myself" that she didn't dare ask Dolly.

"Shoot, Doll."

"Someday I'll probably shoot you," she answered, "but now, after every other time I'll do as you ask me, Terry, what made you call me kid to you?"

"Something." Terry made an absent gesture of crossing his heart. "The first time I saw you, Judy, I told you, in the other room, what I want to do with her and I need your help."

"All right, redhead, I'll do my best, but I don't begin!"

"Practically at the beginning. About her, teach her all you can in advance tomorrow from Marshall you can spend it. Dress her out in the right sort of glad rags, coach her to talk, walk and act."

"I don't have to teach her the first two and we'll see about the third. Do Peter's late, Terry, can she do anything?"

"I don't know, Dot, but we'll find out. Want me to carry that tray?"

"No," she called back. "I wouldn't know how to handle you if you started spoiling me. Pull over that coffee table and call the kid; she looks as though she needed some food."

"I've an idea she always does look that way and that it is part of her charm."

Dolly looked at him worriedly as he said "charm" and then called:

"Judy, beauty ready . . . come out and have a snack."

They sat on the floor beside the hearth and had their supper and Terry told them gay stories of his newspaper of people and of himself and then when he had finished, Judy, did you learn anything besides routine when you were in the chorus?"

Eagerly she told him that she had learned many dances and had routines, but that she had not had worked up. Anxious to show them, she rushed from the room and came back with her practice suit on looking like a ten-year-old child. Dolly put a record on the victrola and sat in Terry's lap watching Judy.

She tapped, flung her arms out, shook her head in a brave gesture, fluttered her hands and finally fell to the floor panting and laughing.

"Grand . . . grand, Judy!" Dolly applauded her.

"Would you like something different?" Judy asked them, "A romper is hardly the thing to do in this one in and I'll need some slower music. I think this kind of a dance needs a long swirling dress but you try to imagine it." She went into her dance and glided about the room as though she were a piece of thistle-down blown by some soft wind. Her hands fluttered like little white leaves. Her head swayed with the bend of her body and her feet seemed scarcely to touch the floor. She seemed to be at the will of rhythm, dancing as though in a trance. Then as the music died, she sank, nervelass upon the fur rug before them.

Dolly's hand gripped Terry's and she whispered, "Terry . . . she's a natural," she whispered.

"She's lovely," Terry answered and his eyes had not left Judy's face nor noting.

"Did you like it?" Judy asked them anxiously.

"Darling, Judy," Dolly told her. "But it is getting late and you're going to need your beauty sleep for the two and first day before the dress rehearsal. I'll call a taxi and take Terry and I will walk home. She comes from a mid-western one-horse town where the local paper never prints anything except the weight of hogs and the price of wheat, the family are poor farmers. She had some scouts who was on the stage in New York and taught her to dance one summer when she visited them. The family save up enough money to send Judy to New York to get a job and when the job arrives, she discovers Cousin whatever-her-name-is isn't to be found.

"She's a job after weeks of looking for one, rehearses for six weeks and the two, and first the day before the show opens. That's all I know about her, but when I'm through the whole world will know about her."

"I suppose you think that's the best thing that can happen to her?" Dolly interrupted.

"Don't you, Doll? A farm is no fun; it's hard work and poverty, and she isn't made for that."

"I guess you're right. Well, my lad, it looks like tomorrow is going to be my busy day, so you'd better scram."

"At any rate, the sunshine'll do her a lot of good," Dolly thought the next morning as she turned to down at Judy's delicate face as she slept with a childish curling her lips. And then:

"Only the life rich sleep this late. Eight bells, Judy, Alles cop!"

Judy opened her violet eyes, rubbed them and sat up against the soft pillows of Dolly's twin bed.

"Is it terrible, and will the dress pens next?" she asked in one breath and then after that?"

"I'll only right but, sister, we've got to hop to it to do in two, so hop yourself into the bath and wash and set your hair at the same time. I'm the manicurist and photographers appear in the offices from 10 to 12 o'clock."

"Above all, don't let Judy wise. That's the reason you're going to bed is there! She won't see a newspaper, but I'll have to do not want to meet anyone, talk to any reporters, I'll be there for a rest BUT be sure that Terrence Shannon I used directly. No hiding and, yes, the photographers appear in the office from 10 to 12 o'clock."

"Yes, ma'am sir!" Dolly asked sarcastically.

"It won't be necessary, Judy has to know all the instructions before she is that she will not see any papers or make any calls before then. The same instructions for Hayden Terrence Shannon."

"Needle threaded! Whatever for is the rest of the question was lost as Doll thrust her head into the bathroom. Twenty minutes later, drying her wet hair, they sat her breakfast hastily and watch Dolly combing an enormous wardrobe, she begged again to know what was to happen next.

"So many things, you'll be glad when you hear about them. First, we tighten up a few seams to make one of my dresses fit you. Then rehearse the act and set down . . ."

BOVRIL LTD., HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

In Forty Years of History Company Never Missed Paying Dividend

Montreal, March 30.—Presiding at the fortieth annual general meeting of Bovril Ltd., recently held in London, Lord Luke K.B.E. chairman of the company, stated that in all the forty years of its history it had never missed a dividend. Not only had it always met dividends on preference and ordinary shares, but it had never failed to pay a dividend on the deferred shares also. He reported another highly successful year, with bigger profits and increased reserves.

Sir James Crichton-Browne M.D., LL.D., F.R.S., a director of the company, commented on the recent national fitness campaign and declared that the country should be cautioned against regarding physical training as the one criterion of national fitness. Not only were mental uneasiness and nervousness no substitute for nutrition; they were secondary and subordinate to it.

Sir Gowland Hopkins, discoverer, of the vitamins and the greatest living authority on nutrition, had said that nutrition came before taxation. Sir James declared that Gowland would also say it came before physical exercise which imposed on the under-nourished, would do more harm than good. Nutrition was the basic condition of good health and bodily fitness. Sir James spoke of the effective part the company's products had played in combating the recent epidemic of Influenza in Britain. Bovril Ltd., he said, had kept at bay, he declared, "by the vital antagonism of its tube-dwelling allies" and of a calm and defiant mind." Recent researches had proved it to possess remarkable powers of increasing gastric secretions and so of stimulating digestion and promoting assimilation and nutrition generally.

Two retiring directors were re-elected, the Duke of Atholl K.T., G.C.V.O., C.B., D.S.O.—the only man in the Kingdom entitled to raise an army of his own—and the Hon. Ian St. J. Lawson-Johnston, chairman of the Canadian founder of Bovril.

DAILY SHORT STORY—

ONE MAN WAR

By Scott Ryall

When Ireland started emigrating to America one of the sangaard was a Murphy and his name was Patrick. In 1777 Pat was twenty-eight, six feet tall, red-headed and a fighter.

The army was camp in Valley Forge, trying to get through the winter with insufficient supplies. It became a relieving pastime to bait Pat with his bragging and eventually-the number of bawls on Company B, New York Volunteers, forced the regimental commander to attempt cooling Pat's ardor.

"Sir," Pat replied indignantly to the other's soothing remarks, "I'll challenge any soldier in yer regiment! Show me the enemy, sir, show me the enemy—an' I'll be takin' his head off!"

The colonel lost patience. "Pat, stand!" he agreed. "Pick but never won a war by losing your temper. Stop nothing but boasting."

"Well, show me a war, then!" shouted Pat.

A friendly captain guided him out. "Pat," he said kindly, "you keep your mouth shut. The general knows what he's doing and so does the colonel. They're not going to risk the country on some arrogant demonstration of his fighting ability. When we draw the British out of Philadelphia we'll have fighting a plenty. Until then, doh't about unless you have something to brag about!"

The sergeant shook of the other's hand angrily and strode off into the darkness. His ire was as high as his pride was low and before he cooled he fund himself outside the picket lines. He turned and went on a fist toward the camp.

"Tomorrow" he shouted to the night. "If the war won't come to him, Patrick O'Mara Murphy will go seekin' it! I'll set a bate to that on oggs!"

Through the black night he turned towards Philadelphia where General Howe was toasting his heels comfortably and burning his morals to a crisp, Pat had tramped but an hour and a distance of perhaps four miles when over a low ridge he caught the faint glow of a camp fire. He made no sound as he crept toward it, thinking of the wisdom of his own camp but taking no chance on random enemy shots. Then he caught the flash of the familiar red uniform of Britain.

Pat grinned in the darkness and barely smothered a cheer at the welcome sight. He moved inch by inch until close enough to hear murmured conversation. One of the two men, sounding by a tiny fire turned his head, stared and listened. Pat stayed unmoving, his heart beating briefly.

The man turned back again and Pat crept on, gripping his musket firmly, estimating just how hard to hit with the butt in order that he might bring the two men in alive but not too much so.

"Davis is late," said one of the men looking at an immense watch he drew from his pocket.

"The generall's orders are to wait for him," said the other curtly, "so wait we will."

"And so will I," thought Pat to himself. The thought scarce went through the wanlike sergeant's mind when a horse's hoove sounded in the darkness.

"Friend!" came out of the night and a horse and rider came into the circle of light. The rider was panting softly and it gave Pat the needed cover. He came in quickly as all three stood for the instant, whooping about was as blood-curdling as the announcement of an Indian massacre. The quick sweep of his musket was aimed as deadly as his aim. The butt descended once to turn before the blows had stretched them unconscious.

"Sarjint Patrick O'Mara Murphy," said Pat aloud, "yo're a great man; a yur-ry great man!"

He tied the three, loaded them on the horse and started his triumphant trip back to the camp at Valley Forge.

The fates arranged the stage for Sergeant Murphy's return. General Washington himself, was in conference with Colonel Lansdowne when the message was brought.

"Sergeant Murphy has reported with three Britishers captured outside the lines," said an aid-de-camp.

General Washingtons eyes lighted. "Lansdowne, he said quickly, "just what we need. Bring him in," to his orderly, and immediately, "and me, Lansdowne to give this sergeant recognition."

The door swung back and the grinning red-headed sergeant pushed his three captives into the light. Their eyes blazed angrily above the gags in their mouths and faint sounds came from beneath the binding cloths.

The general stared at the captives. He then turned quickly toward the sergeant. "You—you—you—" he spluttered, "release them! Those three of my own staff officers! I sent them on a few hours ago to mingle with Howe's army!"

But Pat's infallible luck stayed with him. He was out of the room and home the day before the next pitched battle.

TWEED

Tweed (Special)—Several cases were tried before Magistrate J.J. Lloyd in local Police Court last week. E. Ormond Fuller acted as special Crown Prosecutor. Clarence Villeneuf and Edward Comerford appeared on charges of chicken-stealing. The complaint was laid by John C. Barry and to more careful of the company she chooses.

pleaded guilty and each was sentenced to four months in an Ontario Reformatory. Alex Chasiho, also charged with the same offense, was given six months suspended sentence. The court took a lenient view of his case owing to his advanced age—76—and to the fact that his health was not good.

Chicken-stealing has become a serious menace in various sections of the County.

Mrs. Rose Chasiho pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving stolen goods and was sentenced to fifteen days in the County Jail. The same charge resulted in Clayton Labb being sentenced to one month. A juvenile accused of receiving stolen goods suffered a plea of guilty, but Magistrate Lloyd, after consulting with Acting Crown Attorney N. Ormond Fuller, dismissed the charge on account of the girl's youth. The girl agreed to attend Church regularly and to be more careful of the Lee O'Colis, charged with intoxication, took a jail term of ten days instead of paying the fine imposed by the Court. Constable J. C. Hayes was responsible for the investigation of the above cases and the resultant convictions.

Staff Roller-Skates To Serve Consumers

Toronto, March 28—(CP)—Somewhat less on 100,000 square feet of floor space in new and larger quarters, 18 employees of The Canadian Tire Corporation have solved the problem of providing snappy customer-service by wearing roller skates.

Alfred Stevens, 300-pound Manager, conceded today that he and a few others had provided embarrassing laughs as well by falling. But the experiment, in its second day, was such a success that 18 pairs of skates were ordered. They are the type used in roller-skating rinks.

TARZAN'S QUEST

Through the throng echoed the demands that the Waziri prisoners be cut up at once. "They are the allies of the Kavuru who stole my daughter," a woman cried; "let me burn out their eyes with red hot coal. I'll make them suffer as I suffer."

Already Tarzan of the Apes, preparing for action, had dropped down to the ground behind the hut of Udalo, the chief. Here was an emergency. Every danger, every risk must be faced without hesitation, boldly, with the manner of the Lord of the Jungle.

Far away in the jungle, Tarzan's mate, too, faced a crisis. She had counted on Brown's aid in forcing this party of "tenderfeet" safely out of the wilderness. And now the slim evidence at hand pointed to him as the sly, brutal slayer of Kitty Storey.

The aviator knew he was in a difficult situation. He was definitely on the defensive. "Don't get it into your heads that you're going to hang me," he warned in a real challenge to his tone that sounded to Jane like the defiance of a guilty man.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Spectacular Rise of Canada's Gold Mining Industry

The spectacular rise of Canada's gold mining industry over the past decade or so is revealed by a study of the latest returns and the official figures of the Dominion's gold output.

Since 1934, when the value of production per ton on the present price of gold was slightly more than $43,000,000, a steadily increasing flow of wealth has been produced by the gold mines of Canada. In 1936 the gold industry contributed more than $130,000,000 of the Dominion's mineral output of $382,000,000, a gain of nearly $15,000,000, or 13 per cent. over 1935, the previous best record year. The increase in 1936 can be traced largely to the 20 new gold properties that entered production during the year, including the output from these new properties. Canada's gold milling plants were running a total of close to 37,000 tons of ore daily at the end of 1936. This is an increase of 4,000 tons over the previous year, with only 16,000 tons daily at the close of 1932. Notable gains in production and the number of men employed were made by every gold producing province.

Last year Canada's gold mines paid dividends amounting to $35,400,000, the highest in the history of the industry, and a gain of more than $8,000,000 over 1935. This amount is likely to contrast with payments of $2,200,000 in 1920, and of $12,000,000 in 1929, when approximately 45 per cent of the total dividend disbursements by Canadian mines in 1936.

From the record of the industry in recent years it is apparent that gold mining in Canada is firmly established, not notwithstanding the progress which has been made, Canada appears to be only at the threshold of her mining development. The search for gold is pushing back the northern frontiers and bridging the gap between the industrial East and the agricultural West, creating employment, markets for farmers and manufacturers, and traffic for transportation companies, all contributing to the Dominion's credit abroad.

Other Canadian Companies

The older producing companies some of which have been in steady production for more than a quarter of a century, show every evidence of entering upon years of successful operation. The younger properties, many of which have proved production since 1931, have been financially successful in the development of their properties. Each new important find is now being made, and of them is partially explored or unexplored areas, are known to exist which have been prospected for more than thirty years.

Gold development in Canada today, in all its stages from prospecting to production, is so well organized that the expenditures of large sums in unwarranted efforts is becoming less frequent. Prospectors and exploration companies in their search for gold make full use of the wealth of geological knowledge placed at their disposal by the Federal Department of Mines and Resources, and by the several provincial departments. In the development of mines, the operators follow well-tried mining methods in which the ore bodies, rather than when the properties are ready for production, are the things to believe of the results of scientific research and reliable data on treatment methods for the ores. Much of the success of the industry in recent years can be attributed to the use of modern methods for new deposits and to orderly procedure in the development of properties.

Canada was the third largest producer of gold during 1936.

The market has been giving a fairly good account of itself in the face of the sudden and rude leadership of the newsprint stocks, although the uncertainty existing in the United States as a result of labour troubles has mitigated against any wide forward movement.

International Petroleum

The International Petroleum Co. is increasing its production steadily each month and before the end of the annual total should reach the impressive figure of 40,000,000 barrels. It is not generally known that this company refines about twenty per cent of its own production and that Canada and Peru sell products of various kinds are marketed by the Company in Peru and Colombia. This end of "Pete's" business has grown of late to such an extent that it may be necessary to increase the refining capacity in the above mentioned countries, before long. Such a step would naturally enhance the earning power of International Petroleum.

Metals

Not a few brokerage house observers feel that the majority of base-ferrous metals are in good technical position as a result of the recent recession which eliminated much weakly-held long stock.

Toronto, March 30 (CP)—R. K. CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES....AND THEIR BANK

· THE FOREST INDUSTRIES ·

The forest area of Canada on which there is timber of merchantable size is larger than the total area of France and Germany combined; the standing timber on this is estimated at 274 billion cubic feet. An area of even greater extent is covered with young growth.

This vast reservoir of wood is the source from which Canada drew wealth in excess of $110,000,000 in 1934 (the latest figures available) in the form of primary products such as:

- raw material for saw-mills, pulp mills, wood distillation, charcoal plants;
- logs, pulpwood, poles, etc., for export;
- firewood, railroad ties, posts, poles, fence rails, mining timbers;
- maple sugar, balsam gum, resin, cascara, rasbark, moss, etc.

The total value of manufactured products made principally from raw materials of forest origin was $464,635,948.

Forest products in 1936 afforded an excess of exports over imports—$158,560,000—very important to Canada's international trade.

The Bank of Montreal has co-operated with every activity of the forest industries—assisting in every phase of production and marketing. The Bank has had the privilege of financing a large share of the export business of these industries. Thousands of workers are depositors, sharing in the safety and facilities of the Bank with their employing companies.

Some of the Bank's services most frequently used by employers and employees in the forest trade: commercial accounts, foreign currency accounts; financing of shipments; commercial loans and discounts; collections; trade and credit information, safekeeping of securities; savings accounts; personal loans; money orders; travellers cheques; banking by mail.

Suspend Sentence In Fraud Case

This is my first offence for intoxication, can't get a break!" pleaded a local inebriate after pleading guilty to a drunk charge before Magistrate R. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court.

"I'm sorry, the L.C.A. distinctly calls for the minimum fine or in default a jail sentence, regardless to the circumstances," replied His Worship.

"Will you give me two weeks in which to raise the money," asked the accused man piteously, "Oh, I suppose so," was the reply from the Bench and the prisoner took on a more satisfied expression as he left the docket.

C. J. Woodward, Toronto, pleaded guilty to a charge of fraud, to wit, the issuing of a worthless cheque. "Restitution has already been made, sir, could you give me a suspended sentence?" asked Woodward.

The man failed to appear when originally summoned into court and he had to be made amenable to Toronto after him. There is the matter of costs, which must be paid," the magistrate ruled. He said he intimated every consideration had been given the accused man. The costs were $16.70. Woodward asked for a magistrate in which to raise the costs and pay them.

"Upon the payment of the costs forthwith and restitution having been made, I'll suspend sentence for one year, but the court can't extend time under such circumstances. This is a serious case," ordered His Worship and the accused speedily raised the cash to pay the costs without undue effort.

Glen Millican, Corbyville truckdriver, pleaded guilty to a charge of over-loading his truck and was fined the minimum fine under the regulations of the H.T.A. The fine and costs were paid forthwith.

The reported revolt in southern Spain was centred at the insurgent-held towns of Algeciras, La Linea, and San Roque.

The fifty insurgent conspirators, with twenty soldiers among them, were killed over the week-end, the Spanish said.

In addition, the advices said the 200 government prisoners were shot by firing squads after authorities declared they had helped to foster an anti-insurgent revolt in the Malaga region.

TARIFF CHANGES ARE ANNOUNCED BY DUNNING

Tariff Revised Upwards On Furniture Articles; Automotive Items Cut

Further Changes in Motor Tariff Are To Be Studied

CHANGES DATE FEB. 25

Recommendations of Tariff Board Carried Out by Change

Ottawa, March 31—(CP)—Following recommendations of the Tariff Board, Finance Minister Dunning today announced an upward revision in the tariff on furniture and cuts in the tariff on several items in the automotive schedules. Reductions will also be made on certain types of hats. The changes will be retroactive to the day the budget was brought in, February 25.

When the extensive changes were made in automobile tariffs a year ago, the Tariff Board was instructed to study how the plan was worked out and recommend further changes if desirable this year.

Free List Articles

Under the changes announced by Mr. Dunning and made public today in the votes and proceedings of the House of Commons, many automobile parts formerly dutiable are placed on the free list both under the British preference and intermediate tariff schedule in the United States. On other parts the British preference is made free and the intermediate is considerably reduced.

The increased tariff on furniture also follows the recommendation of the Tariff Board. The chief competition of Canadian firms for the Canadian market comes from the United States.

Trade Treaty History

When the trade agreement with the United States came into effect on Jan. 1, 1935, the goods were covered by Canadian specifications of furniture appearing in the tariff schedules and a cut from 42 per cent to 99 per cent, last 10 per cent, established by the agreement, was 10 per cent, minus cut of provisions of the Canada-France treaty.

The Board recommended this be increased to 27 1-2 per cent, less 10 per cent, or net-duty of 23 1-2 per cent. The changes Mr. Dunning announced today make provision for this increase. The Board in its recommendation proposed that increase be considered only as temporary, suggesting it be reviewed after two years.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. E. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Earth rotation defined as cause of abnormal weather

The sudden change from a warm to a right-handed deflection is the wind in the northern hemisphere had long been handed in the southern. For example a tornado in the northern hemisphere moves northwesterly. To explain: A particles of air at the earth's surface travels with the earth at a rate of 1,000 miles per hour. If this particle moves north, it leaves behind it parts that less eastward velocity. It still retains its original velocity of 1,000 miles per hour. The result is a movement toward the northeast.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, March 31 (CP)—Pressure is high from Hudson Bay southward to Lake Ontario with a separate high area moving eastward from the South Atlantic coast states. Elsewhere in the North American continent pressure is low eastward. Light snow has fallen in many localities in the western provinces since yesterday and in some sections of the west, though in other districts there has been little rain or snow. Temperatures have been somewhat above normal in the prairie provinces and in Ontario and Quebec, but generally mild and Thursday will be decidedly warmer and Thursday will not much change in temperature; probably local snow flurries.

Lord Tweedsmuir Is 'Welcome Visitor'

New York, Mar. 31 (CP)—In an editorial to "a welcome visitor", the New York Herald Tribune today said the warmth of the reception Lord Tweedsmuir will have at the White House correctly mirrors the friendly feeling of the American people for Canadians.

"We feel that he is one of ours," said the editorial in recalling that Alden Brooks, author, is another Scottish border who as a man held mingo government posts with distinction but seemed his real career through what he wrote." It continued:

"He is not the technical head of the Canadian government, but he nevertheless comes in the name of the Canadian nation. This means to Americans, that he represents that country which is closer in thought and in heart to the United States than is any other nation. He has been to Washington, he does not yet know it, Canadians are not foreigners to American. We have had our misunderstandings and occasionally called each other. But beneath these petty quarrels we are close friends."

Urges Rural School Improvement Relief

Ottawa, March 31—(CP)— Improvement of rural schools as an unemployment relief measure was urged in the House of Commons today by Dr. J. J. McCann (Lib. Renfrew South) as the 1937 relief bill was considered in committee of the whole.

Many rural schools were in a dilapidated condition, said Dr. McCann, and local authorities had no money to improve them. If the government would appropriate a sum of money for rural school rehabilitation it would provide much employment throughout the country and also improve the accommodation for the children.

Decks Cleared For Introduction of Legislation in Alberta

Edmonton, March 31 (CP)—Decks were cleared for the introduction of Social Credit Legislation in the Alberta Legislature today. A truce had been declared between followers of Premier Aberhart and the group of insurgent Social Credit members.

When the adjournment will come will depend on progress made in the passage of the Social Credit and accompanying debt legislation. It may be by the end of the week or early next week.

New plans have been made for a Social Credit program. The Legislative Assembly will appoint a board which in turn will select a commission of experts to administer the Government's plans.

EQUAL JUSTICE

Aims Should be Obtained Not by "Guns or Jail Sentences"

Mr. Lapointe was replying to comments of C.C.F. leader James S. Woodsworth, who criticized the Minister for his declaration last week of the illegality of sit-down strikes in Canada. Mr. Woodsworth also called attention to what he considered unsound actions of the Quebec Government in respect to Communist activities and labor.

1,000 Italians Brought in From N. Africa to End Uprising Against Franco Colonials Used to Crush Revolt in Spanish Morocco?

Story of Executions And Arrests in North Africa Told

SITUATION SERIOUS

Uprising in Support of Republicanism is Reported

Casablanca, French Morocco, Mar. 31 (AP)—General Francisco Franco, seemingly beset by continuing strife in the Spanish Morocco cradle of his rebellion, was reported by usually reliable sources today to have brought 1,000 Italian colonials into the "front recesses" in an effort to oust stubborn revolt.

(The Tangier correspondent of the London Evening News said Franco himself, with four senior staff officers, had flown to Casablanca, Morocco, from Spain.)

The colonial troops, described in some quarters as either actual Italians or natives from some Italian possession, landed at Ceuta, the Casablanca advices said.

Executions and Arrests.

They were spread through the zone where Franco's subordinates have smashed at a civilian-military uprising with the double edged weapon of execution and arrest.

Fifty persons were executed and 1,100 thrown into jail, latest reports related.

Advices describing the executions and arrests of officers, civilians and soldiers said the revolt was crushed, but today's reports indicated the situation still was serious and that the imported colonials were needed as a precautionary measure.

Republican Movement.

There was a strong Republican movement at Ceuta against the Fascist-Insurgent regime in the Spanish zone and the populace, across the strait, was kept from visiting the city by the most rigid measures.

Efforts to confirm the advices, which came from several sources, were hindered by the fact that telephone communication with Tetuan, capital of Spanish Morocco, was cut for the second time in 24 hours.

Not until today was reached Casablanca today said diplomatic circles in Tetuan believed the situation was serious. The insurgent regime maintained such a strict censorship that confirmation was impossible, he said.

Rumors From Colonies.

In one quarter it was reported the "Italian Colonials" had come from Italian-occupied Libya, but whether they were Italians or native troops was not known. Three hundred soldiers were reported stationed at Tetuan and 300 at Ceuta, with remainder were sent to other ports.

(The semi-official Spanish news organization, Agence Espagne, reported at Tangier, in the Moroccan international zone, that a plot against General Franco in Spanish Morocco had been crushed with the execution of 50 men and the arrest of 1,100 officers, soldiers and civilians.

Diplomatic sources at Tangier attributed recent insurgent assertions the French were stirring up trouble in Spanish Morocco to a desire to

The meeting which was called with a view to the stabilization of prices was attended by practically one hundred percent of the bakeries of the city, the greater majority of whom voted to raise the prices of bakrolls and loaves to 5c and 10c cents respectively.

While shops in Peterborough, Kingston and Oshawa have raised their prices to forty cents for bakrolls, local bakers feel that the raise to thirty five cents was sufficient until government subsidies permit the higher prices cause into effect. The new prices will go into effect tomorrow, it was stated.

NEW TRANSMITTER FOR POLICE RADIO

Better Reception And Less Interference With New

Complete in every detail and resting on a new and up-to-date chassis the Belleville Police radio transmitter was put into operation today. During his spare moments all through the winter, Chief Ponton has busied himself rebuilding the chassis of the Belleville police radio, station and this morning, the new radio transmitter was tested with marked success, it was stated.

The new transmitter and chassis are a vast improvement over the old, every detail and a vast improvement over the original transmitter when it was put into New York and other mechanical parts were installed. Besides the new chassis will give it a more modern appearance and the Belleville police radio, CJH, operates on a frequency of 600 kilocycles of 177.5 meters and has 15 megacycles power.

The test of the new apparatus was made from the transmitter to the department police car, while cruising on patrol duty around the city and the test was reported as being of the very finest reception.

The new transmitter is complete and made of the very latest parts of radio mechanism. Radio listeners should experience little difficulty in tuning in our call letters now, as the machine is accurate and operates on its own frequency band without the slightest variation, and there is absolutely no chance for radio interference with this new type of radio transmitter set-up as radio station CJH", police officials stated this morning.

The Belleville police radio, one of the earliest of its kind in Canada, has proven highly effective during its one year of service. Reports from listeners when many thousands of dollars were expended to provide police radio, are to the effect that the Belleville police radio is now more audible and more efficient than the one operated in Toronto, visiting police officials have admitted it. Listening to the reception in the local police car broadcast from radio station CJH.

LAMB IS VICTOR WINS 2 STRAIGHTS

Roaring Lion Loses First And Last Bout of March Month

With a brilliant sun streaming down and a large crowd of people out to enjoy the spring-like weather, the March Lamb won the weather series of 1937 today defeating the Lion in two straight games. While the Lion roared cautiously on numerous occasions during the month past, and threatened on several occasions to romp home with blustering victory tempered with freezing weather, the Lamb staged an eleventh hour rally and the Lion under the wire by a handsome margin. But, the weather men and other experts predict the Lion is not yet convincingly defeated. He is still roaring his defiance in various parts of the country and in all probability will attempt numerous comebacks before he accepts the final defeat. However the Lamb is here, at least temporarily, and the fervent hope that it will stay is being voiced on all sides, with the possible exception of the coal-man.

JAPAN PARLIAMENT DISSOLVED

Tokyo, Mar. 31 (AP)—The Japanese army, charging leaders of the political parties with obstructing "vital" laws for national defence, forced the dissolution of parliament today.

The dissolution was ordered by Emperor Hirohito on the advice of Premier Seijuro Hayashi and made a general election mandatory within thirty days.

The new crisis arose suddenly with the stormy seventieth session of the diet due for only a few more hours of normal life.

ALBERT COLLEGE IN GOOD SHAPE KIWANIS TOLD

Rev. Bert Howard, Principal of School Gives Concise Statement

CLUB SUPPORTS TEAM

Albert College and its problem was the subject of an address by Rev. Bert Howard, principal of the college before the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday. The speaker discussed the finances of the institution, the business organization and the prospects of the future in a most candid manner and many of the members were better informed of the institution, that has sometimes received adverse criticism from the residents of this city and district. The college will on May 6th of this year, celebrate the 80th anniversary of its founding.

Albert Borgetti presided at the meeting and considerable business was transacted before the address was delivered. The Club voted to support the junior baseball club but only after some discussion had taken place over the amount, that was to be given. The sum finally decided had budgeted for $50 but the club wanted $100 and a compromise was made at $75. The team will be run strictly by the club and with many of the players of last had available it is expected a snappy outfit will result. It is the club's aim to revive baseball in this immediate section of the Province. Jack McIntosh, explained to the club the purpose of the donation to be raised for George Thompson, a member of the club and Canadian Motorcycle champion. The money will be used to finance George in his ambition to win the Isle of Man race, one of the classics in the world. The Norton Company has agreed to supply George a machine but it will be necessary to pay for a mechanic and also for George's trip to England, Scotland and the Isle of Man. The club looked with favor on the proposition and will likely make a donation.

Answers Criticism

Cliff Baragar, in answer to the criticism made regarding the Motorcycle race being held on the west side of Belleville on Sunday, stated that the riders wanted ordinary road conditions with ordinary corners and not the type they desired. The riders would prefer to race on the east side, but in view of all kinds in England in and around London, have been booked to capacity for some time, and the eyes of the world will centre upon the scene of the Coronation ceremonies. In view of the tremendous interest awakened it is not strange that there should be a strong and growing demand for Coronation souvenirs of all kinds, and that the Coronation Souvenir Spoon offered by the Salada Tea Company are proving so popular. POLICE BLOTTER

Efforts to break and enter the premises of the Coca-Cola plant premises, Church St., were thwarted at an early hour this morning in the sudden appearance of P. C. Evans, who was patrolling his beat. The officer arrived at the junction of Church and Foundry St. shortly before 5.30 a.m. this morning on his second round of the night beat. As is the usual custom, P. C. Evans circled the Coca-Cola plant premises and found a rear window had been broken.

Subsequent investigations revealed some person had endeavored to pry open a window on the west side of the building, but without results, and had apparently broken the window with full intention of entering inside and unlocking the same, but either was frightened away or saw the officer upon his arrival and beat a hasty retreat.

Further investigations revealed no entrance had been made at that point, the window still being locked and nothing having been disturbed on the inside of the building. The manager of the plant was informed of the incident.

One arrest was necessary in Belleville last night, a local citizen having imbibed too freely and not wisely with the result he was assisted to the police station and detained all night. Charges of intoxication will be laid.

Town Council Takes Stand After Seven Refuse to Work

MAYOR'S STATEMENT

Trenton, March 31 (Special) — Charging that three local men absolutely refused to work on the Faulkner highway at Gilmour and that four others were bullnosed by the trio to quit their jobs and return home, seven council refused seven men and their families from returning to the relief rolls of the municipality at Monday night's session of council. "One week ago 18 men were sent from Trenton to the Faulkner highway job at Gilmour with the understanding they would be paid 35 cents an hour, for eight hours' days and 75 cents would be taken from their daily wage for board," Mayor Cory said and "six nearly seven men were discharged for failing to comply with orders." Spokesmen for a delegation from the Co-operative Workers declared men in the camps were improperly fed and sleeping arrangements were unfit, he also said men were under foreigners as foremen and data of pay days were misrepresented. Men were told they would be paid twice a month, instead of once, as is the case. One laborer, who returned from the highway camp testified he was made to work on Sunday, as regular wage.

Report Not Submitted

M. Fecteau local relief investigator produced letters from men, who are at present working in the Gilmour camp, stating everything was alright. Mr. Cory said a report from the government men, who inspected the camps recently was very favorable and the camp conditions were found first class. "I have not yet officially submitted our report to the council," Mayor Cory declared, "but so far as I have personally received these men are off relief." "Are you going to tell these men's families starve?" questioned the spokesman of the Co-operative Workers. "These men's wives have a chance to bring their husbands into court on a non-support charge and if they get sent to jail the town will keep their families as well as jailed. A group of public school trustees appointed additional by the Home and School Club comprising Harry Sager (chairman), Arthur Blakely, Mrs. Jessie Hall, Mrs. Goodsell, Roland Whitely and Reginald Armstrong, asked the council for enough money to erect a new school on the east side of the river to replace the present college public institution, which had been termed deplorable. "We have before us night discussed a new school," Mayor Cory said, "and I can assure you, every member of the council is in sympathy with your move and that after the Minister of Municipal Affairs feelings concerned with ours but nothing can be done until a set of plans and an engineer's price has been submitted to us for approval. If your plans and estimates are passed by the Minister's office then you are getting some place," Mr. Cory added. "I feel you are bound to get a new school at College St., and the new structure has got to come within six months."

Plans Cost $300

Ernest Wagling informed the council a set of plans could cost $200.00. "Supposing we procured plans for a $60,000 building and the town could only afford $40,000 one?" Mr. Ernest Wagling asked. "Recently I was talking to Mr. Coon designer of the Trenton Collegiate Institute and he said at the time the Institute was constructed plans were made to include the College Street school and the plans were still in his office," he added. "Your tax rate will be increased 3 mills over a twenty year period if a new school is erected, but possibly the rate can be cut down to 1 1-2 mills over a longer term," Mr. Cory said, Mayor Cory assured the council, that financially a new school would not be derived from issuing debentures but from issuing money from the bank. H. Sager chairman of the committee intimated that such an eighteen roomed school costing $60,000 was required to accommodate successfully the present number of pupils attending College St. school, and the 1917 plans as suggested were out of date, regarding the needed size of a new school.

No Extra Tax

Passing of a by-law, reading "anyone improving their property will not be taxed extra," took place, an amendment of a letter refusing relief workers municipal aid after March 31st, was made. The by-law will not come into effect until April 1st, owing to present conditions in the corporation. Daylight saving will be balloted for it was announced. Buses will be placed in the Municipal office and the Police Station and any person registered on the 1936 voters list are entitled to a vote, Balloting will commence around the middle of April. Dates for tax payments to the town are May 17, July 14, and September 15. For the benefit of a number of persons, who misunderstood a clause in the bread by-law recently passed, Mayor Cory announced that bakers in Trenton would not be charged, when the Health Officer inspected their premises but a government assessment would be made when the officer visited outside manufacturers. License fee of $1.00 is due and payable to only the merchants handling bread.

Carrying Place Hockey Banquet

In the neighborhood of seventy-five, representing the majority of the hockey clubs in the Trenton and District league gathered at the Gilbert Hotel on Monday night and enjoyed the annual dinner of the Carrying Place Hockey Club. After a mighty meal was eaten all present rose and toasted the King. Interesting addresses were made by Rev. C. J. Campbell of Grace United Church and the Rev. C. S. Deagan of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who recently came from Clinton, W. A. Fraser, M.P., officiated as chairman of the evening, introducing the speakers.

William Latour, Carrying Place, team manager, spoke briefly as did Robert Dreany, Frank Hamilton and Kenneth Davis. O. Alyea in the absence of Mr. E. M. Moore presented the Consiter Advocate trophy to the Carrying Place team, winners of the Trenton District League and Ed MacDonald of Wellington and Bert Hamilton, Trenton and District League cup to the Carrying Place. Norman Johnson, stellar right winger for Carrying Place was given the Golden Boot trophy for being the cleanest and most valued player in the Trenton loop during the season. Oster of Trenton.

FIRE

At midnight on Monday Trenton Fire Department were called to a chimney fire at Joseph McElwee's store on Bayview. Firemen extinguished the blaze soon after arrival. Another minor fire blazed within a stones throw of the fire hall was put out yesterday.

COURT

One of the briefest sessions of court ever held here took place on Saturday, when Magistrate K. J. Butler, imposed a fine of $12.50, including costs on Arthur MacDonald of Toronto for violating the Provincial Speed Law of 35 miles an hour.

Yesterday court was again extra short. Charles Wood was fined, charged with operating a motor vehicle without a permit was fined $12.50. An assault case between two local lads was enlarged for one week.

IMPROVEMENT COMMITTEE

Committee sponsoring the Home Improvement Plan held a meeting last night and it was decided that all contractors and construction tradesmen be asked to be exhibiting in the market hall on Thursday night to discuss it. Chairman O. M. Newton, chairman of the committee announced Wooler, Consecon, Brighton, Carrying Place and all other villages would be canvassed with Home Improvement propaganda.

Monthly Expenditures

During the month of March Trenton's total expenditures amounted to $11,404.26 and direct relief cost approximately $9,000, Hugh O'Rourke, chairman of the finance committee reported. An overdraft of $15,000 made from the bank at the first of the year will be wiped off if this week he said.

GENERAL SATISFACTION

The fact that there will be no strike as a result of the wage dispute is said to be a matter of mutual satisfaction on the part of the railway trades and the railways. The fact that there was compromise indicates how both sides have seen the advisability of reaching an agreement, especially at this stage in the recovery of the Dominion along with other countries from the depression.

Not only the parties to the agreement rendering a strike unnecessary, but the general public feels satisfaction that the ordinary processes of the railways and their services to the country will not be interrupted.

SPIRITUAL BALANCE SHEET

Something new in balance sheets is proposed to forecast the state of the soul for twenty years. Its proposer is the Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York. He took the occasion of Easter to remark "Easter and its teachings are only a beautiful story, a fiction, unless such a balance sheet outlining a life which shall make Christians worthy of the gift of the Resurrection is drawn up." Dr. Darlington says that the acceptance of Paul of the startling statement as to the Resurrection makes it acceptable to men and women of today, because Paul had a means of checking his facts at hand. Accordingly he writes out a challenge to humanity through the centuries, calling on them to "seek those things which are above," to be worthy of immortality.

Business without a balance sheet would be mere folly, but there seems too little thought of the fact that man's inner nature and his outward life require just such a balance sheet.

There are many who do not think of checking themselves so closely. However to most persons there is the check of desire to be decided to be worthy of man and of God, though they may fail in some of the smaller shortcomings, which really become important factors in the success or failure of life. Few persons are very bad through intent to do evil, but many fail of the greatness of vision which might be theirs if they checked themselves on the small things, the little displays of temper, their pride in the unnecessary and unworthy, the tendency to gossip, and so on.

A person drawing up a balance sheet of himself, if he did so seriously and fairly, would find many little things of which he would be ashamed because they are colouring his whole life, without a single compensation or benefit.

IF ONE DISASTER

It would seem that it is only when a fatality happens in one's own community that one feels the full force of its sweep, even if not more than one life is crushed out or maimed and only when one is in the presence of a major disaster that one feels as one did over the New London, Texas, disaster.

Yet as the New York Times points out when nearly five hundred children lost their lives in the blowing up of the school in the Texas town, the whole nation was shocked, but "scattered" disasters pass almost unnoticed. Of course the "scattered disaster" has its worst representative in the holocaust of dead on the U.S. highways and yet the mass of the people pass them by, for the very good reason that their imagination is not stirred. It is not that they are not capable of feeling and sympathy, because they are almost fatalistic in regard to accidents.

36,800 persons died in ones, twos, threes, or more, in the offering of death by the people of the United States to the gods of carelessness or recklessness, on the roadways in 1936. Canada can no more escape the bitter fact too that her roads have seen much blood spilt and many thousands maimed.

If as many persons were killed in one accident as in the year on the roads, it would be long before the wave of horror would die down. Yet almost a state of complacency and fatalism exists as to accidents. There is not the slightest doubt that persons are ready to acquiesce in the view that there will be accidents anyway. But that is not the way of reducing them. That they can be reduced is clearly enough demonstrated as campaigns are proven successes in reduction of the number of fatalities.

What is wanted is a universal appreciation of the situation which cuts right into the hearts of the people and then such tremendous losses will not be countenanced even for one day.

SPRING IN THE SOUTHLAND

They say it is spring in the Southland,
There's a balmy breath in the breeze,
The mocking bird's happily singing
And brighter the green of the trees;
But meagre the transformation
From winter to spring in this land,
For flowers all winter are blooming
With beauty on every hand.

But when springtime comes to the Northland,
A miracle seems to spring
'Neath the wand of unfolding nature,
And the earth with carols rings
Of migrants winging northward
To join in the glad re-birth,
When after the dearth of winter
Spring comes to a sleeping earth.

The young leaf-buds on the maple
Unfold with each passing hour,
And here and there in the woodland
Peeps shyly the wild-wood flower;
And streams lose their icy fetters,
The waters ripple and sing,
And the heavy of heart take courage
In the joy of returning spring.

But when Spring comes to the Southland
As it does in these mild March days,
We dream of returning Springtime
In the land where the north wind strays,
And before us rises a picture
Of a maple-shadowed shore,
Where again we hope to loiter
When our wandering days are o'er.

THIRD SUNDAY IN APRIL FOR EASTER SUNDAY has been suggested by Dr. C. A. Williams, of Parkdale Church. Dr. Williams, Easter is the festival of Spring just as Christmas is the festival of Winter", said this divine, "Why not therefore establish a definite date for the Easter festival" Williams believes that an appropriate and opportune time for the Easter Festival would be early in spring when the universal awakening and invincible resurgence of life bears eloquent and unmistakable and inevitable witness to the resurrection. "It isn't easy to get the Easter spirit where there is snow and ice on the ground; when the rude north wind is blowing half a gale and wailing like a Dempsey banshee, when there's NOT A CROCUS OR SNOWDROP TO BE SEEN OR A ROBIN OR EVEN A CROW TO BE HEARD. The present arrangement of jumping all over the map and looking for churches and for trade and travel. It frequently spoils what ought to be the happiest season in the Christian year.

"A year like this," he pointed out, "one cannot help thinking of the retail trade and small traders of our hamlets and towns who stock up with Easter hats and shoes and dresses only to be left holding the bag for maybe weeks or months and may be forever.

"Why not set Easter day for the third Sunday in April followed by a public holiday on Monday? After the long siege of our average Ontario winters every honest worker needs and deserves a little rest. Let the third Sunday in April be a holy day and the Monday a holiday."

This suggestion of Rev. Williams will meet much support, especially among those tradesmen whose gamble on fine weather for Easter entails considerable risk and frequent loss. It should also find favor among the fair sex who like to appear in the spring finery on a given date. However, there would be undoubtedly stiff opposition to any such move and mountains of objections raised as is the case when any change of out of the ordinary importance is mooted. Let's hear all the pros and cons on the subject in any event, perhaps it will lead somewhere.

ALL SHE KNEW

A school teacher asked the pupils to write a short essay and to choose their own subjects. A little girl sent in the following:

"My subjek is 'Ants'. Ants is of two kinds, insects and lady uncles.

"Sometimes they live in holes and sometimes they crawl into the sugar bole, and sometimes they live with their married sisters.

"That is all I know about ants."

TUNE IN TO THE Royal Road THE CORONATION

His first year at Osborne; in 1913 he was a mid shipman (RIGHT).

The carefree days of boyhood ended abruptly for Prince Albert when he was 13 years of age. Son of a father who loved the sea and who had graduated from the naval ranks with honors, Albert too was destined for a naval career that was to start at the bottom rung of the ladder.

In 1909, home surroundings gave way to the naval atmosphere of the naval training college at Osborne where the first principles of British seamanship were instilled into the eager mind of the prince. For seven years he was to follow the path that is trod by every up-and-coming naval man who would become part and parcel of his monarch's fleet, for the first two years at Osborne, then at Dartmouth, and later aboard ship.

There was no distinction for the royal cadet. The same strict discipline that every other naval cadet must learn was his lot, and the same demands of mental and physical energy were made. But Albert was a willing and anxious student. For the years he spent in naval training centres his ambition in life was to become an efficient naval officer. Naval's pictures depict the present king in these stages of his life, but it was not until after he had graduated to midshipman's rank.

In 1913 Albert passed from Dartmouth to the cadet ship Cumberland, which in January of 1918 began a training cruise which carried the young prince on an extended tour during which he visited Canadian and Newfoundland ports as well as the West Indies.

The engineering side of naval life, of paramount importance in modern sea tactics, absorbed the prince, but after two years he was to work on was even more eager to play. A thorough good sort" was the way his shipmates classed him, and when physical demands forced him to give up the sea career he had started, the navy was as regretful as the prince.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was having geogrifty in school and Miss Kitty was telling us about exports and imports, and just then I thawt of something I wanted to tawk to Raymin Levy about, and I turned around and we started to tawk about it just at the wrong time when Miss Kitty was looking at us, and she said, Benny Poole stand up.

With I did and she said, Strange as it may seem to you, I am not conducting this class for my own benefit. Have you the faintest idea of what I've been explaining? she said.

Yes mam, exports and imports, I said, and she said, Exports and imports, and what about them?

They're entirely different, they're just the opposite of each other, I said, and she said, Very brilliant but what was I saying about them?

You were saying different countries have different ones, such as China, I said, and Miss Kitty said, Then I have been saying it in my sleep, because I have no recollection of it. Raymin Levy stand up, she said.

With he did, and Miss Kitty said, Were you present a few moments ago when I was making a few observations about exports and imports?

Yes mam, Raymin said, and Miss Kitty said, Good, then no doubt you can explain them.

Meeting the observations, and Raymin Levy said, If it wasn't for exports nothing could get in.

A marvellous deduction, but what it happened to be saying was that exports and imports are not just empty words in a geogrifty book, they are part of the actual life of the present time, and when you read in the paper about tariffs and commercial treaties, it all comes down to exports and imports, and you and Benny will remain after school sufficiently long to write a composition about exports have great political significants three times Miss Kitty said.

Which we did feeling against it.

With flood waters calling into the eastern dykes or levees that protect the fenlands near Ely, Cambridgeshire, England, from submersion, workers piled these river barges behind breastworks in an effort to stem the flood. But Old Man River wasn't to be denied and he tossed the heavy barges aside as though they were matchwood, to continue his attack upon the dykes. As a result 15,000 additional acres were flooded. At Easter time we think of new life, particularly in the other world. We who have friends who have gone into this other world ask ourselves: What are they doing? Are they thinking of us? There are natural questions and there is an answer to every natural question that the human heart can ask. A parent who has a son or a daughter living in a distant place would naturally want to know about them. So it is with this question.

This question can be answered by a study of various incidents in the Bible; the rich man and Lazarus, Jesus and the penitent thief, Jesus

BROWN—LAUCHLAND

Madoc (Special) — Calla lilies graced the altar of St. Mary's Anglican Church, Madoc, at 2 p.m. on Saturday evening, March 20th, when Marjorie Irene Lauchland of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lee Lauchland became the bride of Kenneth Preston Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brenton S. Brown. A floral arrangement of spring flowers adorned the chancel and on the pew ends were placed clusters of daffodils and greenery. Daffodils embodied in greenery also outlined the window.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in white satin, fashioned in the Empire lines. Yoke effect in front with high soft cowl back with pointed collar effect at the back. The sleeves fastened the gown to the waistline. Falling in a straight line from a fitted bodice, the fullness in the skirt gathered all its fullness in the back in a very graceful style as the skirt gave added fullness which flowed in long graceful folds to the train. Sleeves which were shirred from the shoulder to the elbow were fitted over the hands. Her filmy veil was of the French net caught to the back of the head with orange blossoms forming a miniature coronet. A lace veil was worn during the ceremony. A lovely shower bouquet of Calla lilies and gardenias and white roses was carried.

A reception followed at the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, the bride's table centred with the wedding cake which was topped with a lily of the valley bouquet. Vases filled with spring flowers and fern further enhanced the setting. Mrs. Lauchland was gowned in sapphire crepe with lace introduced into the front and back of the bodice and in the sleeves. With this was worn a cape of moleskin, large grey hat and a bouquet of flowers. Mrs. Brown chose imported black lace out on Princess line, en train. A handsome cape of summer ermine was worn and a corsage of Persian roses.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Brown left for their wedding journey to California, the bride travelling in a light weight tailored suit. The jacket was finger-tip length and the skirt cut on straight lines. Blue fox fur was used as trimming on the finger coat enclosing the throat and extending down each side to the hem. A navy Breton sailor was fashioned of felt with a straw crown. Accessories were navy and an orchid corsage was pinned to the coat lapel. The bride was of hyacinth blue lace tied at the neckline.

Mrs. Brown is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Dale of Madoc, her mother, Mrs. Lauchland, formerly being Miss Sis Dale.

PRESENTATION

On Tuesday evening, March 23rd, about fifty friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. John Spencer gathered at their home on Fourth Concession of Sidney to spend a social evening with them before they departed for their new home in Thurlow Township.

After some time spent in games and social intercourse, Mr. F. J. Wilkie called the company to order and asked Mr. Spencer to please step to the platform in a central place while Miss Marguerite Shorey presented Mr. and Mrs. Spencer with a sum of money.

The following is the address:

To Mr. and Mrs. John Spencer,

Dear friends:

We have come here tonight on our own invitation, but judging from past experience with you, we know we are welcome.

We have heard that you are leaving our neighborhood and while we hope the change is for your advantage, we want you to know that we will miss you very much from our community's life and, no matter who occupies the house in the corner, they can't fill the place in our community which is being left vacant when you leave.

You have been good neighbors and faithful friends, always ready to help wherever help was needed.

In times of sickness you were especially efficient in every way, both visiting and with gifts of flowers and also at harvest time, when Mr. Spencer scoured the neighborhood with his cheery call, reminding us that work was necessary if we were to have food for winter. Times without number you have proved to us the truth of the old adage, "A friend in need is a friend indeed."

We would now ask you to accept this gift, not for its intrinsic value, but as a slight token of our regard for you and to remind you of the friends you are leaving in Sidney Township and especially those of the Third and Fourth Concessions who will be glad to welcome you to their homes whenever you come back.

Signed on behalf of the friends and neighbors, Elton Shorey, Will Sine.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer both made suitable replies, thanking the friends for their gift and inviting them all to visit them in their new home in Thurlow, and all joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows". Lunch was then served and the remainder of the evening was spent in games and social intercourse.

Inaugural Meeting of St. Paul's Laymen's Association

Stirling—The first official meeting of the newly formed St. Paul's Laymen's Association was held on Monday evening in the Church Parlours and took the form of a banquet. Rev. Dr. Kent, Principal of College of Theology of Queen's University, was the guest speaker, giving an historian's view of present day conditions in Europe in one of the finest addresses heard within the village for some time. Mr. T.W. Holmes, president of the organization, presided over the meeting.

The gaily decorated tables bedecked with lovely flowers of the Easter season and bearing the color scheme of St. Patrick's Day were attended in a very efficient manner by the ladies of St. Paul's Women's Association who provided the fine dinner. Mr. R. A. Patterson led in lively community singing with Mr. D. L. Chute presiding at the piano. The guest speaker was introduced to the gathering by Rev. W. J. Scott.

Rev. Mr. Kent

Speaking on present conditions in Europe, this distinguished orator revealed through Wasteful review of history that the turmoil and strife of that country was not a result of the World War but rather the natural turmoil of humid nature when one race continually crowds another. We hear people say, "let them fight if they want to, we'll stay out of it," but such statements are thoughtless and display our meagre knowledge of progress toward international peace. To-end war we must find its cause and work from there, remove the cause of war and it will be no more. But taking arms away from nations will not end war, men will continue to fight for their existence. Down through the ages the movement of the human race has been Westward and the westward movement of Europeans stopped at the Atlantic where they took their stand to fight for the right to live there if necessary.

He compared heavily armed Nations to police officers who maintain Law and Order just by being in their place. Sir officers in a city can maintain order but remove them and the thieves will break in. We of the new world should look upon the people of Europe with sympathy. We have wide unexplored area to which we may go if we dislike our present surroundings. An English speaking race dominates the American Continent and reflects prejudice and misunderstanding. The Church of Jesus Christ may take a real active part in the establishment of World Peace by simply living up to that thing for which she exists. The Greek Catholic Church of Russia might have changed the entire history of the nation which uprooted and cast it away. The Church bowed to the state in the time of Peter the Great and the result was rejection by the revolutionists. What Russia might have been today had the Church accepted its responsibility is hard to say but there would have been no sacrificing of life and personal liberties on the part of many. The church preaching and teaching brotherly kindness and peace to all men is the greatest factor for world peace. Disarmament will never accomplish it, there must be the forward desire for it and a spirit of generosity displayed on the part of war torn nations toward her erstwhile enemies. Thanks to the speaker for this very enlightening address were expressed fittingly by Mr. C. A. Wilkie, Vice President.

Though the organization of the Association began less than a month ago more than fifty-five members have already been enrolled and the activities of the organization will be watched with great interest in the future. The meeting closed with the National Anthem and Benediction by Rev. W. J. Scott.

The regular weekly meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Society was postponed until Tuesday of this week owing to the Laymen's Dinner and held on Tuesday evening.

'MATRIC'

course aimed at employment in industry, agriculture or art; a household arts course, highly specialized chiefly for girls; commercial course, for those entering business life. Simpson announced abandonment of lower, middle and upper school examinations. Numbering of grades will start in public schools and carried from grade one to grade thirteen in high schools. Grade thirteen will be equivalent to "first year up" school with a greater selective course.

Night System.

The aim was to provide in a single system of secondary school education "courses of study which will meet the requirements of the universities on the one hand and on the other provide an adequate training for boys and girls whose formal education proceeds no further," said the minister.

First year subjects will be common in all secondary schools, including English, History, Mathematics, Geography, Health, Writing, Mathematics, Elementary Science, French, Basic Core Practice, Shop Work or Household Science and Music and Art.

He explained introduction of household science was to give girls opportunity to learn home duties and skill they would require in later years as well as to encourage those who were not learning this science in the home.

Student to Choose.

After the first year it will be up to the pupil to choose what course of life will have the chance of learning. Latin and some mathematics may not stop continue manual work or household science. English, social sciences and health education will be stressed in third and fourth years with right choice of science, mathematics, modern languages, music and art.

Dr. Simpson said at the end of two years intermediate certificates will be given pupils not going on to carry on while secondary school graduation diplomas, equivalent to present matriculation certificates, will be given at the fourth year.

Thanks Examiners, Judgelary.

In grade thirteen one subject will be dropped from the list of those for which education. A student will be able to return for this year and take the grade if he desires to learn other college.

Students now enrolled would complete their courses under the present system but he was glad he hoped the revised curricula would be introduced in practice next fall at secondary schools.

More education along spiritual lines was the aim, said Rev. Canon G. A. Wheable, London, Ont., schools superintendent, under the inspectorate division. Greater share of religious and character-building education was necessary to fight the increasing crime among children.

Independence of Grants.

W. J. Cunningham, Simcoe County treasurer speaking for County Council section, suggested municipalities assume full responsibility for schools with the province making only over-hospitalization costs as secondary and public schools are now fully dependent of government grants.

Hon. Harry C. Leslie, Ontario Minister of Mines, told the Separate School section, Separate Schools have played a big part in the struggle of fruitless to operate the schools without them. The law allowed pupils came forth "as good citizens as pupils from other schools."

Education of Adults.

Joseph Sheehy in his presidential address to the separate school section urged a fight against Communism and Communism by instilling in children Christian principles. Hon. Albert C. J. Drieard of Sarnia considered education of adults as important as public schools. He said that Christian teaching in elementary schools, colleges and universities must be said, must be taught to help the youth of the day.

Politicians may be good Christians at home, but as soon as they take their seats in the legislature they worship another god—party-politics, said Mr. Drieard.

Democracy of State.

"It's not much wonder that young men are drifting to Communism," declared Mr. Drieard. "It holds out the hope that the workers will be the president that it's an Shinboleth but they have not. That after all 'no help wanted' signs for months on end.

Democracy was at stake, he maintained. What were governments doing? Were they helping people? Was not a Communist. I don't fear that way," he assured. "But I fear Communism. "It's as seen so many of our young men aimlessly searching for work.

President Bouvier remarked the separate school section had decided at the last Ontario legislature session, "tell short of our expectations." The legislature of separate school tax not reapportioning corporation taxes among separate and public schools.

Toronto Named.

R. F. Downey, Kitchener, said Thrumlo had become the Communist centre of the Dominion. He said the C.C.F. was the movement to "stand shoulder to shoulder against these subversive elements."

Dr. C. I. Christie, principal of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph told the public school department lack of home training was largely responsible for the Ontario Reformatory riots Jan. 17. He said children often went to school because their mothers remained in bed after staying up most of the night.

Restoration of the annual schedule of increase for normal and model school teachers was announced by Dr. Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education. These were suspended in 1931 and he expressed the hope restoration would soon be complete. It not completed under plan of adequate salaries.

W. J. Salter of St. Catharines was elected president for 1937 of O.E.A. for the coming year with Dr. G. C. McNab, Guelph, vice-president.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"More Than a Secretary"; "Original"; "Here Comes the Circus"

"More than a Secretary", romantic comedy-drama of city beauty and her bean fed boss starring Jean Arthur and Jack Oakie, opened the new Bill coming to the Belle Theatre on Thursday and Friday, matinee daily.

Supporting the principals is the hand-picked cast of radio favorites as Lionel Stander, Ruth Donnelly, Reginald Denny, Dorothea Kent, Charles Halton and others. The production was directed by Alfred E. Green from an original story by Matt Taylor.

"More than a Secretary", continues in the glorified traditions of "It Happened One Night" and "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" produced by the Columbia studios responsible for this latest screen epic, and tells of the exploits of a bespectacled, prim proprietress of a business school, who is forced to take a position as private secretary to the editor of a health magazine, a volleyball addict.

What happens when the two undergo a mutual humanizing treatment provides the comedy theme on which the amusing situation and sparkling dialogue are based.

"Outcast" Timely Picture

A stirring drama of a woman's fight for justice and the fury of a mob whipped into frenzy by small-town bigotry brings to the screen of the Belle, Hearn Screen Journal now and Friday, in the associate feature "Outcast", with Edith Fellows made from Frank R. Adams' novel "Happiness Preferred".

Gloria Berry is the story of a physician who is acquitted of a murder charge after the dramatic "dead" patient had been found dead under suspicious circumstances. Miss Berry's character him guilty of murder. She catches up with him in a small mountain village where he has taken refuge. There, through the testimony of the "dead" man, proves the physician's innocence and falls in love with him but before she can tell him of her love, he is taken back to face trial for murder. The role of physician is one of the finest Miss Berry has ever had and he handles it with fine feeling and portrayal. Double Knowledge

The C.C.F. leader suggested the Minister's declaration could not be discussed with the 1926 in Samia early in March when a six-hour strike was attempted. Mr. Lapointe denied that was declared. He said nothing of the Samia affair other than what had been in the newspapers.

"All democratic people, the labor and the employer, the political man and public man should join hands in fighting to spread the right kind of education throughout Canada," said Mr. Lapointe.

"The purpose of this organization would be to preserve the democratic state in Canada.

"To combat Communism and Fascism and to counteract the reactionary activities of all subversive and revolutionary forces which seek to overthrow the democratic state by force and violence.

"To guard the religious heritage of Canada from the protogonists of foreign and alluded doctrines to assist the state in every lawful way to the end that Canada may remain a place of safety, that the welfare of her citizens and their wives and children be guarded and that peace, order and good government may prevail throughout the Dominion."

"Peace, order and good government?" interrupted Opposition Leader Hepburn.

"By this government," continued Mr. Lapointe. "I think such a method would be much more effective than the use of guns, prisons and other articles."

Talk: Co-operation

"I am quite willing to try to get such an organization started in Canada and I have my friend (Mr. Woodsworth) will join in fighting against that which he protests. Those who believe in order, religion and liberty make the best bulwark against Communism. There are more effective than prisons."

Mr. Lapointe, in reply to Mr. Lapointe said, whether or not Mr. Stavisky favored the left or right-wing strike policy. Such procedure was illegal. "I don't think he took any I say it again, I could not say otherwise," he declared. He had no knowledge of the Stavisky Montreal strike which was necessarily a personal matter. He said the Minister in the House had no relation to this happening.

He had never concealed his attitude toward Communists, the Minister said. "I am absolutely opposed to everything they teach" he declared. "I am against them from every point of view, moral, religious and everything else."

HAD RHEUMATIC PAINS for 25 YEARS

His Arms Were Becoming Useless

It was about 25 years ago that rheumatism first forked down this sufferer; and finally the day came when he could hardly lift his arms. He found relief—but in this letter he tells the whole story:—

"About 25 years ago I first commenced slight muscular rheumatism in my arm and shoulder. A few years later lumbago also attacked me. They gradually got worse until I could not lift my arms and sciatica. I could not lift a parful of coal to carry into my stove. I suffered straight out. About 12 months ago I bought a bottle of Kruschen Salts and by the time it was finished I was agreeably surprised at a slight improvement. I bought another and when that was finished all the pain had disappeared, and has never appeared since."—F. H.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently caused by deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in stimulating the internal organs to healthy, regular action and help them to eliminate this excess uric acid.

few were opposed to Communism, but they had to fight it was by removing causes of discontent.

Mr. Lapointe said the Minister "to have justice meted out to all equally, the poor and the rich, the humble the same as those who are powerful.

Hatred Not Means

"If Communism is bad it must be fought with something that is better. Hatred will not eliminate Communism.

The Minister opposed making "martyrs" of Communists by sending them to jail.

"Who had heard of Tim Buck before he was put in jail?" he asked.

Nevertheless the laws had to be observed and violators would be prosecuted.

PLOT TO SEIZE

(Advices received by the Continental Daily Mail in Paris said 110 executions had been carried out in Spanish Gondola. The pan who were shot in two, groups—fifty at one time and the remainder at a subsequent time—had been part of 400 suspects rounded up by Fascists.

More than 100 high-ranking officers, most of them belonging to the air force, were said to have been implicated in the plot which was seemingly discovered at the start of Spanish Morocco and the southern tip of European Spain.

The revolt, which was nipped only a few days before the conspirators were ready to strike, was said to have been scheduled for April 3, it was learned by observers.

The plot, the Spanish government says, was engineered by generals disclosed by an officer of the Italian Air Force stationed at Melilla.

The Civil War in Spain is counter-revolution was to have been the arrest of Colonel Juan Beigbeder Y Atenas, the insurgent high commissioner and his staff.

Then, throughout next week-end, the revolters' position would have been consolidated by further seizures of railroad stations and public services throughout the country.

The Daily Mail reports said the conspirators planned to make the flag of the Madrid-Valencia government while a squad of 50 pilots seized the Madrid airport. Government reports and bombed all military centres including the aerodrome at Tetuan.)

Reports reaching here said the basic reason for the plot against the Franco regime was dissatisfaction with the conduct of the war, delay in paying salaries and discontent over the conduct of affairs in Spanish Morocco.

Spanish Legge Guns.

Apparently because of the revolt across the Straits of Gibraltar, insurgents said the Spanish legge guns have mounted four large-calibre naval defense guns at the narrow pass between Algeciras and Tarifa on the mainland.

The guns, implaced in the centre of the area on the mainland where mass executions had been reported in connection with the Moroccan plot, were believed to have been rushed into position to repeat a possible invasion from Spanish Morocco in the event the revolt failed successful in crushing the conspiracy. The big guns were trained on across the straits and toward Gibraltar.

Insurgent authorities at Tetuan, in telephone conversations with Casablanca, declared they denied there had been any revolt there. The officers declared that when asked what trouble there had been in Tetuan they could give no explanation of a several hours' interruption in communications which had strengthened reports of the uprising.)

Flying Habitants Force Series Into Fifth and Final Game by Defeating Detroit Red Wings

Wilf Cude, Brilliant in Goal With Defence Rock-like

FAVORED TO WIN

Detroit Goalie, Norm Smith, Definitely Out For Season With Arm Injury

By SIDNEY GRUSON

Montreal, Mar. 31 (CP) — The underdog of yesterday became the favorite of today as the surprising Montreal Canadiens had an edge in the betting for the first time in their combined National Hockey League championship-Stanley Cup semi-final playoff against Detroit Red Wings. . . .

Opportunists offensively, great defensively, Canadiens scored their second straight 3-1 victory over the Wings last night to even the series at two games each and pave the way for the possible making of hockey history Thursday night.

Then, if the Flying Frenchmen win again, they will be the first team to win the National League championship after dropping the first two games. They lost twice at Detroit, 4-0 and 5-1.

Wilfrid (Wilf) the Vezina Trophy goaltender who suffered an arm injury Saturday night, definitely was out of the fifth game. That, and the amazing fighting spirit of the Canadiens, was one of the chief reasons for the switch in betting odds.

The world-champion Wings missed Pudge Norton last night. Not because his substitute, Earl Robertson of the Pittsburgh-Detroit Americans, played badly, but because Canadien Wilf Cude played brilliantly. Cude's work was needed to balance the edge Dude gave the Frenchmen.

Two Goals in 15 Minutes.

Canadiens shot two goals past Robertson in the first 15 minutes, by Joe Blake and Paul Haynes, and got a third from Jeffy Deslisle late in the second period after Syd Howe had cut the early margin in half with a solo effort.

They never were threatened seriously in the final 20 minutes. The forwards checked ceaselessly. The defencemen, especially the pair of Babe Siebert, and Walter Buswell were incisive, and Cude was in great form.

Cude, perhaps, saved the game in the second period when Marty Barry's scrull smashed at him close up. Instead of trying to block the shot, Cude cold from 10-foot range. But both times the puck bounced off Wilf and managed either to stop or deflect the puck.

Canadiens' defence made but one mistake all night—on Howe's goal. Siebert had been given a rest for Cude and Buswell and Bill McKenzie were protecting the Reds. Boys worked just Buswell, then McKenzie before shooting a rising shot high into the net. Siebert, Cude and Buswell, the game after that, and there were no more mistakes.

The big defenceman also assisted on two of the goals. He teamed with Legine on Blake's and with Haynes on Deslets' goal. Johnny Gagnon provided the passcut for Haynes' tally.

CHIPS from the SPORT BLOCK

OLD and NEW

By George H. Carver.

Tonight is the night of the battle of the "confident" Eddie Thomas' Redmen, confident that they will bring home the interscholastic "P" bacon in two straight, left for Niagara Falls early today brimming over with confidence and certain to draw sticks with the same Mountaineers from the fastnesses of Thorold, who are equally confident that yedels of victory from Mountaineer fan throats will echo through the Falls ice emporium. . . . It won't be for lack of moral or vocal support if the Mountaineers fail to defeat the visiting Redmen this evening. . . . Any body of hilarious and rabid sports of men who dig down in the jeans and produce the shekels to finance a hockey broadcast when their boys are on the figurative spot, and then go to bed jack-of-the-clock they are playing in the home diggings. . . . And especially if the game goes down. . . . Belleville may tie the hockey on the table of the Mountaineers, but the lads and gals behind the team up to the fruit jars can show some spunk to the local fans when tonsilar and other supports are needed. . . .

Vinny Urondi, erstwhile fly-shagger and sweatsmith of the defunct Belleville COSSIERS, is in a perfect state of fluster this week. . . . In a letter to Cy Young, he says the scenery in Florida is fine, peaches grow in the orchards in the fall, and the streets are clean all year round. . . . "Am working in Merrition and living in St. Kitts", writes Vinny in a wild moment. "Only left Merritton holding the bag when the sagging and sacking had been completed. . . .

Dan Parker, New York sports writer, puts Connie Smythe and Chuck Conacher on the pan with an outburst of journalistic sarcasm. . . . Said Dan Broadway gents melieder ansni Smythe;

"As if it wasn't enough for his team to lose the game, Connie Smythe, the Compah of Ontario, also lost his hat in the fracas. Smythe does most of his orating through his chapeau, Dan continued, for his speeches. Hearing of this people gathered from miles around to see the lone miracle of the Pollette Pamythe."

And as further stuffing for the already over-gorged Quebec hockey fans, Dan takes the Conacher journalistic efforts in a Toronto newspaper for a whirl-around. Says he: Now hear what Dapper Dan, the Toronto Star's ace, has assigned to cover a sports event in Toronto: Enlisted in the campaign, he decided to be made Chief Write-em-up in an Italian Tribe upon his arrival in Canada, and nearly ralloed when he saw modern buildings, and the sports scene an up-to-date affair instead instead of a clearing in the woods, saith:

"Toronto might have pushed the third-place playoffs to three games had not its star, Charley Conacher left his game in the press box. Ever since a Toronto publicist engaged Charley to write a hockey column for him, the younger brother's always been splitting too many infinitives and not enough defense duos. He has been taking shots with his typewriters instead of with his stick. However, defeat was not without its sweet fruits for Charley. Though vanquished on the rink, he triumphed in the ink."

CHIPLETS

Two chicker players battled 110 minutes to a draw the other evening. . . . The quickest moves they made occurred when the game was over and they left for home. . . . The wisecrack of the Maroon-Bruin playoff series broke in Montreal the other evening following an announcement that fancy skaters would appear between periods. . . . "Tell Art Ross to sign 'em up", yelled a torrid Montreal fan. . . . A Spanish farmer laments the fact that his farm has lose 25 per cent of their laying power following an earthquake. . . . Seems like a case of professional jealousy. . . . Maple Leaf Gardens, sometimes referred to as the chose champ, doesn't like the publicity some American sports writers have been giving him. . . . "Them guys is makin' me out dumber than Elmo Lincy Tarzlay," he blurted indignantly yesterday, "and that ain't possible. . . . why ain't nobody in the whole world dumber than that herring huckster. What the h——. Ain't my English better as his?" . . . "Sure," soothed a nearby peacemaker, "what they mean is that your L. Q. is mining two. Personally I think you are a movie of the first water." . . . Maxie beamed his delight. . . . "That's what I like to hear—compliments," he grinned. . . . Speaking of Rosenbloom reminds us of the parody on "Love In Bloom" penned by Dan Parker of the Mirror, Harrison, N.Y. Maxie's first night fiancee. . . . It started this way: "Can it be a sickness, that fills the room with such a heavy odor of perfume? Oh, no, it isn't a cheese, it's Rosenbloom." Finale: . . . Puts a gent with long whiskers just cause into the office and informs us that he will roll a peanut up the Hoke Quixte steps with his chin if the Redmen are licked tonight.

CHECKER TITLE WON BY TRAVIS

Kingston Player Wrests Crown From A. W. Fitzgerald, Toronto

Jack Travis, youthful Kingston exponent of the art of checker-playing in his first attempt to win the checker championship of Eastern Ontario, successfully wrested the H. S. Collier Trophy emblematic of the Eastern Ontario checker championship, from A. W. Fitzhall, Trenton, Ont., champion for the past two years, at the Belleville Y.M.C.A. last night. Travis won the championship in the consolation money prize.

After a two-day and a half the players entered upon the final round of the tournament late last night. Travis, the youngest player of those that consisted of each of the 16 participants playing two games with every other participant, Fitzhall, veteran Trenton player, emerged in the championship. Mr. Travis second. Mr. J. Rolston of Picton was third and Mr. J. Johnston of Picton, fourth. In the first six of Picton, Ont., the players came the previous champion, Mr. Fitzhall, while Mr. Rolston eliminated Mr. Johnston. In the final games for the H. S. Collier Cup, however, Jack Travis defeated J. Rolston two consecutive games to claim the championship. Mr. Travis participated in checker championship in his first year of competition.

The tournament opened at the Belleville Y.M.C.A. early Monday and continued throughout the week when play was discontinued until last night. Throughout when the preliminary rounds were completed and the play-offs began to finish late last night. The participants were Jack Travis, Kingston, A. W. Fitzhall and S. Ada, Trenton, J. Livingstone, J. Johnson and J. Rolston, Picton, and C. Pelton, "B" class tournament was played during the tournament, but no prizes were awarded. Mr. Livingstone participated in the Eastern Ontario checker tournament this year.

SIMON-PURES ARE STEALING SCENES WITH FINE PLAY

Arguments Fly Thick And Fast Respecting Venues of Games

VOLANTS ON SPOT

Copper Cliff Opens Final Eastern Series at Ottawa

Dominion hockey fans have become more conscious of the amateurism this spring than at any time in recent years. Professional playoffs have occupied most of the stage in other seasons but this time the simon-pures and their directors are stealing a few scenes.

Perhaps not realizing their success, leaders in the senior and junior races are making a pretty fair show of the job done by the home stretch. Arguments are flying thick and fast and many an addict of the pro game has begun to take there's some-thing-else important going on.

It all started months ago when senior finals were awarded to Calgary. That opened controversy regarding the effect the added air of the foothills would have on the eastern sections of the Allan Cup. The prairies are without a professional league and therefore lack the only eastern city represented in the money playoffs now, so the chances in the same could be rated as gained volume.

To Play In Montreal.

Members of Quebec Aces and Hull Volants—and team managers—have been too busy to worry about whether the Calgary atmosphere would be a handicap. Throughout their season semi-finals other controversy has raged. Today it seemed certain they would decide the issue of the series tonight before a big crowd, the winner meeting Calgary for the right to go west.

A Quebec goal that won the second game was disputed and the contest was thrown out, and replayed, Aces coming through again to take the series. The Quebec management threatened legal action to prevent the final game being played at Montreal but the arguments over the locale cooled off at an Ottawa meeting last night. Meanwhile wide interest had been created in tonight's conflict.

The west is disconcerted because

Perth, Ont., Mar. 31 (CP)—Perth Royals, Ont., Canada-American Baseball League intend to play two games of their league games in Perth and three in Watertown, N.Y., each week, Dr. K. G. Hayward told a meeting here last night.

He said an invitation had been received from the Chamber of Commerce of Watertown, not a member of the league, for Perth to play a number of games in that town during the season.

The Perth club, which will be a farm team for Buffalo Bisons of the International League, has signed 22 players and will train in Ridgetown, N.J. All last year's players are under contract excepting outfielder Lloyd Barnes, Steve York last season's coach, will handle the team again this year.

The Belleville Redmen left for Niagara Falls by motor car early this morning, there not being sufficient fans available to assure the proposed special train. Before leaving Manager Thomas stated he was taking his entire roster to the Falls and would not decide the exact starting team until game time, but undoubtedly there will only be one change, if any. Cy Savage may replace Ross Burley on the second line. Savage has been with the team all season, only being out of the Bulleti series and the first game of the finals versus Thorold. The Redmen seemed quite confident they could cop the honours in two straight and are being back to Belleville the first immediate O.H.A. championship ever won by this city. If they are victorious tonight the city band and the entire populace should be out to welcome the Redmen upon their triumphant return. . . .

The local Kiwanis Club will sponsor a junior baseball team in Belleville again this year. Already negotiations to have the Kiwanis Club included in a district league are under way and should the club in Belleville is to be without senior baseball this summer, the setting up of a league will be afforded some diamond sport through the medium of a junior team. We also understand Eddie Thomas has been approached relative to entering a team from Belleville in the Lake Shore interscholastic loop, but further outside observations we would think the organizing of a team in that league would be almost impossible due to the absences of a senior team, however. On the other hand President Roy Dodge of Cobourg is having his own ideas in regard to forming the Lake Shore loop this spring, we understand. A league to embrace the Kiwanis Clubs in the area mentioned, the baseball moguls inform us. . . .

When a cyclone or tornado strikes a building next door it is to the ground, there is only one thing left, start at the foundation to reconstruct. This is exactly what the exacting question baseball has come to in this city, a cyclone of some description dealt it a severe blow and only a foundation has been left with which to commence the reconstruction. The foundation is there, it is the game itself. If the fans will support a junior team this season and the reconstruction for a year, we have reason to believe there are sufficient baseball-minded fans in Belleville to once again sponsor a senior club, but this season of educating junior players must be carried out and the players who are aspiring to become seniors another year must practice hard and with regularity in order to attain senior qualifications. In past years Belleville produced winning senior clubs on the ground from horseshoe talent and can repeat this process again, but it will take time. . . .

A new champion was crowned in Belleville yesterday afternoon. Jack Travis, youthful manipulator of the ivory on the checker-board, was the lone unbeaten and unsung champion, decisively defeating A. W. Fitzhall of Trenton, the former champion two hours afternoon and evening. Jack took first honors from the interested players from around the surrounding district, and will hold the checker players are not sufficient-ly interested in the art to compete with players from small centres like Trenton and Picton?

Some said it couldn't be done, but Les Canadiens got to rout that saying in fine style when they crossed the N.H.L. play-offs with a 3 to 1 victory over the Detroit Redwings last night. Of course the Wings are handicapped through the loss of their all-star goalie, Norm Smith, but the Frenchmen are now even-Stephen with Jack Adams' squad and it has all the markings of a "nickle world's series" for the Stanley Cup finals. The Maroons look pretty dead to take the Rangers while the Canadiens are in the running over the Wings, so we may yet see the Stanley Cup finals played right in Montreal.

FARMERS URGED TO FARM BETTER BY G. B. ROTHWELL

Pre-Sale Banquet of Holstein Friesian Club a Gala Affair

SPLENDID ADVANCE

Speaker Praises U. K. And U.S. Trade Pacts With Canada

The problems and handicaps of the Canadian farmer and producer, and suggested remedial measures to raise the produce of the farmers and agriculture of this country to a competitive marketing par with those of other countries with less difficulties to overcome, together with a bright note of optimism for the future of Canadian cattle-breeders and farmers in general, formed the keynote of a highly interesting address given by Mr. George B. Rothwell, head of the Animal Husbandry Branch of the Dominion Government Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, to fifty members of the Belleville and District Holstein-Friesian Club at their annual pre-sale banquet held in the Belvidere Hotel last night.

The upward trend from the slough of the depression was pointed out by the speaker in the facts that there is a different budget system in the Dominion; less unemployment, increased exports all along the line; an increase in revenue of fifty million dollars in the past fiscal year; the strength of Canadian mines, commodity prices are soaring; as evidenced in the present price of wheat, cattle prices are up and the tourist trade which has developed into one of Canada's greatest assets is as yet untouched.

Industry Raising Wages

"Every great industrial concern in the country is raising its wage scale," declared Mr. Rothwell, "not from humanitarian feelings but from the fear of sit-down strikes. For where there are strikes you will find signs of returning prosperity."

"International agreements played an important part in the return to more prosperous days," he said. "The Imperial agreement of five years ago was one of the brightest lights in the history of Agriculture. Following the U.S.-Canada pact, we shipped 200,000 cattle to the U.S.A."

The Dominion Department of Agriculture is doing its best to further these agreements Mr. Rothwell continued. "It is pushing the new marketing service in which every effort will be made to find markets, and methods to facilitate the producers of the country in getting at them. Other of our own people in other countries will look after our interests. In other words, agriculturists of Canada, the country will look after the Canadian farmer in foreign parts.

"A sure sign of returning prosperity is the fact that right now we have a small surplus on hand. As one economist said 'when we have developed a surplus of everything, it is caused by under consumption, and not over production.' By and by people will buy a little more, and eat a little more and in so doing will waste a little more. This will affect the primary producers in the country, It is a ray of hope that I feel we are quite safe in taking."

Turning to the handicaps under the Canadian farmer, Mr. Rothwell stated that these were, distance and the cost of transportation of produce; cost of entrance into our standard of living; depreciation of currency and government subsidies to various countries.

Urged to Face Better

"What weapon have we got to counteract these things?" he asked. "We must face our difficulties that other countries have not got. To do that we must farm a little better, raise better stock and above all be an export country, if not we won't go far. We can't do much in a country like Canada with her 11 millions of people."

"Summing up the situation," said the speaker, "I think we are on the definite upcurve. As my father once said to me, 'You can lose faith in everything, but don't lose faith in the land'. He was right. I would like to be young once again for in my opinion the next twenty years will be the most interesting period ever experienced in the history of Canadian Agriculture.

Speaking of his experiences in early days in Eastern Ontario, Mr. Rothwell stated that then the Belleville district was ranked as the parliament cricke as productive of the finest cows in Canada. "It is almost a shame to sell a cow if you want good cows, go to Belleville."

Referring to the development of good cattle, the speaker stated department officials purchased ordinary cattle and by dint of care, good feeding and handling made them producing records. "If we could do it then, why can't a good farmer do it now," he added.

Sought New Breed

"But what we did find out was the fact that under a forced system of feeding several breeds would not stand prosperity. After all some cows are like men. If they can stand prosperity, they are good specimens. But these cattle just got fat and forgot to produce milk. Then we bought a bull from the U.S.A. and found the breed that would stand prosperity. And if anyone wants to find a machine which will turn his feed and labor into money he will not do better than to drift back to the black and white breed."

Mr. George Clemens of Brantford, Secretary-Treasurer of the Holstein Breeders' Association of Canada spoke briefly of the advancement made by the organization in the past few years. He paid a tribute to their efficiency of the staff and system. American organizations, he said, operating on a losing money basis, sent delegations to Brantford to study the Canadian system, and ultimately adopted it with gratifying results.

Short addresses were given by R. M. Holtby, Fred Wester and representatives of counties in the district. A vote of thanks to the Kyles speaker was moved by Mr. F. Trevarton. Interspersing the speeches the fine voice of Mr. Harold Barrett was heard in several vocal numbers, with Bud Haines at the piano. Mayor Harper occupied the honoro made an able chairman for the occasion, with Mr. Fred Blake of Bloomfield introducing the guest speaker in his usual capable manner.

HARVESTING AGAIN FOR MAPLE SUGAR INDUSTRY

Sap's running! To some 50,000 farmers in eastern Canada this means that a crop of about 2,000,000 in short to be realized. Over 94,000,000 of the 70,000,000 maple trees in Canada, Quebec and the Maritimes will be tapped this spring and their "liquid gold" gathered in huge oak barrels. The average annual per capita production of maple products, according to government officials, is three gallons (nine pounds of sugar) 2.3 lbs. The average per capita export is 1.4 lbs., while 1.9 lbs. is average yearly consumption of 1.5 lbs. of sugar per person in Canada. This, by-the-way, is a rather discouraging figure, except to the general impression that maple sugar and syrup are a veritable staple in the Canadian diet.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to go

The liver should pour into the bowels a pint of bile fluid each day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food just decays in the bowels. Gas forms and stops you up. You get constipated. Bad breath comes. Your whole body feels punk and you feel sunk. Everything you eat sours.

A mere laxative only relieves the bowels for a few hours. You need something that will get on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Dr. Carter's Little Liver Pills to put them into action. Dr. Carter's Little Liver Pills are purely vegetable. They start the bile flowing and make you feel like new. They do the work of calomel, but are gentle as violets over them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. Big

FINANCE RECORD OF PICTON SOUND

Compares Most Favorably With Towns Between 4,000 And 5,000

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

An accumulation of buying orders developed over the extended holiday with the result that many issues, particularly the newsprints, moved into new high territory. In connection with the "paper" group, the speculative public are discounting the anticipated and indicated higher earnings of next year considerably ahead of the immediate future, interest will be centred in the recreational progress of Abitibi Power and Paper.

From Government quarters in Quebec it is announced that the Asbestos Corporation has brought into effect an increase in the wages of its employees and that this increase amounts to between 26 and 30 per cent. This will mean that the improvement being experienced by the Quebec asbestos industry.

Several points in connection with the annual statement of McColl-Frontenac are worth mentioning. Results of 45 cents a share are disappointing when it is considered that in the previous year the earnings were equivalent to $1.16 a share. Nevertheless, with the 12 months ending January 31, 1937, McColl-Frontenac reports an increase in sales, both in dollars and gallonage, but lower profits due to higher costs for crude oil supplies, and the price cutting which has established products averaged throughout Canada during 1936 as compared with 1935.

Dominion Stores continues to report increased periodical sales and indications are that the company this year will show earnings on its outstanding stock for the first time since 1934. The strong financial position of the company will enable directors to make a distribution on the common earlier than would otherwise be the case.

In view of the somewhat disappointing results of McColl-Frontenac, the forthcoming annual reports of such companies as Imperial Oil and British American Oil will be awaited with considerable interest.

H. S. PRINCIPALS WILL ORGANIZE

Organization is Approved in Principle by Section of O. E. F.

Toronto, Mar. 31 (CP)—An organization for high school principals, including a principle in public high school principals section of the Ontario Educational Federation, was approved in principle by high school principals section of the O. E. F. today.

Three regional meetings to lay plans for the organization will be held this fall.

Principal F. A. Miller, London Central Collegiate, reporting for a committee considering the organization, said the high school principals should have some voice in changes to be made in the secondary school system. It was one thing to propose changes and another to put them into effect.

Modest Ambitions.

Principal Overholt, Brantford Collegiate and Vocational School, said the organization's ambitions were modest as far as outside O.S.A. bounds. The O.S.A. is so organized now, he said, delegates control most of their time looking for section meetings.

Principal Overholt said the requirements who have expressed the most interest in changes in the system are, furthest, was the opinion expressed by Principal Ross Hodgins, Woodstock Collegiate Institute, in a report on "educational guidance of students in high schools."

Social Element Creeps In.

Students are given too high a low a distinction to tackle the immediate future, said Mr. Hodgins.

Principal Overholt said: "The social element creeps in and get it out if you can. Yet don't know how to eliminate it. If anybody does I wish they'd tell me."

Examinations, tending to become an end in themselves, often dull a student's interest, Principal Overholt said. H. W. Jamieson, Stamford Collegiate Institute, Welland, spoke briefly on "departmental examinations and diplomas".

BELL TELEPHONE RATE REVISIONS ARE ANNOUNCED

Ontario And Quebec Users to Save $600,000 Yearly, Says C.T. Sise

Long distance telephone rates in Ontario and Quebec will be reduced $600,000 annually, Mr. C. F. Sise, president of the Bell Telephone Company, says.

"In line with our policy to give the best telephone service at the lowest reasonable cost with financial safety we have decided that the present is an opportune time to make effective some important changes in rates which will result in savings to the public. A brief explanation of these changes will be of interest.

"Under the present service connection and moving charges are based on long and residence telephones (effective April 1st) will there are subscribers $130,000 annually. To the large body of telephone users we find it necessary to have some increase in telephone moved (these constitute about 20 per cent of the total) these new rates will be effective April 1st. It will be of per few users to obtain service at the low rates of telephone and extend the use of a still wider body of subscribers.

"The rate for hand (cradle) telephones will be increased from $1 to 15 cents per month, over four per cent of our telephones in service results in a very small part of the public of $300,000. The capital charges on the new plant and equipment were applied as a deterrent to those who would conveniently avail themselves of the new instrument and to secure unusual economies during an expenditure period were considered during the depression to protection against obsolescence. Improved design and supply now warrant increasing the reduced charge should help the large number of many more users of the telephone. Conditions will thus be created to eliminate entirely the extra charge for extensions.

"For rural subscribers, reducing the charge for saving to them a substantially annual sum of $100,000 per year. Depression years—about one-third of the users—about one-third of the recovery has been restored. It is proposed to restore these rates to the level of 1931 by the use of a service charge.

"A secondary aim of the new revision is to create a more equitable relationship between the short-haul and long-haul traffic from 20 miles to 150 miles. The short-haul 'toolly' overhead distance fills small. The same rate

"The other changes are of minor importance. Under the present rate a point outside the local area for a year however is charged $1.50 per month. The new rate will reduce this charge to $1 per month. Other changes are of a distributional character and will not affect the general revenue of the company."

IS MUSSOLINI BACK?

Hollywood, March 31 (AP)—The rumor that Mussolini is dead was the latest sensation to hit the movie capital today.

Like most sensations, it was false.

Mussolini is very much alive, and he did it personally.

Word went through the movie colony that Mussolini had been killed in a bomb explosion in his office.

Then came the report that Mussolini had died from natural causes.

Finally, the rumor-mongers had him dying in a plane crash.

Hollywood's version of the Mussolini death story was that the Italian dictator was killed when a bomb exploded

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE SUN RISES

By William R. Greco

He entered the room and closed the door behind him. For a moment he leaned heavily against the door. Outside the sounds of the jubilant crowds drifted dimly to his ears. His shock his head as if to rid his brain of the noise and confusion.

Dragging his big body across the room he sank into an easy chair. He covered his face with his hands, still red from the Arctic ice and wind. His head ached from thinking. All that long trip he had spent torturing his mind in vain efforts to drive the mist from his brain.

When he had received word of his wife's death, he seemed to lose the power to think clearly. At last he had given over and over again, was: "Minnie's dead. Minnie's dead."

He dug the palms of his hands deep into his eyes. "It's going to be hard, Minnie."

The door to his room opened quietly. His head came up slowly, wearily, and he saw that it was Minnie's sister, Cathrey.

Her thin voice came softly. "I'm so sorry, Mr. Caffrey."

Caffrey leaned at the blurred wall before him. "There's something I must know, Fifie," he said. His voice hoarse and tired.

"Yes, sir?"

His brown eyes, dark with suffering, bored into those of the housekeeper. "Fifie, you have . . . if in some way I had managed to come . . ."

The housekeeper shook her head. "Oh no, sir. There wasn't time for that. Besides, she wouldn't hear of it. She was so happy that you had been chosen to go on the expedition. She wanted you to finish your job. And all the while, she knew."

He leaned into silence. Then: "How was it, Fifie? I mean . . ."

"I know, sir," Effie said. "It was beautiful, Mr. and peaceful. She seemed so gay those last few days planning the surprise for you. It's in the bedroom."

"You've explained to Junior?"

The color of the housekeeper reddened. "As best you can tell a little thing like that, sir."

He nodded. "I know, Effie. You can go now. And thanks—for everything. You've been kind."

Shaking himself, he entered the next room—Minnie's and his. He looked about. Everything was in order. Beside the bed he saw a phonograph machine. Minnie had loved music. On the floor lied in a neat, circular bundle he saw a package. His heart gave quiver, but he grasped it eagerly. He struggled with the cord. A phonograph record rolled out of his hands, onto the bed. His breath came in swift gasps as he leaned over the machine, fumbled a moment with the mechanisms, then waited expectantly.

"Hello, Bill."

The voice came low, natural. Minnie's voice. For a crazy moment his whole body quaked with renewed agony. He called softly: "Minnie, Minnie . . ."

"Listen Bill," Minnie's voice said softly. "I'm so sorry, dear, I couldn't be there to greet you. You're the hero now, aren't you my Billy? I know you don't have something to say, so now and then I'll pause and let you talk to me, Bill. I'll hear you."

Caffrey sat still and silent on the bed's edge. Then the voice came again. "Dear Bill, I know how you must feel. But I had to say goodby to you.

All the loneliness left him as he listened. Minnie was talking to him —Minnie!

Again the voice: "Perhaps you wonder why I'm repeating your name so often. It's been a long time since I've talked to you. I want to say it over and over, Bill. Bill . . . Bill. I . . ."

Her voice stopped short in a choked cry. Caffrey clenched his fists. "Minnie!"

"I'm so sorry, Bill," her voice continued. "A little pain. So sorry. But honestly, dear, it's been worth it, a pain. There never has been very much pain except when I thought of you and Junior."

There was a silence. When her voice did come it was softer, that it was quieter, lacking the brave levity of echo last sentences.

"Now, Bill, before I go . . . when this is over . . . when I stop talking . . . promise me you'll break the record."

Caffrey was silent a moment. "I can't Minnie, I can't," he said.

Miraculously, in that Minnie knew him so well her voice said: "Oh, Bill, promise. You see, if you didn't break the record, then it would only mean suffering every time you listened to me. I don't want to keep coming back to you. It isn't fair to you or Junior . . . to keep me, even on a record. Promise, Bill . . ."

He didn't say anything. He waited for Minnie's voice to go on. She said: "Good-by, Bill dear, Good-by . . . and that was all. His body loosened; his hands lay opened and nerveless in his lap. He reached out a hand and picked up the record. For a brief moment he held it in his hand, carefully. Then, deliberately, he let it drop to the hardwood floor. He stared. Its face grave and motionless, at the broken pieces.

Then he arose and went to his son.

"What's this?" Judy demanded. "Sorry I told you anything!" With an emphatic shake of disapproval, she turned away from Dolly, to ask me if I'd like a job in the theatre. I wasn't sure, but I thought I could. "I can't be dependent on you two."

"You're going to have one, Judy, if you'll trust me. Terry has been talking to Frankie Marshall . . ."

"The producer?" There was awe in Judy's voice.

"In the flesh. Terry told him that you were a little beauty and had lots of talent, and a lot of other things that have got Marshall very much interested in you." Dolly wisely refrained from telling one thing that had interested Marshall interested.

"But when he sees he'll just look at me and say 'I'm nobody'."

"Not when I get through with you, darling."

"But he'll ask me about my experience . . . and all I've had . . ."

"I could very much if he'll ask you about your experience." Dolly was beginning to get breakfast things; "Try to find beige cream on the bed, youngster. I'm afraid we have to get the coffeeine set."

This helpful hint was clinging some with classic lines and no details to relieve its stunning simplicity.

Needle in hand, Dolly looked her new child over. "Well, I'll have to nip in the seams. I'm a little worried in bust, but you can't be a Grand still and, for heaven's sake dear, take off your coat in Marshall's office!"

"At eleven." Dolly spoke through a mouthful of pins. "I think I'll lunch in the same shade with my new tailored clip till . . . I've made out a Paris hat and pulled it over Judy's curls and surveyed her critically."

Judy stood fascinated, looking at the vision of herself she knew she was the girl in the mirror.

"Now, no line for loitering. We'll get to work on the making." Expertly, Dolly circled Judy's face with cream, swept shadowed her eyelids with violet, dusted the pretty face with powder, and, with a few scissors to the swooping lashes, and finished the picture with mascara on Judy's pale lips.

"Am I a girl or am I an artist?" she demanded.

"You are." Judy solemnly agreed. "Now, honey, you go in the other room and practice walking haughtily into an office as though it didn't mean a thing to you—" Dolly had taken some pages from the closet and was busy folding clothes. "Then and look as though you were the shadow of a very rich man . . . a powerful pet, as it were."

"Pet?" Judy looked up, to see Dolly's face flushed.

"Why?" she demanded.

"Remember that's the part Marshall has in mind for you in his play," Dolly spoke softly but she didn't look at Judy. Satisfied with her answer Judy obediently walked to the door and, then, Dolly's voice stopped her. "Judy!"

"The producer" There was awe in Judy's voice.

Judy walked . . .

"Yes sir, Terry, Dolly was thinking. "I hope nothing has happened to my favorite redhead. I'll have to be back at ten-thirty, and it's not like him to be an hour and a half . . ." The sharp, insistent ringing of the door-bell brought Dolly hurrying to the door.

"Go back, Judy." Go into the bed room and close the door and when I tell you, open it the way I told you and walk into the room as if you were walking into Marshall's office." Dolly whispered before she opened the door.

"You kids ready?" Terry blew in breathy, two florists' boxes in hand.

"Ready for an hour and a half. I'll bet a woolen shirt Marshall won't be in when we get there."

"Shall I go?" Dolly called through her place. He's walking the floor waiting for us. Well, where's Judy?"

"Judy!" Dolly called, and the bedroom door opened slowly. Judy stood there. She borrowed dress clinging to her figure, the borrowed hat pulled low over one eye, her hair swept back in a cloud of gold from the most carefree angle, back. She looked at them long and carefully.

"Boy!" Terry drew his breath in with a whistle.

"Congratulations, Doll. It's a miracle!" Terry seemed to be in a daze.

"Shall I throw cold water on her or can you come to by yourself? Now go right into the act. I'm Mr. Marshall, Terry. You go over and introduce Judy to me and snap into it."

Terry was delighted with the performance, and, pointing one of the flower boxes brought out four perfect corsals. "I'm this on your shoulder, Judy. There's one for you, too, Doll, but we're just dressing the act now and you don't wear yours until train time. By the way, I'm not taking you to the station all. We'll pick you up at the Ritz" Corsage pinned, he went on.

"They were both speechless in the cab on the way to Marshall's or wouldn't be able to carry it off, and Terry in awe of the finished product. Judy was glad she gave her last-minute directions and when she walked through the door to Marshall's office it was not of John Talbot that she thought but of an imaginary multi-millionaire who had bought her the fine clothes she wore.

Terry walked across the room with her to Marshall's desk and made a charming aside before she was carried to the center of the lobby for Terry. "Judy . . . this is Mr. Marshall . . . or . . . Frank, you Marshall . . . Judy."

Judy remembered the lines Dolly taught her.

"Delighted," she said and no more as she stretched out cool hand to meet his.

Marshall didn't know what he had expected. Something luxurious, certainly, and beautiful. A touch of glamour and hardness. He hadn't dreamed of such breath-taking loveliness as this girl possessed. She was all that Shannon had told him. If only she could act!

Terry and Judy waited for Marshall to speak. He did, bending forward and pulling all his magnetic personality behind his manner.

"I suppose you wonder why I sent for you, Miss Jones."

Miss Jones raised her eyebrows as though that were nothing unusual about a great producer sending for her. She lifted them because she did not know that he had sent for her. Silence was the order, so she kept very still and quiet.

Terry's glance at her purse reminded her of the next move. She opened the bag and, taking an envelope from a small compartment and gold-backed dollfish (belonging to Dolly) from it, inspected herself critically in the mirror and touched the corner of her mouth with the handkerchief.

When she had finished she looked at Marshall expectantly.

"I know that it is asking a great deal of you to accept a part without reading it, Miss Jones, but Marshall knows his lines, too), but I am sure that any changes which will be necessary . . . that is, which you will be willing to have made, can be arranged after your trip."

Judy had almost forgotten about the trip and nearly slipped.

"What . . . I mean what's the part like?"

"Suppose you take it along with you and study it on the way to—to—"

"Suppose you take it along with you and study it on the way to—to—" Mr. Shannon, in the capacity of your manager, will take care of the contracts."

"The contract," Judy murmured vaguely.

"Ah yes, the contract." Terry said. "Miss Jones feels that she can't take this role for less than two grand . . . two thousand a week."

Marshall looked quickly at Terry and his glance went back to Judy. "Two thousand Hmmmm . . . it thought we agreed on fifteen hundred."

"Two thousand", Terry answered firmly.

Marshall sighed and reached for his pen. He rang for his secretary and asked Miss Jones to sign the agreement before him. Then, passing the contract over to Judy, indicated the line on which she was sign.

Judy tried to read it but it blurred before her eyes and when she took the pen her hand shook. How it was done and to the contract she never knew.

"Miss James, will you wait in your car for me, please? That is . . . if you have time?" Terry's voice was all Marshall and Judy's was Rolls-Royce waiting at the curb. Judy caught her self and made a charming aside before she was carried to the center of the lobby for Terry.

When she had gone, Terry sat back, folded his feet to Marshall's desk and stuck his thumbs in his vest. "Well, I know a good thing when I see it!" he demanded.

Marshall pulled him on his back on his way to the cabinet wherein reposed his favorite brandy. "Not if she can't act. I agree she's worth the price of admission. And maybe we can teach her to act. I've engaged Phelps to direct, and Holman is willing to rewrite the part."

"As I remember the play, the girl was an opera singer. Let him rewrite it to make her a stage dancer. James can dance circles that Pavlova never could, like it from me."

"I'll have to take it from you if you're going to keep her away three weeks . . ."

"Now, don't start squawking about that again. I've got her out of New York to get some more front-page publicity and when I get through there'll be whole editions about her. She and Dorothy Lalley are leaving for her home tonight, his Havana in about ten days and the news hawks and cameras who follow them will look like a young Mrs. Ward . . . er . . . how about the cash . . . advance?"

Marshall handed him an envelope. "This is all right, Frank? Shannon, and if it doesn't produce, I'll personally slit your Irish throat."

Terry obunied the twenty hundred dollars in the envelope before he left. "They should be able to do nicely on this, and you can have Dorothy and Dolly to spend money and do it well. To bad I have to stay here and direct field operations. . . . Well, see you in the morning. Good luck."

Terry expected to find Judy radiant with happiness. Instead he found her writing at the bandchief and welling her lips to keep them from trembling.

"Come on, honey; we'll talk it all over in the cab. I'll answer all your questions and then you'll have to snap into a lot of important shopping. I want Dolly to get you the smartest ensemble and evening things that ever born on the eyes of . . ."

"Judy drew away. "I . . . I . . . guess it's all over."

"What do you mean it's all over?" Terry didn't know what she was getting at.

"I mean I'm not going."

"You gotta!"

Poor Judy shook her head. "I've been thinking it all over. There's something funny about the whole thing and I'm not going to go, Mr. Terry, I can't do it."

"You're a little fool, Judy. You can't bust up everybody's plans this way just because you don't figure things out. Why, right there in your pocketbook is the sweetest little contract you ever saw. Didn't I make it clear? Are you crazy? In a couple of days you'll be telling me . . . be smartest society in the world . . . you'll be . . ."

"You know where I'll be? I'll be on my way across a prairie . . . on my way back to Belleville and something and I'm going to run away from it."

Stupefied, Terry stared at her and before he knew what had happened Judy had slipped away from him and was lost in Broadway's maze of traffic.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

RUNAWAY

There was no coherent thought in Judy's bright golden head when she broke away from Terry's arm and lost herself in Broadway's noonday crowd. She was running from something that she did not understand. True, Terry had told her Marshall was looking for her type of beauty for his show. Dolly had said that the money for the trip to Palm Beach would be a loan against her salary. . . . Dolly and Terry had been kind to her, but there was something . . .

She had no place to go, no direction to take. Her purse was empty save for the golden vanity and about a handkerchief Dolly had given her as "props". Then she became aware of the fact that she needed a hat—an "ad— doesn't make real money, and then I saw a way to make a little on the side and get myself in the money I decided to become a theatrical manager."

Lightness came back to Judy's voice and she threw off her last suspicion. "You mean, Terry, you can make money by kidding me, Marshall?"

"Say, what do I look like, a sap?" Terry asked her.

"Sure I make money. I make ten percent of everything you get, and it's going to be plenty. Once this show gets on and gets you pictures plastered all over—" He changed the subject. "But one thing he did not want to do was to interest her in the newspapers. If she ever found out—"Once you get used to the idea of yourself, with your looks, we'll have you going for ads and maybe radio. Boy, you're going to be a gold mine!"

"Terry, why must I go away? I should think I ought to stay here and read that play and rehearse and learn and . . ."

"No Judy . . . Oh, my no!" Terry scolded Judy as though she were in the last stages of a ravaging illness. "No; you've got to get some tan and lots of fresh air. The theatre is an exacting career and you must build yourself up. Marcy me, we can't have you getting stripe or flat feet."

"But I should think—"

"Listen, kid! You stop thinking, will you? All I want you to do is to learn your lines and when I come back you must look beautiful, relaxed, not too much—then, and if you gotta think concentrate on that pukoka heck home."

"Oh, Larry." Judy's voice took on a far-away note. What would Larry think of her if he knew where he'd be glad for her. She'd save money. Of course she'd send lots home ere week and she'd buy presents. But she'd something for Larry, too. She thought then of Talbot, who had promised to help Larry get a fitting job. She wouldn't do that now, because she'd never see him again, but may be if she got to be a great actress Talbot would know who could help him. Perhaps Terry would. Terry seemed to be so powerful, Terry, who so powerful, was casting an anxious eye out the taxi window. He wondered if the boy had followed his tip. If Dolly had sent the telegram to Talbot's wife informing her that the famous Judy James' whereabouts had been in her divorce suit, was on her way to Palm Beach. He hoped she hadn't. It would be better to arrive and then let the works blow.

Judy was still thinking of the things she'd do in the beautiful hotel-purveyors when their cab drew up at their destination. Terry opened the door and gallantly handed her out. They walked the few steps to Dolly's apartment house.

A motley group of young men in shabby coats, weighted down with what Judy knew to be field glasses strung over their shoulders, lolled about the entrance.

As the girl in mink and orchids approached they snapped into action.

Judy's step slowed and her grip on Terry's arm tightened. He knew the signs and over her head he shook his head in slow negation to the boys. He was one of them. He had tipped them off, and if he hadn't them to wait, wait they would.

Preparing to be unaware of her suspicions, Terry walked with Judy past them and into the apartment. Holding the door for her, he turned for a moment to the boys. His right fingers made a sign that the camera men knew.

Terry was home through.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

SHOPPING EXPEDITION

Dorothy Lalley wasn't a nervous woman, but when Terry and Judy opened her apartment door they found her pacing her living-room like an anxious cat. Two wardrobe trunks yawned in the centre of the living-room floor. Hat-boxes and suitcases were piled one upon the other. Dolly's hat was perched on the top of her head. A coat hung over the back of a chair. Dolly was in a dither.

"Next time, I go with you," she said before they had time to say a word.

"Next time, as usual, you do as I say." Terry whirled her about the room and kissed her soundly.

"I'm dying to hear about it all, but I've got going shopping and catching that train at six, we'd better get at it." Dolly insisted, "Nothing but some cold cuts and milk, so go to work."

"Yes, Mother," Judy said. "I'm too excited to eat. Oh, Dolly . . ."

"Dolly, me later. Here, wrap yourself around this food." Dolly was Dolly in an emergency mood. "Now, listen, Terry. Those suitcases are full of practically nothing. I thought it would look better to have all the luggage possible. However, in this one" Dolly pointed to a very large, shiny bag, "there's a dandy little . . . set I thought up all by myself."

IN MEMORIAM

Edgar Redner, who passed away three years ago March 29th.

There's an open gate at the end of the road,
Through which each must go alone,
And there in a light we cannot see
Our Father calls His own;
Beyond the gate our loved one
Waits patiently for us,
And there is comfort in the thought
That a loving God knows best.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Stolen Holiday" and "King of Hockey"

In the role of a French manequin who rises to the heights of fashion dictator for the world, Kay Francis, beautiful brunette actress of stage and screen, makes a magnificently, is starred in "Stolen Holiday", First National production which will be shown as a bill No. 1 on a grand double feature bill starting tomorrow until Friday nite at the Capitol.

In "Stolen Holiday", Miss Francis' rise from the ranks of the manequins begins when she meets Claude Rains. He comes to the modiste shop where she is working, and tells the manager that he has been delegated to select a model and some costumes to exhibit in his society. Kay is his selection, but when they meet he reveals to her that what he really wants is a ginger composition with which he can impress a rich banker.

If he succeeds in borrowing money from the banker he promises to back her in a modiste shop of her own. This leads to a friendship that endures until eight years pass, and Kay has risen to the top of her profession, unaware that her banker is involved in serious financial deals. To her, Rains is a cherished and an honorable friend.

When, inevitably, the difficulties in which he is involved begin to come to light, she does all she can to help him prove his innocence. She even consents to marry him, although she has already fallen in love with a young Austrian diplomat portrayed by Ian Hunter. It is to Hunter that she turns when Rains' crookedness is finally exposed.

Kay's ultra-modern salon is the scene of a fashion show that is said to surpass anything of its kind ever seen on the screen.

Slots on the streets of Paris, closely paralleling those that once took place not so long ago and which Chicago reformers have fought rather closely on fact give the picture a timely significance.

Allison Skipworth is seen in a highly satisfactory comedy role.

"King of Hockey"

Romance in a new setting will be found in the picture, "King of Hockey", which will be shown at the Bill No. 2 tomorrow until Friday at the Capitol. It is staged in the atmosphere of Maritime Square Garden, New York, and carries all the thrill, color and drama of the popular game of ice hockey.

The story by George Bricker follows the fortunes of a country youth, an expert hockey player, who goes to Maritime Square to get a job after graduation, turns professional. On the ice he meets a beautiful and wealthy society girl with whom he immediately falls in love.

He doesn't make much headway with the girl, but he dreams until her hero worshipping baby sister decides to play Cupid and fixes things up. But just as things are going nicely, the youth, accused of throwing a hockey game, a gambling syndicate, is barred from the game and loses his job.

He goes almost blind, the result of a blow on the head, before he finds work, and gets a low that he is in the bread line, when an amazing incident takes place which brings the story to a smashing climax.

AT THE BELLE

"Charlie Chan at the Opera"

How are your nerves?

If they can stand thrills occurring with stacato speed, excitement piling high, and mystery and suspense that will have your spine tingle, "Charlie Chan at the Opera", on the Belle screen today and Wednesday, matinee only, will provide you with a solid hour's thrill-packed entertainment. Highlighted by various unusual and youthful romance.

With Warner Oland as Charlie Chan, the arch-enemy of man, coming face to face with Boris Karloff in the role of terror, the picture is the high spot of the wily Chinese detective's career and the scene of mystery entertainment.

Jane Withers, Fanny

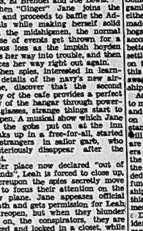
A rollicking whirlwind of mischief and excitement, the Irrepressible Jane Withers romps merrily through the laughprovoking situations of "Ship Happy Turner", a Twentieth Century-Fox comedy hit, announced as the companion feature at the Belle.

In this latest and gayest fun-fest of her career, involving her in the arious doings with the Navy, the star makes a ship answer to the name Anthony Martin, Leah Ray, Jean Davis, El Brendel and Joe Lewis. Then "Ginger" Jane joins the fleet and proceeds to baffle the officers while making herself solid with the midshipmen, the normal course of events get thrown for a riotous loss as the impish boyden keeps her way into trouble, and keeps dances her way right out again.

When spies, interested in learning the location of the navy's new airplane, discover that the secret story of the sale provides a perfect view of the hangar through powerful glasses, strange things start to happen. A musical show which Jane and the gobs put on at the beach ends up in a free-for-all, started by strangers in sailor garb, who mysteriously disappear after the fight.

Her place now declared "out of bounds", Leah is forced to close up her boarding house secretly and go in, to focus their attention on the new place. Jane appears before the board to plead permission for Leah to reopen, but when they blunder in, the latter is offered a drink, seized and locked in a closet, while spies complete their coup in the air manoeuvres.

How Jane escapes and, in a riotous conclusion, breaks up the spy ring and reunited Leah and Tony, makes a hilarious climax for the funniest picture in which the irrepressible young star has yet appeared.



The Belle Latest World News Flashes will be exhibited on the same program.

Minneapolis Miller Dies

Minneapolis, March 30 (CP) — "Ohhhh, Rosie! Ohhhh, Rosie!"

It was a plaintive male voice that rang out the night near the Minneapolis Women's Workhouse. Somebody, too, had been shaking a flashlight on the workhouse windows.

Perturbed, police salted Rosie, an inmate, who left the "big city" to be with "the boy-friend," explained Rosie. "I guess he's lonely."

SHOT RIVAL EDITOR

Harry French (ABOVE), 30-year-old California "Union Labor Press" employee, reported, field on an open charge after his voluntary surrender following the fatal shooting of Claude C. McCracken, editor of the Alturas, Calif., "Modoc Daily Mail." McCracken was shot down in his home while at dinner. The act was declared climax of a long-standing feud between the editor of the Bard French, publisher of a rival Alturas newsheet.

HOG GRADING IN HASTINGS AND PRINCE EDWARD COUNTIES

Over $20,000.00 was paid out by packing firms in 1926 as extra bonus premiums on hogs from Hastings and Prince Edward Co. The hogs marketed from one Hastings fall fair year contained 15622 selects which was 31 per cent. of the total, while Pr. Edward Co. marketed 4452 selects or 34 per cent. of their total marketings. This is according to the official grade sheets on which the packers make settlements with shippers and truckers. Hogs failing to grade selects receive 50 cents bring $1.00 per head premium over the selections.

The Hog Grading Regulations require that market hogs be bought and sold on the basis of grade, with price differentials between grades, the object being to encourage and discourage the production of high quality hogs by paying more money for them. That this system is proving efficient is shown by the fact that for as recent as 1923 packings hogs graded only 14.8 per cent. selects, while in 1926 it was 32.0 per cent selects. This improvement, which amounts to doubling the percentage of selects in three years was brought about by farmers taking more care to reproduce market hogs of correct type, weight and finish, and by shippers taking more care to get higher returns from them.

It is known, however, that there are instances, and it is feared not a few, where the correct production of hogs under the farmer who produced the select hogs. They may be sold by the farmer under a number or family identification of hogs or otherwise with a sold hog's name, the grader, or they may not reach any farmer allow they are sold out by the farmer, and continue to get graded, tracked and lost in obscurity. To this latter practice there is likely the farmer's own fault when this happens, and the grading system provides a service which will assure the farmer settlement on the grade of his hogs if the proper advantage is taken of it.

Briefly, the shipper or trucker has very definite responsibilities in the grading system, and in a great many cases where the Hog Grading Regulations are disregarded the fault lies with the shipper or consignment and collusion of the farmer. The love of "getting a little extra" is a natural trait of human nature, and there is a tendency always for the man to gain for a price, too many farmers are willing to bargain on the grade of their hogs, and this trade which amounts to betting the shipper 20c. to 50c. per hog that the hogs in question on grade will not equal that amount. Sometimes the farmer wins at this gamble and often he loses, but in either case there is no progress in hog improvement since the hogs have not been sold strictly according to grade. It would be better if the farmer would insist on settlement on the grade of his hogs on the highest price obtainable on this basis, and thereby have a little fun betting back-knives with the shipper.

Another system is for the shipper to mark the hogs for official grading and pay the farmer the grade basis on shipping day with the understanding that the final adjustment will be made when the grade reports are received. In this case the farmer is given a "grade receipt" by the shipper and receive them while the hogs are being graded, any deductions frequently refuse the refund to the farmer. Obviously the shipper cannot long survive under this system and is likely to try some other line of graft himself.

Dealers in market hogs which are slaughtered in packing plants are required to carefully mark or tattoo each animal in such a way that it can deliver to the official grader a statement showing each farmer's shipping number, weight of hogs and identification mark. Obviously failure on the part of the dealer to maintain Live Stock Branch to report and pay for hogs graded will be given unless these requirements are strictly adhered to. We are now satisfied that the system is working as farmers grading is a very efficient system, and has proved a great benefit to the farmers of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties.

Woodstock Ont. March 30 (CP) — Canadian glove workers are engaged in distributing and are nearly a total loss in carrying socks, Miss Ethel Hilton, Provincial Secretary of the Woodstock Y.W.C.A., told members of a service club here.

London, March 30 (AP)—British bobbies will "police the main brace" after the coronation naval review—at Spithead Presidend with the strongest rum since 1740.

Admiralty fleet orders today announced the abolition of other issues to a half-gill of rum to two parts of water. From that the additional half-gill to three parts of water. The change, the Admiralty announced, will be tried for one year as "an experiment."

A crowd of 8,000 fans, including some who flew from Sudbury by air-plane, roared its approval of the Nickel Belt club as it became evident the game Dominion fans were doomed to defeat. The struggle marked the end of a hectic, thought three-game series, each team having taken the nod once previously.

Praised By Rap Day.

Coach Happy Day and his Dominions joined the throng which swarmed the mineer after the game. The Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman said it would take "a mighty good club to stop those Tigers". He was satisfied with his team's showing and admitted that the best club won.

The fast-travelling Tigers, who will carry Ontario's hopes for Canadian supremacy, left no doubt of their superiority. They scored within 30 seconds after the first bell on Don Grosso's smart marker and piled up their six-goal total before Dominion registered.

But it was Saskatoon's blond bomber, Art Hill, who broke the hearts of the Toronto fans. After he banged Grosso in the first goal, he drove home three markers himself in the third period. His first two goals were scored within 30 seconds early in the session.

It fell to the lot of Murph Chamberlain to tally what proved the winning goal. He shot out of a scramble in front of Sudbury net-minder Mel Carey, Julie Cholette being credited with the assist. Coach Marshall rounded out Tigers' total, scoring during Hill's spree.

Guilford, Miss., Mar. 30—Although most of the New York Giants still severe practice Clowning Bob Fellow today after their failure to hit his delivery, a couple of them were exhibiting their wares in the baseball league. Dick Bartell and Sam Leslie claimed Vic Mooty and Stanley Hack had a slight edge over the youngsters in speed.

Clearwater, Fl. — Jack Winsett, Brooklyn recruit outfielder, is carrying on the old Dodger tradition of daffiness which manager Burleigh Grimes is seeking to banish. Wrapped in blankets on the bench during an exhibition game, Winsett was rapped on the head by a high foul. Grabbing his skull, the Babe Herman's old stunt of getting hit on the head while playing right field.

6-4 at the end of the second frame and scored four times without a reply in the third.

Ottawa Rideaus have come along by winning the Ottawa and District title, then subduing Amherst's good Maritime champions in inter-zone playdowns.

Gumming for his second Allan Cup victory, Coach Red Stuart said he didn't care if Tigers faced Hull Volants or Quebec Aces in the next round. The teams are tied at one win each. Stuart let Halifax Wolverines go to the Dominion title in 1934-35, beating Port Arthur Bearcats in the finals.

A crowd of 8,000 fans, including some who flew from Sudbury by air-plane, roared its approval of the Nickel Belt club as it became evident the game Dominion fans were doomed to defeat. The struggle marked the end of a hectic, thought three-game series, each team having taken the nod once previously.

Praised By Rap Day.

Coach Happy Day and his Dominions joined the throng which swarmed the mineer after the game. The Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman said it would take "a mighty good club to stop those Tigers". He was satisfied with his team's showing and admitted that the best club won.

The fast-travelling Tigers, who will carry Ontario's hopes for Canadian supremacy, left no doubt of their superiority. They scored within 30 seconds after the first bell on Don Grosso's smart marker and piled up their six-goal total before Dominion registered.

But it was Saskatoon's blond bomber, Art Hill, who broke the hearts of the Toronto fans. After he banged Grosso in the first goal, he drove home three markers himself in the third period. His first two goals were scored within 30 seconds early in the session.

It fell to the lot of Murph Chamberlain to tally what proved the winning goal. He shot out of a scramble in front of Sudbury net-minder Mel Carey, Julie Cholette being credited with the assist. Coach Marshall rounded out Tigers' total, scoring during Hill's spree.

SUDBURY TIGERS TAKE DOMINIONS

Score is 6-1 With North Team Strong in Every Position

Toronto, Mar. 30 (CP)—Sudbury Tigers are taking it easy today as they awaited a contender to come out of Quebec and challenge their right to represent the east in Dominion senior hockey finals. They entered eastern finals last night by overwhelming Toronto Dominions 6-1.

Gunning for his second Allan Cup victory, Coach Red Stuart said he didn't care if Tigers faced Hull Volants or Quebec Aces in the next round. The teams are tied at one win each. Stuart let Halifax Wolverines go to the Dominion title in 1934-35, beating Port Arthur Bearcats in the finals.

HARMONA'S EASTERN ONTARIO SEXTET LOSES

An Interesting feature of the provincial interscholastic playdowns held in London at the arena, concluding Saturday evening, is the fact that one of the teams comes from an Eastern Ontario 4-room high school with only 35 students to draw from for their hockey line-up. The team is from Harmona, 12 miles north of Belleville. The above photograph was taken by a Free Press cameraman at the arena. Top—Members of the Harmona High School team. Standing left to right, Leo Dochstader, manager; Bert Kourt, captain; Don Prentice, Floyd Lovelee; Eugene Reynolds; James Lovelee and Clifford McGovern. Seated, left to right, Norman O'Neill, Jack Gray, Wellwood Hart, Gus Leonard, Ross McColl and Cecil O'Neill. Below—The two captains of the Harmona and Central teams shaking hands before the first game of the doubleheader Friday night. CHIPS from the SPORT BLOCK

OLD and NEW

By George H. Carver.

Strange as it may seem, the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the professional hockey championship of the world, and one of the most prized possessions in the world of sport, was originally donated for amateur competition. . . . A few years after the lack of the needed funds or rather a few of the master minds which ruled the post, got their heads together, figured out a few strategic moves, and by dint of some canny mental actitmetic, prized the mug loose from the simon pures, and have had possession of the ball ever since. . . .

As is popularly known, Lord Stanley of Deal of England, donated the mug, at the advice of his friend Lord Kilgourie . . . Now, this Lord Kilgourie, who would claim in 1890, and give some of the shiny stalwarts of those days trying each other over the shank and pitch with their shillalahs, decided he'd like to sit in on the King of Canadian outdoor sports . . . So a few of the lads took him under their tutoring wings, taught him what they knew with the result that he soon graduated and became a member of the Rebels Hockey Club of the O.H.A. . . .

The tactics of the good old days stood Lord Kilcourie in good stead as he learned enough about what to become one of England's immortal leaders in the subsequent conflict of 1914-1918 . . . But when 'Is Lordship discovered that the lads over here were balling-for nothing else than the honor and glory of the game, he wrote to his friend Lord Stanley and suggested that he donate a prize for competition . . . The result was ten pounds, or fifty bucks, which was used to purchase the famous Stanley Cup. . . .

Then the professional craze swept the country, hockey gained in popularity and the boys in the cities and small towns began to pool their finances to bring in players from other districts. . . . No fuss was made, and soon it became the rage for Rinks to go out and get and no questions asked . . . Then came the formation of the National Hockey League in 1908, in which players were paid openly. . . . In 1914 the Pacific Coast League, an other professional circuit came into being . . . Later the latter rule challenge, to play for the Stanley Cup . . . A number of years ruined the roof claiming it was for amateur competition only.

The pros came back with the argument, that the "amateurs" were really pros, having fixed for many . . . Meanwhile there wasn't an amateur club in Canada which could claim the mug so the trustees figured they didn't want it, and even if they did, where would they keep it. It would not be as good as the champion pro team of 1914 . . . A few years later, when amateur hockey started to boom in the pro purses let out a yelp for the return of the cup, but the pros said . . . "No dice" and that was that . . . Then the Allan Cup series in 1909 by Sir Montague Allan, sprang into prominence, when it was announced that it would be the emblem of championship among the amateurs.

Chiplets. . . . The long-drawn argument among hockey circles in Prince Edward County over the title were the best, those of the Picton and District Loop or those in the Wellington League was decisively settled on Saturday evening in the Lakeside village . . . Carrying Place, W. & D. champs, and Picton Kiwanis, the cream of the town league crop met in a battle to decide the county title. . . . And reports from the village today state that the so-called epic of the year, which was to see the downfall of the Carrying Place squad, already champions of two loops, resulted in nothing more than a workout for the C. P. outfit. . . . By the time the smoke had cleared, the count registered 9-1 for the villagers with the Kiwanians wondering what it was all about . . . George Gay, Arena manager is at his home ill in bed . . . His pals of the Picton Club sent George a packet of fags the other day in the hope that his worries . . . Nice goin' boys . . . China enters the League of Nations . . . Ralph Chong a Chinese middleweight, is the cream of the Orientals at Detroit Olympia . . . Not only has the "Yanks" game been invaded by some of the biggest clowns in the country, but now it is a dumping ground for some of the circus freaks. . . . A recent U.S. wrestling card announced that "The Blimp" weighing 625 pounds would take on Cyclone Stecklin, a southern hill-billy who takes his pet raccoon in the ring with him. . . . Stecklin is no sapling weighing 326 stripped. . . . Imagine a half a ton of beef carcass, with a head on it, trying to pin a coon . . . . Barnum was right . . .

KING'S PLATE ON MAY 22ND

Toronto, Mar. 30 (CP) — Spring meeting dates from race tracks throughout the country today and Woodbine turned thoughts to thoroughbreds and the turf.

Less than two months before official opening of the racing season turf followers wondered how many horses would be nominated for the King's Plate, Canadian turf classic. Nominations for the 1½ miles test close April 1 and the Ontario Jockey Club will release the list two or three days later.

How many of the fifty expected to be named will survive the training grind and answer the starter's bell on Woodbine Race Track May 22, is problematical.

Crack two-year-olds often fade to ordinary three-year-olds, while little better than average runners develop to sturdy, nimble-footed campaigners. One of four horses already known to be nominated will likely be branded favorite when serious prepping starts a week or two after the race.

BRADDOCK LOST IN CONFUSION OF FIGHT SITUATION

Lives a Fantastic Existence While Lawyers Squabble Over Details

LIKES TO FIGHT

Woodcliffe, N.Y., Mar. 30 (AP)—Even Champion James J. Braddock was lost today in the confusion of the heavyweight situation.

Facing court action for his avowed intention of running out on a bout against Max Schmeling, the champion clings to his contract with unmodified idea that a fighter should fight.

"I don't know anything about this new business," he said today, "but I'd sorta like to fight again."

In the present muddle, he lives a fantastic existence. He grabs early and jogs around the park in this little cliff-bound community on the Hudson River. Each afternoon he goes to New York to work out in a gymnasium. After this he visits his manager, Joe Gould.

That is all he does from one day to the next, and yet he is credited with doing all sorts of fabulous things. "Braddock dodges Schmeling" reads one headline. "Braddock threatens to quit Chicago bout" screams another . . . "Braddock going to Berlin," reads another.

Yet Braddock himself does none of these things. He merely lives his all. Part of the time Jimmy doesn't even know about them till he reads the papers.

Won't Be In Court.

Yesterday, however, the champion found one job his manager could not do. Martin Conboy, counsel for the hailing Jimmy into federal court to show why he should be forced to meet Schmeling in New York, June 3, before meeting Tommy Farr in Chicago June 22. The champion went to Newark and calmly accepted the papers. He didn't quite understand them which led to the court order, and he won't even be in court Monday when his case is pleaded.

Jimmy is not complaining about the situation. He is a patient plodder and complains about nothing. He has nothing but but praise for his manager.

"At least everybody knows I'm the champion now," he says simply. "Joe got me plenty of money."

All observers are not agreed, however, that it's good publicity. Some fear that Braddock may grow to like his nickenamesake, end up in the ashes.

At the moment, it appears that Braddock's future hangs by a slender whip-hand in the situation. If the New Jersey Federal Court does refuse to grant Max Schmeling a chance until he has fought Schmeling, the challenger's chances are not good. And even if the court refuses to grant the injunction against the Louis fight, the champion's prospects are still unsolved.

Promoter Bill Brandt in Chicago indicate that somebody out that way is not too anxious to have the Louis-Braddock fight and yet there is not a legal technicality of a suit in Gould does not go through with the Chicago bout.

NEW YORK ROVERS NOW DISBANDED

Lester Patrick Quite Pleased With Showing of His Team

New York, Mar. 30 (CP)—A street-cure campaign behind them, New York Rovers of the United States Amateur Hockey League were disbanded today and the players engaged by Coach Lester Patrick.

Lester Patrick, head of New York Rangers of the National League and was the Hershey Cup, a Canadian trophy, for senior clubs in three straight games.

At least three of the players will be promoted to Philadelphia Ramblers of the International-American League next season, it was learned, of the others will return to play in the Rangers' intermediate and junior competing the Eastern Hockey League.

Brantford Boy Leads.

Herb Foster of Brantford, Ont., who plays left wing for the Atlantic City led the league in scoring with 43 points in total.

Lade Wareing of Regina, who patrolled defence for Rovers, was second with 36 markers and 14 assists. Max Macdonald, brilliant Rover centre from Glace Bay, N.S., was third with 21 goals and 22 assists, while Tommy Anderson, Rover left winger, who was the third leading Rover marksman, with 20 goals and tied for eighth with Red Sherman of Oshawa boy who played for Pittsburgh.

Patrick plans to bring up a complete forward line from Ramblers to strengthen Rangers next season. Clint Smith, Vancouver centre, Ryan Hextall, Winnipeg, and Eddie Wares, Calgary are the leading candidates for the National League jobs. Their vacancies will be filled by Rovers but Patrick has not yet decided what assistance will be chosen for the Rangers' minor league

Unless a goodly number of hockey fans signify their intentions of taking advantage of the reduced price, for a hockey special train to Niagara Falls, the whole show will have to be called off tonight. About 100 have intimated they would make the trip and undoubtedly the over 30 needed could be quite easily raised, but who's going to take the chance, unless there is some kind of a guarantee? Would you? At any rate here's a swell opportunity to see the falls illuminated, take in the game and have a half holiday and all for about a "fin".

The Niagara Peninsula sport commentators had little to say regarding the defeat of the Thorold "Mountaineers" except to admit the Belleville Redmen had a whirlwind edge was needed to win. The visiting sports columnists, however, seem to think that the Moosie will be favorites in the Niagara Falls Arena. They failed to state why, but are unanimous in their decision, always prone to stress an ace in regarding the Falls rink in other things. "Braddock dodges Schmeling" reads one headline. "Braddock threatens to quit Chicago bout" screams another . . . "Braddock going to Berlin," reads another.

Yet Braddock himself does none of these things. He merely lives his all. Part of the time Jimmy doesn't even know about them till he reads the papers.

witness this unique presentation, which should prove even more thrilling than other sports that have been filmed.

We were sorry to hear that Roy Smith, who successfully held down the initial sack corner for the Belleville section in the C. O. R. L. for the past four years, is in ill health and at present confined to hospital for observation. The latest reports, however, are to the effect Roy is progressing splendidly and will be out playing ball next summer, we hope.

The Eastern Ontario checker championship opened at the local Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon and, up midnight the six participants had not completed the initial round. There were only six entries in the junior or class "A" series for the Collver Cup, at present held by A. W. Pitfield of Trenton. The promoters of this annual checker tournament are at a loss to know the interest in the competition is diminishing yearly. Last year the finals were not completed until something like 4.00 a.m. the morning after the tournament opened. During the initial round yesterday some of the participants took as long as 90 to 100 minutes to play a game. If the officials of the tournaments are desirous of promoting checkers in Eastern Ontario and also interesting the younger players, they should take a page out of the present-day book and speed play up considerably.

A new comer to the tournament, Jack Travis, of Kingston, drew well up in the standing at midnight last night, there to compete in the "A" class were—A. W. Pitfield and S. Asia, Trenton; J. Ralston, J. Johnson and J. Livingstone, Bay of Picton. The championship will be decided today.
